Sense and Cents

Common sense or dollars and cents—which counts for most in making a trade?

Common sense says plainly "buy standard goods"; dollars and cents (your pocketbook) tempts you to buy cheap, nameless articles of trade that will grow dim, dusty, dirty on your shelves. Common sense counts for most in making a trade.

Griffin & Skelley's Dried Fruits

"The pick of the pack," please remember that. Don't forget, either, that they come from the largest vineyards and orchards on the Pacific Coast---picked and packed right where they grow.

Apricots, Peaches, Pears, Nectarines, Raisins, Dried Plums, Prunes. Clean as a whistle always. Choice Dried Fruits.

Cox's Gelatine Standard Gelatine of known worth ---known quality---known purity. Never disappoints the most particular housekeeper. Oldest brand and "best," because tried, tested, trusted. In powdered and shredded form.

Sold by leading wholesalers.

The Come-Again Customer

AND SUCCESS

There isn't a Grocer in Canada who does not think a good deal about these four things, and all shrewd merchants are constantly thinking about them and thinking good and hard. The first three are the essentials of the fourth and last—Success. Now Sir ! if you could handle a line of goods about as excellent as you might feel safe, but why not place yourself on easy street by stocking the brand Canada's particular women proclaim

"Incomparable"——————Old Homestead Brand

The favorite brand is nothing more or nothing less than the concentrated goodness of fruits and vegetables in cans—just the goodness of ripe, juicy fruit and fresh vegetables—that palate-pleasing, appetite-provoking flavor which has made Old Homestead Brand famous the wide world over. PHENIX WASHING POWDER

THE GREAT SELLER

Owing to its recognized superiority over cheap makes of washing powder, PHENIX is always used by the housewife after the first trial.

Then, the price is another consideration. Despite the high quality of PHENIX, the price is most reasonable, 5c. for ½ lb. package, or 10c. for the 1 lb., are the retail selling figures.

First quality and the right price mean profit for the retailer.

The "Quality" Salt

Since "the proof of the pudding is in the eating" we think that Windsor Salt has proved up by facts, by sales, by test. It passed the "comparison" stage long ago—now other salts are proved by "Windsor".

If "other salts" prove up, 50 per cent. that means they are 50 per cent. as pure, white, crystalline as Windsor Salt.

Windsor Salt is the so-called weather gauge —the testing glass —the "prover"— the one hundred per cent salt.

Are Your Profits Reasonable and Secure?

Quite an important question—one every shrewd grocer constantly asks himself.

Commercial prosperity demands a reasonable and lasting profit on all lines handled.

This goes far towards explaining why most progressive grocers insist on

Burlington Brand

Canned Goods

because that brand clinches both reputation and profit at the same time. Only high-grade, first-quality fruit can ever reach our canning department and BURLINGTON BRAND retains all that is good, nourishing and invigorating about succulent fruit and mature, fresh vegetables.

STRAIGHT POINTERS

Dealers who are in the market for Canned Goods will find it distinctly to their advantage to order the "Essex Brand" based on these prime facts:—

—We are located in the finest garden section of Canada, where Corn and Tomatoes grow to perfection.

—We own one of the largest, newest and most perfect canning plants in the Dominion, with every facility for doing things right.

—We claim for the "Essex Brand" a higher standard of quality than is usually considered necessary. The finest of Fruits and Vegetables, gathered at the right stage of ripeness and packed fresh from the field under the most careful conditions, warrant the statement that the "Essex Company's" goods will give a larger measure of satisfaction to your customers than any other within your reach.

RECIPROCAL DEMURRAGE

The shippers' side of the railway business.

An address before the National Wholesale Grocers' Association of the United States.

At the recent convention of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association in Chicago, Geo. P. Thompson spoke on "Reciprocal Demurrage." Substituting Dominion Railway Commission where Mr. Thompson referred to the Inter-State Commerce Commission, the address is very applicable to conditions in Canada. Mr. Thompson said in part:

"The law of equity demands equal rights for all parties to contract; reciprocity signifies a mutually interchangeable basis of agreement whereby the equivalent conceded is of a like obligation, the aggressiveness of either party depending on the advance or decline of the other.

"Briefly put, the theory advanced for your consideration is this:

"If the railroads charge you demurrage for failing to remove your consignments within a certain specified time why should not the railroads be charged demurrage for failing to deliver those goods within a specified, reasonable time?

"It is a notorious fact that the railroads are lacking in facilities to handle the great tonnage of the country's increasing commerce.

Neglect Equipment.

"While they safeguard themselves by every little quibble in the exactions of rates and conditions, they neglect the most important factor of their being in existence as freight carriers, viz., the necessary equipment to transport the goods. They are exceedingly punctilious in requiring a 'China' rate on a case of cereals containing cups as premiums, but it is absolutely of no moment to them when that case reaches its destination. And if, as it may happen, after being out several months, followed by numerous demands for tracer, time and money spent in telegrams, letters, contracts cancelled perhaps, etc., it at last makes its appearance, you are instantly notified to remove the goods within a named period or they will be subject to demurrage charges. Your business arrangements may be such you would be facilitated by the goods remaining at the depot a few days longer; but railroads are paramount—it is the rule, and you know the penalty.

"Such injustice is being perpetrated by them daily, and it is manifest that a law is needed to govern the meaning of 'reasonable time for delivery,' and to restrict the violation thereof to a basis where unusual and unwarranted detention due to the negligence of the railroads, would be punishable by a forfeit on demand for demurrage by the interest injured, be it manufacturer or jobber.

"The answer of the railroads to complaints of delay is carbuilders are overloaded with work and cannot supply the cars needed, and until they catch up with orders no relief may be expeced.

"That is as it may be, but it is up to them to attend to the business they solicit, and if they had to pay for these delays they would quickly find a way to avoid them.

Armor-Proof Against Claims.

"The country should have full protection against this one-sided policy of the railroads. At present they are armor-proof against claims for damages resulting from their failures to deliver promptly. It is a matter of record where shipments delayed in transit (sometimes months) have depreciated in value at receipt, both in matter of quality and depressions of the market. What recourse have you? Will they reimburse you for these losses, cancelled orders, etc?.

"They have every protection, uniform bills of lading, etc., and you have nothing but a receipt promising to deliver with reasonable dispatch.

"Some power should have jurisdiction to impose limitation, and that power is the National Government. The matter is of such enormous and far-reaching magnitude it has reached the state where the Government alone is competent to act. So powerful a weapon has it become the railroads might thereby well-nigh cripple the commerce in certain localities which had earned their disfavor, while others were served where there was an axe to grind.

"Say to the next Congress, 'Give the Interstate Commerce Commission plenary power to exact for the people from the railroads a like penalty for wanton lack of service on their part as the railroads exact of the consignee who does not remove his goods promptly.'

"Reciprocal demurrage is not a question of fairness or unfairness to the railroads, but it should have occurred to them long ere this to offer some solution of this vexatious problem, which they have had to consider for many a day. But, as everyone knows, railroads are too prone to consider nothing but what it laid down by law.

Demand Justice.

"I have no desire to take up your valuable time with a lot of statistical information showing the delays in movement of cars. You are all no doubt, as familiar with it as I am. Conditions that confront the merchants to-day are past reasonable bounds, and an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth should be our policy—justice is what you should demand.

"The railroads see the clouds in the horizon and they are active in opposition to any reciprocal demurrage measures.

"The time has now arrived when your own protection requires that you assert yourselves.

"The wholesale grocers represent a very large proportion of the mercantile interests of the country and should you present a memorial to Congress recommending and endorsing enlarged powers for the Interstate Commerce Commission, empowering it to enforce a reciprocal demurrage statute, depend on it, you would not only be heard, but heeded.

"You can expect no relief until you have such a law, and some power to enforce it.

"Conferences with the railroads have borne no fruit, and never will.

"The railroads must be penalized, and when this is done, you will see a complete revolution in the handling of freight. Ask no favors, demand your rights.

"A railroad occupies the same position to you as does a manufacturer; when he is derelict, what do you do?

"Of course, the railroads are entrenched and will fight anything on these lines, but the people have waited long enough for the railroads to remedy the evil and no relief is in sight. We have suffered patiently, why procrastinate longer? It has been amply demonstrated the railroads are not going to do anything—demand a corrective measure and place it in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission for enforcement.

"It is unquestionably the right of every merchant who pays freight to compel the railroads to deliver promptly. They enforce the penalty when you act counter to their rules, therefore, it is incumbent on the National Government to furnish legislation suitable to the purpose and punish them for their derelictions, because they are not giving reasonably prompt service for money received, and no real improvement may be anticipated until a money forfeit is possible. They should serve the public efficiently or follow business methods—if a man damages another, he is liable for such damage.

"A drastic condition confronts you, and further submission would be puerile. Insist on your own recognizance. Go after the railroads and obtain some form of protection, call it reciprocal demurrage or what you will.

"Similia, similibus curantur."

BILLION SHIPMENTS IN A HAZE OF FOG

Levy Mayer, of Moran, Mayer & Mayer, Chicago, speaking also of Reciprocal Demurrage at the convention banquet, said :

"There is an imperative necessity for uniform Governmental regulation of the railroads. The traffic question is in a chaotic condition, physically and legally. There are in the United States nearly one thousand railroads owning 2,000,000 freight cars, carrying over 1,000,000,000 shipments annually, as against about 140 in Great Britain. Judges are daily making conflicting railroad decisions, dependent upon inconsistent local and state laws. I deny that it is a question of centralization of government or State rights. The subject is one of which the vast industrial interests of the country demand a prompt solution. The remedy does not involve tne obliteration of state lines, or political rights. In trade and commerce these lines are arbitrary and imaginary and should not exist. They must be wiped out or complications and conditions will arise worse in their consequence that the blotting out of a mere political theory which has no place in the trade and commerce of this country. It is not a question of Republicans or Democrats ; it is not a matter of politics at all, and it can be met only by federal authority.

"This is keenly illustrated by a few lines that became federal law just a year ago. Congress enacted that any common carrier receiving property in interstate transportation shall issue a receipt or bill of lading therefor and shall be liable to the holder for any loss caused by the initial carrier, or by any carrier over whose lines the property passes ; that no contract shall exempt such carrier from such liability, and that the initial carrier shall be entitled to recover from the carrier on whose line the loss occurred the amount which the initial carrier may be required to pay. That single federal provision will alone, if its constitutionality be finally sustained, work out one of the greatest benefits, both to the shippers and the carriers, that has been brought about by legislation in many years.

"Out of the annual billion shipments there arise many thousand complaints that result in claims for damages and consequent litigation. The shipper in nearly every instance is utterly unable to trace the cause of the injury or to locate the line upon which it occurred. The carriers have both the facilities and the power to ascertain the facts, and this the shipper has no means of doing. It is inexcusably unfair to cast upon the shipper sending goods between remote points and over many lines the duty of finding out how and where the injury occurred. The initial carrier has the right to select who shall be the connecting roads and should be made liable, particularly when, as the law now provides, it can collect from the railroad on whose line the injury occurred. Many thousand shippers, on account of the difficulties of locating the place and cause of the injury and the expense

GROCERY NEWS FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

IN THESE COLUMNS THE GROCER IS IN TOUCH WITH THE TRADE IN EVERY PART OF CANADA.

CONTRIBUTIONS ARE INVITED FROM MERCHANTS IN SMALL PLACES OR WHERE THERE IS NOT A REGULAR CANADIAN GROCER CORRESPONDENT.

WINNIPEG.

All the Winnipeg grocers, wholesale and retail, closed their places of business on Wednesday of last week in honor of the caterers' picnic at Winnipeg Beach. The trade in Winnipeg work harmoniously together and the annual picnic does a great deal to cement friendships among business rivals. There is a hearty co-operation among all branches of the trade in making an affair of that kind a big success—a co-operation which is very much to be commended and which might, with advantage, be emulated by grocers and general dealers in other parts of the country.

During the last year the Winnipeg grocers have been thoroughly organized as a section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada, and probably there is no city or town in Canada where the association idea has been more clearly understood or where it is more carefully followed out. It is in no sense a combine in restraint of trade according to any interpretation of the law. No attempt has been made at any time to fix prices or to enter into any price agreements. The Winnipeg grocers have directed their energies in other channels.

In the first place, they have tackled the credit problem, and while there has been no general introduction of a strictly cash system, customers are held down closely to a system of monthly settlements and credit is dearer and harder to get than at any previous time in the history of the grocery trade of the city. Time was, and not very long ago, when any person could get credit from a Winnipeg grocer. Competition was so keen that dealers were anxious to get business on almost any terms. Competition is still very keen, but dealers are wise now and not every one who asks can get all the credit he wants.

In every city there are many chronic "dead beats," who make a practice of running accounts with a number of stores. Their accounts never amount to very much with any one store, but they have many separate accounts. Each dealer gives them credit, not suspecting that they owe very many accounts and that they never pay. If their record were known they would never get credit from any live grocer. This evil has grown to alarming proportions in Winnipeg and the Grocers' Association undertook to deal with it.

The remedy was simple and it has proved effective. Each member of the association—and practically all the Winnipeg grocers are members now—furnishes the secretary, in confidence, with the particulars of all slow-pay and delinquent customers. From this information the secretary is able to compile a "delinquent list," which is sent to all members, and which is carefully revised and kept up to date. Each member has, therefore, a list of dead beats to guide him when strangers ask for credit. The remedy has proved effective.

W. H. Stone, one of the oldest Winnipeg grocers, is building a handsome new stone store on Main street, within a block of his present premises. The new store will be one of the handsomest in the city, and with larger premises, Mr. Stone will be in better position than ever before to handle his growing high-class trade. The fixtures will be up to date. Stuart Watson & Co., the Winnipeg agents for the Walker Bin and Store Fixture Co., have sold Mr. Stone a big bill of fixtures for his new store.

F. E. Weldon & Co., one of the old Winnipeg grocery firms, are selling out and retiring from business. The store has been rented for other purposes.

A. Hendry has removed from Notre Dame avenue to Portage avenue, the move having been necessitated by the alterations to the Winnipeg theatre, in which block Mr. Hendry's store was located.

T. F. Davis, a Winnipeg grocer, doing business at the corner of Notre Dame and Spence Sts., believes in good window dressing. Recently he has had several particularly attractive windows, which have proved good business getters. A baking powder window sold every package of that particular brand in his store, and sold the goods in most cases to casual passers-by, who were not regular customers. No wonder Mr. Davis believes in good window dressing.

CHATHAM.

John McCorvie and sons, John and Rae, have returned from a trip to Niagara Falls, Toronto, St. Catharines and Port Dalhousie.

D. A. Warner, an old and respected resident of Dresden, passed away last week in his 75th year. A native of Chenango, N.Y., he went to California during the gold excitement and later traveled and clerked for a number of firms, finally engaging in the grocery business in Union City, Pa. Later he moved to Canada, locating first in Bothwell, then in Wallaceburg, and finally in 1870 in Dresden, where he conducted a grocery and furniture business until a few years ago, and served the town seven years as a councillor. He leaves a widow and four children.

The Canada Flour Mills Co. recently moved into their new offices on Thames Street. The offices are handsomely fitted up, the predominant color being white, and everything is clean, light and airy. The new location is more convenient than that on Dover Street, being in close proximity to the mills.

The city's tax rate for the current year is 28 mills. According to the revised assessment rolls for 1907, the whole rateable property of the city amounts to $4,895,518. A 28-mill rate is fairly steep—is, in fact, the record for Chatham—but the city has at least good pavements, thriving industries, modern improvements and first-class schools to show for it, together with a good waterworks plant and a fine, modern market and other up-to-date public buildings.

Reports from Ridgetown indicate the rapid spread of a new fruit pest, in the shape of a worm about half an inch long, which is attacking apple, pear, plum and ornamental trees with serious results. The worms appear in small numbers at first, but in a few days they are a wriggling mass numbering thousands. Their work commences at the bottom of the branch, and in a few hours not a leaf is left and the limb soon becomes dead. A web indicates their presence. Some fruit growers use a smudge to burn the pest out, while others cut off the branch and burn it entire. Similar worms are reported from Essex county.

Duncan Morrison of McCorvie's grocery staff, who has been dangerously ill in St. Joseph's Hospital from typhoid fever, is at last reports somewhat improved.

Frank Zink, the Murray Street grocer, the other day, while rearranging his stock, discovered that one of a number of boxes of matches had been nibbled by rats, as a result of which the matches had caught fire and the whole box burned out. Fortunately, the other boxes did not catch fire, and a serious blaze was averted.

A barn in the rear of Williamson's grocery on King Street was visited by fire Saturday afternoon, a rubbish pile becoming ignited from some mysterious cause. Fortunately the fire department had the blaze quenched before it had got well started.

At the present writing there are no less than four new industries in sight for the Maple City. One proposition has in fact been concluded and only awaits the sanction of the ratepayers. The firm ask a $20,000 loan, and will expend not less than $40,000 on buildings and plant, with a wage scale of $18,000 per annum. They will employ 75 hands, the loan being repaid in 20 annual instalments with interest at 5 per cent. The city and company have both agreed to the proposition, which has also been endorsed by the board of trade. The three other propositions are still in the incipient stage, but the civic industrial committee are hopeful of landing the industries.

W. M. Murdock, who recently disposed of his grocery business to L. A. Cummings, leaves shortly for Cobalt, to look after his mining interests there. Mr. Cummings, since taking charge has commenced a line of aggressive and attractive advertising, and is sparing no effort to build up his trade.

Miss Olive Turner, bookkeeper at Bradley's grocery, who has been quite ill the past week, is reported to be improving.

E. A. Mounteer has arrived home from a week's visit to Hamilton and Toronto, in the course of which he attended the meetings of the Master Bakers' Association of Canada. Mr. Mounteer reports an enjoyable and profitable time. Mrs. Mounteer, who accompanied him, remains for a while longer in Hamilton.

Butcher Anson Mounteer is the proud possessor of a cornstalk which, despite the frost, contrived to reach a height of 11 feet 11½ inches. It grew in Raleigh and was only four or five feet taller than the other stalks in the field.

The auction sale of the assets of Frank C. Peck & Co., who have been conducting a general store at Jeanette's Creek, took place at the Hotel Garner here on Friday, Aug. 16. Mr. Peck bought the stock at 33 cents on the dollar and will resume business. It was only a few days ago that Mr. Peck was able to be out after a long illness.

Duncan Morrison, for the past fourteen months a valued member of the grocery staff of John McCorvie & Son, passed away at noon on Tuesday, Aug. 20, after a four weeks' illness. Though not quite 21 years of age, Mr. Morrison had given promise of a bright future as a business man and his demise is mourned by a wide circle of friends. His employer speaks in high terms of his honesty, courtesy and trustworthiness. He was a member of the choir of Victoria Avenue Methodist Church, and prominent in musical circles. Besides his parents, two brothers and one sister survive him. His father, John Morrison, is one of the most prominent Masons of the city.

The funeral took place at 2.30 Thursday afternoon from the family residence, Joseph Street, to Maple Leaf Cemetery.

BELLEVILLE.

What is probably the last drive of saw-logs that will ever come down through this city, passed through the harbor boom here this week, and the Moira and tributary streams will thereby be deprived of their supply of "barks" for fuel, and will miss the picturesque figures of the river drivers and the more or less melodious "chandwellers along the banks of the river ties" at their camping places at night during some weeks of each year. They will, after this year, have passed into history, and in a few years nothing will be left of them but their memories.

The grocers of the city will miss their presence here perhaps more than any other line of business. A hundred or so big, husky men stopping here for a couple of months each summer, meant that a lot of groceries were needed to feed them, and one grocer told your correspondent that the dying out of the industry meant hundreds of dollars to him. Other branches of trade will also be affected.

For a great many years the waters of the Moira floated annually to the saw mills which fringed its banks from Tweed to this city and to the Bay of Quinte, for the giant lumber-sawing concerns at Trenton, Baker's Island, Rossmore and Deseronto, a "teeming wealth of saw-logs," which filled its bed at times from Belleville to Cannifton, a distance of three miles; but year by year as the country has become denuded of its pine forests, the number of pines in the yearly drive has decreased. Some mills have closed or removed to other places, and now we see the end of a great industry which at one time gave employment to at least a thousand men, including the mill hands and those employed on board the vessels which carried the lumber to other ports, principally those of the United States.

For a hundred years, and probably more, lumbering was carried on along the Moira at first no doubt, on a small scale for the supply of local needs, but for sixty or seventy years extensively. In the early days when the scene of operations was near Belleville, a great deal of square timber, including oak and elm, was floated down to the shipping port, but as the forest receded before the axes of the lumbermen, the making of timber ceased and nothing of any account but logs and smaller stuff was driven down the Moira during the past forty years.

Now the waters of the Moira, the Scootamatta, Black Creek and other streams which have been monopolized by the lumbermen from time immemorial, will be freed from their control and will be utilized to furnish power for permanent industries of much more value to the country than lumbering ever was or could be, namely, mining and manufacturing.

Inseparably connected with the lumber industry on the Moira are the names of some of the old "captains" of it, men who were of great influence and power in their day, but nearly all of whom have gone to their reward. The names of Hon. Billa Flint, Abraham F. Bogart, David D. Bogart, Hiram Yeomans, Sanford Baker, Wm. Stinson, James Jamieson, Alex. Sutherland, F. W. Rathbun, James Cumming and of several members of the Canniff family, will recall to many memories of a past when Belleville was a small but prosperous town, and nobody thought that the then great source of employment for its inhabitants would end during their day. And yet such has been the case.

Mrs. James Wilson who has conducted a grocery business on North Front street for several years, has sold out and will remove to Rochester, N.Y.

MONTREAL.

"A good many grocers fail these days because they do not know how to figure out their selling price in a way to make their percentage of profit in keeping with their cost price." This is what Placide Daoust, a successful grocer, remarked the other day. Mr. Daoust is ex-president of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, and he is running two retail stores, one on St. Catherine street east, and the other on Sherbrooke street west.

When you come to think of it, there are quite a number of retail purveyors of foodstuffs who seem to be carrying on their business in a haphazard sort of way. They go ahead something like a blindfolded man; they are getting somewhere, but they do not know just where.

To give an instance, there are some grocers who are to-day selling jam at the same profit they made four or five years ago. Jam prices have advanced since then, but these retailers' ratio of profit has not. Four years ago they were buying jam at a cost, say twenty per cent. less than they are paying to-day. Then they retailed a package at a profit of five cents. To-day they are paying more for the jam, but have not raised their profit. It's like putting a hundred dollars in the bank and getting interest on it at the rate of $6 a year, and then putting more money in the same bank, and yet drawing not a cent more interest. The man gives the bank the use of his money for nothing. In just the same way the grocer gives his business the use of his money for nothing. He does not draw any more interest on five hundred dollars than he does on four hundred.

The grocer receives less money out of business than any other man if he carries it on in this manner. During the past five or ten years expenses have increased enormously. Prices on everything have gone up; rent is higher; clerks are worth twice as much; it costs in some instances 30 per cent. more to keep a horse. In fact, there has been an upward tendency in expenses which has not been met by an equal advance in prices.

It is easy to explain in some cases. The wholesale houses occasionally put up the price of an article one or two cents a dozen. The retail grocer continues to sell the line at the old figure. He does not deem it politic to advance his selling price from 10c. to 11c. or 12c., the odd cents have a strange way of keeping down sales. I know of some instances where prices have gradually advanced on a line of goods from 90c. a dozen to $1.05 a dozen, at wholesale, while the article still retails at 10c. a can, or a bottle. The retailer's cost price has been rising, but he has not advanced his selling figure. Why he does not is a mystery. It may be fear of competition, because competitors are quick to see an opportunity of this kind, and when they can sell 2c. cheaper than Smith they usually get Smith's trade.

This pruning down of the profits might be ascribed to lack of unity in the trade. There is too much "see who will get there first," and in the rush many a poor fellow is pushed to the wall who might have survived did the grocers work together to their mutual advantage. This is where the Retail Grocers' Association is of benefit. It works for the good of all its members. The men who belong to it are working with one another, not against each other.

Unfortunately for the grocery trade Montreal has not such an association of retail grocers as it should have. There is the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, but it does not comprise nearly all the retailers in the city. Quite a number belong to the organization, but there are just as many who do not, and those who are non-members care not a rap for the doings of the rest.

Illustrating the real need of an association at present is the early closing movement. In some sections of the city, Point St. Charles and the southwest, the best grocers have consulted one another and have been closing one night a week, Thursday. In St. Henri they are closing once a week. In St. Cunegonde they are now closing two nights a week.

If there was a powerful association in Montreal it would not be a month before every retail grocery store in the city was closed two and three evenings every week.

The latest grocers to join the movement are Messrs. Laniel, president of the Retail Grocers' Association; De Montigny, Desrochers, Ferron and David. They are in the Centre street district, and are now closing Thursday evenings.

J. Lamoreux, president of the Butchers' Association, is thinking of running for alderman in St. Louis Ward next civic elections. He would make a good man for that division, particularly as far as the retailers are concerned, as he is enthusiastic on all things tending to better their condition.

John Robertson & Son, St. Catherine street, have a good summer window. It is a mountain scene, two real grassy little hills, with a campers' tent in the valley between, and the necessary outing supplies displayed around. The window is well dressed and ought to sell goods.

PETERBORO.

This summer, which seems now to be drawing to a close, has been a busy one for the grocers here. They all report a large volume of business and while the farm trade is falling off a little every year the increase in the city business more them makes up for it. The grocers are all contented and are making some money, although it is hard to get some of them to spend it.

Speaking with one of the largest merchants the other day your correspondent was informed that coffee roasting was not a profitable business for the average grocer, and any merchant could be easily deceived. He admitted that those who buy coffees already roasted have to rely upon the word of the traveler from whom they are buying to a great extent. But he also pointed out that the man who roasts his own coffee is dependent upon the traveler also. There is such a similarity in the green beans that only an expert can detect it, and yet there is a wonderful difference in the strength, flavor and value of just those beans that are most similar in appearance. A traveler could easily ship a substitute for Java and it would not be detected until after it had been roasted and tested. Therefore, there is little to gain in that way by home roasting. It was also pointed out that while a little money is saved by the individual grocer roasting his own coffee, he takes such chances in getting the different batches turned off just right that by the time he allows for loss the saving has been eaten up. If a batch is roasted a little too much or not quite enough it is spoiled, and the whole thing is lost, with tea it is quite a different matter. Many merchants can learn successfully and profitable to blend their own teas. It is an advantage to do so, for the man who blends his own teas knows at least just what he is offering his customers and is able to find out gradually their respective likes and dislikes.

The fruit season has been a short and lean one here, strawberries, raspberries, cherries and all the early fruits were such a small crop and prices were so high that nothing like the average quantity was handled. Apples are now the chief fruit and so far, they are very small and hardly worth buying. Peaches are coming in and the housewives are hoping that prices will be within reason. If not, many families will have to go this winter without preserves.

The trustees of the Nicholls estate recently donated to the city a large, handsome three-storey building for a public library. The gift is valued at about $30,000, and will make an ideal library. All the remodelling necessary will be a new front. Plans for this have been submitted by several architects and the committee in charge is now considering them. It is expected that some $10,000 will be spent on the structure in furnishings, etc. When the building is complete internally and externally, Peterboro will have a library that she can be proud of.

Perkins, Ince & Co., of this city, on Saturday received a direct shipment of raisins from Australia. So far as is known. this is the first direct shipment of this kind of fruit ever brought from the Antipodes to Peterboro. If the raisins sell, it is the intention of the firm to import a large number from Australia.

MIDLAND.

Here are fourteen stores selling groceries and foodstuffs and all doing a thriving trade. Seven of these are exclusive provision stores, the other seven being general and departmenal establishments, three of them making a specialty of catering to the marine and tourist trade.

Farm produce in Midland is always good in price. Butter and eggs at present writing, retailing at 20c. and 21c., respectively, which is an average price for the summer and fall months, but during the winter and early spring the prices range up near the 30c. and 35c. notches.

Fruits and vegetables are in good demand, fruits, especially, not being available in sufficient quantities and prices are high.

Canned goods sell well. There is always a good demand for them, and it is a pretty sure end of the grocery business.

The marine trade is considered a factor in Midland's merchandizing, and during the navigation season a lively and lucrative business is carried on with all kinds of water craft.

About July 1st the tourist season opens up, and while the trade is pretty well divided amongst the several provision houses, there are at least three stores making a specialty of catering to tourist needs. So much is this tourist business prized that one enterprising firm has purchased a neat little passenger and freight boat, which plies daily between the several summer resorts situated on the Georgian Bay, supplying the wants of these summer visitors and affording pleasant and appreciable conveyance for passengers from point to point.

One system of accommodation that seems to be well patronized is the house-boat service.

The portable or floating houses may be had to accommodate either small or large parties, and is certainly a very nice way of spending a week, a fortnight or a month upon these pleasant waters and amidst scenes that invites the world's keenest rivalry for beauty and healthfulness.

Supply boats call usually every day at landings convenient to these house boats, and a lively trade ensues.

The hardware and sporting goods people get a share, of course, of the tourist trade, but the principal demand is for provisions.

It would be rather a hopeless case indeed where one would be found without a real good hungry feeling after spending a day or so in this invigorating air.

That this summer trade must be of considerable volume and a help in an otherwise quiet season of the year, is an assured fact, especially when we consider that several small grocery stores are scattered among these resorts and that our neighboring town of Penetanguishene derives a certain benefit through its portion of the trade.

Digby Horrell, manager of the J. B. Horrell & Son departmental store, and his wife and little daughter, Jean, are spending a fortnight's outing up on Lake Tamagami.

Lester Brown, of Owen Sound, who has been with J. B. Horrell & Son for some time past as grocery salesman, left last month for Fort William, where he has accepted a promising situation. Mr. Ross, of Barrie, a young aspirant in the grocery business, comes to fill Mr. Brown's place.

WOODSTOCK.

O. White, for several years a prominent grocer in this city, has been appointed by the public school board a member of the teaching staff and will hold the principalship of Delatre Street School. Mr. White taught school before entering the grocery business and is merely going back to his first love.

The fruit crop this season has been somewhat of a disappointment. The raspberries have been decidedly scarce. Early in the season indications all pointed to a big crop, but the dry weather came and dried the berries up. The price has never gone below ten cents a box and at that the quantity has not been large. The first harvest apples are beginning to come in. This section of the country is very badly in need of rain. Crops and vegetation are suffering severely for want of moisture.

Grocers report that business has been quite brisk of late. They have a lot of work to do.

The annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association was to have been held one evening last week, but there was not a quorum of members, so no business was done. There has been no meeting now in several months and each night the same old story—no quorum. This condition shows a disappointing amount of interest on the part of those whom such an organization is made to benefit, and it is no wonder that those who have officered the organization during the past year are ready to quit in disgust.

KINGSTON.

Just a few lines. I did not have a letter to send you last week. Fact was, weather too hot and clerks sick or off for holidays. Camp orders to send seven miles in one direction and five in opposite. This takes time, and wears out horsehide, but it will soon be over. Kingston is a great place for tourists, being situated at the head of the River St. awrence and Thousand Islands, and small lakes, abounding with fish an in easy access. It is a pity Kingston lacks hotel accommodation. A traveller said a short time ago that he didn't know of any place on the continent where there was a better opening for a large hotel.

Tourists in the summer and students in the winter, find it hard to get the kind of accommodation they require.

A big crowd of grocers met on the market, and they were certainly excited. Everyone was out of potatoes, and there was none to buy. "What's the matter, anyway," said one. "Why," replied Tom the Gardener, the peddlers went out three miles and bought up every potato." Now peddlers have a soft thing of it here. I asked analderman about the Peddlers' By-law and he said he thought a man could buy home-grown stuff and peddle it without a license. We have by-laws galore, but we have no one to see that they are carried out. Something must be done. The grocers are getting sick of the present state of affairs.

Mr. Stead, representing Green & Co., importers and manufacturers' agents, called on the trade this week and was successful in placing many lines of goods from Bristol, England. The quality of goods shown were of good value and neatly put up.

Potatoes sold as high as $1.25 a bushel. James Redden & Co. and Albert Glover are each putting up large buildings to store potatoes. We have only one commission house here, and it can't fill the orders.

The outlook for canned corn, peas, tomatoes and fruits is serious. Prices are opening up on the roof. Those who bought early on the ground floor from such reliable institutions as the Canada Brokerage Co. and others, are fortunate. We hope they will keep up their good reputation and fill all orders in full, and not do the whining act by crying short crop, etc.

Kingston is slow, but in a good healthy state, morally, financially and politically. It may not have the cornstalk growth of some cities which in time weaken and droop, but it has a steady growth, and at present it is difficult to get a house to rent. A lawyer has started building three-storey flats on account of our colleges. It is a great place for boarding-houses and restaurants.

I don't know a grocer who does not need two or three weeks' rest. Rev. McTavish, a good, solid Presbyterian, divine, advocated early closing Saturday evenings, say at 9 o'clock, and he deserves praise for his remarks. Grocers should go in for shorter hours. They work now from 12 to 16 hours a day, and after the day's work they are only fit to go home and throw themselves on a sofa and go to sleep and dream of lost opportunities and money thrown away in wild cat mining schemes. One trouble about early closing is that some fruit and ice cream dealers carry a stock of groceries and the law is puzzled about what to do in such cases.

Mr. R. Smeall is now travelling for the Montreal Packing Co., and he is certainly a pleasing knight of the grip to meet. His meats are O.K., and nice, 2-8 a-ham a-ham. I can't think of any more just now to write. My thinking powers in August are weak, my fund of knowledge light.

HAMILTON.

As the prices begin to come out on canned goods it looks as if the "price of living" was going to give us poor people another squeeze. The man on salary who has not had it boosted up a little, will begin to think that the "good times" for the majority of people means a hard-luck story for him, and when the grocer gently tells him the price of Canadian Canners' strawberries he will be apt to feel ill and make up his mind that pork and beans would make a nice change. We were rather surprised to see the figure for peas, as it struck us all along that peas were a very large crop, but then the way things are now the raw material is a small item in the cost of manufacture. It is to be hoped that times will keep so good that the people will buy even at the high price.

The very dry weather prevailing makes the outlook for the pack of corn and tomatoes look rather gloomy, and if the pack is small the price will be correspondingly large.

One of the great troubles here is the scarcity of competent business help. Good clerks are as rare as hens' teeth, and as for deliverymen, they are simply not to be had—that is that are any good—a few Old Country people are trying their hands, but the experiences grocers have with them are very discouraging. They know too much altogether for the average Canadian. I suppose the good times should be credited with the quality of the help that is left for the stores, the better class of clerks and drivers having drifted into factories and offices or migrated to Cobalt or the Northwest.

I read of rather a startling legal decision given in an English bankrupt court the other day. "A retail grocer applied for the benefit of the bankrupt laws and asked to be discharged from all his debts. He was refused on the grounds that he had engaged in the business without experience or business training and had conducted it from the beginning in a low and slip-shod fashion. Since his trouble was of his own making, therefore, and his failure simply inevitable, the court refused to give him a discharge." This decision really establishes the principle that a man who carelessly and lightly starts into a business of which he has little or no knowledge, will not get any protection from the courts, that is, that he cannot get away from his creditors by any legal process. Wonder how that would work out in Canada if the wholesale grocer would get a few copies of that judgment and present to the mechanic or farmer who pops up with a couple of hundred dollars to start a grocery store? I think it would make them stop and think before they engaged in the business, and would also protect the qualified grocer from unfair competition.

GUELPH.

There has been ideal harvesting weather and the majority of the farmers are too busy with the crops to come to market, consequently there was a small supply in all departments on the market on Saturday. The supply was not nearly sufficient to meet the demands of the large number of purchasers, and prices were generally higher.

The dry pastures are, to some extent, responsible for the scarcity of butter, which sold at from 22c. to 25c. a lb. Eggs remain about the same, 18c, to 20c. Potatoes, $1 per bushel. The first nice cauliflowers of the season brought 15c. each. Tomatoes, which are beginning to come in freely, sold at from 30c. to 40c. a basket.

Ideal weather, a big crowd, good races, combined to make the Guelph clerks' and salesmen's picnic a grand success, and incidentally to put the smile that won't come off on the faces of the executive committee for another year. It was just like all other picnics, except that it was held in our own city, for which the boys deserve credit. Although the price of admission was small it placed a nice balance in the treasury department, after fixing up that Hamilton excursion. A young grocer, Bobbie Robinson. of J. C. Haddon's, showed a pair of heels in front of all the principal races, and was the most popular man on the grounds. George Walker, of H. Walker & Son, was one of the judges in the baby show, and is now sore on the executive for allowing Mayor Newstead, who has no children, to assist him. He may make a good mayor, but what does he know about babies is George's question.

A small fire in the rear of Mr. Dennis' grocery store, on Waterloo avenue, came near doing a lot of damage Monday afternoon. As it was, the house next door got the worst of it.

Tuesday's fruit market had a good attendance of both buyers and sellers. The tomatoes were real choice at 40c. a basket. A few raspberries were sold at 12½c. a box, while lawton berries brought 14c. a box.

This is ladies' day on the street cars for St. Joseph's hospital, and certainly won't help business any. Like the Made in Canada fair, the merchant gets it from all directions. I often wonder if there is one firm with nerve enough to refuse to be held up by these schemes of raising money for public institutions and also for prizes for fall fairs, etc. Why don't the Merchants' Association take this matter up?

Onr city council is working overtime these days and nights, Monday night's meeting lasting till after one o'clock in the morning, and the main business done was to give us a couple of local law suits between some of the members. It is time this schoolboy business should be cut out and the city's business attended to.

There is, and I hope it will be a success, talk of a Grocer Clerks' Association, to meet once a week and get good, practical grocers to give addresses, and also to take up tea blending and other things important to the business. Keep it moving.

JOHN GILBERT WENT A' FISHING.

Missed From Church, Paper Rashly Surmised He Was Ill.

The other day a Kingston paper referring to the heat of a recent Sunday and Monday, said of John Gilbert, the grocer of renown:

"John Gilbert, who was fishing at Battersea, was completely overcome, yesterday, and had to be removed to his home."

Mr. Gilbert got back at the editor the following dag, as follows:

"Whoever informed you that I was out fishing Monday and was prostrated with the heat and had to be brought home, must have had the nightmare. I was in my store Monday and helped to put up a large order to be shipped farther than any retail shipment that ever left Kingston, as far as I know, viz., to Kobe, Japan. II will acknowledge that the day before I felt unable to go to church, having a severe headache, owing to the large trade we did, Saturday, so betoook myself to Loughboro Lake to escape the heat of the city and have a chat with my uncle, and breathe the pure, sweet air of the lake. Yes, I had to be driven home by a good team of horses I own, for I didn't care to walk. I may, like all grocers, have financial cramps sometimes, but seldom ever get overcome with heat or cold."

A DOG-EATING PEOPLE.

The tribe of Igorrotes, from the Phillipine Islands, which were on view at the Canadian National Exhibition last year, will again be in evidence for the two weeks of the exhibition beginning August 26th. The Igorrotes are known to most people as the first discoverers of the edible qualities of the common dog, but they have other claims to fame besides their unusual gastronomic abilities. In their own country they are head-hunters and no respecters of persons. Those who know them, however, say that they are white beneath their tan, and make loyal friends when once their interest or affection is captured. Their village at the exhibition should be worth a visit.

VALUE OF PEANUTS AS FOOD.

Prof. F. E. Jaffa, who has been connected with the California State University for thirty years, says, in a bulletin, prepared for the United States Department of Agriculture, that 10 cents' worth of peanuts contain more than tice the protein and six times the amount of energy contained in a porterhouse steak. These conclusions were arrived at after studies and experiments with students and others as subjects.

EFFECTIVE WINDOW DRESSING

An Excellent Idea Effectively Worked Out by Will J. Norfolk, of Stratford—A Bridge of Cereals—Time to Get Back to the Window.

The accompanying illustration shows the window of Will J. Norfolk, of Stratford. The display is a unique mechanical device, a suspension bridge of cereals. The idea is splendidly worked out and we can easily believe that it attracted much attention and sold a lot of goods. Mr. Norfolk believes in ticketing all his window displays and any kind of a ticket won't do. Ill-made price tickets will spoil the appearance of the best of windows, but, properly done, they add much to the interest of a display.

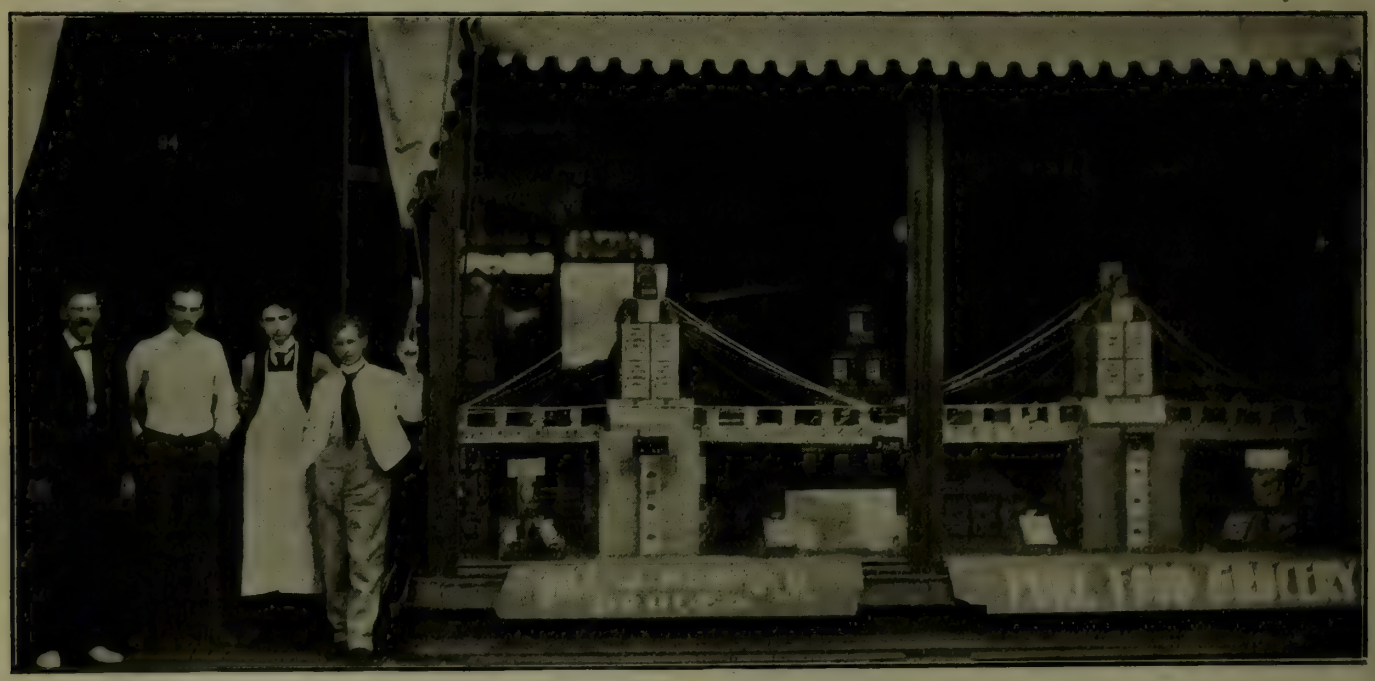
A good many grocers have been neglecting their windows during the fruit season and it is time to get back to business. We would like to hear from someone who has devised and executed an attractive display of preserving jars. Most grocers who attempt a display fill a window ith boxed dozens and make the window look like the back door of a wholesale house.

When you stop to consider what one may see in a leisurely walk of half a mile or so along a street of shops you become aware of the fact that a shopping district is a sort of institute of allied arts, sciences and inventions, and the man who cannot get some ideas or impressions of value out of a judiciously arrested promenade must be a dull observer at the mildest estimate.

I have derived an immense amount of pleasure and benefit from the inspection of shop windows. In fact, it is one of my ways of keeping in touch with the world's aesthetic and practical progress. You can judge of the character of the community much more intelligently from a study of its shop windows than you can from the inspection of its art galleries, public libraries and kindred objects of local pride, for these latter represent the energetic spirit of the cultured few, or may even be the result of one man's generosity. Shop windows, on the contrary, certify the general taste or lack of it; they photograph the people themselves, for the grade and tone of the shop displays almost invariably correspond with the grade and tone of the community that encourages them. I have persuaded myself that I need no other evidence than shop windows afford me of the great improvements steadily going on in this country. I have noted very remarkable changes in the course of the sixteen years that I have been making regular tours among the cities of the United States. On all hands are to be seen increasing evidences of taste, refinement and general educational betterment.—Exchange.



A Bridge of Cereals in Stratford.

AN EDUCATIONAL FACTOR.

We talk of the educational influence of visits to picture galleries, to collections of art and museums in general, but half the people who go to them do so in a perfunctory, careless fashion because they are impelled by a vague sense of duty, and often they come away with very little more than they took with them. But every business thoroughfare of a great city is a delightfully entertaining art gallery, museum and university in one, if you are of a mind to so regard it, and looking in at shop windows is usually due to an eager curiosity that makes it an unconscious benefit.

LOYALTY IN WINDOW-DRESSING.

Patriotism, at first glance, would not seem to bear any close relation to window dressing. Occasionally, however, the window can be made a useful medium through which to appeal to public sentiment and incidentally create a doubly favorable impression for the goods displayed.

F. G. Ward has been manager of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, whose headquarters are at Minneapolis, Minn., for something like 20 years. His opportunities to observe the usual and unusual in window dressing have, in the nature of things, been extensive. Lately Mr. Ward created something of a sensation in window dressing circles and among the general public by designing a display at once striking and unique. Bulk tea and coffee are not usually regarded by the craft as the best mediums to use in making a display which is intended to be attention-compelling and a coin-loosener. Mr. Ward, however, by the use of tea, coffee and different-colored sugars, reproduced the United States flag in toto, and above the stars and stripes formed with the same materials the words G. A. R. The result was described by all who saw it as the work of an artist, and Mr. Ward was made the recipient of many congratulations on his patriotic achievement.

BRANCH OPENED IN PARIS.

Leon Fontanel & Cie., Montreal, have opened a branch office in Paris, France, at 20 Rue Reaumur. The firm is now prepared to quote goods f.o.b. loading port or c.i.f. Canada.

The assets of F. A. Thompson and Co., general store, Buckingham, have been sold.

PURE FOOD GROCERY OF STRATFORD

Will J. Norfolk and his Foodstuffs Store.

An enterprising young man who is making his ideas tell in trade.

Some things experience has taught him.

Grocers, like poets, are born; that is to say, only one man in a good many thousand, would ever make a capable handler of foodstuffs; but they are made, too, very much made, for there's a lot to learn before a man can properly furnish his fellowmen with the endless kinds of edibles classed as groceries. To be born a grocer a man must have business capacity, ambition, ethical principles. He can learn the rest.

Will J. Norfolk, of Stratford, gives tangible evidence of being a born grocer. Herewith is a picture of his store interior, and on the opposite page is a picture of his window.

Mr. Norfolk, in the picture on the opposite page, is standing at the right of the group, next the window, the youngest and smallest man of the four. While as yet a comparative youngster, only twenty-three, he has already made a record in business and as a citizen that the majority of men twice his age might be proud of. He is one of Stratford's most successful, most energetic and most esteemed young men. His father, the late Alderman Norfolk, who had for some years taken a prominent place in Stratford's municipal affairs, died about a year ago.

Some months ago, Mr. Norfolk, by one of his enterprising moves, secured the large store on Ontario street, right in the middle of the town's busiest quarter, which is shown in the two photographs. He had previously been in a smaller store across the street. His present store is certainly one of the cleanest and brightest in Stratford, which, by the way, is above the average as far as well-kept groceries are concerned. For some time he used the phrase, "The Clean Grocery" as an advertising catch word, and his store certainly lived up to its advertised reputation. Recently he has adopted the term "Pure Food Grocery," which may be seen conspicuously displayed in the photograph of the store window.

Mr. Norfolk's energy is also seen outside of business hours. He is a prominent worker in the Methodist church, an ex-president of the Epworth League, a member of the choir and a teacher in the Sunday school. In musical and social circles he is also popular. Altogether, he seems to be an exceedingly good example of what a young man possessed of pluck, push and principle may do.

When securing these photographs from Mr. Norfolk, The Canadian Grocer's representative asked him to write something about his business and his methods. He did so, as follows:

"About seven years ago I drifted into the grocery business, more by accident than by inclination, and during that time have served about two years as a clerk, two and a half in partnership, and the remainder as manager of my own store.

"During this time I have learned one thing of importance. That is, that today when competition is keen and strenuous, to be a successful grocer means work, and wide-awake work, at that.

"To have an absolutely clean and bright store seems to me to be one of the greatest drawing cards in the business. This is one way in which the average grocery store is lacking.

"Then, again, goods should always be well and artistically displayed and priced, and this stands especially true for the show-window. Every article in our window is priced and, we find, with good results. We change our window display regularly, usually about once a week. A window, of which the accompanying photograph tells the story, we found to be very attractive and one that people noticed and talked about for weeks.

"With our business, special attention is always given to the quality of an article before it is purchased. A good article means a satisfied customer. Some one has said, 'If a man writes a better book, manufactures a better line of goods, the public will find him out though the pathway to his door leads through a forest.' I believe with him, that if I sell better bacon and better butter than most other grocers, the people are bound to come to me for them.

"I believe, too, that particular attention should be given to advertising. Nothing helps to build up a business more rapidly than carefully prepared advertisements, appropriate to the line of business you wish to do. We have regular space in both dailies printed in Stratford, and get good results. Advertisements, to do the best work, should be changed daily. Then we have a duplicator, by which we print hundreds of circulars, which reach more directly those who buy at the store, and which we wrap up with orders. These thoroughly back up the newspaper advertising, and give one a better chance to work out new schemes of his own.

"The question of store help is a troublesome one. It is generally hard to get just the man you want. But you cannot expect good work from poorly-paid clerks. One well-paid, hustling and courteous clerk will accomplish more work and hold more customers than half a dozen easy-going, indifferent fellows. Give your clerk a raise once in a while to show him you are interested in him and he will soon brace up and surprise you with the improved work he will do.

"These are a few of the many interesting features of the grocery business. There are others—prompt deliveries, pushing for new trade, up-to-date office work, etc., but as every grocer has to work these things out for himself, I will leave him to do this in his own way.

"Last, but not least, always read The Canadian Grocer. It will repay you many times."

CALIFORNIA DRIED FRUIT.

Crops Uncertain—Sulphur and Peaches —Prunes Not Sulphured.

Under date of Aug. 7, Griffin & Skelley Co., San Francisco, addressing their Toronto agents, W. G. A. Lambe & Co., regarding the dried fruit situation, state :

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 7, 1907.

To Our Brokers :—Climatic conditions seem to be greatly disturbed all over the United States. While fruit in this state has not as a rule suffered as much as it has in the majority of the fruit-producing districts of the United States, we have had, and are now having, our little troubles.

You will notice that very unusual conditions exist all over the country, even at the present writing. Some of the districts east that promised fairly well seem now to be turning out very poorly, for one reason or another.

In dried fruit circles the situation is rather peculiar, particularly so far as peaches are concerned, owing to the discussion regarding the use of sulphur, with which you are doubtless familiar. You are undoubtedly also familiar with the fact that our Mr. W. M. Griffin went to Washington with a view to discussing this sulphur question very much at length with the department. His personal familiarity with the feeling of the department convinces us that it will be their policy to permit the sale of peaches and other varieties where sulphur enters into the process of preparation this season, with the distinct understanding, however, that the growers and packers use their very best efforts to reduce the amount of sulphur used to the lowest possible point.

We presume you understand that in the preparation, for instance, of peaches, the fumes of sulphur are used on the fruit while it is green, with a view to preserving the natural color on the one hand, and to destroy the bacteria on the other, and not as a preservative in any sense. Repeated tests demonstrate beyond any question the fact that when fruit prepared in this way has been cooked it is impossible to find any trace of sulphur.

We are absolutely in sympathy with the efforts of the department and the commissioners in the different states in this connection, and we have taken up the question with the growers with whom we do business, with a view to assisting them in getting their operations to a point where the very smallest amount of sulphur will be used, and there is no question but what the department at Washington, and also the food commissioners of the different states, will approve of fruit where it is evident that some special pains have been taken to improve conditions. Our men in the country are working directly with the growers from whom we get our supplies and report most satisfactory progress.

The peach market, as a result of the agitation over the sulphur question, is, of course, more or less disturbed, as both the packers and growers have been to some extent "in the air." Things, however, are adjusting themselves again. As to what the future of the market will be, time only can tell. The indications, however, point to there being more peaches dried than it was thought there would be earlier in the season. This is the result of the inability of the canners to take care of all the fruit as rapidly as it ripened, necessitating the farmers drying their fruit in order to save it. To what extent this change in conditions will finally affect the market we are unable to say at this time.

So far as apricots are concerned, there are so few obtainable that there is really nothing to say. There is no question of price involved; it is simply a question of getting hold of a few goods. There will probably be less apricots shipped out of this state this year than has ever been known in the history of the business, that is, since the apricot business got to be of some consequence.

As to prunes : We have been feeling the effect of the apparently disturbed climatic conditions quite severely, particularly in the outside districts, during the last two weeks. In practically every district of the state, outside of the Santa Clara valley, as near as we can learn, there has been a very unusual and unaccountable drop going on. You are well aware, of course, that we have a regular June drop. When that is over, the fruit that is left on the trees generally goes through to maturity. The situation seemed to change this year for some reason. We had our June drop, and are now going through another one. In many instances, the one that we are having now has cut the yield of the orchards affected down 50 per cent. To what extent this will finally affect the yield of the state, we are unable to say, but it has resulted in a particularly strong feeling here, so strong, in fact, that it is absolutely impossible to buy anything from the growers at the present writing. They feel that they want to get as much as possible out of what prunes they are going to have, and are going to hold on until the Market reaches their ideas.

It is impossible to pick up anything in the shape of outside prunes to-day at anything under a 4½c bag basis, which means that they have got to be sold at at least a 5c bag basis, to leave the packers any compensation for their work. Growers in the Santa Clara valley will not name a price. They have only about one-quarter of a crop.

You understand, of course, that prunes are in no way affected by the sulphur agitation, except ruby and silver prunes. These two items will probably be dropped from the list from now on ; at least, we are not giving them any consideration.

So far as we are concerned, in the preparation of the black prune, steam only is used. In fact, we simply use a sterilization process, with the result that our customers, as well as ourselves, can absolutely guarantee every pound of them to comply with the strictest interpretation of any pure food law.

The raisin situation remains, in a measure, unchanged. Those who have not sold are firm holders, and are not considering the idea of selling at this time. There is apparently no effort on the part of the packers to make sales at this time, particularly for October-November shipment, because they seem to have disposed of their capacity for those two months.

PERSONALS.

Thos. Dunne, New York manager for Whittall & Co., tea merchants of Ceylon, is in Toronto this week. The firm's Toronto agents are Geo. Musson & Son.

Charles Chaput, of the firm of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, has returned from Old Orchard, where he was spending some holidays. He was accompanied by his wife.

Harry Procter, formerly a successful grocer on Queen St. West, Toronto, has been added to Lipton's traveling staff and will call on the trade in the eastern half of Toronto. Mr. Procter has the personal qualities which make readily for popularity and is sure to make his mark as a salesman.

THINGS TO DO IN SEPTEMBER

Some suggestions for the grocer who would be free handed.
Time of reversion to staple lines of trade,
Early closing a timely topic.

September brings the grocer back to the usual lines of trade. Conditions, of course, differ much in various localities, but generally speaking, green fruits have occupied much attention in most groceries during the past couple of months. The result has been that ordinary grocery lines have not been looked after as they usually are. In any stock of foodstuffs this can have but one result—they need special attention now. In the case of many customers the summer removes a large part of their best trade. Next month these families will be returning and stocks should be ready to meet their demands for the re-stocking of the home larder. But it is very noticeable that many city stores not so directly affected by the exodus to summer resorts deteriorate very much in appearance during the fruit season. Now, whether or not their customers have been out of town, there will be next month a heavier demand on the staple lines of groceries, consequent upon the return of cooler weather. The first thing then for the grocer to do in September is to set his stock in order for the renewal of his regular trade, the trade that runs for nine months out of the twelve.

In this connection the line of goods needing most particular attention is cereals. They are very likely during the warm weather to have developed active life and the average housewife finds it very discouraging to open up a fresh order of groceries and find worms or other moving things in the raw product for the breakfast porridge. Even packages tightly sealed will develop life, so that every grocer owes it to his trade and to his reputation to go very thoroughly into this matter.

Here is an instructive incident which shows that the fault is not always with the grocer, however. A Toronto firm of proven integrity and renowned for the thoroughness of their methods, received, last week or last year, it doesn't matter, a telephone message from an institution they had long served, complaining of the quality of some cereal just delivered. The person complaining said he was surprised that the firm would send out such goods and declared the meal was a mass of moving things. The firm replied that they couldn't see how it could be, and said they would send up a man to see about it. The man went up and asked to be allowed to see where the meal was kept. He was shown a wooden box with a slanting lid and part of the top of the chest stationary. He reached back, and from under the stationary part of the top drew forth a whole handful of meal worms. The box had not been properly cared for. The institution authorities apologized and requested that nothing more be said.

Reminding grocers of the coming month's requirements, the advice to clean up is always in order. It is especially pertinent at this season. Care should be taken to see that no stray pieces of fruit are left in stray corners to rot and befoul the atmosphere. The flys are passing and the remains of the pest should be carefully removed. With doors and windows open, there has, of necessity, been an accumulation of dust. This is sure to show in spots even to a casual observer, and seen or not, it will stifle that aromatic appetizing aroma that is so attractive in the best kept groceries. And the aromatic grocery is not as frequent in these days as it should be. The fault is with the grocers, too. The old trick of burning some coffee on a shovel every morning may have its virtues, but cleanliness must be at the basis of all right merchandizing in foodstuffs. Even in the very best kept stores this special spot attention to cleanliness is in order. The manager of one of the finest stores in Canada told the writer not very long ago that they kept a man going over the stock continually, and he was expected to get over it at least once a month, except in the fruit and tourist season, when he was needed elsewhere and things were allowed to go for a while.

The store-room for surplus stock should not be overlooked in the clearing up. It should be got ready for the new goods of almost every description that will arrive in October.

There will be a good deal of buying for both immediate and future delivery. Great care should be exercised to avoid over-stocking. Money is very scarce, and while an actual depression does not seem likely, there is pretty sure to be a lessening of industrial activity. Anyway, prices have reached such a level in a good many lines that consumption is being retarded. It is a mighty unpleasant task reefing sails after the storm has struck and the merchant who will most comfortably weather the next financial gale is the man who begins to get ready for it now.

With the beginning of October housecleaning will become pretty general. The grocers who handle woodenware and accessories should be ready for that trade in good time and make such a display of the goods as will ensure him a larger share of the business than a year ago.

The summer half-holidays will soon be over. Wouldn't September be a good time to begin agitating for early-closing. The writer asked Henry Swan, Toronto, recently, how long his firm had closed at six o'clock.

"Oh, for 20 years," he replied, "and we never made any money till we did."

He held that the evening trade was a cheap trade and meeting its demands meant sacrificing the quality of your stock upon which depended the more remunerative business.

RAISINS, CURRANTS AND NUTS.

Crop Outlook To-day—Estimates Smaller Rather Than Larger.

P. L. Mason & Co., Toronto, have just issued a circular on the dried fruit and nut situation and say:

Valencia Raisins.—Our advices from London and Denia report continued good prospects, and while hot weather has caused estimates of output to be reduced, a normal crop is expected. Prices will be higher than originally estimated, due to above cause, and some forward sales made by houses (whose execution of same is a matter of doubt), will tend in the same direction, at least at opening of market. As soon as real market exists we will place quotations before you.

Currants.—A cable to us to-day from Patrous states that the crop has received some slight damage by rain, but that the weather is again fine. We would refer you to pages 31-32 of Canadian Grocer, Aug. 16th, which contains an interesting article from the British Consular report of Mr. Consul F. B. Wood, of the firm of Hancock & Wood, on the currant situation and the bearing of the privileged company thereon.

Sultana Raisins.—Cable advices today state that heavy rains have seriously damaged the crop. This may upset the prospects of low prices.

Walnuts.—Appearances denote good quality in Bordeaux and Marbot walnuts. Prices will rule higher than last year.

Sicily Filberts.—Crop is likely to be one-third less than an average production.

Turkish Figs.—A large yield is expected, but the enormous advance (nearly 20 per cent.) in cost of wood, and the increased cost of labor is going to result in prices being probably in excess of last season's.

Comadra Figs.—Crop is short. Price named for figs in serons is high.

Almonds.—Tarragona and Formigetta crop prospects are good.

A very pretty cut-out is being distributed to the trade by the N. K. Fairbank Company, Montreal. It advertises their Sunny Monday soap. Particulars regarding it may be obtained upon writing the company.

WEST'S BUSINESS SITUATION.

Much nonsense is being talked about the business situation in western Canada, not only in the east, where it might be expected and excused because of lack of knowledge of conditions obaining at present, but also in the west itself, where there is little or no excuse for it. Because the combination of a tight money market and a late and hence somewhat uncertain crop has resulted in checking, at least temporarily, the rapid rise in real estate values, a few calamity howlers will insist on having it that the west is on the verge of commercial disaster. As a matter of fact, the checking of real estate speculation is the best thing that has happened to the west in recent years, and while it is, no doubt, causing some temporary inconvenience, it will very soon be generally recognized as a blessing in disguise.

The outlook is, of course, a little uncertain at the moment, but there is no reason for undue anxiety. The crop is late, but the answer of the west to the calamity howlers, who insist that there will be no crop to harvest, is a call for 21,000 men, and the railways are taking steps to secure the labor required. With favorable weather, there is now little doubt that a fairly good crop will be harvested. If the crop escapes the September frosts there will be a yield in Manitoba slightly below the average, an average yield in Saskatchewan, and the largest yield on record in Alberta. The price is certain to be much higher than last year, and the farmer should have quite as much money from the sale of the 1907 crop as from that of 1906.

This is the hopeful outlook, and it seems the reasonable one. If, however, a good portion of the crop should be destroyed by frost, the west can stand it. Ten years ago the result would have been a business panic, but to-day the prosperity of western Canada rests upon a basis so stable and secure that trouble of this kind could be endured. The west is able to stand a hard year if necessary, and, as a matter of fact, a crop failure has already been pretty generally discounted in advance. The next month will be an anxious time, but there is no excuse for any undue excitement.

RELIABILITY.

A few days ago a grocer was telling us about the means he employed in building up the excellent trade he possessed. One thing upon which he laid great stress, was keeping his word in the matter of making deliveries. If he promised a customer he would send up an order within half an hour, he made a point of delivering that lot of goods within the time limit. When a housekeeper telephoned him for a pound of butter he sent it up at once if he were so requested. Sometimes he was very much inconvenienced, but he found that when a lady asked for something by a certain time it could generally be depended upon that she wanted it. Gradually people dealing with him found that he was to be relied upon; they came to him in emergencies at first, and later they transferred the bulk of their trade to him, and all because of his reliability—backed up, of course, by good groceries.

In these days of rush and close competition there is the temptation to give a promise with no intention of keeping it. The public are more or less accustomed to unfulfilled promises, and are not so greatly disappointed when they find they cannot depend upon a man. Finding an individual whose word is as good as his bond is all the more a welcome surprise for this reason, and people are likely to give the man who can be depended upon such business as they can in preference to him who is unreliable.

CANADIANS DON'T EAT CHEESE.

Speaking generally, there are some notable exceptions, the grocery trade in Canada pays little attention to the quality of the cheese it handles. This is a very grave error for several reasons. In the first place, the grocer should hold himself to some extent morally responsible for the quality of the foodstuffs distributed to the people. There isn't anything much worse in the way of food than poor, insufficiently, or improperly cured cheese; and there isn't anything much better than properly cured cheese of good quality. Then there is the great loss of business. The people of Canada don't eat cheese, and why? Simply because they don't know what good cheese is and yet we are the greatest cheese exporting country in the world. The fact is, that the great bulk of our good cheese goes to feed the working classes of Great Britain, while the culls are kept for home consumption. This is simply because when a Canadian grocer goes to buy cheese he buys the cheapest he can get, practically regardless of quality.

One grocer's experience in Toronto shows the possibilities of the cheese trade. For years he has given careful attention to cheese. He buys the best and never cuts a cheese under six months and most of it is nine months in stock before it is cut. People hundreds of miles away go to him for their cheese and Old Country people, from all parts of the city, not accustomed to the kind of cheese usually sold in Toronto, go to him. This just goes to show that there is an appetite for good cheese.

THE BANANA FAMINE.

Reports recently circulated of a banana famine on the Toronto market, while not without foundation, seem to have been exaggerated. The average consumption of bananas in Toronto during this season of the year is about twenty cars per week. Present receipts do not exceed fifteen cars weekly, and this is probably a liberal estimate. There seems no reason to expect, however, that the supply will fall below ten cars, for some time, at least. Droughts in Jamaica have curtailed shipments from that country to some extent, but while this market relies upon Jamaica for the majority of its bananas, it is not wholly dependent upon it. Costa Rica, Cuba and Honduras all contribute their share, and can increase the proportion, if necessary. Prices, from all indications, like a certain insurance company, are going to "have the strength of Gibraltar," but a much higher movement is not anticipated. The retailer, who is at present paying something akin to 12½ cents for his fruit, will not be inclined to class bananas among the profits for some time to come. The generous public seem to think they are being robbed if more than 15 cents a dozen is demanded, and to the retailer who is the proud owner of a wife and family, with taxes to pay, and an adamatine landlord to pacifiy, a 2½-cent margin does not appeal as liberal enough to permit him to put something in the plate on Sunday.

THE GAMBLE IN EGGS.

Eggs are a gamble on the weather. Not the individual egg, its usefulness is simply a matter of time, if a hot time, not so long, of course, just like humans, but the wholesale egg, the cold stored and pickled egg, the egg of inter-provincial and occasionally international commerce, that is the egg, the future of which is in the keeping of the weather deity.

Last year the egg men of Ontario stored many eggs at a high price and the outcome was regarded with considerable apprehension. But the long, cold spring kept the hens quiet, and every egg was cleaned up. Some eggs were even brought in from Chicago and disposed of at a profit. It was generally agreed that the home consumption of eggs had greatly increased. This was attributed to several reasons, more people, dear meat, congested householding, or apartment living, which made the easily cooked egg a favorite with many. This year the consumption has been still greater. The cool weather has made the quality of the egg product, as a whole, exceptionally good, and the demand for eggs is very sensitive in regard to quality, expanding and contracting almost automatically in response to the rise and fall in quality. Last year's success stimulated the confidence of the egg packers and they went boldly to work this year again. Their efforts increased consumption and the late season have kept prices above even last year's. Today there are more eggs stored in Ontario than ever before, and the success of the venture depends upon the weather during the last few weeks of "the season" next spring. As soon as the new eggs come in the old eggs are a drug. Nevertheless the packers will absorb the surplus eggs from this on, and a decline in the market is not looked for—not before spring.

FLY AND DISEASE.

No advice could be more timely to the grocery trade than the following from the New York Journal of Commerce:

Now is the season when the retail grocer might profitably take a few lessons in the contaminating influence of street dust in food products. It is all very attractive to see edibles piled up in the open window or at the door of the corner grocery, but when one notes a cloud of dust sweeping down upon them it might be worth while to consider the value of glass and screens and closed doors over grocery displays. Then there are flies. Here is a western Board of Health issuing in its bulletin interesting information of how flies carry disease germs. One of its experts recently captured a fly which had been daintily refreshing itself on a spot of sputum just ejected by a consumptive. He took a culture from the fly's feet, and determined the fact that he had thereby captured no less than 5,000 tuberculosis bacilli. Isn't it time to look after a few of the fly specks?

TRAVELERS' GREATER USE.

President William Judson, addressing the National Wholesale Grocers' Association of the United States, reported last week, said:

"If we are to keep pace with the mighty tide of human progress, we must be watchful of the public need, adaptable in policy and original in method. We may not listlessly follow in beaten paths because they led our fathers to success. If we are not alert—if we do not adapt our methods to changed conditions brought about by the needs of the public under the evolution of new modes of life, we may rest assured that some one else—not wedded to conventional methods—will take advantage of opportunities brought about by new conditions and secure trade prominence that legitimately belongs to us and which we might have had by the exercise of that 'eternal vigilance' which is the price of success."

In the exercise of this "eternal vigilance" the wholesale's most efficient agents should be his travelers. In constant association with the retail trade over a wide area, the traveler is in the best possible position to apprehend new needs. But many wholesalers, perhaps most, regard their travelers as salesmen only and neglect to utilize them as collectors of suggestions as well as distributors of goods.

ADVERTISING MAKES THE TOWN GO.

A writer in Printer's Ink makes an interesting diagnosis of the reason why some towns are "slow." He says: "Anybody who has had experience traveling among the small cities and towns of this country knows that wide differences are seen between places of the same population and in much the same locality, and enjoying what would seem to be equal opportunities for trade. One place of 10,000 people, for instance, will be thoroughly alive, its shops bright, its people brisk, and prosperity apparent on every hand. Another, perhaps but 25 miles away, will be thoroughly dead, its stores deserted, dull, dusty, its people given to the habit of cracker-box conversation. In one town it is a pleasure to step off the train and look for business, while in the second an experienced traveling man has no sooner alighted than he wants to know the time of the next train out."

The diagnosis is ridiculously simple. In one, the newspapers encourage live advertising by charging a rate which includes setting up new ads. as often as the merchant cares to change. In the other, an antiquated rate system is in vogue, making a low charge for space and an extra charge for every change of advertisement. It's just worth while considering what good live advertising by the merchants does for a town and its trade.

$750,000 IN NEW FAIR BUILDINGS.

It is noteworthy that the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, has spent no less than $750,000 on new buildings in the last five years, as follows:

Manufactures and Liberal Arts Building	$110,000
Art Gallery	40,000
Natural History	26,000
Dairy Building	45,000
Process and Implement Building	100,000
Grand Stand	200,000
Agricultural Hall	100,000
Railway Exhibits	50,000
Administration Building	30,000
Press Bureau	30,000

HARNESS RACING AT TORONTO.

The harness racing at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, this year will be on a greatly superior scale, the purses having been increased 25 per cent. all round. The events to be decided are 2.30 trot, 2.30 pace, 2.50 trot and 2.50 pace, and 2.20 trot and 2.23 pace trotting roadsters and pacing roadsters (free for all) trotters and pacers, and road drivers, parades for both trotters and pacers. All the races will be on the three-heat plan, each heat being thus virtually a race.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Fish—Revised.

Tea—Markets firm.

Montreal, August 22, 1907.

Since last week there has been a falling off in business. Grocery houses report a smaller movement than for some little time past. Not all houses, however, are quiet, as one or two reported very brisk business on all lines. Collections are satisfactory.

Canned fruits and vegetables are selling fairly well at the newly quoted prices. Independent canners are quoting 2½ per cent. to 5 per cent. below the list figures and are making good sales. The trade is not taking hold as freely as could be desired, however, apparently being afraid to buy heavily for fear of being caught by a decline later in the season. Teas are very firm, and low grades are stronger than ever. Japans are scarce, but buying is not heavy, and prices asked scare possible purchasers. Many are buying from hand to mouth, but there are some who realize that three months hence teas will be scarce and dear, and these are buying their requirements now. Valencia raisins are easier. Crop reports indicate a medium yield, but there are so many reports received, it is hard to even guess which one is most likely to be correct. The currant outlook continues favorable. California fruit reports not are encouraging. Evaporated apples are slow owing to the high price asked. Tapioca is scarce and high, with limited inquiry for it. Rice is normal.

SUGAR—Now that the preserving season is in full swing, sugar is selling more freely than ordinarily. Nevertheless, sales have not been as numerous, or as large as anticipated. One house reports a decided falling off in sales during the past fortnight. Prices are steady with no change in sight. No speculative business is being done in New York, where the market has not changed materially during the week.

TEAS.—Pices continue remarkably with a tendency to advance so marked that actual transactions are not numerous. Prices are a great deal too high to warrant large sales. The trade do not feel inclined to take hold at all. As a result, importers find their sales below last year's volume. It is next to impossible to obtain from the importers any Japan tea under 19c., and the trade, realizing this, are buying in small quantities, the general impression being that there will be a great scarcity two or three months hence. It is certain, at any rate, that the teas procurable now are of a better quality than those which will be arriving later on. The Japan tea crop this year is estimated at 32,000,000 lbs., about the same as last year, when it will be remembered, the crop was small. During the four years preceding and including 1904, Japan teas were in great supply, and were obtainable everywhere, the oversupply being carried over year by year. The three seasons after 1904 brought small yields, and meantime the extra quantity harvested during the fat seasons has been consumed. This explains the present situation. The trade had become used to large supplies of Japan teas, and prices were favorable to buyers, while conditions are completely reversed to-day. At the moment, low grade teas are being taken up by blenders, who do not require style. Parties interested in the teas arriving in Seattle yesterday, from Japan, state that buyers are anxiously awaiting samples. Indian teas are in short supply and prices continue high. Ceylon greens are in good demand in the country, owing partly to the high prices asked for Japans. lower grades are selling at round figures, unlikely to decline.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.—Latest advices from Denia would indicate that the crop of Valencia raisins will not be as large this year as was thought abroad. One house, writing under date of Aug. 4, states that it was possible there would be only a medium yield, and, perhaps, less than an average crop. The fruit is reported small, but of good quality. The writer states that shipping will commence about Aug. 20, which would be last Tuesday. It is difficult to gauge the exact condition of the market, and to say authoritatively what the crop will be, so many and conflicting are the reports arriving. Showing that the market is easier, prices on Valencias, since last week, declined ½c. lb. on Denia quotations. Reports on currants from Greece say that the crop outlook continues favorable, and that gathering has commenced. It is not likely that any lots worth while will be received here before the beginning to middle of next month. Figures to hand show that 124,561 tons of currants were exported from Greece this year up to July 31, compared with 127,165 tons same period, 1906. Direct shipments to Canada total 1,476 tons, against 1,956 last year. Shipments via New York to Canada amount to about 2,130 tons so far this year. Brazil nuts are up 1c. and appear to be following the course they took last year. Grenoble walnuts are coming on, but slowly, according to reports from France, and it would seem that they will arrive too late for the holiday trade. California houses report a black outlook for prunes, not expecting more than 40 per cent. to 50 per cent. of last year's crop. Conditions have been very unfavorable for the growing fruit, and currant prices are firm. While there has not been any increased demand from the East, supplies in the West are short, which helps to strengthen the situation. California raisins are high, and may either decline or remain as they now are. All depends upon the weather.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Canned goods appear to be selling fairly well from what can be learned here and there in the trade. Some wholesalers complain they cannot sell any of the new pack, owing to the exceedingly high prices asked. Other jobbers report very satisfactory sales at the new figures. Strawberries, raspberries, beans and other fruits and vegetables are in good demand according to them. On the whole, trade is not so brisk as it would be if lower prices ruled. The retail grocer is not apt to buy largely when strawberries are quoted at $2.25, and raspberries from $2.10 to $2.50. Another disturbing element in the situation is the fact that independent canners are cutting below what the Canners' quotations are. As may be imagined they are doing some business in consequence. But even at prices 5 per cent. below those of the Canners, business cannot be first-class because the trade are afraid to stock up and be caught in case of a decline. Many are buying, but for immediate requirements. Canned lobsters are extremely scarce, and any obtainable cost good money.

TORONTO—Interest centres now in the new pack and there is a good deal of speculation as to what the out-turn will be in the corn and tomato pack. Thus far practically everything has been short. Of asparagus, the Canners made delivery of only 10 per cent. of their orders, of rhubarb 27½ per cent., of strawberries 45 per cent. Raspberries are likely to be shorter still. Peas are known to be a short pack and the factories are just beginning work on corn and tomatoes. A peculiar feature about the crops this year is that they are good in some places and bad in others, making an estimate of the average difficult. The opinion generally held now concerning the tomato pack is that at best it will not be above an average. The carry-over it is thought will be practically nothing. What the price on tomatoes will be is also a matter of considerable conjecture.

If conditions are at all favorable the price will probably be about the same as last year. In view of the situation, wholesalers are advising their customers to secure their requirements.

OUTLOOK AT ST. THOMAS.

J. W. Bates, manager of the St. Thomas Canning Co., says of the outlook there: "We got a fairly good pack of strawberries and a small lot of red raspberries, but we are getting a pack of beans. I might also say our tomatoes are looking very well. If we have a nice fall we should have a good pack. Corn is only fair."

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—A little firmer.

Canned Goods—Pack short.

Butter and Eggs—Prices firm.

Toronto, August 22, 1907.

Wholesale grocers here report trade good and despite the fact that sugar is still in small demand it is confidently expected that trade for the month will run ahead of August last year. The fruit crop continues to be disappointing and consequently sugar is in small demand for this time of year. Canned goods are probably oppressed goods are probably uppermost in the minds of the trade at present. Thus far, indicated by deliveries, the pack of everything has been short. It is asserted, too, that apples are not going to be anything like the yield anticipated earlier in the season. The tomato pack is just starting, about two weeks late. What the end may be only the weather will determine. Australian raisins are going out rapidly but reports from the consumer have not been received. The prevailing opinion among the wholesalers is that the new fruit is not up to the Spanish in either appearance or flavor. Prune prices are very firm and prices for spot fruit are hardening. Tapioca is as scarce as ever and a substitute in the form of a manufactured potato starch has made its appearance. Sold as a substitute, it is all right, but dealers should be careful not to make the mistake of putting it across the counter as tapioca. Evaporated apples, it is said, are going to be very scarce. There is some demand above ordinary just now for green tea.

TEA.—Trade here is normal with prices steady. One wholesaler reported an unusual demand at present for green teas. McMeekin & Co., London, reviewing the trade for July, say:

"Indian.—The offerings at London public auctions were 60,000 packages, against 66,000 packages in the same month of 1906. The small quantity printed was readily absorbed in a firm market. All grades were slightly dearer during the month, but especially commonest. At the close there was some irregularity in the quotations for finer sorts.

"The average of public sale prices for the month was 7¾d. per lb., against 6⅞d. per lb. for the corresponding month of last year.

"The shipments of tea from Calcutta and Chittagong to the United Kingdom, which at the end of June showed an increase of 2,000,000 lbs. over the figures for the corresponding period of 1906, at the end of July showed a deficiency of about 5,000,000 lbs. Part of this is doubtless short yield, and part has been absorbed by buyers from other countries for direct shipment.

"Ceylon.—The offerings at London public auction were 161,000 packages, against 150,000 packages in the same month of 1906. The quality, although not good, showed signs here and there of improvement. There was a strong demand throughout the month, with a gradual advance in prices, but mediums were somewhat irregular, while commonest grades showed a marked advance.

"The average of public sale prices for the month was 7½d. per lb., against 6⅝d. per lb. for the corresponding month of last year. In some districts of Ceylon there have been very heavy increases in yield, while others have been backward, but at the present moment it looks as if there might be an average increase for the year of about 8 per cent. Should that be so, the excess will help to balance any possible deficiency there may be from India, and so prevent prices running unduly high. So far this year the shipments to London are only about 1,300,000 lbs. over last year's figures, but direct shipments elsewhere show an increase of from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 lbs."

COFFEE.—The market is unchanged. Demand is reported normal.

SUGAR.—The demand for refined sugar locally continues small. The The situation at New York has continued almost unchanged for two weeks. On Wednesday European beet advanced three farthings after remaining at 9s. 9d. for a considerable time. This gave a somewhat stronger tone to the market. The demand for refined in America has been so poor, however, that refiners have been keeping out of the market and holders have refrained from pressing sales. It is expected however that an increased demand for refined, looked for with the arrival of the plum and peach crop, would give an upward turn to the market.

DRIED FRUITS.—Elsewhere in this issue will be found reports of the Grecian, Spanish and Californian crops to date. No very radical changes are noted but the tendency seems to be for firmer markets. The Australian raisins have filled in the gap in the raisin trade very satisfactorily, but spot stocks of most other lines are limited. Judging from the views of the wholesalers none of them will want to have any Australian raisins on hand when the new crop of valencias arrive. The Australians are, however, going out very well at present. Spot prune prices are hardening and quotations have been moved up about ¼c. The situation at the coast in regard to the new crop is very strong, which makes those holding any here at present loath to part with them. The apple crop, it is asserted now, will not turn out as was expected earlier. An average crop is looked for and evaporated apples are very firmly held. Prices are going to be high.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Aug. 22, 1907.)

Crop reports are more favorable now than at any previous time this year. Commercial travelers who have been through the country unite in saying that the outlook is much brighter now than it was a month ago and their optimistic stories are confirmed by the regular railway reports, which continue to show a big improvement in conditions. With favorable weather during the next month a fairly good crop is assured in all but a few districts and with the present high scale of prices the western farmer is assured of a large amount of money this fall. The trade are therefore in much more hopeful mood, but until the harvest is assured buying will be of a very cautious character.

Canned goods are the most interesting items on the list, prices for new season goods being announced almost daily. New salmon prices are not yet definitely announced, but the pack is short and prices will undoubtedly be high.

CANNED GOODS.—New prices are announced this week in the Goodwillie lines of fruits. Raspberries, red cherries, pears, red and black currants and lawton berries are quoted this season at $3.05 per dozen, green gages at $2.60 per dozen, and strawberries and peaches at $3.45. Prices of Smith's jams are also announced this week and the goods are in Winnipeg ready for immediate delivery. The 5-lb. tins sell for 65c. each; the 7-lb. tins for 90c.; the 12-oz. glass bottles for $1.65 per dozen; the 1-lb. for $2.20, and the 44-oz. for $4.75. Advices from British Columbia indicate a very small pack of salmon. Prices are not yet definitely announced but it is likely that the Fraser River sockeyes will sell at $7.40 to $7.50 per case, while the Skeena River socveyes will be about 10c. to 15c. cheaper. The cohoes will probably be worth $5.75 this year and the humpbacks about $4.25.

FOODS AND THEIR ADULTERATION.

Dr. H. W. Wiley, the United States Government's chief pure food expert, has written a book entitled "Foods and their Adulteration," which has recently been issued from the press of P. Blakiston's Son & Co., Philadelphia. Dr. Wiley:s own introduction is the best possible explanation of the scope of his work. He says :

"This manual is descriptive in character and aims to give, within its scope, as thoroughly and intelligibly as possible, an account of the various food products in common use in their natural and manufactured conditions, with the usual adulterations which have been found therein.

"It includes information regarding methods of preparation and manufacture, food values, standards of purity, regulations for inspection, simple tests for adulteration, effects of storage and similar matters pertaining to the subject.

"It has been designed to interest the consumer as well as the manufacturer consumer as well as the manufacturer, the scientific as well as the general reader, all of whom it is hoped will find in it something useful. The consumer is entitled to know the nature of the product offered, the manufacturer and dealer the best methods of preparation. It will give the physician and sanitarian knowledge of the value of foods, their proper use and inspection, and, while not analytical in purpose, will propide the chemist with information which will guide him in his work of detecting impurities."

E. D. Marceau & Company, Montreal, are advertising especially at present their teas, coffees and vinegars. Mention is made as well of some fine teas about to arrive.

THOMAS J. LIPTON

The World's Largest Tea Merchant

Heartily welcomes the grocers of Canada visiting Toronto Exhibition, and cordially invites them to make Lipton's Tea Room at 91 King St. West their headquarters, where very convenient writing, rest and check rooms have been provided for out-of-town merchants, and where an exhibit of Lipton's Tea, Lipton's Coffee and various other lines will be made, and Lipton's Tea, Lipton's Coffee and Lipton's Jellies served Free to those attending. Be sure and take home a Lipton souvenir.

TRADE NEWS OF NOVA SCOTIA

Light Receipts of Produce—New Potatoes in Good Demand—Prospects for Exceptionally Heavy Apple Crop—California Fruit High and Scarce.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.)

Halifax, N.S., August 19.

The farmers all over the province are now busily engaged in hay-making, and in consequence, there is very little produce coming on the market. The receipts of butter are about an average, but the price is unchanged. Within the past week there has been considerable falling off in the receipts of small dairy tubs, but it is thought that this is due to the farmers being otherwise engaged, and that as soon as they get their hay in, butter will come along more freely. Eggs are in fairly good supply, the stock on the market at present being principally Prince Edward Island. The receipts of Nova Scotia stock are light. Prince Edward Island eggs are selling at 18 cents and Nova Scotia at 19 cents.

The quality of the new potatoes coming on the market is improving very noticeably and there is a good demand all round. Most of the old potatoes are now off the market and the new stock is selling freely at one dollar per bushel. New carrots, beets and turnips are selling by the bunch for five cents; cabbage is worth from 6 to 10 cents per head, and green beans from 6 to 8 cents per pound. Peas are a failure and very few are being marketed. Tomatoes are coming in more plentiful, but quotations are high so far, 12 cents being the price asked at present.

The fruit crop in Nova Scotia this year promises to be an excellent one. The trees are so heavily laden with apples in some of the orchards that props have to be used to support the branches. The fruit also appears to be of excellent quality. For some years past the apples have been spotted and it was difficult to secure fruit without this mark. This year the apples are free from this blemish, and all grades look well. In one orchard at Berwick, the owner expects to pick two thousand barrels of apples and two thousand bushels of plums. One fruit grower has already received an order from South Africa for two thousand barrels of apples. The indications at present are for a good demand from the English market, and buyers from the other side of the Atlantic will soon be in the Annapolis and Cornwallis Valleys buying up the fruit.

The quality of the California fruit coming on the market this year is unusually poor, and the price is very high. There is a good demand for the best fruit and the dealers have considerable difficulty in securing choice stock for their customers. Some of them say that most of the fruit shipped here now is seconds. This refers more particularly to Bartlett pears.

Within a short time the South Shore fishermen of Nova Scotia will have a new market opened up for them in the Upper Canadian provinces, as the Department of Marine and Fisheries have arranged to have the Halifax and South Western Railway Company put on an iced refrigerator car service. All the details have not yet been arranged, but it is possible that the car will leave Yarmouth on Mondays, connecting with the I.C.R. fast freight at Halifax on Monday night, and arriving in Montreal on Thursday morning. Hitherto the chief market for the South Shore men has been Boston and New York, large quantities of live lobsters and fresh fish being shipped direct to these points, and some of this fish found its way back into the Canadian market. The present move means that the entire Western Canadian market is now opened to them. Practically no South Shore fish has hitherto been shipped direct to Montreal, but large quantities have gone via Boston. Very few, if any, shippers on the South Shore have connections in Montreal. There is a refrigerator car service on between Mulgrave, N.S., and Montreal over the I.C.R.

FOODSTUFFS NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 19, 1907.

Business in grocery circles continues very good for this time of year. The visit of Their Excellencies, the Earl and Countess Grey, has enlivened matters here during the past week. Business houses and public buildings were abundantly decorated with flags and bunting and the citizens generally united in extending a hearty welcome to the representative of the King. His Excellency was dined by the Canadian Club and was the guest at several other dinners. His utterances on the progress of the Dominion and his words of praise for the Maritime Provinces were eagerly listened to.

The vice-regal party also visited Fredericton and left here Friday night for St. Andrews.

In reviewing the changes in the local wholesale markets during the past week, Geo. E. Barbour & Co. report tnat fish of all kinds are firmer on account of short receipts and bad weather. They do not look for higher prices, however, as the catch has been fair. Lard is slightly easier. American beef and pork are steady. Sugars are steady, with a good demand, and the market is unchanged. Cheese, butter and eggs are firmer. Eggs are selling at 18 to 18½ cents, which is very high for the season. Cheese is quoted at 11¾c.; dairy butter at 20 to 21 cents. Canned salmon is very firm with 1906 pack almost entirely cleaned up. The first arrivals of new fish should be available this month. In dried fruits, 1906 seeded raisins are very firm, with stocks limited. Loose raisins are almost out of the market. Buyers are expecting first shipments of new Australian raisins this week. This line is offered at nine cents.

Deputy Minister of Railways Butler and leading officials of the I.R.C. were in the city on Friday last and met a committee of the Board of Trade to discuss the proposed improvements in the yard here. The committee pointed out that a great deal more yard room was needed. Mr. Butler, while agreeing with them, pointed out that only a limited amount of money was available for work this year and this would be spent to the best advantage. The chief work to be done will be in increasing the yard room beyond Gilbert's Lane and in building a flour shed and loading siding on the western side of Mill Street. Other improvements have been promised for next year.

Reports received from various sections of the country are to the effect that blueberries are a plentiful crop. The market is good and prices higher than usual at this time of year. Shipments are being sent this year to Ottawa, a market heretofore unknown to New Brunswick, and the prices received are said to be in advance of those received on the Boston market.

The city has made an offer to the C.P.R. to lease to the company berths 1, 2, 3, and 4 on the west side, at a rental of $45,000 a year, and a proposition has also been submitted to charge a flat rate of fifteen cents a ton on all freight. Both offers are being considered by the company. The city's object is to make the wharves bring in a revenue sufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund.

necessarily involved in sending claims to distant points for litigation and enforcement, throw up their hands and forego their claims altogether. But even if they do litigate, they are confronted with some fifty distinct jurisdictions each having statutes or local decisions that create an almost equal number of clashing rules, so that it has been impossible for many years for the shipper, the consignee or the carrier to determine or ascertain their respective rights and obligations.

"This one piece of federal legislation just referred to is supplemented by what it is hoped and expected will be a still more important measure of governmental regulation. I refer to the uniform bill of lading, which after nearly three years of constant and untiring work on the part of the joint committee of the carriers and shippers and their lawyers, has just been submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for adoption.

"The growth of this instrumentality of commerce has been remarkably rapid and its development has been most varied.

"In some jurisdictions the carrier can contract against everything but negligence; in others this is prohibited. In some, the carrier can stipulate against liability for fire; in others this is denied. In some the duty of proving the negligence is on the plaintiff; in others the carrier must show that it has been free from negligence. Imagine the insuperable difficulty of proving in an action against a carrier, particularly if it be the connecting or final one, the cause of the injury and the presence of negligence. These and many other equally momentous points that have given rise to endless confusion and doubt in and out of court have been disposed of by the bill of lading now with the commission.

"If the commission on October 15 next, when the final hearing takes place in Washington, makes this new bill a rule and regulation of interstate commerce, and, if necessary, Congress approves, the industries of this country can beg few more useful boons, and there will be taken from the domain of litigation an endless number of questions that are now surrounded by an impenetrable haze of fog and uncertainty."

CORRESPONDENCE

LONDON.

Grocery business, wholesale and retail, is holding its own. Teas of all kinds are very firm. Prices of dried fruits are easier and unsettled, and as the crops are good a further drop in prices is looked for. Brokers' advices report vessels loading with new crop raisins and currants at Patras and Denia and shipments should arrive on this side of the Atlantic within the next six weeks.

The scarcity of berries this season has resulted in an unsuccessful demand on retailers for plums, which, according to all accounts, are a good crop. The result has been to send the price of plums away up. Twelve-quart baskets that in ordinary years have been retailed at 60 to 75 cents are selling now at 90 cents. With the appearance of this fruit there has been a slight improvement in the demand for sugar.

Ed. Ryan, of Ryan & Russell, the Richmond Street grocers, gives voice to a grievance which the trade has complained of for some time. It is that grocers, in buying fruits and vegetables from the canneries, have no means of knowing whether the goods are new or old—whether they are this year's or have been held over from year to year for a greater or lesser period. Mr. Ryan suggests that legislation be sought at Ottawa compelling packers to mark the year of packing on each can sold. One of the canners recently spoken to on the subject said: "Why, we put entirely new labels on our goods each year. Isn't that enough?" "No," replied Mr. Ryan, "for it is an easy enough matter to paste a new label over an old one so as to completely hide it. Besides," he added, "when you are getting new labels printed wouldn't it be an easy matter to have the date marked in a corner?" The question was not answered.

Complaint is made by grocers in the outlying parts of the city that hucksters are in the habit of hawking about the back streets and from door to door vegetables and fruit which they purchase in the local market, to the detriment of storekeepers who pay rent and taxes. A city bylaw prohibits any person from selling on the market or the streets farm produce not of their own growing and from buying stuff on the market for the purpose of reselling it. Officers of the Retail Grocers' Association a few days ago sought advice on this point at the city hall and were referred to the market clerk, whose duty it is to see that the bylaw is not abused. If that official cannot bring about an abatement of the huckster nuisance the market committee of the city council will be appealed to.

The push cart banana men are dropping off one by one as their licenses expire, and in the course of a couple of months or so the last of them will be gone. The new bylaw regulating the movements of these itinerant vendors of tropical fruits and peanuts, which the Retail Grocers' Association were instrumental in having passed, is having the effect intended, as these foreigners find it better to get out of business altogether than remain in it with their operations confined to the outlying streets of the city.

Local grocers had a jolly time last Wednesday afternoon at Dorchester. Many of them enjoyed angling in the private stream of the London Skating and Fishing Club, but more of them witnessed a baseball match for blood between teams captained by Thos. Shaw and Ed. Ryan, vice-president and treasurer, respectively, of the association. The latter won by the score of 14 to 12. The big features of the afternoon, however, were the trotting races. A number of farmers had driven into the village to see the fun and the ball game ended, the farmers' rigs were commandeered and the races started. Each of the jockeys—and all of them were grocery men—was decked out with a jockey's silk cap furnished by the hotelkeeper, W. C. Drake, which added not a little to the picturesqueness of the scene. Of course the best nag and the best driver won in each event, but as the contests were not governed by the rules of any particular jockey club and all the drivers are church members, no names or time were placed on record. A banquet at the hotel in the evening wound up one of the most enjoyable outings of the season.

STRATFORD.

E. K. Barnesdale, president of the Barnesdale Trading Co., who has been visiting the notable places of interest in the Old Country, is expected to arrive home on August the 26th.

Every day is market day here now. The vendors appear with their produce on the market every morning, and generally dispose of all of it without trouble. Vegetables are in heavy demand. The recent light showers of rain have done much to improve the vegetable growth. Previous to the rain everything was in a dry and parched condition, and the outlook was far from encouraging.

Notwithstanding the backwardness of the season, and the consequent shortage of most fruits, the grocery business is fully up to that of recent years. There are one or two merchants in the city who contend that trade has been duller this summer than for some years past, but this opinion is not that of the majority. Recently there was a great deal of talk in this vicinity about the backwardness of the crops, but on Saturday last one farmer remarked to your correspondent that many of the crops, although a little late, are, on the whole, better and larger than last year. When the farmer is satisfied with his crops, the city resident should have no kick coming.

"Do you find it handy to have these bags hung up in a string over the counter?" asked a customer of one of the city retailers, as he pointed to two or three rows of paper bags that were strung, according to size. "Yes," was the reply, "I used to have them in loose bundles on a shelf under the counter, but I found that when in a hurry, they got knocked around and made things untidy. When hung up that way, they are always just where you want them." This is sound philosophy, and worth following.

Oranges have taken on a decided upward price, but the citizens seem to relish the California fruit, as there is no decrease in the demand.

Many of the general grocery travelers are now taking their holidays, and their familiar faces are missed.

The free postal delivery system was inaugurated in this city this week. Seven carriers are traversing the streets daily on the various routes, and it is understood that the number will be added to in the near future. Three deliveries are made daily, and the service is much appreciated by the citizens.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

An easier feeling characterizes the cheese market this week. Prices in Montreal are slightly lower, following the decline in the country. For finest, Ontario dealers are asking 11⅜c. to 11⅝c., while for Quebecs, 11⅛c. to 11¼c. is obtainable.

These prices, however, appear to be too high for English houses, as they have not shown a willingness to buy much more freely at the lower figures quoted them by Qanadian exporters. They appear to be waiting for figures much lower than those now ruling, and if things continue as they now are, it is likely that there will be a further decline. With prices even a little lower, export business would pick up very much, but when to-day's prices are shown them. English firms are not prepared to talk business.

Stocks are not large as compared with last year. It is not thought that there are more than 250,000 boxes of cheese in Canada, of which probably 175,000 to 200,000 boxes are held in Montreal.

Receipts last week were 95,232 boxes, against 101,700 same week last year. Total receipts of cheese since May 1, 1,182,622 boxes, against 1f291,942 boxes same period, 1906. It will be seen that receipts are 109,320 boxes behind last year. This is not surprising considering how unfavorable the weather has been, and how the farmer has been handicapped in caring for his cattle owing to the late spring and consequent lack of pasture at a time when feed was extremely high.

Last week 82,437 boxes of cheese were exported, as compared with 72,575 boxes the previous week, and against 83,781 boxes same week last year. Total shipments since May 1 this year Reports from England state that the market is in a more healthy state.

Butter is steady, a good, brisk trade being done locally at prices which allow a fair profit to the dealer. Much more attention is being paid to the local trade than to the export. At the moment demand on the part of grocers is very strong and as prices are satisfactory transactions are numerous.

The make keeps up as well as can be expected for a year such as this has been. Receipts last week were 17,271 packages, against 14,984 packages the previous week, and 26,571 packages same week last year. Total receipts this year show a falling off, compared with 1906. They amount to 250,809 packages, as against 385,270 packages for the corresponding period of last year, which means a decrease of 134,461 packages.

Shipments have fallen off, only 44,001 packages having been exported since May 1, as compared with 216,409 packages in 1906. The difference is 172,408 packages. Last week 3,571 packages were shipped, as against 4,138 packages the previous week, and 24,560 packages same week 1906. It will be noticed that the shipments in this one week last year equal more than half the total exports this season.

In England they are not yet using a great deal of Canadian butter, although more or less of what is going forward is going into consumption. Dealers here expect to dispose of all the butter they have to spare before the Australian butter arrives on the Old Country markets, and for that reason they are not worrying much about the lack of good inquiry from English houses.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

The Old Country market is in a rather unsatisfactory condition due to increased supplies from the three principal sources of import supply, United States, Denmark and Canada.

The large deliveries of hogs in Denmark have become an old story. Last week in England 2,000 bales were carried over as against 200 bales the week before. In the United States receipts of hogs have been heavier than for a couple of years. Their export shipments have been running about 18,000 boxes, while the ordinary shipments for some time have been about 13,000. In Canada also deliveries of hogs have been more liberal than for two or three years and the net result has been to overburden the market. This is especially the case in view of the price. Best bacon is quoted at 63s. and heavy lean and fat at 58s. This is very high and in the Old Country people watch prices closely and when our foodstuff gets beyond their means they substitute another. The result is that low prices greatly stimulate demand and at 45 to 50s. the consumption of bacon would probably be from a third to a half more than at present.

The unsatisfactory market in the Old Country has tended to divert more pork to Canadian cuts with the result that the market here is somewhat overloaded and the tone is weak.

This feeling is increased by the lowering of the live hog prices. The packers are trying to get the price down to keep pace with the situation in the Old Country. This week prices are down to $6.50 to $6.60 and Davies & Co. have already set the price for next week at $6.35. Deliveries last week were from 22,000 to 24,000, but this week they are not coming so fast. In view of the market conditions, however, the packers will be pleased to get a very small number.

The weakness in the market here is causing some variation in prices, or perhaps it had better be said that the variations in the prices are contributing to the weakness of tone. Some packers are oversupplied with one line and some with another, so that the shading of prices is on different lines in different houses, but all feel bound to meet all reductions.

The New York Journal of Commerce, reviewing the American market for last week, says :

"The market for hog products the past week has been but a small sideshow, beside the grain markets, with which it has partially sympathized, on the depression caused by Wall Street liquidation, tight money and the telegraph strike, which has practically brought business with the west to a standstill, as most business in these products is dependent upon quotations from Chicago, of which official ones are about all that have been received during the week. The result has been, as usual, to depress prices, but there has not been enough demand to result in much break, as concessions would scarcely have stimulated business. The receipts have been but partially reported, and chiefly from Chicago, although the "Price Current's" report from the west for the week falls behind last year 95,000, against 100,000 excess last week; which seems hardly probable and may be due to lack of full reports owing to the telegraph strike. The market must therefore be regarded as more nominal than real at easier but not radically lower prices for the week without other new features than noted above."

PROVISION MARKETS

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—Business is reported by packers very brisk for the season. There is not a great movement in lard, but occasional sales are being made. Smoked meats are going out steadily in a jobbing way, but no large orders are being filled.

BUTTER.—The market is firm and pretty much unchanged. It is reported here that half a million pounds of butter are stored in London, Ont., which seems a heavy supply. Here, however, creamery prints are still quoted at 23 to 25c. according to quality, the bulk of it going about 24c. but an occasional choice brand above 25c. Solids are a bit firmer and choice dairy tubs also.

BUTTER—Creamery butter is in brisk demand, owing to the poor quality of the greater part of the dairy butter offering. The price to the trade is 24 cents. For dairy No. 1 produce houses are paying 18 cents, and for No. 2, 16 cents, delivered in Winnipeg.

CHEESE—Ontario cheese is selling at 13½ cents per lb., and Manitoba at 13 cents.

EGGS—Produce houses are paying 16 cents per dozen delivered in Winnipeg, and subject to candling.

PACKING PLANT FOR EDMONTON.

Work on the big new J. T. Griffin Co. plant in Edmonton is being pushed ahead rapidly and very soon the Alberta capital will have a large, up-to-date packing plant that will provide a ready market for all the hogs that the farmers in the Edmonton district can be persuaded to raise. The new plant is to cost $500,000 and it will be the home of one of the big industries of the country. It is generally understood and admitted that J. T. Griffin Co. are controlled by Swift & Co., of Chicago, and are in fact their Canadian branch. There is, therefore, unlimited capital behind the Edmonton enterprise and its success is assured from the first.

The Edmonton plant is in charge of P. O. Dwyer.

PROGRESS OF AERIAL NAVIGATION.

The airship that is coming to the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, will make a trip, within the first four days, from the Exhibition Grounds down to the City Hall, around the City Hall tower and back to the place of starting, thus exemplifying the great progress that has been made within the last twelpe months in aerial navigation. It is not so many months since Santos Dumont, the great Brazilian aeronaut, had his name on the lips ol pretty well every man and woman in the civilized world for his great feat of rounding the Palace of the Elysee, and now within a year of that performance the feat is to be more than repeated in the city of Toronto, Canada.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Wheat Markets Are Feeling the Approach of Fall—Flour and Cereal Trade Remains very quiet, With Prices Steady—New Confectionery Season.

The first breath of fall weather is having its effect upon the wheat markets, increasing speculative activity and giving a generally firmer tone to things. Frost has appeared in the west and with the late start the crops got the farmers were hoping for a late fall to even things up. Very much depends on the weather during the next few weeks. The recent decline of wheat prices stimulated a very active demand for export and this movement has also had a strengthening effect.

All this time the millers are playing a waiting game. They want to know what the harvest will bring forth. Some of the bakers have pretty fair stocks of flour and those who have not are cautious and will buy only from hand to mouth. Merchants seem to be of the same mind, with the result that the demand for flour is very limited.

The cereal business as a whole is quiet, too, but some millers report quite an active demand for oat and wheat products. Prices, however, are steady and fall business has not yet opened up.

Confectionery.

Coming on the fall there will be a new candy trade to take care of. The family will soon be gathering about the evening fire and there's nothing the women and girls will appreciate more than a box of chocolates. Nearly every grocer in the country can get a part of this profitable trade if he goes in for it with a little thought and enthusiasm. Besides being worth while in itself, it will in most cases help the grocery business.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Local demand for various grades has been quite saisfactory to milling companies. No higher prices have been asked, and it is does not seem at the moment as though an advance were likely. Demand from the other side has not been active, although recently some fairly good sales have been made to Old Country and foreign purchasers.

A. McNeill, chief of the Fruit Division of the Dominion department of agriculture, in the course of a letter to The Canadian Grocer on apple classification, states:

"Your patrons, I am sure, will pay more attention to the Canadian grade of No. 2 apples this year. The definition as set forth in the Inspection and Sale Act, part IX. (Fruit Marks Act), requires that 80 per cent. of the apples in a No. 2 barrel should be free from any blemishes that cause material waste; the remaining 20 per cent. must be at least nearly medium in size. These two points make the No. 2 apple a most will be almost impossible to put in culls under this definition, because if the apple is of nearly medium size the blemishes are almost sure to be such as would cause material waste.

"Grocerymen and fruit sellers should post themselves thoroughly upon what they should get in a No. 2 barrel, and insist upon getting it. The law is made in their favor as against any unscrupulous packer or broker. This will make it easier to maintain a high standard for No. 1. A No. 1 barrel should contain 90 per cent. of apples practically perfect.

"The Inspection and Sale Act, part IX. (Fruit Marks Act), will be sent free on application to the fruit division."

WINNIPEG CATERERS' PICNIC

A Large Gathering and Despite Not Very Favorable Weather a Fine Outing was Enjoyed—Wholesalers and Manufacturers Closed up to Allow Employes to go.

In spite of the very worst that the weather man could do the Winnipeg Caterers' Picnic, held on Wednesday of last week at Winnipeg Beach, was a big success. The Winnipeg Caterers' Association is a strong organization including in its membership all the grocers, bakers and butchers of the city, and it is capable of doing things in the amusement line. Each year the caterers' picnic is looked forward to as the big event of the season at the popular summer resort at Winnipeg Beach and the committees in charge have an increasingly difficult task each year to make each succeeding picnic a bigger success than the last. This year's committee undoubtedly succeeded in doing what was expected of them, but in accomplishing their object they set a pace that will make the work of next year's committee particularly difficult.

The first train for the Beach left early in the morning and as the rain was coming down in sheets the outlook was decidedly unpromising. However, a large number of enthusiasts were determined to attend in spite of the unfavorable circumstances and the first train carried an unusually large crowd to the Beach. Three special trains were provided by the C.P.R. and over two thousand of the Winnipeg caterers, with their wives and families, spent an enjoyable day at the Beach. Business was forgotten for the day, all the retail stores and wholesale houses being closed in order to allow employers and employes to attend the big annual event of the Caterers' Association. The Western Canada Flour Mills Co. also closed down their immense plant at St. Boniface and furnished all their employes with transportation to the Beach.

A splendid programme of sports had been arranged by the committee and it was well carried out. The day was cloudy for the greater part of the time, but the wind across the lake was not cold and there were many bathers, although the heavy swell prevented very many from using the boats. The aquatic sports attracted considerable attention and there was some particularly good swimming and diving.

On land the baseball games, the races, tug-of-war and pursuit and capture of the lubricated pig, provided by the generosity of Gordon Ironside and Fares, furnished amusement until the departure of the first train. Bert Turner, the captor and consequent proud possessor of the elusive pig, was the hero of the day and is still receiving congratulations from his acquaintances in the trade.

The 90th band was secured for the occasion and furnished music during the day while a capable orchestra in the dancing pavilion enticed those whose inclinations were towards the pleasures of dancing. During the evening the dancing pavilion was the main attraction. Since last year the pavilion has been greatly enlarged and the floor was in perfect condition. It was with difficulty that the last of the party could be gathered at the station in time to catch the last train home.

Too much credit cannot be given to the officers of the association to whose hard conscientious work is due the big success of their annual event. President T. J. Coyle and Vice-President J. R. Gowler had a busy day of it, but they were ably assisted by the other officers of the association, W. A. Bartram, treasurer, and "Mike" O'Connor, secretary. The secretary was indefatigable in his efforts and was the hardest worked man on the grounds. The officers were given able assistance by Charles Gibson and J. Treleaven and others on the committee in charge.

The list of the sports, the winners, and prizes, are given below. Many of the prizes were given in cash and are not stated.

CANADIAN GROCER IN GREECE.

Thos. Bell, Sons & Co., Liverpool and Montreal, writing to The Canadian Grocer under date of August 8, say:

"The following is an extract of a letter received from our Patras, Greece, principals, D. S. Parthenopule, which you will doubtless be pleased to note:

" 'Simultaneously with receiving your favor of July 20 I got copy of The Canadian Grocer you kindly sent, and noted your advertisement with much pleasure and interest. It is remarkable that, together with your letter and copy of The Canadian Grocer, I got a letter from a firm in Aberdeen, Scotland, offering to do business with me on the strength of your advertisement in The Canadian Grocer. This shows what an eminent factor advertising is and I am much obliged to you for the idea of it.' "

Fruits Quiet—Bananas Scarce and High Under an Increased Demand—Prospects for High Prices in Canadian Plums, Pears and Peaches.

Fruits for the past week have been dull and inactive, the amount of business transacted comparing unfavorably with the week before. Stocks in most lines are light, this being especially true of bananas, lemons and berries. Bananas this season have been in exceptionally heavy consumption, the demand being probably twenty-five per cent. greater and the supply a similar percentage less than last year. Jamaica, upon which this market relies for the majority of its bananas, was visited in the early part of the year with a succession of severe droughts, which killed a large proportion of the trees. In consequence of the limited supply bananas have been high at seaboard all year, and while the demand has increased from last year the stocks to meet it are away below the average.

Canadian pears, plums and peaches are beginning to appear on the market in small quantities, but all indications point to high prices and small supplies. The growers attribute the scarcity of these fruits to the backward spring, some districts having been affected more than others. The canners are offering in some instances as high as six cents a pound for peaches, and it is a fair inference that this fruit will not go much below $1 per basket at any time during the season. Some dealers prophesy $2 as not being far outside the probable maximum quotation, but shipments are too light as yet and crop reports too variable to admit of an accurate forecast.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—Prices in most lines hold firm this week. California fruits continue to be the feature. From ten to twelve cars of California peaches, pears, and plums are being disposed of on this market weekly. This is not as large a quantity as is usually sold at this period. Pears advanced to $4.25 and $4.50. Blueberries are easier, dealers now asking $1.75 to $2. Bananas continue very firm. Quotations are higher, some dealers asking as much as $3 for the best stock they have in store. Oranges and lemons are in fair demand.

VEGETABLES.—Fresh vegetables are plentiful and prices are steady, with a tendency to decline in some instances. Tomatoes, corn and potatoes are lower this week. Corn is very plentiful and is selling freely locally. The continued warm weather has resulted in a jump in the tomato receipts, while from now on there will be potatoes galore. FISH.—Prices have been very firm lately and it will be noticed there have been increases on several lines. Particularly in fresh fish have figures been advanced. Stormy weather is responsible for the advance in haddock and cod. The other lines have been put up owing to scarcity. Dealers report some inquiry for prepared and boneless fish, which have been advanced because of high prevailing quotations for dried fish for export. New pack Labrador herring and salmon will shortly be on the market, and already there is some inquiry for both. Otherwise, pickled and salted fish are dull.

TORONTO.

FRUITS.—Ontario plums, pears and peaches are now in fair supply but expectations are for high prices and low stocks throughout the season. Plums promise well, however, from some districts. THE BEAN SITUATION IN KENT

(Special Correspondence of Canadian Grocer.)

On account of the fact that the bean crop this year is from two to three weeks behind, it is more difficult than usual to furnish an estimate as to the outlook. On the whole, however, dealers and growers take quite an optimistic view of the situation. In most localities, provided the weather between now and harvest time is favorable, the prospects are that there will be a fairly abundant crop.

Save that it is, as previously stated, some weeks behind, the crop is in pretty good condition. Prior to the frost of July 2, the outlook pointed to a record crop of beans. The frost did considerable damage, but to a certain extent this has been made up by replanting.

A conservative estimate is that beans throughout Kent will be probably 80 per cent. of a crop. There was a good acreage to begin with, quite equal to if not exceeding that of last year. The heavy frost of July last damaged about 30 per cent. of the crop. Of the damaged portion, about one-half was ploughed up and of tnis half, fifty per cent. was replanted in beans. The other half of the damaged bean acreage was left, and will in all likelihood return half a crop.

The main factor of course is the weather. As previously stated, the crop is two weeks or more late, and this will throw the harvest over into the period of the equinoctial storms. Consequently, unless the farmers are favored with remarkably good weather, they will have trouble this year to save their beans from the wet.

A fair estimate is that, with favorable weather, an 80 per cent. crop may be looked forward to.

Replanting after the big frost was quite general, local dealers reporting a brisk demand for beans for this purpose. The replanted beans, however, run a larger risk than the regular crop, and in any case will probably yield a smaller bean.

CENTRAL CANADA FAIR.

Recently the Central Canada Exhibition Association directors decided to issue a special exhibition ticket at a reduced rate. This ticket will give six admissions either to the grounds or grand stand for $1. These tickets are now ready and may be secured until the opening of the exhibition by writing the secretary, 26 Sparks St., Ottawa. Parties who desire to club together and have one person write for them may do so, and this person will have the privilege of securing all required for parties interested. As the saving will be considerable, doubtless a large number will take advantage of the offer and send for this special ticket.

CO-OPERATIVE COLLECTION SYSTEM NEEDED BY MERCHANTS

Regarding the proposed Retailers' Association for the Province of Ontario, I am sure it would be a mistake to divide the forces, as is sometimes suggested, by having a grocers' association and also a dry goods association. I am sure all the general stores, grocery stores, dry goods stores, etc., should be included in the one organization. The country should be organized as well as the town or city.

Let me show briefly from my own experience where such an association would shine. Although this is a country village I find there are accounts owed me by people in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Galt, Windsor, Walkerville, Rodney, Hensall, Ridgetown, Thamesford, and by several whose addresses I cannot find, and we have been careful too in the matter of credit. The question might be asked, What good would an association do? Well it ought when a man leaves this town owing me, and going say to Chatham, to be my privilege as a member of the Provincial or Dominion (should be Dominion) Association to write the secretary there blacklisting the dead-beat. At the same time I ought to be able to get the following information regarding the person in question:

1st. Is he working?
2nd. Is he steadily at work or is he shiftless?
3rd. Whom does he work for?
4th. What wages?
5th. When paid?
6th. Married or single?
7th. Name of good collector at a fair rate?

For lack of the above information there are thousands of bad accounts on merchants' books in Canada.

A dollar or fifty cents per year from each retailer would be sufficient to make the association a success; it could be made a huge protective collective society and could exist by proving its usefulness. No merchant would sell a newcomer in a town, when a quiet notification by mail warned merchants of the advent in their town of a fellow who simply would not pay.

SHOULD EAT MORE CURRANTS.

Representatives of the Greek Privileged Company are in Canada.

Two gentlemen of much more than ordinary interest to the grocery trade were callers upon the leading wholesalers in Canada last week. They were E. Bowron, London, a director, and P. Burlumi, a commissioner, of the Privileged Currant Company of Greece. They spent Tuesday in Toronto, where they were introduced to the trade by J. L. Watt, of J. L. Watt & Scott. They called also at the office of The Canadian Grocer. The two gentlemen, both prominent factors in the currant trade, are in America, not in the interest of their own firms, but as representatives of the Privilege Currant Company, to lay plans for increasing the consumption of currants on this side of the Atlantic.

The Privileged Company is not a merchant corporation. It does not sell currants except on the rare occasions when the supplies outside their stores are inadequate to meet the demand.

To understand the position of the company a little history is necessary. The currant areas are part of the Government domain in Greece and the growers pay a rental for the use of the land. The industry is one of vital importance to the country and when a few years ago it was at the verge of ruin by over production, Government regulation was tried. The retention law enacted then has made way for the Privileged Company, which is chartered by the Government and financed by English and French capital. Every grower must deposit with the company 35 per cent. of the currants sent for export. The Government rental has been computed at 4,000,000 drachmas and that the Government must pay. In addition every grower pays to the company a small tax in return for which the company provides warehouse accommodation and insurance, and must take measures for improving the quality of the fruit and stimulating consumption abroad. The main obligation of the company remains to be stated, however. It is bound to accept all the currants offered by growers at a fixed minimum price, which means that the price of currants can never fall below that price. The company can only sell currants for export when the price rises considerably above normal, a condition experienced this year because of the shortage of fruit crops. The enormous quantities of currants which remain with the company it manufactures into wine, alcohol and other commodities. It is very much in the interest of the company and of the currant grower that these currants should be consumed in the ordinary way. Hence the mission of the gentlemen in question. Canada consumes somewhat less than a pound and a half of currants per capita per year. In Holland the consumption is seven pounds, so that there remains a considerable margin for the improvement of the interests of the Privileged Company in Canada.

Both Mr. Burlumi and Mr. Bowron are in the dried fruit business in a large way. Mr. Burlumi's representative in Toronto is Fred Dane and together they visited a number of the leading wholesalers.

NEWFOUNDLAND NOTES.

T. T. Cartwright, representing Magic Baking Powder, is once again amongst us. Mr. Cartwright's many friends were glad to see him looking so well. He reports a hard time on the west coast of Newfoundland, owing to fog and contrary winds.

Thos. Winter has been appointed trustee of the insolvent estate of Martin Bros., lumber and P.E.I. produce dealers. This is the worst failure in Newfoundland since the bank crash.

M. P. Cashin, of Cape Broyle, is meeting with great success at the fishery this year. In one day Mr. Cashin landed over 300 quintals of fish.

Prices of fish opened high. The best informed predict a speedy decline in the price. The catch to date is over the average.

Reports from the Labrador report the fishing as good. Several of the large firms have wired for more salt.

C. A. Masters, representing Diamond Dyes, has just finished his semi-annual trip, and reports business as very good.

Jas. Ryan, of Bonavista, has been in St. John's in connection with his business. He left by the Portia for home, but will return in a few days.

Philip Templeman, the Bonavista merchant prince, has been compelled to move his residence to St. John's, owing to his business increasing so largely as to demand a large share of his time in the city. His large interests at Bonavista and elsewhere are looked after by his sons and brother. He has just opened a large business premises at La Sue.

Levi Templeman, of Bonavista, is on the Labrador in the interests of his brother's large Bonavista business.

E. Kennedy, of Avondale, had his gear supplies and men taken to the Labrador by the SS. Aggie, of which Capt. D. Barnes is master.

J. Moore, St. Anthony, left by Portia to attend to his large business on the French shore. Mr. Moore reports fish as plentiful up their way.

The F. P. Wood Co. have been compelled to enlarge their factory owing to the enormous demand for their goods. Their Crown Brand of aerated drinks add drinks are large sellers.

J. A. Dolan, secretary-treasurer of Lynch Bros. & Dolan Co., Sydney, N.S., manufacturers of biscuits, etc., is in the city after working the west coast. He reports business as good.

The new butter factory seems to be an assured fact, and negotiations are now working that promise to bring it to a close at an early date.

C. D. Chetwynd, tea expert, has left on his annual trip to the outports in the interest of Harvey & Co. Mr. Chetwynd's tea business has grown to large proportions.

L. Moore, representing James Urquhart, Newfoundland representative of Red Rose Tea, has returned to the city after a trip to the outports.

One of the former large tea firms have hauled down their sign in this country. The local men are too much for them. Time was when their representative was at the top of the ladder in the tea business.

George Neal, the wholesale merchant, is importing large quantities of produce this season. He is a very busy man, but always finds time to extend the glad hand to the traveller who calls to see him. George is very popular with the knights of the grip.

John Ryan, the genial representative of the Royal stores, severs his connection with them the first of the month to enter the employ of a Canadian firm. Mr. Ryan will work Newfoundland.

J. Jones, manager of A. Goodridge & Sons' Hants Harbor business, was in the city for a few days. Mrs. Jones accompanied him. He reports business as exceptionally good.

Capt. J. Elliott, of Change Islands, reports the fishery around Tilton Harbor as the worst in years.

D. G. Curtin, manager of the grocery business of J. J. St. John, has left for a pleasure trip to the old country. Dan will be away about two months, and will visit England, Ireland and France. We anticipate a treat when he returns, for few men have the gift to describe a trip like he has. His write-up of the trip he made around Green Bay.

W. E. Bearns, Haymarket Square, has made some fine alterations in his business premises. Mr. Bearns carries a fine stock of high class groceries.

H. P. Dickson, representing Wampoles, was a visitor in the city lately, and reports business as fully up to last year's.

A. Lodge, manager of the Catalena branch of P. Templeman, has been in the city buying goods. Mr. Lodge is a very popular business man, and has worked up a fine business for the firm in Catalina. His branch carries the finest stock of goods in Catalina.

W. Moyes, formerly manager of Wampoles, paid his many friends a short visit the past week. Mr. Moyes is one of the most popular ambassadors of commerce that visits these shores.

Hay is worth $31 per ton in St. John's. The hay crop promises to be large in Newfoundland this season.

Molasses has dropped to 29 cents per gallon.

Oatmeal and rolled oats are again away up in price.

Pork is still very high, and dealers predict no lower prices this year.

VALUE OF RICE AS A FOODSTUFF TO BE EXTENSIVELY ADVERTISED

For the first time in the history of the trade, rice is to be advertised in a systematic manner and on a comprehensive scale, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

It has long been a source of discouragement to all engaged in the rice industry, from the farmer who raises this article of food to the merchant who sells it, that its merits are less known in the country where it is produced than in far distant lands. For instance, reliable statistics show that the per capita annual consumption of rice in Europe is fourteen pounds, while in the United States it is only three and a half pounds, or exactly one-fourth as much, and this amazing fact is attributed to a failure to skilfully advertise a cereal that, according to high authority, is the best known food for man.

During the course of an examination before a congressional committee, Dr. H. W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, in answer to Mr. Littlefield's question: "What do you consider the best food for man to eat?" replied:

"I think a man ought to choose his own ration. Lots of people are vegetarians. I think we eat too much meat for health. For the sustenance of physical exertion if you have hard work to do there is nothing better than starch or sugar. The cereal-eating nations can endure more physical toil than the meat-eating nations. This is not the accepted view, but it is true. You cannot tire out a Japanese who eats rice. He will draw you all around the town on a pound of rice, and he is as fresh at the close of the day as when he started. You could not do that on a pound of meat to save your life."

Outside of Louisiana the consumption of rice by the masses of the United States is comparatively limited, for the reason that they are ignorant of its merits. To remedy this defect Charles E. Cormier of New Orleans, an enthusiast on the subject of the use of rice, has organized a publicity campaign to make rice better known to the people of the United States. The instrument to be used to make the campaign effective will be known as the American Rice Packing Co.

The company is capitalized at $500,000, and Mr. Cormier is its president. W. C. Gilmore of New York, eastern representative of Louisiana and Texas rice mills, is vice-president, and Mortimer S. Bate of New York is secretary and treasurer. Its purpose will be a double one, to advertise rice and to sell it. An experienced advertising firm has been engaged to do the advertising, and a new system of handling rice has been devised to make it popular.

As is well known, rice is now handled in burlap bags, involving leakage and short weight and the risk of spoilage by frequent reshipments and exposure to long delays on filthy wharves. After the retailer receives it it is dumped into a barrel and scooped out as occasion requires. No attempt has ever been made to inclose it in a neat package of small dimensions, ready for delivery to consumers, like canned goods, for instance. To obviate this difficulty the new company will put up rice in packages to be sold in two sizes—one at ten cents and another at twenty-five cents. These packages will be thoroughly sealed, dustproof and secure from contamination in transit.

Depots for distributions will be established at New Orleans, New York, Chicago, Kansas City and Denver, and by this method, backed by liberal advertising, it is hoped to make rice a household staple in every family in the land.

This publicity and education system may probably solve the problem that has long worried rice farmers: How to get the American public to try rice as an article of diet? Once tried, the battle is won, they think, and the trade is looking forward with interest to the result of the work to be done by the proposed rice-booming company.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

No. 27.

John McCorvie, Chatham

Few men are better known in business or municipal circles in Chatham, Ont., than John McCorvie. Though just in his prime, he has for thirty-five years been associated with the grocery business in the Maple City, while for many years past he has taken a keen interest in municipal affairs.

John McCorvie is a native of Kent county, having been born near Mull, in the Township of Harwich, in the year 1852. He received his education in the public school, which was situated on his father's farm, 10th concession Harwich. At the age of 15 he, with his brother Edward, took charge of the farm, which they worked for the next five years. At the end of that time Mr. McCorvie, wishing for a wider sphere of action, moved to Chatham and took a position as clerk in the grocery store of John McKerrall, Sr., in North Chatham, where the King Edward Grocery is now situated. He continued in Mr. McKerrall's employ till the year 1879, when, on that gentleman's retirement, Mr. McCorvie, forming a partnership with Wm. Foreman, under the name of McCorvie & Foreman, purchased Mr. McKerrall's business and goodwill. The partnership continued for some five years, when Mr. Foreman retired, and J. D. McKerrall took his place in the partnership which, under the name of McCorvie & McKerrall, continued until 1900. In that year Mr. McCorvie retired from the firm. After a three months' rest, he went into business on King Street in the I.O.O.F. Temple, his present stand. Two years ago he took his son, Wilfred N. McCorvie, into the business.

Mr. McCorvie has had a large share in the municipal life of Chatham. In 1888 he served as a member of the town council under the old ward system. For a number of years thereafter he took no active part in public life, but in 1899 the persuasions of his many friends induced him to stand as a candidate for the position of school trustee for Ward Five. On the school board he proved a diligent worker for the best interests of the schools as a man of progressive and up-to-date ideas. As a result he held the post of trustee for six successive years, in the last of which, 1904, his colleagues recognized his services by electing him to the position of chairman of the board. On the conclusion of his term as chairman, he retired, but when last January the new board of education was instituted, Mr. McCorvie was induced to be a candidate. In a contest against a number of very strong candidates, Mr. McCorvie went in with flying colors, standing third on the list, the heavy vote given him being a striking tribute to his popularity among all sections of the public.

Mr. McCorvie has for twenty-four years been a member ol the I.O.O.F., and has filled every position in the gift of the local lodge, being on several occasions representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge. He is also a prominent member of Chatham Encampment No. 10. He usually takes the Noble Grand's work in the subordinate lodge and the High Priest's work in the encampment.

CANADA'S GREAT EXHIBITION.

Next Week Sees The Opening of This Interesting Event.

Next week promises to be a busy and a lively one in Toronto for the city will be full and overflowing with visitors to the annual exhibition, the greatest of its kind on the continent. Grocers from all over Canada will be present in abundance during the next two weeks and they will be amply repaid for their visit, not only by the general attractions of the exhibition, but particularly by the exhibits of pure food and provision products which department will be larger than in any previous year.

It is the same with almost all the other departments of the fair. Indeed, the $50,000 offered in premiums is an assurance of exceedingly large entry lists. New buildings, including the gigantic new grand stand, on which almost half a million dollars has been spent during the year, will be a large factor in the success of this year and the special lighter attractions of an outside nature will be of most excellent character. The visit of a modern passenger-carrying airship is a much-talked-of event and is something entirely new to Toronto. This and the other features of interest will make up an exhibition which it is worth crossing a continent to visit.

C. L. Yeats, Sarnia, has sold his business to C. T. Smith.

THE RISE OF JAMES BUTLER.

The New York Herald.

When James Butler left Ireland, thirty-one years ago, his only assets were a ticket to New York, a rugged constitution, smiling blue eyes and an ambition to make his mark. When he went back to Ireland thirty years later to see the friends of his boyhood he was the owner of more than three hundred grocery stores, millions of dollars' worth of New York city real estate, the promoter of a scheme to own grocery stores in every city in America and the possessor of one of the finest trotting stables in the New World.

In these days of swollen fortunes and phenomenal business rises the achievements of Mr. Butler do not attract as much attention as they would have done in other periods, but his career is none the less interesting. At present he is conspicuously in the public eye because of the winning fight he has made to compel the Jockey Club to give consent for him to have racing at the Empire track, which he owns.

All his energies were centred in this fight, and its outcome created no surprise among those who have watched him in other battles. For three years he tried to get the "runners" at the Empire track, and he went to the courts, with the result that the Appelate Division of the Supreme Court in Kings ruled that the State Racing Commission should give him a license. There remained another hurdle, the Jockey Club, and his peace with it assures racing at the Empire track next month and during forthcoming seasons if Mr. Butler so desires.

Efforts to obtain from Mr. Butler facts bearing on his early career proved fruitless. He will talk about his horses and he will talk about the future, but himself and the past he declines to discuss. One of his friends said that he never looks back, but perpetually keeps his eyes on the future, and is always dreaming of things to be done, not things that have been done.

As a horseman he is among the country's foremost breeders and drivers, and his horses at East View Farm, on the Hudson, are among the best known trotters in the country, many of them sons and daughters of the famous stallion Direct. He knows a horse from the hoofs up. He knows how to drive as only a man who loves horses and understands them can drive, and he would rather win a race with one of his own trotters than do anything else in the world. It is interesting to note in this connection that a short time ago at the Empire track, he personally drove five winners, three of them being by his own horse Direct. This was a record which has not been equalled.

It was only by accident that Mr. Butler did not become a hotel owner instead of a grocer. That was his first ambition after he got settled in America. But fate—a kind one, it has developed—threw him into the grocery business, and to-day he owns more stores than any other man in the world probably, and expects to own hundreds more before he retires from commercial activity. As he is only fifty-one years old now, and is as rugged and youthful in spirit, as he was when he drove his first race, it is probable that he will not retire for a long time.

Mr. Butler came from a little place called Russeltown, Ireland, where his family had lived on one piece of land for fifteen generations. He came to this country with his parents, with whom he lived a short time in Massachusetts, going to Chicago a short time later, at the age of twenty, and returning to New York in a year or two to work in the steward's department of the Windsor Hotel. He had no fixed ambition at that time, but was determined to learn a business, and he picked the hotel business as a first venture. From the Windsor he went to the Murry Hill Hotel when that place opened, and while there formed a friendship with the proprietor, which continues at present.

Having been taught by his parents, hardy, prosperous countrymen, that part of one's earnings should always be saved, he started as soon as he began work to lay aside some of his weekly wages. His little nest egg grew until, about 1882, he had money to lend. It was at this period that the turn came in his life.

Mr. Butler had boarded for a long time with a woman named O'Connor. She had a son whose health would not permit him to do heavy work and whose ambition was to own a grocery store. His mother encouraged the notion, but there seemed no way of getting the necessary capital to start business. Mr. Butler saw an opportunity for investment, and he offered to lend $2,000 to young O'Connor, the two to form a partnership in the management of the store.

From the first the store prospered. O'Connor proved a good manager, and in a few months Mr. Butler raised money with which to open a second store. This also paid, and pretty soon a third was opened. Profits flowed in from this one, and after a time still another was opened. The possibilities of the business appealed to the young business man, and he bought out O'Connor and laid the plan for establishing a string of stores all over New York city.

It did not occur to him at that time that he might also extend his business to other cities; indeed, it was only recently that he decided to begin business in Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis—in fact, in all the principal centres of population in the country.

At present the James Butler Grocery Company owns 178 stores in New York city and is capitalized at $10,000,000. Mr. Butler owns the company. He also owns a heavy interest in a company which, under the name of James Butler, owns more than one hundred stores in Philadelphia and seventy in Pittsburg. Every one of them pays a profit; every one of them is conducted in exactly the same manner.

In addition to his grocery business he is a heavy owner of real estate and is continually increasing his investments. It is a subject of comment among real estate men that in all his deals he pays spot cash. This is the more notable in that one investment, the purchase of the Seminole and Ormonde apartment house in upper Broadway, the consideration was more than $1,000,000. For many years it has been his custom to buy corners on which his stores stand and his holdings have increased greatly in value. While Mr. Butler will not discuss the value of his real estate, persons who have associated with him declare that his fortune in real estate alone is well up in the millions.

His country estate is about two miles and a half from Tarrytown and is known as East View Farm. It is here that he spends much of his time in the warm months and here that he keeps his horses. The farm consists of 350 acres of rich meadow and upland, lying on both sides of the turnpike road between White Plains and Tarrytown, in a circular valley through which ripples a sparkling little river known as Sawmill Creek.

While he was a boy Mr. Butler's love for horseflesh had its beginning. He aspired to own a horse, and during the years that he was buffeted about before he found himself in business it never occurred to him that he would some day be one of the best known breeders of trotters in the country and would have a stable ranking with the very best. It was not until his business success had been assured that he started in to own trotters. In fact, there had been no recreation until he had placed his business on a solid foundation.

Before that he worked practically night and day. But when he found himself in possession of a comfortable fortune and with an income of growing dimensions he decided to branch out as a horseman. The first trotter he owned was a bay, bred by James B. Haggin. In honor of the town from which the Butler family migrated he named the filly Russel T. He won races with this filly in 1894, and from that time his interest in the sport quickened and his string of trotters began to increase.

For the runners Mr. Butler has no great love, although he likes to see a race. His desire to have running races at his Empire track is due to a wish to have the property put on a paying basis. It was bought in for about $300,000 and he has spent a large sum in improving it. Its value is now placed at $1,000,000.

William H. Clark, once Corporation Counsel, built the track for runners, but he died before any races were held on it. There was one meeting for the benefit of Mr. Clark's widow. John B. Sexton and Frank Farrel bought the track from the Clark estate for $210,000, but the court reversed the sale and it was purchased by a syndicate in which Hugh J. Grant and C. K. G. Billings were heavily interested. Mr. Butler acquired an interest in it, and after a clash with Mr. Billings came out as the owner. He set out to have running races, but each season was balked by the State Racing Commission, which refused to grant a license on the ground that the track was not well equipped for running races.

Determined to have his way, Mr. Butler continued his efforts before the State Racing Commission, but met with failure until, in despair, he applied to the courts, with the result that an order was issued compelling the Racing Commission to give him a license.

Although possessing a handsome fortune and in a position to have as many luxuries as any man, Mr. Butler always has lived in an unpretentious way. He has been to Europe several times and has traveled about this country with his family, to whom he is devoted, but he has always done it in an unostentatious manner. During the winter months he spends practically all his time at his business, and in the summer, while spending much of his time on his estate near Tarrytown, he is always in intimate touch with all the details of his business.

In fact, so closely is he in touch with it that it was once said of him:

"Wake him up in the middle of the night and he can tell you just what he is worth at that particular moment."

His capacity for work is unlimited, and his grasp of detail is remarkable.

HOW APPEARANCE COUNTS.

A Montreal grocer was talking on things generally the other day, and in the course of the conversation the name of a certain packing concern was brought up. Their goods, travellers and methods of doing business were discussed, and it developed that while the grocer had been buying from the house for two or three years he had never seen the factory of the concern, although it was located in the same city within half an hour's car drive from his store. Nor had he ever come in contact with the chiefs of the firm.

"Their goods are the real article," said the grocer, "and they shall have a place in my store and be sold to my customers as long as their present standard is maintained. Take their lard, now. It is put up in a very attractive manner, and when presented to the customer it looks nice and clean and fresh, creating a good impression at once. Everything is cleanly. The goods are sold at a higher price than those of many another house, but it is easy to obtain the extra money owing to their neat appearance, and the goods themselves are above reproach as to quality. When the goods come into my store they are neatly packed and create a good impression upon my mind. The company's delivery vans are always, apparently, newly painted, quite lacking that old and worn out look which betokens antiquity. Everything about the concern breathes modern progressiveness and go-ahead methods. Yes, sir, their goods are The goods."

This is a little sermon that may be taken to heart by many a retailer who may be lax in his methods. How do your groceries look when delivered to your customers? Are they nicely put up, and are they cleanly in every respect? If they are not, it is up to you to change your methods, because every day you go ahead as you are now doing you are losing money. Your trade will fall away from you. People will go to your competitors where they get things more fresh and dainty, and where the service is above yours in more respects than one.

For many years—in fact, up to five years ago—he personally managed his own affairs from a corner in a little office. He did all his buying—and he buys by the shipload and carload—looked after the deliveries from the main warehouse and looked over the reports of his scores of store managers.

But he doesn't attempt to do that now. The business has grown to such proportions that no one man could manage it. He has divided it into departments and at the head of each one he has placed a man who grew up with him in the business and who knows his ideas. He is the directing head. He knows more about the affairs of each department than the man in charge of it and keeps them constantly on their mettle. He is just as likely to drop into one of his stores in the northern end of the Bronx as he is into one of those in the heart of Manhattan. The managers are always looking for him and they never know when he is coming.

When he is in his office there is a stream of managers coming to him. He listens to them for a moment, answers their questions almost before they have finished putting them, and beckons to the next. He never hesitates, and he decides matters of utmost importance with lightning speed. Asked what qualities have aided Mr. Butler most in building up his enormous business and at the same time creating a fortune which promises to rank with the biggest of New York within a short time, one of his oldest associates said:

"His indomitable will and his persistence. When he starts out to do a thing he does it, if it takes him years."

Mr. Butler is not talkative when speaking of himself or his business affairs, but he consented to discuss briefly the opportunities at present for young men.

"All the advice I would give young men starting out in any line of business," said he, "is to persevere. Don't spend too much time in recreation. I do not say that no time should be set aside for play, because a little diversion makes a mind clearer for the problems of business life. But work while you work and always learn all there is to know about the subject in hand. Don't get a smattering of a thing and let some one else supply your information. Know what you are doing and than you won't make mistakes.

"There are more opportunities for success in business now than there ever were. That is because there is so much more business. There is no reason why a young man with good health and brains should not be able in these days to make a comfortable fortune. Ambition is the first essential; then comes perseverance. One should not be in too big a hurry about it. Go slowly, then you will be thorough."

DO YOU KEEP PROPER BOOKS?

"Any man who fails and who has not for five years before his failure kept proper books, shall be liable to a fine of $800.00 and one year's imprisonment."

That's the law.

You will notice that the law makes distinctions— it assumes that there is a difference between properly and improperly kept books.

The law distinctly specifies that a man must keep proper books.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

& SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

Has it ever occurred to you that

RED ROSE TEA

HAS GOT TO BE GOOD ALL THE TIME?

The very fact of it having gained such a high reputation has a tendency to make those who use it more harsh in their criticism if it ever fails to come fully up to their expectations.

No man requires to watch his everyday actions so closely as the man who has achieved a high reputation for honor and ability. A mistake at once makes him a target for public criticism. It is just so with Red Rose Tea. Its high standard of quality must be maintained every day. Any mistake would be keenly criticised by those who have learned to have confidence in it.

Therefore, I am bound not only to keep the quality higher than other teas, but to keep it absolutely uniform.

Red Rose Tea will help increase your tea business.

Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

THE INCREASE IN SALES OF "SALADA" during the first seven months of 1907 over the corresponding seven months of 1906 amounted in all branches combined to 20¾ per cent.

The Toronto branch alone (Ontario and the North-West) had an increase of 22½ per cent. during the same period.

The Montreal branch's (Quebec and the Lower Provinces) increase during the same period amounted to 16¼ per cent.

Doesn't this prove conclusively that it pays to serve the public with the very best?

"SALADA," Toronto, Montreal, New York, Chicago, etc.

PHENIX WASHING POWDER

THE GREAT SELLER

Owing to its recognized superiority over cheap makes of washing powder, PHENIX is always used by the housewife after the first trial.

Then, the price is another consideration. Despite the high quality of PHENIX, the price is most reasonable, 5c. for ½ lb. package, or 10c. for the 1 lb., are the retail selling figures.

First quality and the right price mean profit for the retailer.

STRAIGHT POINTERS

Dealers who are in the market for Canned Goods will find it distinctly to their advantage to order the "Essex Brand," based on these prime facts:—

—We are located in the finest garden section of Canada, where Corn and Tomatoes grow to perfection.

—We own one of the largest, newest and most perfect canning plants in the Dominion, with every facility for doing things right.

—We claim for the "Essex Brand" a higher standard of quality than is usually considered necessary. The finest of Fruits and Vegetables, gathered at the right stage of ripeness and packed fresh from the field under the most careful conditions, warrant the statement that the "Essex Company's" goods will give a larger measure of satisfaction to your customers than any other within your reach.

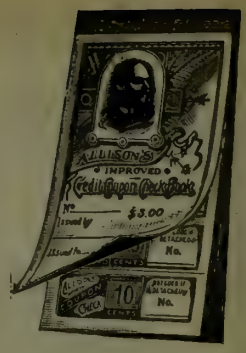
Allison Coupon Books



Are the ball-bearings that will make almost any business run smoothly. Here's how they work:

If a man wants credit for $10.00 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10.00 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him with $10.00; no trouble. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on for all his purchases until the book is used up. Then he pays for the book and gets another one. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, and no disputes. Allison coupon books are recognized everywhere as the best, BECAUSE THEY ARE. Let us send you cancelled sample, free.

Are Your Profits Reasonable and Secure?

Quite an important question - one every shrewd grocer constantly asks himself.

Commercial prosperity demands a reasonable and lasting profit on all lines handled.

This goes far towards explaining why most progressive grocers insist on

Burlington Brand
Canned Goods

because that brand clinches both reputation and profit at the same time. Only high-grade, first-quality fruit can ever reach our canning department and BURLINGTON BRAND retains all that is good, nourishing and invigorating about succulent fruit and mature, fresh vegetables.

An Incomparable Starch

For a long time starch manufacturers stood still. They did not improve their product. In fact all starch was of the most commonplace kind until was placed on the market. Then competitors began to wake up. The particular women of Canada demanded IVORINE because it was better and cost no more. Your profits will be reasonable and you'll secure the paying trade by handling IVORINE.

What Are You in Business For?

Money or Glory.

If the latter, it's not very particular what brand of canned goods you sell, but—if YOU are out for money, a paying trade and a lasting reputation, it's strictly up to you to stock and recommend because people who know—the particular housewives of Canada—demand THE BRAND which is distinctly superior in goodness to any other brand on the markets of the Dominion.

There are more than a few strong reasons for the popularity of Farmer Brand. Both soil and climate are ideal for growing the best fruit and vegetables. We have reduced the canning industry to an exact science and Farmer Brand contains all that is good, wholesome and nourishing about ripe fruit and fresh vegetables.

EDMONTON.

The man who walks up Jasper avenue, Edmonton, and other business streets of this city, noting the substantial buildings, the busy activity of stores, and the large amount of city improvements, fails nine times out of ten to note what it all means to the future of Edmonton. The many advantages which the city possesses, such as an unlimited supply of fuel, transportation facilities, abundant raw material in various forms, etc., must be noted to appreciate what its future will be. Those resources are right at the doors of the city, and what is more, Edmonton has at her back a rich farming territory extending hundreds of miles in every direction. With all these advantages, with her present industries, with those also under course of construction, Edmonton is bound to be in future one of the most important business and industrial centres in the Canadian west.

The new packing plant which is to be built in this city will mean much to its progress in the near future, as such a gigantic $1,000,000 industry cannot but do for Edmonton what similar industries have done for Kansas City and Omaha. For instance, the latter city owes her prominence to-day to the packing industry, although at the start the town itself was against the building of such factories. A large plant was located outside the town, which afterwards became the city, and the city proper to-day stands as the old town. This new plant and factory for Edmonton will be situated about two miles east of the city on the Canadian Northern Railway, and at a point where the Grand Trunk will cross the C.N.R.

The ground has been reserved for the plant, and the factory will cover 150 acres, all of which will be used by the company.

Already the excavations are completed for the first building, and temporary buildings have already been put up, such as offices, cooking houses, sleeping departments and a large, spacious dining room that will accommodate over two hundred men that are working on the excavations.

The estimates on the brick alone for the main building, from the foundation up, have been estimated at over two millions, while orders have already been filed for twenty cars of cement, one hundred cars of gravel, and a hundred cars of sand for present use. The lumber will be of the heavy kind and has been ordered from British Columbia. It will take in all over a hundred cars to ship this lumber to its destination.

The capacity of the plant will be largely in excess of the supply of products, but the company, seeing the possibilities of the surrounding territory, are preparing their plant to meet the requirements of a large, populated district.

This means that the company will take all the products handed in to them, which will be a ready market for all the farmers to sell their stock of cattle, sheep, hogs, butter, eggs, etc., and no matter what quantity, this enterprising packing plant will be in a position to handle it all.

The company will carry on its business under the name of J. Y. Griffin & Co., who have large houses in Winnipeg, Vancouver, Seattle, and also a plant at Calgary. More plants will be installed in the near future, according to the amount of business that the territory warrants.

The company will build a large public stock yards, which will be used for marketing stock, selling, and feeding all kinds of stock that are in transit. There will also be a stock exchange and commission house, where all kinds of stocks and agricultural products from the farmers, such as is at present in operation at Winnipeg, Chicago and other large places. The company will sell all kinds of fresh meats, such as beef, pork, mutton, poultry, butter and eggs. In manufacturing, the company will have the largest plant in Canada for the manufacturing of smoked and cured hams, bacons, etc., lard, butter and all kinds of greases will be another of their manufacturing departments.

This will mean that the company will have to handle a box-making plant to produce the thousands of tins for their compressed meats.

In connection with this plant there will also be a soap factory, which will take in all the rough grease for soap manufacturing throughout this part of the country. This alone will be no small affair, and means that in a short time Edmonton will have a much-needed soap factory of her own.

The company to operate this large plant, will need at starting over fifty men in the stock yards alone to assist in the loading and unloading of cattle, etc., while there will be employment for butchers, carpenters, tinsmiths, packers, shippers, clerks. Other branches of their plant will take from two hundred to two hundred and fifty more employes, but this number will be increased as business progresses.

A visit to the point of operations reveals quite a busy community. Cars are unloading, temporary buildings are under construction, excavations are going on for several buildings, and the many teams are at work. All gives an appearance of busy activity. In a short time walls will be seen rapidly advancing, and molding into a factory. Employes' houses will be built, residential places will go up, which will be bound to attract business houses, and in a very short time there will be a suburb to Edmonton, with one of the largest manufacturing and packing industries in Canada, and one that will help to place Edmonton amongst the foremost cities of the west.

GUELPH.

A pleasant at-home was given the executive committee of the Clerks' and Salesmen's Association, on Wednesday night last, by the President, Wm. Hood, (by the way a good grocer), at his residence on Quebec street. The executive committee deserves great credit for being able to put ginger enough behind the association to bring a possible loss into one of the most successful years of its existence. The party, although a small one, spent a most pleasant evening in games, etc., and dispersed with a high opinion of the hospitality of the president.

Bringing in the sheaves is a great deal more important to the farmer these days than a trip to the city. Consequently, the woman folk again had command on Saturday. There was a splendid attendance of buyers and things went with a hustle. The outside market was practically dead, a couple of loads of hogs being the only thing in the way of business. Inside, butter went out of sight. After all the butter was picked up, all kinds of fancy prices were heard of; 28c per lb. being the limit, but the stores were fairly well supplied at 23c, and right here we might add when creamery butter can be had for 24c a lb., the grocers don't need to run after dairy at 28c a lb., which is the case at present. On the fruit and vegetable market, which is much earlier, there was considerable fun. Some merchants had bought tomatoes as low as 20c a basket on Thursday and came down about 5 a.m., but did not buy at 25c, and before six o'clock could not buy for any price, as every tomato in the ten loads was sold at or near 35c, and, instead of four for $1 as on Thursday. It was a case of asking 45 and 50c for choice stock.

Well now! who said the Merchant's Association was dead. Just look at the row over the council proclaiming the 12th of September a holiday, on account of the opening of the new C.P.R. road from Guelph to Goderich. Then along comes the Trades and Labor Council with its objection also. The Mercury says:

"The Executive Committee of the Retail Merchants' Association yesterday afternoon expressed strong opposition to the city council's decision to proclaim a holiday on 12th September, on the occasion of the Guelph Musical Society's excursion to Goderich, to formally celebrate the opening of the Guelph-Goderich Railway. The opinion which actuated this, most probably, was that the merchants and their employees wanted to join with citizens generally in making a red-letter day on that occasion. The operation of the new road promises so much for Guelph, not only in the way of increased trade, but in contributing enormously to the civic exchequer, that it was felt they would willingly forego the day's trade. With fine weather, the chances are that there will be very few people left in the city with whom to do business, even if the stores should be kept open. The occasion, the exceedingly low fare of $1.25 from Guelph to Goderich and return, with stop over privilege, the fact that people along the line are going to join in the celebration, and the desire to participate in it, will take the crowd from Guelph. We have had Thursday half-holidays all summer, and a special Thursday whole holiday in the first half of September, before the fall trade has set in, is not likely to prove a serious matter for anybody under the circumstances.

The geocers in the lower end of the city rest much better now at nights since the gang of car thieves have been caught and sent down, but this gang were not the kind that touch stores, but we are glad to get rid of them. They have proved one thing, our police force are not what they are cracked up to be.

Jas. Hewer, flour and feed merchant, has returned after a successful pleasure and business trip out west.

There were about 10 loads of tomatoes on the market Tuesday, and the price asked was 35c. a basket, but it is likely to drop, as the buyers are holding off.

Plums keep high at $1 a basket. Watermelons keep far too high. We have to pay 35c. each and are not worth touching, as 40c. is all that can be got for them.

CHATHAM.

A new bakery has been opened at Wallaceburg, in the stand adjoining the North Bridge, formerly occupied by Mr. Evans. The proprietors are Wm. E. Howard, of Tupperville, and Bert Abray, of Detroit. The new shop will be known as the Star Bakery, and its product as the Star Brand bread.

The Wallaceburg canning factory begins operations this week, canning tomatoes, which promise a good yield. It is stated that the factory's output this year will be larger than that of last year.

Fred. Harmor, for some time past with R. P. Adams, Tilbury, has left for Chicago. Mr. McDonald, late of F. Lee's butcher shop, succeeds him.

The Canadian Packing Co., of London, have notified local buyers that as about 25 per cent. of the hogs they receive are heavy, over-kept animals, they will be compelled, in self protection, to dock buyers 25 cents per 100 pounds on all hogs over 220 pounds up to 240 pounds, and 50 cents straight on all over 240 pounds. The packers state that heavyweight hogs are no longer sought by packers or middlemen, and that in England and Canada alike such meat is almost unsaleable.

Geo. Taylor, the Wallaceburg grocer, has purchased the property opposite his store, formerly occupied by the Commercial mills and sheds. The block of land is quite a large one. Mr. Taylor has not yet announced his intentions regarding it.

Reports from Blenheim state that the farmers along the ridge have commenced the pulling of the 1907 bean crop. This is the pioneer bean growing district of Ontario, and has always been the leading section for this crop. Parties who have been along the line report that prospects are good for an abundant crop. Tilbury reports state that the crop in that vicinity, having been badly nipped in the July frost, will prove only a partial one. Local prices advanced 5c per bushel last week.

GALT.

The grocers and grocery correspondents throughout the Dominion will probably have noticed that the usual conglomeration from Galt has been missing for some weeks. The omission was not due to the fact that Galt had deteriorated in a business sense, as it continues to add daily to its position of importance in the business world. The vacant space that once represented Galt was caused by reasons best known only to the scribe who has the honor to represent The Grocer in this Scotch settlement. However, now that affairs have been amicably arranged (and a house secured) we hope that Galt will be once more regularly represented.

The Galt Old Boys' reunion has come and gone and it was, undoubtedly, the best reunion ever held in Ontario. There were nearly 10,000 visitors present every day, and everyone had an excellent time. The decorations were handsome and the illuminations particularly gorgeous. The Galt merchants, grocers in particular, did themselves proud, Deans & Walker, of the Red Front, having an exceptionally creditable electric display. It is thought that when the finances are finally figured out that there will be a surplus of nearly $2,000 to be divided among local charities.

Trade is rather quiet after the impetus given it by the reunion, although business is hardly less slack than is usual at the present season.

The fruit trade in this vicinity this year has proved a failure. A local grocer remarked this week : "The fruit season this year hardly created a ripple in the trade. The lateness of the season, the dry weather, and the shortage in all fruit crops all united to make the usual rush conspicuous by its absence." Plums and peaches are now coming in, but as these luxuries are only a partial crop the state of trade will not be visibly affected. Peaches are very scarce, and the price will, consequently, be almost beyond reach of the ordinary householder.

First-class bulk and comb honey is now offered for sale in the local grocery establishments. The quality is excellent, but the price will be rather high on account of the shortage in the crop. The late spring is said to be responsible for the shortage.

New potatoes are also much in advance of the usual price at this time. They are selling at from $1 to $1.25 per bushel, an advance of 25 per cent. over last year. The reason is hard to find, as the crop is a fair one.

As a sample of the quality of goods sold by local grocers, it might be well to state that a young lady who supplies the Red Front with butter, recently captured first and second prizes in the butter-making contest at the Winnipeg exhibition, and is now showing at the Toronto exhibition.

Mr. Oliver Chapman, who for the past three years has been connected with the staff of Sloan Bros.' grocery, has severed his connection with that firm, and intends fitting himself for the Baptist ministry, His many friends in Galt will wish him every success.

The Galt market is growing rapidly, and is becoming generally recognized. There was a large attendance of both producers and consumers on Saturday.

A peculiar fact in connection with the grocery business in Galt is that none of the local groceries handle fish, either fresh or salt, to ant extent.

The first shipment of Australian raisins ever received in Galt is now offered for sale at the Red Front. They are said to be fully equal to the Spanish article.

HAMILTON.

Our last Wednesday half-holiday is over, and how we have enjoyed them, the changes—something different every week—now on the boat for five or six hours, next week on the trolley through the country, then to the Beach for a fishing trip, then up the incline and over the mountain, then for a long drive through the country, truly, these Wednesday afternon holidays have been a blessing to the grocers. About Sunday, before the children begin to plan for the outing: "Where will we go this week for our half-day?" Grocers, these are bright spots for you in the struggle of life, and they are also red letter days for the wife and little ones. It is during these summer half-days that the little ones begin to know what their father looks like, and to realize that he is not such a bad fellow after all. Once a week, for a few hours, in the hot summer months, is, at best, a poor vacation, but it certainly is better than none at all. You may worry a little about the fellow that won't do as you do, and close up, but never mind. On the first of the year you will be better off than him, because the change has put some life into you. You are better fitted, physically and morally, to hang on to your business and draw more than the fellow who goes from bed to store, and from store to bed, losing interest in his family and his business, and, finally, in himself. Stick to the summer half-holidays, and take a few more if you can. You will never get quite all of the other fellows to close, as there are always men who are crooked and cross-grained in every walk of life. Some of the poor grocers are not really responsible. They can't help it. They are born that way. This reminds me of what appeared in an English paper recently in regard to an agreement to close at a giventi me. One poor grocer agreed, but added to the end of his notice the following:

"No objection to serving customers after business hours."

He simply couldn't stand the pressure. His meanness had to crop out. The Hamilton people are attending the Exhibition at Toronto in great numbers. Reduced fares and special transportation facilities brings the Fair very close to us, as it were, and the people come home delighted with what they have seen.

Very complimentary remarks are made about the Shredded Wheat Co.'s display, and just here, I would like to say, that the grocers as a body deserve to push the sale of this first-class article. They are the only manufacturers of cereals who have tried to protect the retailer and give him a profit. Grocers ought to think of this, and push the goods for people that help them. Let this be known, and the other manufacturers will waken to the fact that the retailer has some rights that need recognizing.

LONDON.

Business is fair in wholesale lines and quiet with retailers. The latter feel that the big excursions hurt them and the market dealers more than any other class. On Saturday last over 4,000 Londoners went to Niagara Falls. Probably one-half of these people are accustomed to visit the market and grocery stores on Saturday, and each person will spend on an average a dollar or more. That means at least $2,000 which ordinarily finds its way into the pockets of the local food providers is spent in other ways outside the city. Then there are the other dealers throughout the city, such as butchers, bakers, etc., whose businesses also suffer on such occasions. A large proportion of the single people who take in the picnics usually board in restaurants and have meal tickets, which means that the price of a day's meals is spent elsewhere. There was a time when people carried their own lunch baskets to picnics. Now, as a rule, when the excursions are to places where cheap meals can be easily obtained, the custom has practically been done away with. When baskets were carried, local grocers, butchers and bakers, of course, benefited by the sale of picnic goods. Now these dealers hate to see picnics advertised.

So scarce have been bananas during the greater part of this season that retailers of the fruit have found it difficult to supply the demand, which, owing to the shortage of home-grown fruits, has been unusually great. More than that, grocers declare there is no profit in them. One grocer declares he is sick of handling bananas. Said he: "People think we are robbing them if we charge more than 15 cents per dozen. Yet we pay 12½, and when you allow for loss in handling, there is quite as likely to be a loss as a profit." A wholesale dealer, speaking of the scarcity, said: "We have been getting only three cars a week where we used to get five and six. Last week we got only two cars. The car we have now is one that came to us by mistake. If I were a grocer I would quit selling bananas at 15 cents, for there is no profit in them at that." To add to the troubles of the fruitman, an unusually large number of watermelons have "gone bad" this year. This is the tail-end of the melon season, and a certain amount of loss is always expected. This amount, however, has been far exceeded. "All fruit is unusually scarce," remarked one of the big dealers this morning. "With the banana scarcity we have a crop of pears less than one-third what it ordinarily is, and peaches are similarly fixed."

At a meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association on Thursday night, a strong committee was appointed to see that the huckster bylaw is properly enforced, and a communication was sent to the city council asking that the market clerk be instructed to see that the bylaw is strictly adhered to.

To-morrow afternoon will be the last of the summer mid-week half-holiday, and the local grocers have made arrangements for a big outing at Springbank Park. There will be a boxing contest in barrels, a watermelon eating contest and other unique features, besides a baseball match. Walter Nichol, the Sunlight Soap man, who has donated a box of soap as a prize, will be present, and, dressed as a "rube," will furnish the comedy. Local wholesalers will act as judges.

The question of light-weight bread being sold in the city has been brought to the attention of the Trades and Labor Council, which, at its last meeting, discussed it for some time. It was decided to take the matter up with the inspector as soon as possible to prevent bread being sold at short weight.

About a thousand of the employes of the McCormick Manufacturing Company and their friends attended the thirty-seventh annual picnic held by that company at Port Stanley Saturday. The day was an ideal one and everything was done by the company and the committee to make the picnic one of the most successful ever held. The greater part of the day was taken up by a large programme of sports and games.

The remarkable increase in the price of hay from day to day during the past two weeks has been the source of many comments among the dealers as to the cause of such sudden advances. Many attribute the increase to the farmers being so busy at this season of the year so that the demand is not supplied as it should be and when a load comes in a half a dozen purchasers stand around to bid it in at a fancy price. As high as $16.50 has been paid for a load that a month ago would not have brought more than $10 or $11. It is said farmers are storing their hay, waiting for still higher prices.

About 600 young farmers from London and surrounding points left this morning for the western provinces to assist in the harvest. Many of them intend taking up their homes in that new country.

MIDLAND.

Trade in groceries and provisions is somewhat quieter. The weather, having taken a cool turn the past week, it is affecting to a certain extent the demand from the tourist quarters. Many people are out of town holidaying and this, too, makes a noticeable difference in trade. Butter and eggs continue scarce and high. Fruits are likewise in big demand, with supply quite inadequate to meet it. Prices rule firm. Canned meats and fish are moving fairly well, though, perhaps, not as lively as in past seasons.

Osborne & Ferrier, house boat and supply company, report a fairly brisk trade, their tourist business making strong demands on their grocery and provision section. The past month especially has tested their house boat accommodation and consequently made heavier their supply trade.

The season has been much shorter, however, than past ones, but the reason is explainable through the fact that cooler weather has prevailed and doubtless owing also to the late, backward spring.

Mr. Osborne, in conversation, said: "Our first house-boat engaged last year went out on July 9th; this year our first call being the first week in August; this, you see, shortens up the season considerably and people are already hustling off home, as they cannot enjoy themselves out of doors, as the air has become too cool."

MONTREAL.

"It's pretty dull, all right, but I am good and busy studying my business."

This is what one retailer greeted me with when I dropped in upon him. Trade certainly was not brisk, orders being few and scattered. Lots of grocers and other business men, when trade is quiet, sit around the front door, or just simply loaf any old place. Here was a grocer making mighty good use of his time.

No one could help being interested in this man's conversation. He told me how he worked through the summer. July and August barely paid expenses. Most of the good customers were out of town and sales were very small indeed, compared with the other ten months of the year.

Because he did not have to give so much attention to sales, this grocer looked after other things. "I have two clerks more than I need," he said, "but I am keeping them on, instructing them in the business, and preparing for the fall. I find they quickly pick up my ideas, and when the busy holiday season comes on I find myself well repaid for the expense I was under in keeping them during the two dull months."

He was having his office newly painted and fixed up generally, and while superintending the work and the running of the store he also found time to study out ideas for the fall trade, which will shortly begin.

"Another way I am busy," he continued, "is in trying to find out where I am losing money. Every grocer is losing money somewhere, and it is few of them that have any idea how much they are losing or where they are dropping it. I myself have a hard and fast rule to sell nothing under 20 per cent. profit, and on some lines I run up to 25, 30 and 40 per cent. I figure the average is about 25 per cent. My expenses amount to 12 per cent. I find, nevertheless, if, at the end of the year, I realize 6 or 7 per cent. I consider myself fortunate. Where's the other 6 or 7 per cent? That keeps me busy. I am trying to find out all the spare time I have.

In other words he was looking for leaks. He told me he was finding out things all the time, and he was able to stop some leak or other every once in a while. The man who does not search for the leaks does not find them, and his business is like a tin bucket: one little leak will not suffice to put it out of commission for a long time, but a new leak and another, and still more, will very shortly be the cause of that bucket being consigned to the ash heap. It will be no more. So with the grocery business. Too many leaks mean failure. So it is up to the grocer to search for leaks good and hard—and to use plenty of solder when they are found.

In some stores one of the greatest leaks is breakage. It is hard to stop this, but extra care will keep it down. Of course, in a large store where there are six or a dozen clerks it's pretty hard to watch everybody, and there is always somebody who "doesn't care." One grocer told me he calculated upon losing $25 a week on breakage. That's pretty stiff.

Dishonest clerks lose a grocer more money than any merchant can stand. In the country this trouble is not experienced to the same extent as in the city. This is not casting any reflection on city clerks individually. There are a lot of expert clerks in the average city who know their business right down to the ground and who are as honest as the scales of standard make, but there are a great many clerks of the riff-raff variety who drift from one thing to another—fellows who have no ambition, and only too often the retail grocer, through circumstances, has to employ these. They are expensive clerks. I know of one man in the grocery business who figures he loses $500 a year over and above the clerks' salary in this way. Little things going out of the store every now and then. Still he keeps the clerks. Others might be worse.

A good clerk, one who can be depended upon, an honest, hard worker, is worth money, and no one knows this better than the grocer who has learned by experience.

Walter Paul expects to have a branch store operating on University St. about the middle of September. Mr. Paul has an excellent connection in Montreal, and his trade is of the best.

Messrs. Hutchins and Young are two additions to the clerking staff of John Robertson & Son.

John Slattery, one of Almonte's progressive grocers is in Montreal this week attending the C.M.B.A. Convention. He reports business first class in the Ottawa Valley.

Walter Paul who was away on his holidays, has returned to town.

Mr. Legault of A. Dionne & Co. is out of town for a few days rest.

WINNIPEG.

August has been a comparatively quiet month in the retail stores, especially among those catering to the better class of trade. So many people are out of town that the best stores find a serious temporary decrease in the number of their customers. Had all these customers paid their monthly bills before leaving for the summer resorts, there would be no particular reason for complaint, but, unfortunately, for the grocer, who stays at home to attend to the trade that is left him, and to meet his wholesale bills, very many of the best people in town forgot their grocer's bills. Perhaps the experience of the Winnipeg grocers does not differ in this respect from that of grocers in other cities, but it is annoying, nevertheless, particularly in these days of tight money, when it is so hard for business men to get accommodation at the banks. Practically all these accounts are good and the grocer fears to press for payment when he knows that they have been left unpaid only through thoughtlessness. In the aggregate, they amount to large sums, and every summer this is a serious matter. Concerted action by the Grocers' Association should find a remedy before another summer.

Another grievance should have the early attention of the Grocers' Association. At the present time there is an early closing by-law, which makes it unlawful for a retail store to remain open after 6 p.m. or 10 p.m. on Saturdays, and nights preceding holidays. With this by-law the grocers of Winnipeg are in hearty sympathy, but they feel that in the exceptions made to its observance they are done considerable injustice. "Restaurants" are not subject to the provisions of this by-law, and, accordingly, they are open early and late. Every restaurant carries fruit and confectionery, and very many carry a stock of canned goods and general groceries. With the best restaurants, groceries are an incidental side line, but there are very many places in town which seldom serve meals, but which keep up a lunch counter in order to serve as a technical excuse for keeping open after hours and on Sundays. These small stores cut very seriously into the legitimate business of the bona fide grocery stores, as they sell canned goods and other groceries when the legitimate grocery stores are compelled by law to remain closed. A few months ago the hardwaremen of the city complained that the druggists were selling cutlery, and other lines of hardware after 6 o'clock. They had a real grievance, but they got little redress, either from the City Council or from the Manitoba Legislature. It is doubtful, however, whether they have so serious a grievance as have the Winnipeg retail grocers against the small lunch counters and restaurants throughout the city. Combined action by the associations of hardwaremen and grocers in Winnipeg should remedy this evil. It is manifestly unfair that legitimate grocery stores paying a heavy business tax should be treated in this way while little lunch counter dives, paying a much smaller tax, should be given favored treatment.

Speaking of the business tax, there is considerable discontent and grumbling among the trade at the collection by the city of a heavy business tax in the slow month of August. Ordinarily this tax is collected in December but this year the city is hard up and the call was sent out several months earlier than usual. The basis of taxation is somewhat different this year, and there are some manifest injustices in the amounts collected. But the principal complaint heard is about the collection of the tax in August. It is a heavy tax on the business men and coming in a hard year, and in the slowest month, it has in many cases seemed like the last straw. It is interesting and instructive, however, to note that a large proportion of Winnipeg business men took advantage of the discount offered for payment before the middle of the month.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS:

Fish—Revised.
Sugar—Firm.
Teas—Strong.

Montreal, August 29, 1907.

Business is not overly brisk just now. Crops are being harvested and not a great deal of attention is being paid to groceries. Orders received are for goods required immediately, and no buying ahead worth speaking of is being done.

Collections are reported very satisfactory in most instances.

Canned goods are not selling as well as might be wished, owing to the high prices. Grocers are not taking hold at all. They are buying in small lots and trusting to luck for future supplies. Sugars are firm, the raw market being very strong.

There has been no material change in the tea situation since last week. Prices are well maintained, and supplies are not large. Valencia raisins are likely to be lower, while currant prices will be very good for buyers from what can be seen to-day. Beans are dull. Cheese and butter are both firm, while eggs are still costing good money. Smoked meats and lard are selling freely for the season. A falling off in the demand for many cereals is reported.

SUGAR—Some jobbers report a continued disappointing demand for sugars, considering that this is the sugar season, and no improvement appears in sight. The raw market is firm this week and the tendency of the market locally is that way. An advance is possible.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—For the season, syrups are in strong demand, manufacturers being scarcely able to cope with the business coming in to them. Molasses deliveries have been practically all made, and trade in this is dull.

TEA—All teas continue very firm and prices are extremely high in some instances, and remarkably well sustained. Ceylon and Indian greens are strong, while Japans are as scarce as ever, with demand heavy. No reports have been received from Japan lately worth speaking of, except despatches to the effect that the latest teas harvested are not of as good quality as previous pickings, which is nothing more or less than might be expected.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Since last week there has been no material change in the fruit situation. It now is practically certain that Valencia raisins will be cheaper, as crop reports are good, although over-estimates have been made by some. No particular developments are reportable in the currant situation, while in California conditions have not changed. Locally, quite a few prunes have been sold at figures which seem low, because of the fact that the stock will be hard to replace at figures anywhere near the selling price. Marbot walnuts have been advanced ½c, and are now quoted 12c to 13c. Taragonna almonds are also higher, they being unobtainable under 14c to 15c. Brazil nuts are now selling 16c to 17c. It appears as thought there would be no shelled walnuts here before the middle of November. Prices are firm, dealers quoting 24c to 25c.

CANNED GOODS

Montreal.—Further reports on the canned goods situation show that the pack this year will be very short on many lines. The canners have announced that their pack of gooseberries, 2's, will be but 65 per cent. ; gallons, but 35 per cent. ; deliveries of black raspberries, 1's, 25 per cent ; red raspberries 2's, but 55 per cent ; gallons, standard, red raspberries, 25 per cent. Various other lines are short, and all things considered, the trade will be fortunate in getting 50 per cent. to 65 per cent. deliveries. Corn and tomatoes are reported short among other varieties. Jobbers say business is not very good, the grocers being afraid to take hold at the high prices prevailing. Canned lobsters continue good property, being scarce and in strong demand.

TORONTO—No special features have developed in the canned goods situation during the past week. Wholesalers are not succeeding to any remarkable extent in placing orders for future delivery, these latter gentlemen appearing to be pretty generally of the opinion that prices are too high.

Speculation as to the probable prices and quantity of the tomato pack are still being indulged in by those who have the time, but the general feeling among the retailers seems to be one of saddened resignation to whatever the future may bring forth.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS:

Sugar—Acadia, down 10 cents; other prices firm.

Dried Fruits—Sultana raisins, high opening prices.

Canned Goods—Retailers holding off.

Toronto, Aug. 30.

The grocery markets have been on the quiet side during the past week, and the general opinion is that the month just ending compares unfavorably with July, from the standpoint of business transacted. The chief interest appears to be in canned goods, but the retailers are not buying except on a purely hand to mouth basis, their motto evidently being, "It Pays to Be Canny." The wholesalers, so far, have not succeeded in placing many orders of any size for future delivery and things are about stationary.

The sugar situation is unchanged from last week, except for the fact that on Saturday last the Acadia Company put down prices on refined, 10 cents. This action, however was taken simply in order temporarily to stimulate consumption and the decline is not likely to be permanent.

On general grocery lines prices are stdeay throughout. The Sultana raisin crop has had a set back by rain and opening prices are said to approach those of last year.

TEA—The market is quiet locally, the demand being for the cheapest grades of tea, which are quite unobtainable in any quantity and mail advices from London, dated August 15, say:

"Although for reasons previously explained, home consumption has been remarkably well maintained during the past few months, the steady falling off in re-export trade has not been without its effect on the statistical position and this, combined with heavy imports during July, has resulted in some addition to stocks, which now stand at 88 millions, or only three millions less than last year. The high basis of common tea makes it rather difficult to forecast the future course of the market, which must naturally largely depend on the Indian outturns during August and September.

SUGAR—The feature of interest during the past week was the action of the Acadia Company in lowering prices 10 cents all round on Saturday last. It is stated that the change was made in order to increase consumption and the feeling among the trade is, that it will not be permanent.

The New York market in raws was featureless in the early part of the week, no offers of sugar being made, and refiners keeping their position. Willett & Gray say of raws:

"The market has ruled quiet but steady throughout the week under review.

"The probabilities are that buyers will pursue more of a hand-to-mouth policy than usual for some time.

DRIED FRUITS—Latest reports say that the Sultana raisin crop, which, up to within a week or two ago, was expected to be almost double that of last year, has lately suffered considerable damage owing to heavy rains, and while no accurate estimate of the loss sustained has yet been received here, it seems practically assured that the crop will be again much below normal. Opening prices, because of the damage, have advanced sharply, and while probably not quite on a parity with those obtaining at last season's opening, are not far behind, and the situation as a whole is not encouraging.

The retention on the currant crop for 1907 has been fixed. Cables from Patras, giving the proportion as 35 per cent. in kind on 66,000 tons. "The retention," says the Journal of Commerce, "while it is said to provide for a larger quantity for market purposes than was provided last year, insures a strong support to this season's operations and permits the trade to figure confidently upon the future. In the spot market the supply is held to be barely sufficient to cover ordinary trade requirements until the first new crop fruit arrives, which will not be before the end of next month."

In the New York market some interest is being shown in new crop Persian dates. Opening prices are not yet fixed, but orders are being freely booked subject to approval of prices when announced.

NOTES.

L. Campbel, general, store, Gunton, has sold to W. Jefferson.

Black and Shaw, grocers, of Calgary, have been succeeded by Ross and Shaw.

T W. Little, Dungannon, is offering for sale en bloc his stock of groceries and boots and shoes. He is removing to Cobalt to look after his interests there.

W. A. Forbes, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, has returned from a successful selling trip to the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Forbes reports "Bee Brand" goods in greater demand than ever.

Grocers wishing to obtain Roquefort cheese, should secure Laporte, Martin & Co.'s prices. They represent some first-class houses.

MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

The annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade is one of the important gatherings of businessmen in Canada. Representing every section and every commercial interest of the three seaboard provinces, these men assemble and discuss, as the president says, "a wide range of interesting and live topics." The venerable secretary, Chas. W. Creed, was able to report that last year practically all their resolutions and recommendations had received consideration in Parliament. While this was satisfactory it was no more than right. The board is enthused by public spirit and ambition for the welfare of the provinces. It is made up of the ablest business men, men whose success has demonstrated their fitness to offer wise counsel in regard to matters of paramount public interest. Their deliberations and conclusions are worthy of the most serious consideration of every man in public life.

The people of the Maritime Provinces have felt that their part of the Dominion has not shared to the extent it should the wave of prosperity that has swept the West. They feel that the possibilities for success in the East are as large as in the West. They want to keep their own people at home and secure a share of the many immigrants crowding into Canada from Europe. It is to help solve such problems, to gather up and focus public opinion and business counsel, that the board holds its annual meeting.

Through the efforts of the board we hope some day to see a union of the three provinces that will far more than combine their present influence in directing the destiny of the great Dominion.

TAX ON TRAVELERS.

If retail grocers would carefully consider the practice of holding up travelers for subscriptions and to buy tickets in aid of local undertakings, church, charity or sport, they would quit it. Fifty dollars a year is a low estimate of a grocery traveler's expenses on account of such demands. The Editor of the Grocer meets a great many travelers, and he is constantly hearing complaints of the practice, and if the merchants knew what the travelers think of it and of the men and women who hold them up in this way, they would hesitate for that reason alone, to make the levy. Tickets for entertainments, church socials, bazaars, lotteries, are a constant drain upon a traveler's purse, and his good-nature, and a drain, too, upon his respect for his fellow men. Many travelers are asked to buy membership tickets in local clubs, bowling, tennis, curling, and others which cannot possibly ever be of the slightest use to them. Some good ladies on the Finance Committee of their church society, will regularly ask a subscription of the traveler who calls to sell her husband goods. Many a traveler's dollar has gone to help defray a church debt, and the debt is all he ever knows about.

There are a great many thoroughly valid reasons why a merchant should not make these demands upon the men who come to him to sell goods. Take the case of the church. The traveler has his own church at home to help support. Why should he, a man of very moderate means and modest income, be called upon to contribute to the funds of churches all over the country? A man would have to be a miniature John D. Rockefeller to keep it up. It isn't once in a hundred times a traveler can use a ticket he buys, and some grocers have objected because a traveler gave away a ticket he had bought. Then the practice engenders bad feeling. The traveler feels it is a hold-up; he gets no return for the money, but can't refuse for fear of offending a customer. There are some travelers with the backbone to say "No," and withstand all such unjust demands upon them, and they are usually among the most successful men on the road, but most men submit to it. Another reason is that the wise merchant will not put himself under obligation to the traveler or the wholesale house. It is the boast of many successful merchants: "We never asked a favor of a wholesale house yet." That is the right attitude in business. The practice of holding up the travelers is unfair. It is taking advantage of a man when his living is at stake. Some merchants solve their consciences by the assumption that, "Oh, the house pays it." The other day a man got a dollar from a traveler for a church fund, then turned over a page in his book and showed where he had got ten dollars from the house which the man represented. Sometimes, no doubt, the tax goes down as expenses, but more often, especially with city travelers it comes out of the traveler's own pocket.

THE EGG SITUATION.

Lately there has been some talk in the provision trade of a possibly good business in eggs being transacted between Canada and the Old Country this winter. It is hardly likely, though, that trade will get any further than the talking stage. About this time last year there was going to be a great deal of export business but it did not develop and prospects this season are not very bright.

Conditions regulating the egg market this year are not ordinary. Owing to the high price of meat, butter, cheese, milk and the plainer foodstuffs, consumption of eggs has been larger than ordinarily is the case, while receipts on the other hand have not been greater in proportion. Parties keeping hens are forced to pay more for their keep than formerly, and in many cases they have killed off a number. Grain prices have been high and feed has been dear for months.

Conditions have been such, all together, as to make the supply less than the demand, and this being the case, prices have been very firm, with an advancing tendency.

Regarding business with the Old Country, since receipts are barely sufficient to supply the local trade, it is hardly probable that dealers will go to the trouble of selecting, paying cartage, freight and insurance, in order to ship the eggs to the Old Country houses, when English buyers are not interested in eggs costing more than is obtainable for them here. Selling locally, dealers have a minimum of expense, as compared with selling in an export way, and profits are more satisfactory.

Maritime Board of Trade

Splendid Annual Gathering of the Business Men in the Provinces by the Sea—Many Matters of Importance Discussed—Not Jealous of the West, But Determined That the East Will Make Good, Too—Demand for the Improvement of Transportation Facilities—The All Red Line.

The annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade was held last week in St. John, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Aug. 21, 22 and 23. Last year's meeting at Amherst was thought to be high-water mark of success for a meeting of the amalgamated boards, but this meeting marks a new record of achievement. The attendance at this, the 13th meeting of the Maritime Board was large and representative and included many leaders of commerce and industry in the provinces. Promptly at 10.30 Wednesday morning President Fisher called the board to order, and addresses of welcome were delivered by President McRobbie, of the St. John Board of Trade; Mayor Sears, of St. John, and President Fisher. The most striking matter of the opening of the meeting was the passing of a resolution endorsing the recommendation of the colonial conference for the All Red Line. This resolution was carried unanimously. The meeting was held in the cosy rooms of the St. John Board of Trade, which had been specially fitted up for the meeting and which were also elaborately decorated with flags and flowers.

His worship, Mayor Sears, after a few preliminary remarks of welcome said he thought in looking over the list of subjects to be discussed that technical education was one of the most important matters for their consideration. He referred to the recent visit of His Excellency the Governor-general to the Elinor Home Farm, and while it might not come under their jurisdiction he thought this was a matter of much importance and that many more such institutions should be founded. He extended on behalf of the city a cordial welcome and trusted their deliberations would result in a great benefit to business men throughout the province. His worship's remarks were heartily applauded.

Programme Committee.

President Fisher then appointed the following committee to arrange the list of subjects for discussion: Rev. A. E. Burke, J. H. McRobbie, M. G. De Wolfe, Hector McDougall, A. M. Bell, F. C. Whitman and W. B. Snowball.

The Delegates.

Following is the list of delegates by provinces:

Nova Scotia.

Annapolis—F. C. Whitman, Geo. E. Corbett.

Amherst—E. B. Elderkin, R. Robertson.

Berwick—D. C. Crosby.

Bridgewater—R. Dawson, G. W. Godard.

Canso—E. C. Whitman.

Digby—H. B. Short, L. Peters.

Halifax—E. A. Saunders, A. H. Whitman, N. McHall, J. E. De Wolfe, W. A. Majot, A. Y. Wilson, A. M. Bell, G. S. Campbell and H. O. Smith.

Kentville—R. H. Dodge, C. O. Allen, E. J. Ward, M. G. De Wolfe, J. C. Anderson, E. W. Webster, Robert Harrington.

Kings County—A. E. McMahon, J. A. Kinsman, Geo. R. Pineo, E. Seaman.

Lunenburg—D. Frank Matheson, J. Frank Hall.

Oxford—Geo. F. Bissett.

Truro—C. E. Bentley.

Weymouth—Rev. Chas. R. Cunning.

Yarmouth—E. H. Armstrong, A. W. Eakin.

Sydney, C.B.—H. F. McDougall.

New Brunswick.

Chatham—W. B. Snowball, J. L. Stewart, Jas. Beveridge, W. S. Loggie.

Newcastle—John Morrissey, Geo. F. McWilliam.

Sackville—W. W. Andrews, F. B. Black.

St. John, the Ambitious City of the Atlantic Seaboard—Where the Maritime Board of Trade Met.

Woodstock—J. P. Maney, J. E. Sheasgreen.

St. John—John H. McRobbie, W. E. Foster, W. H. Throne, T. H. Estabrooks, Jas. Pender, W. M. Jarvis, W. F. Hatheway, J. A. Likely, J. N. Harvey, J. Hunter White, W. F. Burditt, H. B. Schofield, F. W. Daniel, F. E. Dykeman, G. F. Fisher, T. H. Somerville, W. H. Barnaby, Geo. Robertson, M.P.P.; R. O'Brien, John Sealy, Wm. Kirkpatrick, A. H. Wetmore, Wm. Pugsley.

Prince Edward Island.

Alberton—Rev. A. E. Burke, Jas. E. Birch, W. H. Turner.

Charlottetown—Hon. Geo. E. Hughes.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Chas. M. Creed Presents His Statement of the Year's Work—Advances Made.

The venerable and able Secretary-Treasurer, Chas. M. Creed, presented his report, as follows:

To the President and members of the Maritime Board of Trade:

Gentlemen: Your Secretary-Treasurer begs herewith to hand you his report for the current year.

All the recommendations and resolutions passed at the last annual meeting were forwarded to the Ministers of the various departments of the Federal Government, those concerning local Governments were forwarded to the Premiers of same, copies of the Canadian Grocer, containing the proceedings of the annual meeting were forwarded to the Ministers of the Federal Cabinet, also to the Premiers of the local Governments. to Boards of Trade and to delegates who attended the meeting. On Nov. 8, copies of the Grocer, also all resolutions, were forwarded to the following Maritime Province members in advance of the opening of the Federal Parliament: W. S. Loggie and Dr. J. W. Daniels, New Brunswick; J. J. Hughes Prince Edward Island; Dr. J. B. Black, H. J. Logan, B. B. Law, and A. K. McLean, Nova Scotia, in order that they could become familiar with them.

On Dec. 3, shortly after the opening of the Federal Parliament, copies of the the Grocer and also all resolutions were forwarded to all members and Senators from the Maritime Provinces. The correspondence with the same being, as also with various Boards, too voluminous to read, are now on the table for the inspection of members.

Annual Meeting at Amherst, N.S.

The annual meeting at Amherst, in August last. was a success, the subjects were well debated and nearly all the resolutions passed were brought forward and discussed at the Federal Parliament with good results.

Technical education has had the attention of the local Governments, and the Government of Nova Scotia are now about securing a site for the institution in this Province, and also have established a Bureau of Immigration and Publicity.

Annual Report.

The annual report was not published this year, the Canadian Grocer having such a full report of the proceedings of the annual meeting, it was used instead, at a cost of $25, for 500 copies, it has been found quite satisfactory, has been appreciated, and quite a good sum has been saved thereby.

New Board.

Boards have been formed at Oxford and Weymouth, N.S., and have affiliated. One has also been formed at Shelburne, N.S. It has not yet affiliated, but I hope it may do so during the coming year.

Unaffiliated Boards.

The Boards of Trade not yet affiliated have had every attention paid them during the year, and I am pleased to report the Boards of Bridgwater and Lunenburg, N.S., have affiliated; also the Board of Woodstock, New Brunswick.

Reorganized Boards.

The Boards of Pictou and New Glasgow have been reorganized. Pictou Board has affiliated, and the Board at New Glasgow, it is hoped, will soon follow.

Correspondence With Board.

This has been conducted with vigor. During the year some of the secretaries have promptly responded to notices and letters, while many of them have been very slow, which has been the means of delaying the work, and it makes quite a rush as the annual meeting approaches. It is hoped, however, the secretaries will take notice and be more prompt the coming year.

Notices of Annual Meeting.

The subjects for discussion at the annual meeting were mailed to all Boards on Aug. 10, with notices of the date, place of meeting and railway arrangements for delegates, and also to the delegates from each Board.

In conclusion, during the past year as usual, everything has been done by me for the enlargement and advancement of the Board, at the same time doing all posssible to assist your worthy President, in which I had the able assistance of M. G. De Wolfe, Esq., of Kentville as also that of W. E. Anderson, Esq., Corresponding Secretary, at St. John, N. B.

Accounts for the Year.

The accounts for the year are all prepared, but as several Boards will pay their per capita tax before the close of this day's meeting, they will be presented to-morrow for your approval and audit.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES M. CREED,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Following is a list of the Maritime Boards of Trade:

Affiliated Boards:

Nova Scotia.

Annapolis, Amherst, Antigonish, Berwick, Bear River, Bridgewater, Canning, Canso, Chester, Caledonia Digby, Dartmouth, Halifax, Kentville, Kings County, Lockport, Liverpool, Lunenburg, Oxford, Pictou, Truro, Wolfville, Windsor Yarmouth, Sydney, North Sydney, Weymouth.

New Brunswick.

Chatham, Moncton, St. John, Sackville, St. Stephen, Woodstock, Newcastle.

Prince Edward Island.

Charlottetown, Summerside, Souris. Southern Kings (Montague), West Prince (Alberton).

Unaffiliated Boards:

Nova Scotia.

Middleton, New Glasgow, Shelburne, Pugwash, Glace Bay.

New Brunswick.

St. Andrews, Fredericton, Campbellton.

Visits to Industries.

President Fisher, informed the delegates that invitations had been received from the following industrial enterprises, to go through their premises: The Partington Pulp & Paper Co., Andre Cushing & Co.'s sawmill, The Cornwall & York Cotton Mills, T. S. Simms & Co.'s brush factory, and others. He said that letters of regret at their inability to attend had been received from the Boards at Bangor, Portland and the State of Main Board of Trade. Forty-nine Boards were represented in this body.

Facilities would be provided, the President said, to take any members who might desire to go to the west side to view the harbor improvements.

The Secretary read a number of letters of regret at inability to attend from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Governors of the Maritime Provinces, Lieut.-Col. J. B. McLean, Secretaries of the Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa Boards of Trade, and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and several western newspapers.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Review of the Commercial and Industrial Situation in Canada.

President W. S. Fisher then delivered his annual report. He said:

"Gentlemen of the Maritime Board of Trade:

"I would like to add a word to what you have already heard from the Mayor of the city and the President of the St. John Board, to express the pleasure it gives me in common with all our citizens, to welcome to this city and meeting so representative a gathering of the commercial, professional and industrial interests of these Maritime Provinces.

"I also wish to express my appreciation of the honor conferred upon me in electing me as your President; and hope that the same kindly feeling which has prompted this, will also incline you to overlook my shortcomings.

"Boards of Trade have been aptly termed the Business Men's Parliaments; and while they have no power to enact laws or to put into effect such legislation as they may consider desirable, yet their influence in creating public opinion and directing attention to matters along lines of public interest is very considerable and is being more and more recognized.

"The opportunity afforded by such a gathering to exchange ideas concerning the problems that face us all cannot fail but have a stimulating effect, not alone upon each individual present, but also upon the community in which he lives.

"The list of subjects that we will be called upon to discuss covers a wide range of interesting and live topics, and are such as to demand most careful consideration before decisions are reached, in order that they may stand the test when fairly discussed by the public, in the press and before the legislative bodies to whom they will be submitted and who alone have the power to finally put them into effect.

"The Secretary, in his report, will deal with the work accomplished during the past year. I will, therefore, not attempt to discuss it; but in passing wish to pay a tribute to the zeal and earnestness he has shown in following up the work and in keeping it well before the members and Ministers of both the Federal and Provincial Parliaments.

To the West Indies.

"I also wish to place on record the hearty appreciation of the liberality of Messrs. Pickford & Black, who so kindly sent at their expense delegates from different sections of Canada to the West Indies for the purpose of discussing with the merchants and others there the development of trade between the two countries. That good results will follow there can be no doubt. As this subject is on the agenda, we will hear further particulars at a later stage.

"Our main concern now is with the present and the future. We are here to determine what can be done by mutual co-operation to improve conditions; to find the weak spots and suggest the remedies.

"The turn of the east to share in the great progress and prospects of the country, while somewhat delayed, is surely coming; and as the west fills up, attention wil be drawn and capital invested to a greater degree in the development of the great natural resources of the section in which we live.

"It behooves us to help this along by being alert to every opportunity; to keep our case well to the front; to prevent our advantages being overlooked; and so hasten the time when through this development our population and wealth may be increased and our young men made to realize that there exists for them in the east as good an opportunity for advancement and progress, as good a prospect for the intelligent man who is willing to put his shoulder to the wheel and work, as there is in any part of this broad Dominion.

Advantage of Difficulties.

"The Governor-General is just completing his tour of the Maritime Provinces and while here has given us many inspiring thoughts and has referred specially to the general prosperity and absence of poverty in evidence on every side.

"Among other things, he drew attention to the Dutch, a people who by their patient, untiring industry have overcome tremendous natural drawbacks.

"This suggests two thoughts: First, that those individuals and countries succeed best who have many difficulties to encounter; and, second, that our natural advantages are very great, greater than perhaps we realize; and that while we have many difficulties to overcome, they are small in comparison with those that have been surmounted by others in the past.

"The lumber and pulp industries have been very prosperous for some years, and there is a much greater recognition of the increasing value of our forests, as well as a disposition through reforestation, protection from fires and, in many other ways, to preserve and increase their value as a source of future wealth.

"A new feature in this trade is the fact that a considerable quantity of spruce lumber is now being shipped to Ontario, owing to its growing scarcity in that Province.

"This fact is suggestive, as showing the possibilities in that connection and the widening market for one of our principal products.

Fruit Farming.

"Fruit farming is attracting more attention each year and there seems no reason why it should not develop enormously, situated as well as we are to cater to the export demand.

"If one might make a suggestion regarding this branch of industry, it would be a co-operative movement on the part of growers and shippers with a view to such a system of grading and packing as will ensure absolute confidence on the part of buyers.

"In the American States of Oregon and Washington, co-operative apple growers' associations exist, and have accomplished a great deal for their members in establishing a uniform standard of quality, and, as a result, securing the very highest market prices.

"The establishment of evaporating factories now under way at different points in the apple growing districts, will help this very much by providing a market on the spot for the poorer grades.

Cold Storage.

"Another movement marking a distinct advance is the establishment of cold storage facilities at central shipping points, which will prove of great advantage in handling fruit, fish and other products specially.

Fishing.

"The fishing industry, which employs many thousands of our population, is of great importance, as shown by the statement that the annual yield is valued at fourteen millions of dollars. On the agenda paper several topics under this heading appear, which will, no doubt, be so fully debated as to throw much new light on a topic of such deep interest.

Mining.

"The coal industry of Nova Scotia has grown with great rapidity during the past few years, the output for the past season being in the vicinity of six million tons. Unfortunately, labor and other troubles exist at present in some of the most important centres, which, let us hope, will soon be settled in such a way as to ensure prompt resumption of work and such an agreement for future operations as will be fair and equitable to all interests.

"In New Brunswick the past year or two has seen considerable increase in the quantity and improvement in the quality of coal produced; and it is said the prospects for future development are excellent.

Transportation.

"Canada, forming as it does a long and comparatively narrow strip of country, the question of cheap and rapid transportation is one of the utmost importance. With one complete line of railway from ocean to ocean, which, with its ramifications makes a total of over 10,000 miles, and two other trunk lines in course of construction, the interior development is being well provided for.

"To supplement this excellent work and to complete these chains of communication so as to make it possible to carry on the entire commerce of the country over its own rails and through its own ports with the maximum of despatch and the minimum of expense, and also to secure that share of the all-round-the-world trade in passengers and freight that our geographical position entitles us to, no effort should be spared and no expense considered too great for the country to undertake in improving our ports and making their approaches safe and easy.

"Much has been done to improve the St. Lawrence route, that most important of Canadian highways. Much still remains to be done. Something also has been done in equipping the ports of the Lower Provinces which afford the only entrance or exit for the Dominion for six months in the year. Much more is required. The United States Government spends millions every year in deepening the channels and improving the harbors of Portland, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Orleans; and these ports have captured far too large a percentage of our ocean traffic. If we are ever to become independent of them we must do as they have done. It means much for the future of the country and no question is of greater importance. It is not a matter in which the Maritime Provinces alone are interested; the wellbeing of the whole of Canada is involved. Unless this work is done promptly, it will be impossible to capture the rapidly growing traffic of the Northwest and keep it within Canadian channels.

Building of the West.

"We are deeply interested in and immensely proud of the development and prosperity of the West, and have for many years cheerfully contributed by heavy drafts upon our pockets and upon our population to its up-building, looking forward to the time when we would secure our share of the wonderful prosperity that its growth has brought to the whole country. As Sir

Wm. Van Horne so well put the case a few years ago, when referring to the slow development of our ports, he said: 'We have enlarged the hopper and not the spout.' It is not a safe thing that we should continue to be dependent to so great an extent upon the ports of a foreign country. Therefore let us urge that the cause be removed. The case is strong and the matter important.

"Do the people in Ontario, Quebec and the western portions of the Dominion realize how necessary a link we are? Do they fully recognize that without the Provinces-by-the-Sea there would be no exit or entrance for passengers, mails or freight for six months of the year, excepting through the ports of another country? And that the tremendous development in the foreign trade that is being looked forward to with such promise, would be impossible? If not fully cognizant of the importance of the Maritime Provinces to the full development of the country at large, should this not be made clear?

"There is no need for us to be overmodest in pressing our case. Let us make every effort to impress upon the governing powers that no time should be lost in having our ports and approaches so equipped that the expressed policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier—that he would not rest satisfied until every pound of Canadian freight should be carried through Canadian ports and over Canadian railways—can be carried into effect.

The All-Red Route.

"Before leaving the question of transportation, brief reference should be made to the All-Red Route, the practical outcome of the agitation for years for a fast mail service on the Atlantic. The great importance of this movement to the country is recognized and the question is absorbing much attention throughout the Empire, and if carried out, as proposed, will be fraught with great results.

"The question of better communication between Prince Edward Island and the mainland, a matter of great moment to those on both shores, appears on the agenda, and will, with the above, be discussed in due course.

Agricultural Development.

"Our agricultural development is not what we should expect or what the opportunities demand. We are not producing nearly enough for our own needs. We are every year bringing in from Ontario and Quebec large quantities of oats, beans, bacon, poultry, beef, onions, cheese, butter, lard, etc.; whereas we should not only be producing all we need for home consumption, but in all these lines and many more we should have a large surplus for export for which we are so admirably situated.

"A glance at the list of Canadian exports or a visit during the winter to the export warehouses in St. John and Halifax, will serve to show the vast quantities of these goods being exported by Ontario and Quebec.

"Why is it that our farmers are so little alive to the opportunities offered them through the excellent market right at their doors, as well as to the still greater market abroad for our surplus products, which, geographically, we are in such an unequalled position to cater to?

"The only Maritime Province that is to-day producing a surplus of food products is Prince Edward Island, mainly owing to the fact that farming there is carried on on a more scientific basis, which proves what could and should be done in the other Provinces as well.

"It is worthy of note in this connection that the counties of Carleton, Victoria and Madawaska, in New Brunswick, are developing a large trade in potatoes with Ontario, where, it is stated, they cannot be grown to so good advantage and where the quality is not so good.

Future of Dairying.

"Another reference in passing might also be made to the development in dairying that is going on in Sussex, where last year several hundred thousand dollars were paid out for milk and cream by one concern alone whose further extension is solely a matter of increased capital. A great deal more might be said to emphasize the need and the opportunities, but this is not necessary as the facts are patent to us all. It would seem that a more aggressive agricultural policy would in a large measure gradually remedy this and by infusing more life into the farmers through agricultural societies and farmers' institutes, awaken a more lively and intelligent interest in their vocation, which is the chief and most important of all and the real basis of our greatest prosperity and progress.

"Much is said and written deploring the tendency of the young people to leave the farms and drift towards the cities because of their apparently greater attractions. With the spread of that practical education referred to elsewhere and the awakened intelligence and interest aroused in farming pursuits in consequence, as well as the better financial returns which will follow, life on the farm will be made much more attractive.

"In addition to this, the extension of the telephone into the rural districts, the advent of better roads, with improved and more frequent mail service, will do much to remove that sense of isolation which is now an important factor in deterring young people from remaining on the farms.

Immigration.

"In the past we have been rich in men, have done our share in providing men of great breadth of thought, who have been important factors in creating, cementing and developing this Dominion. Of this same material we may feel sure the supply will not fail. For many years, unfortunately, quite too many of our young men found it necessary to seek their fortunes in the adjoining republic; and go where you will, you will find they are rendering a good account of themselves. For some time past the current has changed and those of our young men who seek other fields and what appears to them greater opportunities, are finding their way to our own West. While we regret the fact that so many leave the Maritime Provinces, it is a great satisfaction to know that they are helping to build up and develop our own country.

"What can we do to fill up the vacancies thus made and thus maintain a population sufficient to develop our own resources? How can we better do this than by making a greater effort to secure our share of that stream of immigrants who are flocking to our shores, seeking that freedom and opportunity which they fail to find at home? Very few of these know anything of the Maritime Provinces or of the openings that exist for them here, mainly owing to the fact that in the advertising matter issued in the past by the Federal Government little or no reference is made or information given about this section, their effort having been concentrated in exploiting the West.

"Our board has been urging for years that this be remedied and it is gratifying to note that the Dominion immigration authorities have at last awakened to the need, and at the present time have a staff collecting illustrations which it is understood will, with other necessary information, be used in the advertising matter to be distributed abroad in the future. If this is done, and the local government of the Lower Provinces co-operate in offering inducements and in making known what we have to offer, good results must follow.

Co-operating With the Army.

"Within the past year the several provincial governments, co-operating with the Salvation Army, have secured some very good citizens from among those whom this excellent body have been instrumental in bringing across the ocean; but much more remains to be done.

"We have not been alone among the eastern provinces in feeling the drain and consequent scarcity of labor, owing to this outflow to the far west, as in Ontario, also, this became so serious that some years ago the government there, assisted by the Dominion Immigration Department, started a special colonization bureau to procure settlers who would replace those drifting westward, with the result that last year more than 30,000 over-sea emigrants were secured and are now chiefly settled in the agricultural sections of that province. This year they expect a large increase over last; and, as we have as much to offer as Ontario, why should we not take a leaf out of their book?

"There are many thousands among the sturdy, industrious people of Northern Europe whose conditions of life are hard, and who would be glad to come to these provinces and make their home among us if the proper effort were made to show them what the opportunities are and to give them such encouragement as they need to induce them to come; and when here, to get them started on the right lines.

Technical Education.

"Technical education is a subject of great moment and one that is absorbing much attention. What has been done for years in Germany, Great Britain, and the United States, and what is now beginning to be done in Canada, shows the deepening interest taken by educationalists the world over in providing that practical education which teaches not only the value of dignity of labor, but that theory and practice must go hand in hand in securing that all-round training so needed to develop the best in man. To train boys and girls in merely literary accomplishments to the total exclusion of industrial, manual and technical training, tends to unfit them for industrial work, and in real life most work is industrial. The calling of the skilled tiller of the soil or of the skilled mechanic should alike be recognized, just as emphatically as the calling of the lawyer, the banker or the merchant. The abandonment of the old apprentice system has resulted in a great scarcity of trained mechanics and this lack must be made up by the trade school if we are to hold our own in industrial pursuits.

"Nova Scotia is moving in the right direction through the Government Agricultural Institute already established and the Technical College about to be. Sir Wm. Macdonald has done much for the country in establishing in each province consolidated schools with excellent teachers and departments devoted to manual training, domestic science and school gardens, supplemented by careful indoor studies in agricultural and other lines. We also are aware of the great work he has done at McGill and at Guelph, and is now doing at St. Anne de Belliveau. These are movements that will prove a great boon in fitting the coming generation to grapple with the problems confronting them as they take their places in the ranks of the workers.

Industrial Situation.

"With raw material such as coal, iron, lumber, etc., in abundance; with a climate in which men can work in comfort at all seasons; with an intelligent people available as operatives; with good facilities for gathering together the necessary raw materials at many points; with good local markets for many lines now imported; with excellent steamship services to the largest markets abroad; with a rapidly growing market in our own West, the opportunities for industrial development are not lacking.

"At the present time more than one hundred manufacturing firms in these Provinces are shipping goods to western points and the number of these is constantly growing. Ten years ago the number of our manufacturers doing business outside the limits of the Maritime Provinces could almost be counted on one's fingers. It means effort and the expenditure of labor and capital to obtain a foothold there; but when we consider the prospect, is it not worth while?

"What is the prospect? The present population of Canada is estimated at six millions in round numbers. The immigration this year will likely exceed 300,000. At all events, we are safe in figuring that during the next ten years it will at least average that number; thus making a total increase during that time from immigration alone of three millions or more. Add to that as a conservative estimate the natural increase after all allowances at an average of one hundred thousand yearly, and we will have a total population in Canada ten years hence of not less than ten millions.

Immigration as Wealth.

"It is estimated that every immigrant is worth to the country not less than one thousand dollars, which—if correct—means an increase in our natural wealth from immigration alone, of three hundred millions yearly.

GEO. E. HUGHES

"Think what this vast accession to our population and wealth means in increased demand for every conceivable class of goods, especially when it is remembered that practically all this new population is made up of adult workers who require everything from the ground up. Is it not, therefore, well worth our determining to secure a share of the trade in manufactured goods that this growing market will afford?

"Referring briefly to the industrial growth around us, it is only necessary to mention one or two examples of what is possible. Amherst, where we met last year, and where is seen the result of the work of a few progressive spirits, is again in the van this year in being the first section to carry into effect Edison's scheme of producing electric power at the pit mouth and transmitting it by wire direct to the factory; the Sydneys, where two of the greatest iron and steel industries in Canada have been developed in the past ten years. These might be enlarged upon or others given, but are sufficient as examples of what can be done.

"It is surely very clear that in this, as in the exploitation of all our opportunities, we have touched only the very fringe, and that it only needs men with the requisite knowledge and possessed of the right parts to take hold and secure results.

"For this the money should be easily available. We know from experience that when some well spoken gentleman from a safe distance appears with an alluring promise of high returns and waves his magic wand, the wherewithal is not lacking. If some of this surplus wealth which during the past has been lost in experiments of this kind, had been invested at home, the results both to the country and to the individual would have been much better.

Federal Insolvency Law.

"Before concluding, I wish to draw attention to the need that exists for a general insolvency law that will apply to the whole Dominion, looking to the proper protection of creditors and to the equitable distribution of insolvent estates. This is becoming more urgent as trade between the different sections of the country develops. Those firms who are doing business in every Province find the present system very troublesome, and the number of these is increasing rapidly. The present laws are inadequate. The merchant wants no uncertainty as to his rights and at present there is such, owing to the variety of laws in existence in the different provinces.

Summing Up.

"To sum up, how shall we secure that measure of progress and prosperity which should be ours?

"First, through the development of our rich natural resources; viz.: agriculture in all its branches; mining, lumbering, fishing.

"Second, through the development of our manufacturing industries.

"Third, through being on the highway of the all-the-world-round traffic, and by holding the key to the position as providing the only access from the interior to the Atlantic on Canadian territory for six months in the year.

"Where in the whole of Canada or elsewhere can be found a pleasanter country in which to live, a happier and healthier people, more real comfort and fewer drawbacks, than in the Maritime Provinces? As with men, so with communities; it is the strong, hopeful one that wins. Let us, therefore, strike a more hopeful note. Let us more fully realize the advantages we possess. Let us abandon any inclination towards pessimism, and with that courage born of faith and common sense, co-operate in securing our share of the progress and prosperity with which this country is being so abundantly blessed."

Mr. Fisher was cheered and applauded as he sat down.

Maritime Union.

The president called upon C. A. Duff-Miller, agent-general of New Brunswick, in London, and Hance J. Logan, M.P. for Cumberland County, N.S., to address the meeting.

Mr. Miller had left the meeting, but Mr. Logan made a few very interesting remarks. He thought there was more business on the list than could be gone through with properly, and said he had noticed that oftentimes matters of importance were rushed through without thought. The Maritime Provinces should be bonded more closely together and not pull so much for the separate Provinces. He was always ready to work in the interests of the Maritime Provinces, not Nova Scotia alone. He referred to the new electrical power plant at Chignecto Mines by which the Amherst industries were supplied with power.

The list of subjects submitted by the committee was then taken up.

The All-Red Line.

The first subject discussed was the All-Red Line project of a fast line to the Orient through Canada. G. M. Campbell, of the Halifax board, introduced the subject. He said he thought it was generally realized that such a line would be a great help to Canada, and in particular to the Maritime Provinces, as the terminus would be down here.

At present nearly all notable people and bodies of men coming to Canada do not see the Maritime Provinces at all. This line would make us better known. In Halifax they had been making strenuous efforts the past few days to induce the British journalists, now touring Canada, to come here for a day, and they had made satisfactory arrangements to that effect. If the proposed line were inaugurated, all such bodies would pass through the Maritime Provinces. He said he wouldn't ask them to endorse Halifax, as the western terminus, but asked that the resolution be adopted in some shape, so that the feeling of the Maritime Provinces might be known.

The resolution was seconded by M. G. De Wolfe, who said he thought the matter a most important one, not only to the seaboard towns, but inland as well.

A. M. Bell, of Halifax, also spoke on the subject, referring to the remarks made by Earl Grey at Halifax, that England had made a colossal blunder in subsidizing the Cunard steamers at the enormous amount that they had given them. He thought the proposed scheme would be a great benefit to the Maritime Provinces and Canada.

Geo. Robertson also spoke on the subject, and the resolution was unanimously adopted.

It reads as follows:

"This convention of the Maritime Board of Trade, believing that fast high-class mail, passenger and express freight service between the British possessions would be of immense material and political advantage to Canada and all ports of the empire, hereby heartily endorses the 'All Red Line' project proposed by the Premier of Canada, and unanimously adopted, at the recent Imperial Conference held in London, and urge the Canadian Government to take all possible steps to hasten the inauguration of the scheme."

The second subject—a national banking system, introduced by the Chatham board, was laid over for consideration later on.

Cold Storage in Steamers.

A resolution favoring the installation of cold storage facilities in steamers plying between ports in the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland was presented by Hon. Geo. E. Hughes, of Charlottetown, and seconded by Hector McDougall, of Sydney. It was discussed at length by a large number of the members present including Rev. A. E. Burke, Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Hance J. Logan, M.P.; J. E. Birch, J. E. De Wolfe, Joseph Likely and others. Several changes and amendments were suggested, and the sense of the resolution as finally adopted was that the Federal Government should see that subsidized freight steamers plying between the ports of Prince Edward Island and Sydney and of Newfoundland be equipped with cold storage facilities.

There was a lengthy discussion on the question of some changes in the Canadian coinage, but the matter was allowed to lie on the table.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

The Railways and Express Rates—Pulpwood Export.

At the opening of the afternoon session, W. B. Snowball, of Chatham, announced that the member from their board who was to have submitted a resolution on "A National Banking System" was not present, and he thought that subject had better lie over.

E. H. Armstrong, of Yarmouth, brought up the subject of the advisability of the Dominion Government taking over the railways of western Nova Scotia and making them a part of the Intercolonial system. He referred to the great passenger traffic at Yarmouth by steamer and also by rail.

If the I. C. R. was to be a government road, he thought the roads in western Nova Scotia should be taken into the system. There were two railways in Nova Scotia, the D. A. R. owned by English parties, and the Halifax and Southwestern owned by McKenzie & Mann. He said that the eastern part of the province and New Brunswick had received more from the government in the I.C.R. than had the western part of Nova Scotia. The I.C.R., he said, was built to bind together the four provinces, Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The western part of Nova Scotia had contributed more than its share in the expense of building this road, as it was not served as were the other districts. The I. C. R. had been extended to various towns of the eastern part of the province, and if it was good for the east it was good for the west.

He quoted Hon. H. R. Emmerson as advocating the extension of the I. C. R. by taking in branch lines, and claimed that the pro rata cost of the western railways was below that of any other railway in Canada. If this was so, the I. C. R. could to advantage take over these railways. He then read a resolution, which was seconded by H. B Short, of Digby. Mr. Short pointed out that only three freight trains a week passed between Digby and Yarmouth. He heartily endorsed the arguments of Mr. Armstrong.

W. Frank Hatheway also cordially endorsed the proposal that the I. C. R. should take over these lines. He hoped the resolution would be carried unanimously.

All the Branch Lines.

H. J. Logan, M.P., thought that the resolution should include all the branch railways in the Maritime Provinces. He could think of several in New Brunswick and one or two in Nova Scotia that he did not think the people along the lines would object to having the I. C. R. take over. Many of the roads were unsafe. He was strongly in favor of all these small roads being taken over by the I. C. R.

The resolution was as follows: "That in the opinion of this Maritime Board of Trade, it would be greatly in the public interest and to the advantage of the Intercolonial Railway, if the Federal Government were to acquire by purchase or lease the railways of western Nova Scotia, and also the branch lines connecting with the Intercolonial Railway in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and to operate them as part of the Intercolonial system, and that the government be urged to take the necessary steps to acquire such railways, provided, the same can be purchased or leased on reasonable terms, based not merely on the original cost, but also on the earning power of the lines."

F. A. Dykeman also spoke in favor of the small roads being taken over by the government. The resolution, he said, should be changed to take in all branch lines. W. B. Snowball spoke in support of the resolution being enlarged to take in all small railways. He referred to improved conditions on small lines that were taken over by the I. C. R. Frank Black, of Sackville, thought the resolution was too local and should be broadened to take in all lines. He knew, for instance, that people along the line of the Cape Tourmentine Railway would not object to the line being taken over by the I. C. R. Mr. Armstrong, the mover of the resolution, said he was agreeable to changing it to embrace all branch lines if the members wished it. It was then decided that the matter should lie over for a time to see if it could be drafted in more suitable form.

Express Rates.

Hon. Geo. E. Hughes presented a resolution asking for an improvement in the express rates, as now in force in Prince Edward Island. The Canadian Express Company, he said, was now the only company doing business there and it had a monopoly. Rev. Father Burke seconded the resolution and cited instances of excessive charges for sending away shipments of fresh fish. The result of these exorbitant rates was to kill the trade in fresh fish as far as Prince Edward Island was concerned.

Mr. Wilson, of Halifax, who was interested in the fish trade, spoke of difficulties in getting fair express rates when only one company was doing business in the territory. He cited a number of instances of unfair charges. W. B. Snowball advocated that the resolution be so enlarged that the I. C. R. should grant running rights to all express companies.

H. B. Short, of Digby, spoke of the difficulties experienced at Digby, and urged that the resolution should take in all subsidized steamers as well as railways. A. J. Logan, Amherst; J. E. DeWolfe and G. S. Campbell, Halifax, also spoke on the question.

Position Reaffirmed.

Mr. DeWolfe read a resolution on the subject which was passed at the meeting in Moncton in 1904, and on motion it was reaffirmed. The resolution read as follows:

"Whereas, under the Railway Act all express companies may have same privileges over all railways in Canada, except over the Intercolonial Railway, and

"Whereas, under the contract between the government and the Canadian Express Company, paragraph 15, stipulates that this agreement is subject to the condition that equal facilities and equal terms shall and may be granted to any or all express companies which may contract with his majesty for the conduct of an express business over said railway, or any part thereof, and

"Whereas, over the I. C. R. between Montreal and Moncton, and from Truro eastward in Cape Breton and in Prince Edward Island, there is only one express company permitted to do business, and

"Whereas, the shippers of fish and other merchandise from eastern Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, and shippers of fruit from western Canada to points on the I. C. R. east of Truro are handicapped by being shut out from a competing express service and compelled to pay extra rates of carriage, and

"Whereas, numerous resolutions have from time to time been addressed to the government asking that the Dominion Express Company be granted same privileges over government railways as are granted to the Canadian Express Company;

"Therefore, resolved, that this Maritime Board of Trade endorse said resolutions and urge upon the government the early granting of said privileges to other companies than that one now having the monopoly of the express business;

"Further, resolved, that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the Minister of Railways and Canals, Minister of Finance and maritime members at Ottawa."

I. C. R. and Branch Lines.

Mr. Armstrong, of Yarmouth, at this point presented his resolution on the subject of the I. C. R. taking over branch railways, in which he had made several changes as suggested in the discussion previously.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley thought the board should not pass the resolution without inserting a clause that the government should only take over the branch lines on paying a "reasonable" price for them.

Mr. Whitman, of Annapolis, claimed that the board was only offering a principle, and of course the government would use its best judgment in whatever action they took. Mr. Armstrong also spoke along the same lines and urged the adoption of the resolution.

Alderman Baxter thought the McKenzie & Mann roads would not generally be considered branch roads. There was a probability that McKenzie & Mann would build a line down the St. John valley; it would not be a branch road, but probably part of a transcontinental system, and it wouldn't be expected that the I. C. R. should take it over. He thought the resolution should be worded differently.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley said he was strongly in favor of the government taking over branch lines, but he thought that they should put in the resolution the words "at a reasonable cost."

H. J. Logan, M.P., thought there was but little difference between the suggestions, and it might be well if the mover of the resolution and those who desired it changed somewhat, should get together and draft it up in suitable form. On motion of Ald. Baxter, it was decided to allow the matter to stand over until Messrs. Armstrong, Pugsley, Short and Logan will present a new resolution to the meeting, embodying the changes suggested.

Pulpwood Export.

The next matter taken up was "the export duty on rossed pulpwood," presented by W. B. Snowball, of Chatham. The resolution was as follows:

"Whereas, it has been the policy of the Federal Government to encourage and promote manufacture within the bounds of the Dominion by duties sufficiently high to keep out foreign manufacture, and by bounties to encourage the use of home raw material, and

"Whereas, the Federal Government has expended large amounts to promote agriculture and to boom the western country, and to encourage emigration from the motherland and foreign countries; and

"Whereas, we have within the bounds of our eastern Canada as a natural product, spruce pulpwood, capable of providing employment for a large number of our present people, and for many who may come to find homes here at profitable wages, instead of going west and thus populating our eastern provinces; and

"Whereas, this wood is being raised in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Quebec, and shipped in that state to the United States to keep their pulp mills running.

"Therefore, resolved, that this Maritime Board of Trade is of the opinion that the exportation of pulpwood should be prohibited by the Federal Government."

Mr. Snowball advocated that a prohibitive export duty be put on pulpwood, so that manufacturers would be induced to come here instead of taking the wood out of the country and manufacturing it elsewhere.

In Chatham, there was a rossing plant that provided more pulpwood than could be used by the mill there now, and other mills should be built there. He thought also that paper should be manufactured here as well as the pulp. No raw materials should be allowed to cross the border.

Mr. Ward, of Kentville, in seconding the resolution, gave some interesting information on the scarcity of spruce in Nova Scotia, which is used for pulp. He thought no rossed pulpwood should be exported, as the forests would soon be depleted.

Pulpwood Silk.

Mr. Andrews, of Sackville, showed to the members a piece of black silk made from pulpwood. He thought there was a possibility, some time in the future, of Canada manufacturing goods of that kind.

James Beveridge, of the pulp mill at Chatham, also spoke on the subject of pulpwood and the manufacture of pulp. He thought this board should support the resolution so ably put forth by Mr. Snowball.

Geo. Robertson, M.P.P., spoke interestingly of the uses to which the product of pulp could be put, and he thought it would be only a matter of time when Canada would be manufacturing clothing, shoes and other products from pulp.

Should Prohibit Export.

H. B. Schofield, of the St. John board, said he hoped the time would come when the exporting of pulp would be prohibited altogether, and all the paper and other materials made from the pulp be manufactured in Canada. J. C. Anderson, of Kentville, also spoke on the subject, and Mr. Dawson, of Bridgewater, urged that the resolution should deal with all pulpwood, not only with the "rossed," i.e. that from which the bark has been removed.

F. C. Whitman, of Annapolis, and Mr. Pineo, of Kentville, also discussed the subject, and it was pointed out that the resolution would prevent individuals from selling their woods as they might wish.

Mr. Snowball said he had no objection to striking out the word "rossed." He did not know that any but rossed pulpwood was exported. Regarding the contention that private owners would be prevented from selling their wood as they wished, he said it was a matter of national interest and they should deal with it in a broad manner. They should not let their private feelings come in a matter of this kind.

J. H. Whitman, of the Halifax board, submitted a resolution to the effect that a fisheries board should be appointed along the lines of the fishing board of Scotland, to act under the department of marine and fisheries for the regulation and control of the Canadian Atlantic fisheries. He spoke at some length on the subject and cited many instances to show that an inspection of fish and packages for shipping them was needed.

Mr. Eakin, of the Yarmouth board, in seconding the resolution, presented another dealing with the lobster fisheries and their preservation.

Some, he said, advocated having a size limit on lobsters of 10½ inches, others advocated closing the fishing for a period of five years. His own view was that pounds might be provided near the canning factories, where a government inspector could measure the lobsters, and all those under size could be put in the pound. For a diet they could be fed on pickled dogfish, and this would help to do away with this dogfish pest. He strongly favored the resolution submitted by Mr. Whitman. He read a paper dealing exhaustively with the lobster question which was heartily applauded.

Mr. Wilson, of the Halifax board, also spoke at length on the subject, and quoted statistics to show that a fisheries board would be a benefit. Geo. Robertson, M.P.P., M. G. DeWolf, of Kentville, and F. C. Whitman, of Annapolis, also spoke on the subject.

As it was then six o'clock, it was decided to defer further discussion until the evening session.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

The Lobster Fisheries Question—Maritime Provinces as a Home.

At the evening session the debate on the resolution presented by Mr. Whitman, of Halifax, on the fisheries question, was resumed. H. B. Short, of Digby, strongly supported the resolution. He thought steps should be taken at once to protect the lobster fisheries.

W. S. Loggie, M.P., of Chatham, said he could not agree with the gentlemen who had spoken on the subject. He thought the interest in lobster fishing was not waning, and that the government was taking every reasonable precaution to protect the fisheries. He thought a greater danger was the pressure that was being brought to bear by people in Nova Scotia to increase the number of factories. There were factories enough, but they wanted more hatcheries. However, if it was felt that a fishery board would be an improvement to the fisheries he would give it his hearty support.

The president said a letter had been received to-day from E. C. Bowers, a member of the fisheries commission, which had been handed to the gentlemen who had this matter in hand. F. C. Witman then read some extracts from the letter, in which Mr. Bowers advocated the establishment of a fishery board, free from political influence.

Mr. Wilson, of Halifax, read some extracts from a lobster canner in Cape Breton, showing that the supply was falling off. John Sealy, of St. John, followed in a few remarks, in which he advocated the forming of a fishery board to regulate the fishing of this section. The board should be free from political influence.

W. F. Hatheway also spoke on the subject, and among other things said he thought a plant for turning the dogfish into fertilizer might be established between this city and New River. Mr. Whitman, of Halifax, gave some further information on the matter of forming the board as referred to in the resolution.

The motion was then put and carried as follows: "That this meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade endorses the movement for the appointment of a fisheries board to act under the department of marine and fisheries for the regulation and control of the Canadian Atlantic fisheries, and that steps be taken to have this important matter acted upon at the next session of the Dominion Parliament."

The Modus Vivendi.

Mr. Wilson, of Halifax, brought up the matter of the abrogation of the modus vivendi and submitted a report reaffirming the resolution of last year which was referred to a committee to report. This report was read by Mr. Wilson and a letter from Mr. Whitman, of Canso, another member of the committee, was read. Mr. Wilson also read extracts from the speech of A. K. McLean in parliament, giving reasons why the act should be abolished. Mr. Wilson moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Mr. Stewart, of Chatham, and carried.

A. M. BELL, HALIFAX.
New President of the Maritime Board of Trade.

The report was as follows: "Your special committee on the modus vivendi beg leave to report that it is highly in the interests of the Canadian Atlantic fisheries that the Dominion Government abrogate the same, until such time as the Government of the United States is disposed to negotiate a new treaty.

S. Y. WILSON
J. W. STEWART
F. C. WHITMAN."

George Robertson M.P.P., in introducing a resolution embracing a number of the subjects from various boards of trade, spoke of the natural resources of the Maritime Provinces and reviewed conditions of many years ago up to the present time. He deplored the fact that so many of our young men were leaving the country and going to the west. He had many industries but not enough of them apparently to keep the young men here.

Maritime Provinces Neglected.

"We must," he said, "take a grip on this enormous depletion of our Maritime Provinces." The tide of immigration, he said, was setting altogether to the west and the Maritime Provinces were being given the go-by. What the Maritime Provinces wanted was a good class of immigrants from the British Isles. He rose to heights of eloquence in referring to the Maritime Provinces as a home for settlers, and his remarks elicited frequent applause.

F. L. Potts, of St. John, spoke of the flowery eloquence of previous speakers and referred to the fact that the expense of living here had increased fifty per cent. of late years. He was going on to tell that what was needed in this province was more manufacturing industries when he was reminded by the president that the resolution submitted by Mr. Robertson had not been seconded and was, therefore, not yet debatable, and also that only delegates were supposed to speak on the subjects before them.

Mr. Potts apologized for his action and took his seat. The motion was then seconded by Prof. Andrews, of Sackville, and carried.

Maritime Advantages.

The resolution was as follows:

"Resolved, That the Maritime Provinces, with their rich and varied resources, afford in farming, lumbering, fishing, mining and manufacturing, and in commercial life and other spheres of activity exceptional opportunities for the obtaining of a comfortable livelihood, and the making of pleasant homes with all the surrounding essentials to the highest degree of happiness. That there are here great opportunities for development and progress, and that all reasonable efforts should be put forth by the various provincial governments and municipalities as well as by the federal administration, to induce our young men to remain at home, and also to divert to the Maritime Provinces a portion of the ever increasing stream of immigration which is now flowing from the motherland and other European countries to the Canadian west."

Technical Education.

Prof. Andrews, of Sackville, introduced a resolution on technical education, the public support of schools—common, consolidated and technical colleges, the relation of industries of N.S. and N.B. to this question, and the value of such education for provincial revenue. Among other remarks he spoke of the probability of a chair of forestry being established in the U.N.B. Some arrangement, he thought, should be made whereby the three provinces could work together in the matter of technical education.

Frank Black, of Sackville, seconded the resolution, endorsing the remarks of Prof. Andrews.

A. H. Wetmore, of the St. John board, spoke in favor of the resolution, and thought that New Brunswick should do its part in forming a technical college for the three provinces. He was in favor of making the matter national in its character. He referred to the system of technical education in Norway and of the colleges in the United States.

G. S. Campbell said he thought the resolution placed Nova Scotia in an awkward light. Their position in N.S. was now this, that they were about to get what they wanted in a technological college. This resolution would have the effect of asking the legislature of N.S. to discontinue their work on the institution now to be built in Halifax. He suggested that N.B. and P.E.I. should erect schools or that the scholars from these provinces should attend the school at Halifax.

Prof. Andrews said it was not the intention of the resolution to stop the work in N.S., but to get the three provinces interested in having a central college somewhere. He did not want to touch at all on the location.

E. B. Elderkin, of Amherst, spoke in favor of the resolution and thought the matter of location should be left to the authorities of the three provinces. E. H. Armstrong, of Yarmouth, said he would have to take the same objections to the resolution as had Mr. Campbell, of Halifax. Nova Scotia had already provided for the building of a college for a higher technical education. New Brunswick and P.E.I. should also establish colleges of a similar type.

A. M. Bell, of Halifax, said the Halifax board had agitated for the establishment of the technical college because they had been hounded to it by the Mining Association. He thought it would be inconsistent for the board to vote to have consolidated colleges, after they had asked last year that the governments separately should establish the institutions.

Unite the Provinces.

Geo. E. Corbett, of Annapolis, said he would strongly support the resolution of Prof. Andrews, and would give $300 to help carry it out. They wanted to bind the three provinces closer together. "Bury your dirty old politics," he said, "and vote for the resolution."

Mr. Bell, of Halifax, again argued that the Nova Scotia members could not consistently support the resolution, nor did he think the Maritime board should do so. J. L. Stewart, of Charlottetown, said he could see no objection to the resolution going through as read. It would not interfere with what was being done by Nova Scotia.

Mr. Armstrong—"What is New Brunswick going to do?"

Mr. Stewart—"I don't think your remark is apropos and I don't feel called upon to answer it." He went on to say that he thought the board should adopt the resolution and that much good would result from the establishment of such institutions.

Mr. Birch, of Alberton (P.E.I.), thought the arguments being used in favor of giving the young men of the provinces a technical education were directly in opposition to the resolution moved by Mr. Robertson that had just been adopted.

As soon as the young men learned the mysteries of some trade, they left their farms and went to the west where they got positions on the railways and so on. They wanted to keep the young men home. "Chickens at a distance," he said, "have very fair plumage, and they want to follow that plumage. It don't look quite so good when they get close to it. Oftentimes when the farmer wakes up in the morning now, he sees his young men disappearing in the dawn on a train for the west." (Applause and laughter.)

He thought manual training or technical education made young men feel that they wanted to go out and find a soft spot on which to lie down. Mr. Birch's remarks were greeted with hearty laughter and applause and cries of encore.

W. L. LOGGIE,
Member Executive Committee of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Prof. Andrews said that manual training helps to keep the young men here, but anyway, they should give them the best education possible.

President Fisher told of his recent trip to California, where he had visited several technical education colleges and had seen the men at work at forges and other forms of labor. He saw over 500 men at work in these institutions. Such education as this he thought would keep the young men at home, as they would be needed.

The motion was adopted as follows:

"Resolved, That for the sake of greater practical results, we urge the governments of the three Maritime Provinces to confer or appoint a commission to confer for the purpose of devising some plan for consolidating the work of technical education and industrial scientific research in Maritime Canada."

E. B. Elderkin of Amherst moved that a committee of two from each province be appointed to approach the governments of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, to see what could be done along the lines of the resolution. Carried.

THURSDAY MORNING.

Favor Extension of Government Control of Railways.

When the meeting was called to order on Thursday morning, E. H. Armstrong again brought forward his motion regarding the acquirement by the Government of the railways in Nova Scotia, and it was carried.

Dr. Pugsley supported Mr. Armstrong's resolution. Mr. Loggie, M.P., referred to the fact that the Dominion Government had done a wise thing to take over the Canada Eastern Railway. The great difficulty was that no percentage of dividend had ever been paid upon the millions invested in the I.C.R. Who was paying for this loss? The people, of course, were the ones who paid. He knew that at the present time the people of Canada were unitedly opposed to any extension of the I.C.R., but Dr. Pugsley's suggestion was a good one.

A. M. Bell, of Halifax, thought that the commercializing of the I.C.R. was a most desirable one. He suggested that a committee should be appointed to wait upon the various Provincial Governments with a view to fulfilling Dr. Pugsley's resolution. He read a short resolution to this effect, and it was passed.

Mails at Sydney.

H. F. McDougall, of Sydney, then brought up the question of the landing of mails at Sydney. He referred to the success of the various trials of landing the mails at Sydney, and the speedy distribution of these mails. Sydney, therefore, looked for the support unaminously of the three Maritime Provinces in reference to the use of Sydney as the mail port of call, during the open navigation season.

Running Rights for C. P. R.

He then presented the following resolution:

Whereas, Several experiments have been made in the transfer of the English mails to and from Canada at Sydney harbor;

And whereas, These experiments have demonstrated beyond doubt that by the Sydney route the English and European mails can be delivered to all points in Canada earlier than by any other route;

And whereas, It is the general belief that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, as well as the Allan Company, are opposed to the landing and embarking of mails and passengers at Sydney, and prefer, during the navigation of the St. Lawrence, landing mails and passengers at Quebec;

And whereas, It is inconsistent with reason that Canada should continue to subsidize a mail and passenger service to run parallel with the Government system of railway over a distance of some 800 miles, and thereby delay for many hours the delivery of mails;

And whereas, The Maritime Provinces are deeply interested in the landing of mails and passengers at Sydney during the season of St. Lawrence navigation and until such time as a more permanent and definite service is established ;

And whereas, The C.P.R. system is more closely interested and connected with this traffic than any other in Canada, the Sydney Board of Trade, after due consideration, express the opinion that the privilege of running rights over the Intercolonial from St. John to Sydney, to the C.P.R., would greatly facilitate the adoption of the Sydney route.

Therefore, resolved, That this Maritime Board of Trade recommend the granting of such running rights for mails and passengers to the C.P.R. from St. John to Sydney ;

Further resolved, That this Board reaffirm the resolution passed at the annual meeting last year at Amherst recommending the Government of Canada to insist on all mails to and from Canada by the St. Lawrence, to be transferred to Sydney.

The resolution was seconded by M. G. De Wolfe.

Mr. McDougall continued by stating that the resolution had no thought of interfering with any movement regarding the landing of mails at Halifax or St. John during winter. He spoke at considerable length upon the resolution, claiming that Sydney was the only point of call uniquely advantageous for distributing mails promptly and satisfactorily. Sydney would, no doubt, do their utmost to give certain concessions to the C.P.R.; for instance, running rights might be pointed out, and when any other trans-continental road could offer anything like a parallel claim, it should be considered.

Mr. De Wolfe asked if this were the first effort made by Sydney to get recognition.

Mr. McDougall replied that it was the first.

W. F. Hatheway, St, John, referred to a principle established by resolution a year previously, at Amherst, regarding Sydney. He was glad to know that the mail venture at Sydney had proven a success. He suggested that one or two words should be added, such as after "running rights," the words "for mails and passengers."

Mr. McDougall acknowledged that those words should be added.

Mr. Hatheway pointed out that the term "running rights" was vague and to the railway men it was peculiarly broad.

Mr. Loggie urged that the subject matter of the resolution be separated. All would concur regarding the advantage of Sydney as a port of call, but the granting of running rights to railways was another matter. He would oppose the portion of the resolution which would grant running rights to any outside railway.

Mr. McDougall was willing to eliminate the clause re running rights.

Mr. De Wolfe referred to the trouble they had last year over this same question. Halifax Board of Trade and St. John Board had an interest in these mail questions. There was a "nigger in the fence" somewhere, and Halifax and St. John men should come out and say what they thought.

Mr. Campbell said he agreed with Mr. McDougall re the concessions to the C. P.R. The C.P.R. had the fastest steamers on the route of Canadian call, and, no doubt, the hitch was in the possibility of the C.P.R. not getting running rights.

Treated Scandalously.

He thought the Maritime Provinces had been treated scandulously by the mail service passing their doors and then being sent back after twenty-four hours or more. In the matter of passengers, they should be given the privilege of landing at the nearest port. He would urge strongly the resolution being maintained as it stood.

H. J. Logan, M.P., agreed with the resolution in the main, and spoke strongly regarding the carrying of mails away up the St. Lawrence and then returning them to the provinces. It was folly to fear the running rights of any railway. The more trains run over our tracks meant more business. Every railway company should have running rights over the I.C.R. He endorsed the resolution.

The resolution was put and carried.

Mr. Duff-Miller was then called upon. He spoke of his pleasure at meeting the prominent business men of the provinces.

M. G. DE WOLFE, KENTVILLE.
Auditor Maritime Board of Trade, who has not missed a meeting in a dozen years.

The agents-general in all ports required more co-operation from districts, so that information supplied would not be lacking in detail. He illustrated it by a printed form for the labor demand, giving details exhaustively as to kind of work available, how many men were wanted, also the class of men, young or old, married or single. Then such information as farms being for sale, other business chances, etc.

The information regarding the Maritime Provinces was vague. He instanced it, as time after time, immigrants went west, instead of east, in Canada.

The Government should be appealed to to get a special grant for the immigration to the Maritime Provinces. He was anxious to have the literature of the province re immigration, more concentrated.

The Eleanor Home was mentioned in passing, and he believed several others similar in nature would be established at different ports of the provinces.

He mentioned the Anglo-French exhibition to be held in London, Eng., next year, where the provinces should be elaborately represented. The Duke of Argyll had suggested a panoramic view of Annapolis valley, the St. John river and others.

A. M. Bell then moved that a vote of thanks be accorded Mr. Duff-Miller. Mr. De Wolfe seconded it and spoke strongly in approval of Mr. Duff-Miller's work.

West Indian Trade.

The betterment of trade with the West Indies was then brought forward by the St. John Board of Trade.

H. J. Schofield, who had visited the Indies on a trip, accorded by Pickford & Black last winter, on behalf of the St. John board, spoke. He was anxious to find out what we were able to export ta the West Indies that we were not selling at present. He thought there was a large market for manufactured goods, but Canadians were so occupied with the work of filling orders at home, that he believed it would be years before any large attention could be given to the Indies. The Americans had caught the market by pleasing the customers.

The following resolution, moved by Mr. Schofield, and seconded by A. M. Bell, was adopted.:

Resolved, That the interchange of natural products between Canada and the British West Indies with British Guiana should be encouraged in every possible way by preferential tariff in both countries, by the establishment at the seaboard of jobbing houses to handle export and import traffic, and by a more frequent steamship connection as soon as possible.

It was also resolved that the Maritime Board of Trade approves of the exchange of visits between Boards of Trade in Canada and Chambers of Commerce and Agricultural Societies in the West Indies and British Guiana, and extends a hearty invitation to these bodies in the various communities of the West India islands and British Guiana to visit Canada at the earliest opportunity.

Mr. Fisher asked that a vote of thanks should be tendered the delegates of the St. John and Halifax boards, who had, at great expense of time, if nothing else, visited the Indies and had taken such excellent care of the subjects in hand. This was put in the form of a resolution and carried as follows :

Resolved, That the very hearty thanks of the Maritime Board of Trade be tendered to the gentlemen who visited the islands of the British West Indies and British Guianas in the interest of reciprocal trade between Canada and the West Indies, and also to Messrs. Pickford and Black, whose enterprise and courtesy in suggesting the idea and providing free passages made the scheme possible.

The Three Short-Haul System.

Transportation facilities in Prince Edward Island then came up, being presented by H. A. Hughes, of Charlottetown. The following resolution was adopted :

Whereas, The trade of Prince Edward Island has been seriously handicapped for many years past owing to the difficulties of navigation and the excessive freight rates demanded by reason of three short-haul freight rates between points on Prince Edward Island and points on the mainland ;

And whereas, The freight rates prevailing to and from Prince Edward Island are altogether disproportionate with those prevailing from Montreal eastward, as will be seen from the following :

From Montreal to St. John, 9c per 100 lbs., plus 1½c for elevation; distance, 735 miles.

From Montreal to Halifax, 9c per 100 lbs., plus 1½c ; distance, 832 miles.

From Montreal to Sydney, 16½c per 100 lbs.; distance, 977 miles.

Regular rates on grain in carloads from Tignish to St. John, 26c per 100 lbs.; distance, 428 miles.

From Tignish to Halifax, 23c per 100 lbs.; distance, 309 miles.

From Tignish to Sydney, 26c per 100 lbs.; distance, 380 miles.

And whereas, The Province of Prince Edward Island, being a part of the Domioion of Canada, has to contribute its full share of the cost of maintenance of all Government-owned and subsidized railways and steamers, should, therefore, be entitled to equal privileges, mile per mile, with the upper provinces, over all such railways and steamers, due allowance being made for extra handling of freight from cars to and from steamers ;

Resolved, That in the opinion of this board, the Government be and is hereby requested to so equalize the three short-hauls system of transportation of P. E. Island with the continuous haul of the other provinces, with which it is in competition ;

And further resolved, That Prince Edward Island be placed on the same basis as to import and export rates to and from ports outside of Canada as are accorded to the other provinces of the Dominion.

Inadequate Transportation.

The following resolution was also passed :

That whereas, Steamboat passenger rates to and from the Province of Prince Edward Island are excessive ;

Therefore, resolved, That this Maritime Board of Trade respectfully urge upon the Government the necessity of adjusting such steamship rates, whether on Government boats or those subsidized by the Government, so as to permit to the Island Province the minimum rates, mile per mile, charged by the Dominion Systems of Railways.

Mr. Hughes said that they were competing with Ontario and evidently transportation facilities were against them. Mr. Birch, of Alberton, also spoke. The Ontario man, he said, could market his stuff in the provinces at one-third less than the man in Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Logan spoke of the lack of cars on the I.C.R. at certain seasons, and referred to it as a vital issue. The trouble existed all over, but he offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Mr. Elderkin, and carried :

Whereas, The lack of sufficient rolling stock on the I.C.R. is the cause of great inconvenience and loss to patrons of that road, and seriously impairs its earning power ;

Therefore, resolved, That this board strongly urges the Railway Department to purchase as soon as possible sufficient additional rolling stock to meet the rapidly-increasing traffic along the line.

Mr. Logan then continued by referring to the Grand Trunk Pacific. He spoke of the unsuitable selection of the route of the I.C.R., so that the grades of the road in certain points were almost impracticable. He took up the various grades of the I.C.R. to show that the road was unfit to form a part of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and offered the following resolution, which was seconded by A. M. Bell, and adopted :

Whereas, The portions of the Intercolonial Railway, between Moncton and Halifax, and between Moncton and St. John, are under the N.T. Ry. contract to form part of a transcontinental railway system ;

And whereas, The curves and grades on these portions of the line, owing to the location of the road, in many cases, are severe and excessive ;

And whereas, The increasing business will cause a congestion of traffic on a single track ;

Therefore, resolved, That in the opinion of this board steps should be taken at once by changing route where necessary, by reducing curves and grades and by double-tracking to put these portions of the I.C.R. in a proper condition to become part of a great transcontinental railway system.

CHAS. M. CREED, HALIFAX.
Permanent Secretary-Treasurer of the Maritime Board of Trade.

A Tunnel for Prince Edward Islanders.

Rev. A. E. Burke then took up his time-honored proposal of the tunnel. He cited carefully the sufferings of the islanders who were sometimes shut up there without any communication and often at great peril, not only to the lives of the citizens, but especially to the trade of the province. He pointed out that there was a strong request from P.E.I. to have direct and continuous communication with the other provinces. He felt that the justice of the tunnel was growing every year.

Continuous communication with P.E. I. was a part and parcel of the compact of Confederation, and it certainly had not been fulfilled.

Rev. A. E. Burke quoted a poem, which he had printed on a picture post card, which, when held to the light, revealed the tunnel as it existed in his prophetic mind. This caused great amusement. Mr. Logan, M.P., followed in support of the distinguished reverend delegate's proposal. He believed that the Government should keep its promise to P. E. Island, and he believed they would keep it.

The following resolution was then adopted:

Resolved, that this Board does hereby reaffirm its resolution passed unanimously at Yarmouth, in 1905, and reaffirmed at Amherst in 1906, asking for the speedy construction of a tunnel between Prince Edward Island and the mainland.

Rebating on Scheduled Rates.

A. E. McMahon, of Kings County, spoke in regard to the rebating on freight rates in the matter of shipping apples and other farm produce from the Annapolis Valley. He said it was costing about 20 cents a barrel more than it should cost. This was caused by the commission merchants making outside arrangements with the steamship and railway companies. He presented the following resolution which was seconded by Mr. Peel, and adopted:

Whereas, certain steamship companies are receiving subsidies from the Dominion Government to aid them in conducting a legitimate carrying trade and whereas it is known that said steamship companies have made and are still making private arrangements with speculators, foreign apple receivers, or their agents at home or abroad, the same being detrimental to the interest of the growers, and legitimate dealers in the Maritime Provinces.

Therefore resolved that all steamship companies receiving subsidies from the Dominion Government shall be obliged by the Government to advertise rates for carriage of goods to foreign ports and that said rate shall be subject to and under control of the Railway Commission, and that any steamship company departing from said advertised rate shall be deprived of said subsidy by the Government.

Mr. Kinsman then brought forward a resolution in the interests of the growers in Kings County, which was worded as follows:

Whereas, arsenic of lead is taking the place of paris green in the extermination of pests, it is therefore resolved that the attention of the Government be called to this matter, and that the Government be requested to have the duty on arsenic of lead abolished.

This was seconded by M. G. De Wolfe, who mentioned one tree which yielded 27 barrels of Gravensteins in one year. and this was owned by Mr. Kinsman, to whom he offered his compliments.

Grants to Shipbuilders.

Shipbuilding and a bonus was then brought up by the Halifax Board. J. E. De Wolfe, of Halifax, presented the following resolution, which was seconded by Geo. Robertson, and adopted:

"Whereas, the substitution of steel for wood in the construction of ships has reduced Canada from her position as one of the four greatest shipbuilding and shipowning countries of the world to a place amongst the most unimportant;

"And, whereas, her coast line on two oceans of over two thousand (2,000) miles, with enormous lake and river navigation leading to the interior of the continent, has produced not only a great coastwise and foreign trade, but a large population skilled in maritime affairs;

"And, whereas, Canada possesses all the natural facilities and materials for the production of steel vessels, but is prevented from utilizing them by reason of the skill and capital employed in British yards, which have established England's supremacy in this industry, the products of which are admitted free to our coastwise as well as foreign trade;

"And, whereas, the above conditions prove that Canada can never regain her position as a maritime country unless the Government offers inducements by bonus or otherwise to shipbuilding companies to establish that industry;

"And, whereas, several municipalities and Boards of Trade in the Maritime Provinces have memorialized the Dominion Government to grant aid to the industry by means of bonus or otherwise;

"And, whereas, a similar memorial from parties interested in this industry in Canada has also been presented to the Government;

"Therefore resolved, that the Maritime Boards of Trade hereby endorse and approve the principle of a bonus to steel shipbuilding as offering a new and profitable field for the utilization of our steel products, the employment of skilled labor, and, more than all, in the creation of a new mercantile marine, which was formerly a great source of wealth to our country;

"And, further resolved, that this Board urges the Government to pass necessary legislation at the next session of Parliament, granting a bonus to steel shipbuilding within the Dominion."

The Dog Nuisance.

The question of the sheep industry in certain sections being ruined by dog nuisances, was next taken up by D. C. Crosby, Berwick. He backed up his statement by quoting from Mr. Chipman, agricultural secretary of Nova Scotia. Large numbers of farmers had given up their occupation owing to this dog nuisance. He offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

That whereas our country is now overrun by thousands of dogs which are of no benefit to it, but are the cause of much damage in many lines, especially in that of sheep products:

"Therefore, resolved, that the Maritime Board of Trade recommend that the local Governments of the Maritime Provinces at the next session of Parliament, do enact such laws as may be effective in controlling the dog nuisance and ridding the country of this pest.

Prohibitive Postage Rates.

J. L. Stewart of Chatham, brought in the following resolution, which was seconded by J. P. Maloney, and adopted:

Whereas, although the Postmaster-General reports a surplus of receipts over expenditures in his department, the postage on miscellaneous printed matter has been doubled, and,

Whereas, the postage on papers sent by publishers to subscribers in the United States has been increased from one-half a cent to four cents a pound, and,

Whereas, this oppressive and unreasonable tax has caused Canadian newspapers to lose the greater portion of their circulation in the United States, thereby severing the strongest tie between Canada and our expatriated countrymen; therefore be it

Resolved that, in the opinion of this Maritime Board of Trade, these increased postage rates should be reduced to the rates prevailing before the present increase was adopted.

The Steel and Coal Dispute.

H. F. McDougall then brought up the Iron and Steel Company trouble with

W. S. FISHER, ST. JOHN.
Retiring President Maritime Board of Trade.

the Coal Company, and offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Whereas, the Maritime Board of Trade assembled at St John, N.B., on this the 22nd day of August, 1907, feel a deep interest in the successful development of all industries that have for their object the upbuilding and general advancement of Canada, and more particularly that which concerns the Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

And, whereas, this Board is pleased with the progress of development of our coal and iron industries, and the visible and undoubted prospects for their great future advancement;

And, whereas, this Board learns with deep regret that a dispute has arisen between the two largest corporations engaged in those industries in Canada, namely, the Dominion Coal Co., engaged in the development of our largest coal fields, and the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., engaged in the manufacture of iron and steel—both in Cape Breton—and that such dispute is in respect to the supplying of coal for use in the making of iron and steel, and that such dispute has assumed the form of expensive litigation in the courts, and that such dispute and litigation is now and has from its inception hampered and most seriously injured the trade and commerce, as well as the general financial standing of the communities immediately concerned in the ssuccessful development of these two very important industries;

And, whereas, the facts relating to this dispute are now before the public, taken in sworn evidence before a judge of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, at Sydney;

And, whereas, a continuation of this dispute before the courts threatens one or the other, or possibly both, of those corporations with serious loss and injury, and thereby further hamper and retard the advancement of the industries in question and the progress of the business interests of the country generally;

And, whereas, both these industries are in the enjoyment of important franchises from the public through the Parliament of Canada and the Legislature of Nova Scotia in the form of bounties, duties, mining rights and royalties, and are also enjoying municipal assistance in respect to taxation, etc.;

Be it therefore resolved, that this Board regard it the duty of the Federal Government representing Parliament and the people to call upon the two great corporations involved in this unfortunate dispute and insist upon an immediate friendly settlement, and in so doing have the co-operation and assistance of the Provincial Government of Nove Scotia.

And further resolved that in the event of such immediate settlement being delayed for any unreasonable time the disputing corporations be advised that Parliament and the Legislature of Nova Scotia may be called on to consider the advisability of withdrawing in whole or in part the valuable concessions granted to those corporations for the proper development of those important industries.

The Nominations.

The report of the nominating committee was recited and A. M. Bell, the new president, was asked to take the chair, which he did, amid much applause. The committee reported as follows:

For President, A. M. Bell, Halifax; First Vice-President, Hon. Geo. E. Hughes, Charlottetown; Second Vice-President, W. B. Snowball, Chatham; Secretary, E. A. Saunders, Halifax; Permanent Secretary-Treasurer, Chas. M. Creed, Halifax; Auditor, M. G. De Wolfe, Kentville. Committee—A. E. Burke (chairman), W. L. Loggie, E. H. Armstrong, J. E. De Wolfe.

It was recommended that $25 be added to the Permanent Secretary's stipend for present year.

Rev. Father Burke paid a graceful tribute to W. S. Fisher, the retiring President, which was cordially received by a vote of thanks. The whole body rose and sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Three cheers were given for Mr. Fisher, who responded suitably.

M. G. De Wolfe moved a vote of thanks to the Press, and especially to the MacLean Publishing Co., which was carried.

It was decided to meet in Halifax next year.

A special vote of thanks was tendered the St. John Board of Trade for their cordial entertainment of delegates.

The following financial statement was submitted by Mr. Creed and adopted:

St. John, N.B., Aug. 22, 1907.

A Pleasant Excursion.

The convention concluded by a well arranged excursion up the St. John River to Evandale, about thirty miles from the city.

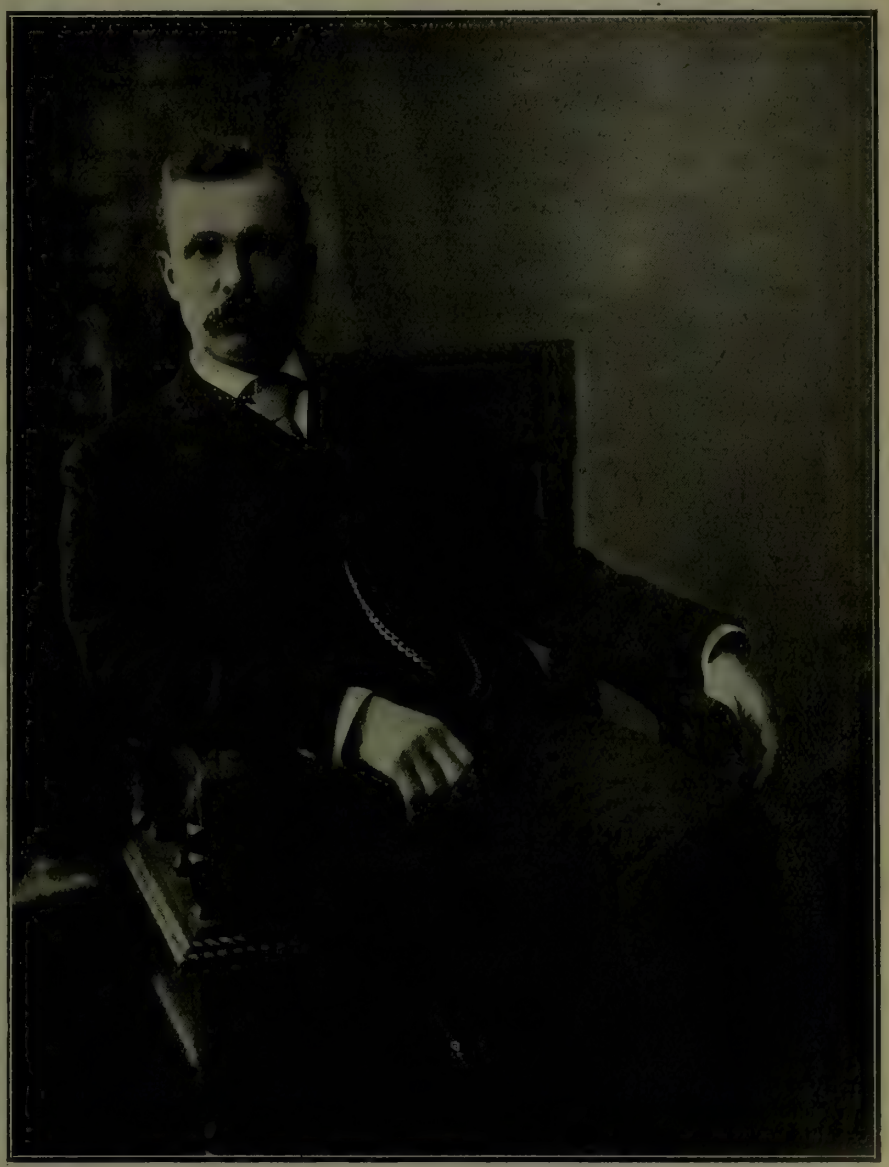
The visiting delegates, and their lady friends were the guests of the St. John Board of Trade. The weather was perfect, the sail and scenery most enjoyable, and the whole event unique from every standpoint. About three hundred guests attended, and dinner was served to part of these on the steamer, and another portion at John O. Vanwart's dining-room, at Evandale. The return trip was made by moonlight, and the scene will not be forgotten easily.

Music was furnished by a first-class orchestra, and songs and speeches filled in the programme. On the way down the majority of the passengers assembled in the saloon, where the witty island clergyman, Rev. A. E. Burke, eulogized the retiring president of the Board, W. S. Fisher. In closing he conferred upon Mr. Fisher "The Order of the Sun Flower," by pinning a handsome life-sized speciman of the flower on his breast. Cheer after cheer, greeted Mr. Fisher, as he rose to respond, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung heartily, and Mr. Fisher responded suitably. Among the others who spoke were Mr. Logan, M.P., Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Mayor Sears, of St. John; Geo. Robertson, M.P.P., J. E. Birch, of Prince Edward Island. A. M. Bell, the new President of the Maritime Boards of Trade, was also called upon, but it was said that he was either too modest, or too busy entertaining the ladies. "We do not see him neither do we hear his tongue," said Rev. Mr. Burke, amid laughter.

Rev. Burke also said that he had been asked by the Prince Edward Island and the Nova Scotia Boards to express their hearty thanks for "the magnificent hospitality" of the St. John Board of Trade. J. E. De Wolfe at this point extended a cordial invitation to the Maritime Boards to attend the meeting at Halifax next year, when an effort would be made to reciprocate to some extent the kindness of the St. John Board.

"Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem brought to a close an excursion that will leave behind memories as unfading as the sky. The committee in charge of the arrangements were T. H. Estabrooks, H. B. Schofield and Ernest Barbour, who were ably assisted by the other members of the Board.

On the excursion a special committee meeting was held, in connection with the resolution passed at the convention, referring to the purchase of railway branches by the Intercolonial Railway. The following committee was selected to interview the Governments of their respective Provinces on this subject: New Brunswick—T. H. Estabrooks, J. H. McRobbie, St. John; W. B. Snowball, Chatham; John Morrisey, M.P.P., Newcastle; J. T. Hawke, Moncton. Nova Scotia—A. M. Bell, Geo. E. Faulkner, Halifax; F. P. Whitman, Annapolis; P. C. Moore, Sidney; E. H. Armstrong, M.P.P., Yarmouth.



T. H. Estabrooks, St. John, a leading tea merchant of Canada.

Notes.

Never were the funds of the convention so satisfactory. Charlie Creed won great favor by his excellent financial report. The old secretary seems to get younger and more popular every year.

A number of the old guard were noticeably absent. Although there were four past presidents at the convention, there were such time honored faces missing as those of the Hon. George J. Troop, really the founder of the Maritime Board; also W. M. Jarvis, one of the first presidents.

It was stated that when Rev. Mr. Burke gets that famous tunnel constructed the first passenger train will carry only members of the Maritime Board. "More power to the reverend gentleman" was the general wish.

M. G. De Wolfe, the much liked delegate from Kentville, was as usual busy making others happy. He is looking younger every year, and no man does more to keep up the general enthusiasm than this same gentleman. During the life of the Board, Mr. De Wolfe has the honor of not having missed a meeting either of the Board or of the Council.

The Kentville Board sent six delegates, which is a pretty nice showing from a farming community. Each delegate from this section pays his own expenses, which is unique in itself, and thus tends towards the best of representation.

Mr. Anderson, Secretary of the St. John Board of Trade, did spdendid work as an entertainer, and is an ideal official.

The weather for this convention was of the usual brand, "fine," and it is a notable fact that the Board have never had any bad weather during their thirteen years.

"Thirteen" is said to be an unlucky number, but this idea was thoroughly dissipated into thin air by the finest convention in the Board's history. W. S. Fisher will be long remembered for his excellent work. He is a master of the craft of diplomacy.

The influence of the Board is growing every year as was evidenced by the presence of the many Federal and Provincial members of Parliament.

The excellent management of the President and delegates enabled the convention to get through in two days what ordinarily took three and gave practically a whole day for pleasure and sight-seeing.

The Halifax men will have their work cut out for them to equal the St. John convention. Halifax sent a fine delegation and the probabilities are that the Haligonians will acquit themselves nobly.

H. J. Logan, the sturdy M.P. for Cumberland made things lively, as did also Mr. Loggie, the well-balanced member from Chatham.

The St. John ladies took a great interest in the entertainment part and the greatest praise is due them. Mayor Sears is a cordial official, and his well-poised speech on the steamer impressed the visitors.

BEAUTIES OF THE MARITIME PROVINCES

A natural scenic panorama whose beauty is always fresh, and whose attraction never tires.

The charm of the cool summer climate, the magnificent scenery, the endless variety of tourist routes, the unequalled sporting wealth of river and forest, the many places of historic interest are yearly attracting to Eastern Canada an ever-increasing number of summer tourists, and of these, a goodly portion wend their way to Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. The natural Canadian gateways for travel to this portion of the Dominion are Montreal, Quebec, St. John, Halifax and the Sydneys, but to single out one beauty spot for special mention above its many hundred competitors would be a thankless, not to say hopeless, task.

Perhaps with more justice than in the case of any other of Canada's Provinces may the term picturesque be applied to Nova Scotia. It is a land where nature seems to have handed out in most abundance her varied assortment of physical pecularities and glories. Nova Scotia, with all but a few miles of her borders sea-washed, is a land of hill and vale, of lake and river, of waterfall and sunshine; a country of changes, of surprises, of delights. Longfellow has immortalized the glories of old Acadia, the Minas Basin section; but only the Nova Scotia lover who has seen this land from end to end, and revelled in its glories, has any adequate idea of its picturesque beauties.

For the sportsman, for the fisherman, especially, Nova Scotia is indeed the Arcadian land. Visiting anglers are welcomed by the people, and strangers who have enjoyed an outing in this charming country are emphatic in its praise. Some of the best fishing in the Province is within easy reach of Halifax. Tuna fishing, which has made Santa Catalina, California, so famous, may be indulged in at Mira Bay and other places in Cape Breton. July and August are said to be the best months, and a well known sportsman tells of a tuna that he played for over seven hours last season in Mira Bay. A delightful trip through the famous Bras d'Or Lakes may be combined with the fishing by strangers who have the time.

The section from Truro to Halifax includes a magnificent farming district, well watered, and abundantly fertile, a very garden of productivity. West of this lies, too, the famous Annapolis Valley, the land of Evangeline.

Grand Falls of the Nipisiguit.

The beauties of Halifax—the Arm, the Basin, the magnificent harbor, with its islands and its fleets, the distant hills and forests, and the city itself, with the old historic citadel and suggestive breastworks overlooking the busy streets and delightful public gardens—cannot be forgotten by anybody who has once seen them.

God has been good to Nova Scotia. Though it has seen changes of Governments and peoples which have involved untold suffering and which have made history, it is a land of peace and plenty, a land whose natural features have conduced to the rearing of a sturdy race who are proud of their heritage.

New Brunswick.

St. John, the capital of New Brunswick, has a history which extends back to the days when the land was Acadia and the banner of France waved from the forts of the harbor and river. But the founding of the city dates from the landing of the loyalists in 1783. The latter, and those who took their places, labored faithfully and well to build a city, and thus they continued to labor for nearly a century, when the fire of 1877 came and the greater portion of the city was swept out of existence in a few hours. The destruction was swift and complete. With a surprising energy, however, considering the far-reaching effects of the calamity, the people began their work anew, and the city of to-day is far more substantial and beautiful than the city of former years.

A sail to Fredericton by the St. John River is indeed one continuous panorama of beautiful scenery. Leaving the city, the lower portion reveals some bold scenery with high hills on either side of the noble river. At Grand Bay the reaches widen and on the right is seen Kennebecasis Bay, where the river of that name enters. This bay is a beautiful stretch of water on which a yacht may sail for twenty miles without starting a sheet. Indeed, the whole river between St. John and Fredericton will delight the heart of a yachtsman. Gagetown, Sheffield, Maugerville and Oromocto are among the many attractive places along the river and they are in a glorious farming country. There are commodious summer hotels at the Cedars and Evandale.

The situation of Fredericton, at the head of river navigation for the larger steamers, is most picturesque. Water sports are a feature of the summer pleasures of the Fredericton people, and yachting and canoeing are freely indulged in.

The Garden of the Gulf.

The Garden of the Gulf, as Prince Edward Island has been so appropriately termed, is reached in summer, either from Point du Chene, N.B., or Pictou, N.S., on the fast steamers of the Charlottetown Steam Navigation Company. Going by the first-named route the landing is made at Summerside, and Charlottetown is reached by a journey of forty-nine miles on the Prince Edward Island Railway, which stretches from Souris in the east to Tignish in the west. Leaving Pictou, the trip is direct to Charlottetown. There is a daily service on each route.

The run across the Strait of Northumberland on a fine day is a most enjoyable trip. There are times when the water is as calm as that of a placid lake. As the island shore is approached the red of the earth and the bright green of the verdure show a most picturesque effect as a background to the smooth stretch of water, in which is mirrored the glory of the sunlight from the western sky. Under such conditions the first impressions of Prince Edward Island must always be such as will long be remembered.

Charlottetown, the capital, and the commercial centre of the island, has a population of over 12,000. It has a fine harbor, and when seen from the water the city makes an especially fine appearance. Of all the magnificent scenery to be seen in the Maritime Provinces, Prince Edward Island, perhaps, contains more than her fair share. Visitors who have spent a summer or part of a summer, or even a month or a week, in the enjoyment of the remarkable beauty with which nature has endowed the island, return another year with a feeling of intimate affection and admiration as sincere as it is deserved.

Halifax from the Citadel.

Fort Mulgrave.

HALIFAX

A city of expanding commercial importance.

One of the finest harbors of the world and the Dominion's Atlantic gateway.

Some of the more important business houses.

For many years Halifax has been known the world over as one of the important British military and naval stations. This knowledge has largely passed into history, and to-day, Halifax is garrisoned by Canadian troops and is merging into a city of commercial rather than of military importance. It is admirably located for commerce, being founded on a rock and situated on a peninsula. Its time-honored title, "the gateway to the Atlantic," is well-chosen. The Atlantic Ocean appears on the east and west of the city like a tranquil lake, and there forms a harbor unsurpassed in the world. This harbor is open for navigation the year round, and there is friendly rivalry between Halifax and St. John as to which shall be the winter port of the Dominion. At the Maritime Board of Trade Convention this was a live subject, and there is a feeling among the Halifax delegates that their city will yet win out with the government with regard to the mail contract. Halifax is the capital of the province and is provided with excellent railway facilities, including that of the Intercolonial, the Dominion Atlantic and the Canadian Pacific. No guide book of any of these transportation companies can be read without seeing a glowing appreciation of Halifax harbor. This harbor is protected by eleven forts and batteries. At the top of the hill at the base of which the city is built is the citadel. This is 250 feet above the level of the harbor. On it are fortifications begun by the Duke of Kent 100 years ago, and notwithstanding the various improvements made in order to keep pace with the advances in the science of warfare, most of them are now regarded as obsolete. Modern systems of fortification, however, are in vogue all about the city, and a large armament of quick-firing and disappearing guns form part of the equipment.

Nearly every business man in Halifax is wealthy, and his business appears to be more of a pleasure than an aggressive campaign for money. Large manufacturing industries are carried on, including iron castings, machinery, nails, paint, gunpowder, sugar, leather, cordage, boots and shoes, soap and candles, also woodenware and cotton and woolen goods. Local distilleries and breweries are also in evidence. It was only during the second week in August that Halifax celebrated its founding by Lord Cornwallis in 1749. To be accurate, the Hon. Edward Cornwallis, the Earl of Halifax, was the founder of the name "Halifax." In 1750 it was chosen the capital of the province. It was in 1817 declared a free port and in 1842 incorporated as a city.

There has never been a time when trade in Halifax was so active, and the merchants have awakened to the greater possibilities of the city and its surroundings; in fact, a well-known member of the Board of Trade stated the other day, that the Maritime Provinces should be the New England of Canada, and with the great west opening up as a market for manufactured goods there is no reason why this prophecy should not be fulfilled. Firms like the Dominion Molasses Co., William Stairs, Son & Morrow, The Starr Manufacturing Co., of Dartmouth, and many others, do business all over Canada. Large business is done with the West Indies, Great Britain, the leading American cities and other parts of the world. The exports are chiefly lumber, fish and agricultural products, and the imports include sugar, rum, molasses and other sub-tropical products. The best evidence of the growth of the city is the steady increase of exports and imports.

During holiday time, such as the carnival week referred to, Halifax business men vie with each other to make social life the dominant note, and the cordial entertainment accorded all visitors would be hard to surpass. Everywhere one sees the avoidance of extravagance in action and word, as well as the harmony of behaviour which is so noticeable in older countries. The celebration of the landing of Cornwallis and his caravel at the North West Arm was carried out in a thrilling and creditable manner. It is the home of sound amateur sport, and the regattas of Halifax are notable for honest competition and spirited rivalry, which are a feature of every event. The streets are well paved; many new buildings are in course of construction, and Halifax seems to have taken on new life and to be sharing the general prosperity of the Dominion.

Halifax and Harbor From the Citidel.

The J. Frank Crowe Co.

This wholesale grocery company was recently formed into a limited company, with J. Frank Crowe as president and general manager. The business was purchased by Mr. Crowe in 1897, and under his energetic management has made rapid strides, as evidenced by the necessary incorporation of the company to meet the increased trade. The other members of the firm include A. C. Crowe, vice-president and Rupert J. Boutillier, secretary-treasurer, all of whom are admirably qualified for the carrying on of a large and growing business. Their premises at the head of City Wharf, Water street, are thoroughly fitted up with every modern convenience for carrying on a grocery business. They have many important special lines, which they push vigorously in all parts of the provinces. A competent staff of travelers is continously employed, and with their sound and detailed knowledge of the business, the Crowe Company are worthy representatives of the wholesale grocery trade.

Moirs.

Moirs, Limited, are one of the oldest firms in Halifax. They manufacture confectionery and biscuits of many varieties, and do business all over the Dominion. They concentrate their energies, however, upon the Maritime Provinces, where they stand in the front rank in their line. They have large premises, which are fitted up throughout with modern machinery and facilities for manufacturing high-class confectionery and biscuits in an up-to-date manner. Their holiday goods are known everywhere for their daintiness and purity. Grocers who desire quick selling and attractive novelties for Christmas time will do well to communicate early with this firm. They guarantee satisfaction, and their prices are exceedingly low considering the quality of their goods. Their plant is located in the heart of the city and prompt attention is assured all patrons.

Moirs Ltd, Halifax, largest biscuit and confectionery factory in the Maritime Provinces.

Schwartz Spices.

The "Peerless" brand of spices is known far and wide throughout the Maritime Provinces. They are manufactured by the Schwartz Co., of Halifax, who also do a large business in coffee, cream of tartar, etc. The business was founded away back in 1867 by W. H. Schwartz, father of the present owner, W. E. Schwartz. Every modern improvement in the production of spices is included in the mills owned by Mr. Schwartz, and the best testimony of the excellence of his goods is the long list of satisfied customers and the steadily increasing trade. Mr. Schwartz is an expert in spice manufacturing and his coffee selections are known to the grocery trade as thoroughly reliable and difficult to surpass.

The Halifax Hotel.

No one could visit the Maritime Provinces without remembering well the "Halifax Hotel." It is, in fact, the most popular house east of the Chateau Frontenac. By "popular," is meant that it is frequently the home of Canada's leading politicians and most prominent citizens, while celebrities from all parts of the world stop here from time to time. Since 1861, it has been the leading hotel of the Maritime Provinces and especially of Nova Scotia. There is an air of home-like comfort about the house from basement to attic, and aside from the excellent furnishings and accessories of beauty, a great deal of the attraction is due to good management, and for this the name of E. L. MacDonald, who is in charge, must be mentioned. Every guest at the "Halifax" may be assured of all the attention due him, because the organization in every department is complete. His idea is to give his customer something for his money, such as supplying clean, airy sleeping rooms, the best of cuisine, cozy parlors and reading rooms for ladies and gentlemen, the best of baggage and train attendants, so that in all no combination of hotel accommodation could be better then that supplied by the "Halifax." This means that the house is always busy, yet never is there a time when so many guests are taken that any one of them can complain of neglect. What more, then, could a traveler wish for? The house is enviably located, overlooking the harbor in the rear, and with a frontage on one of the most attractive streets, within easy reach of all the chief attractions of the city.

THE SMYRNA RAISIN CROP.

According to Consul E. L. Harris, of Smyrna, the Smyrna raisin crop this year is expected to be 40,000 to 45,000 tons. The crop in 1905 was 63,000 tons, but last year it barely reached 25,000 tons. Freight rates to the United States are expected to be lower than ever, owing to the increased number of steamship lines trading between the United States and the Levant. The introduction of American vines into Asiatic Turkey has not been regarded as successful, owing to their producing fruit freely for only ten to twelve years, while the native vines produce fruit up to the age of eighty and even one hundred years and are at their best when about fifty years old.

ST. JOHN

A city that is coming to its own after many vicissitudes.

Some of the leading business houses.

Earl Grey, in a recent speech at Halifax, said: "That he believed that the Maritime Provinces were the front door of America, and the natural entry for all postal matter from Europe to this continent. He hoped to see all mail subsidies given by the British Government paid to vessels heading for Canadian ports. To pay subsidies on steamers plying to New York was a colossal blunder. The laws of nature were on the side of those who recommended that the trans-Atlantic mails from Great Britain should be via Canada and not New York." In the money poured out so freely for harbor improvements, the deepening of the channel, the supplying of magnificent new wharfage and increased facilities for the handling of the passenger, and freight traffic that must naturally flow into St. John, its citizens have been anticipating the march of Nature.

Fate and Fortune are not over gentle in their dealings with some cities, as with some men. Both the cities and the men seem compelled to climb the most rugged paths, constantly being retarded in the upward climb by the very hand outstretched to help some favored rival. So when by dogged determination, persistent striving, and unlimited enthusiasm, any city has overcome its obstacles, and has reached that position of commercial power and prosperity towards which it so patiently moved, we feel like saying, "Hats off, gentlemen."

The history of St. John has been one of continued loyalty and determined striving. From the days of LaTour, as he fought his life struggle with the wily Charnisey, simply for the mere love and loyalty he felt towards his dear St. John, and that he might have the privilege of being buried in what was to him the dearest spot on earth, until the present day, the story is the same. Patient plodding has been finally successful, and St. John is coming into its own. All honor to its brave, determined and loyal citizens.

St. John means to have what it ought to have, and its citizens are going to get what they have worked for. Of the city itself, volumes could be written; its natural beauty, its business energy; its splendid strategic position in relation to the lines of travel, both by land and water; its grand harbor; its delightful climate; all combining to give the impression, indelible as true, that St. John is destined to become the Liverpool of America. And why not?

The natural beauty in and around St. John is unsurpassed anywhere in Canada. Its location at the mouth of the St. John river, at the head of a large and growing inland traffic, gives it a position, commercially speaking, of great advantage. Its winter port business this year bids fair to far surpass all previous records. And in every industry in the city the cry is "More capital" to keep pace with the growth of the trade in all lines. Direct connection with every Atlantic trade centre; raw material right at her very doors, such as iron, coal, lime and lumber; splendid facilities from a distributive standpoint; with business men thoroughly alive to the interests of the city, and yet liberal in the extreme towards their fellows; an intelligent and industrious population; St. John to-day calls a halt! not to the natural western march, but certainly to the unnatural western stampede. Look before passing, then possibly there may be no passing.

The Crosby Molasses Co.

This time-tried molasses company easily leads in the provinces, and their trade throughout the Dominion ranks among the largest in Canada. They are among the largest direct importers of molasses in the Dominion, and are prepared to deal with the trade in a large way on the very best of terms. The president of the company, L. G. Crosby, has been engaged in the molasses business for over a quarter of a century and is a master of the buying and selling of this important commodity. They have accredited agencies in all the leading centres of activity, both in Canada and elsewhere, and they are in close touch with the demands of the trade. Mr. Crosby is a native of Yarmouth, where he began in the shipping business away back in 1888. It is now twelve years since they opened in St. John and their trade has steadily increased. They also import large quantities of various products such as shingles, lumber and flour. Mr. Fred. S. Crosby, the secretary-treasurer of the company, is one of the brightest young men in the east and has rare possibilities before him.

John Sealy.

One of the oldest and most highly respected merchants in St. John is John Sealy, who carries on a large and growing trade in all kinds of fresh and cured fish. He has been established on the water front for long over a quarter of a century, and has a firm grip on his trade, not only in the Maritime Provinces, but in the West Indies and in all parts of the Dominion. Mr. Sealy is identified with the best interests of St. John, and took a keen interest in the doings of the Maritime Board of Trade. He carries immense stocks of herring and haddock, and is personally considered an expert in his business. His reputation for fair dealing and right prices places his business in the enviable position of the front rank.

W. A. Simonds.

W. A. Simonds has been established in St. John for some little time. He is the exclusive agent for some of the world's best known lines of fancy groceries and sundries. He is sole agent for Hoffman's, Day & Martin's, J. A. Wright & Co.'s polishes; Lipton's, and E. D. Smith's jams and jellies; White, Cottell's vinegar; Diamond Crystal Salt Co.; Radnor Water; Sussex Mineral Springs; White Moss cocoanut; Tobler's chocolate; Dr. Johnson Craker People; the G. H. Hammond canned meats, and several other lines. With such a line of goods, success is assured, and, adding to that, energy and push, Mr. Simonds can look forward to a great future.

Bowman & Co.

Starting in the commercial world in 1897, Wm. E. Bowman and Horace W. Cole on that date took over the old-established business of Jardine & Co., dating back to 1847. They gained a connection of considerable size to begin with, a connection that these two young St. John men have enlarged by energy and unstinted labor, until to-day they have established the largest and most complete distinctly fancy groceries house in the Maritime Provinces.

Year by year has seen this concern going ahead by leaps and bounds, and to-day the volume of trade is many times that of the first year's.

This firm is the proprietor of the Tiger Brand of teas, spices and extracts, and very large handlers of Scotch refined sugars.

Thos. McCready & Son.

One of the progressive industries of St. John is that of Thos. McCready & Son, manufacturers of fine grade pickles, vinegar, fruit jams, syrups, etc. The firm dates its incention from 1883, and was incorporated in 1896. To-day it is under the management of J. T. McCready, son of the original proprietor, who keeps in touch with all the different branches of the trade. Three travelers on the road, and things humming all along the line, and with the Maritime business well in hand, the firm is now looking to Dominion trade.

Hall & Fairweather.

Established in 1854; incorporated in 1897, progress and expansion have marked all the passing years with Hall & Fairweather, so that this firm stands to-day in the front rank in the wholesale grocery line. S. S. Hall, one of the original partners of the firm, still continues to take an active interest in the business; while the management is in the eminently capable hands of W. C. Cross. Mr. Cross has been with the concern for twenty-four years, and for the last six has had a controlling interest. Distinctly a Maritime business; four travelers constantly on the road; a large and enthusiastic staff; commodious offices, and abundant warehouse room; the firm keeps well in advance of the yearly increased business believing that to be well prepared is more than half the battle.

Hall & Fairweather are to-day pushing four or five special lines of flour, such as "Lilies," "Crown of Gold," "Cherry Ripe" and "Leader."

Northrup & Co.

Northrup & Co. are one of the old firms in the general wholesale grocery line of St. John, having been established in the early eighties and carrying on a successful and progressive business through all these years. The firm to-day handles some splendid agencies, such as Brown's canned clams, and are the sole agents in St. John for the Lowney goods; both the general line of confection, and also that firm's special line of chocolate. A large business is carried on in the fish trade, and the firm is noted for the superior quality of their goods and attention to orders. Indefatigable workers, they are, therefore, successful.

New Factor in the Confectionery.

The Phillips & White Co., recently organized to take over the manufacturing confectionery business of Thos. J. Phillips, have taken possession of the large building, 13¾ Dock street, and 36 Nelson street, St. John, N.B., and will manufacture a general line of high-grade candies, including fine chocolates, creams, bottle goods, and a full line of specialties, some of which are already known to the trade. The management of the business is in the hands of Mr. Phillips, while the manufacturing will be looked after by Wm. White.

James B. Keenan, also a member of the new company, and who traveled for Mr. Phillips for a number of years, will look after the interests of the firm on the road. The new company will be in the field with a big line for the fall and holiday trade.

Chas. H. McDonald.

Chas. H. McDonald, after one year in the wholesale tea trade, has justified the high expectations held of his ability, not only in St. John, but elsewhere in the provinces. That success would attend him in his venture was accepted as a fact, but the magnitude of his achievement has been a surprise even to his friends. Mr. McDonald's "Red Clover" brand of teas has already made a name for itself, and he is to be congratulated on the up-to-date way in which this brand is being pushed. Bulk teas are the special line, and if direct importation, careful buying, exact blending mean anything in the make-up of teas, his blends should be general favorites with the trade. Practical business training, and also special training in his special line, have fitted this young, energetic and wide-awake business man with the right tools with which to carve a lasting success.

Leonard Brothers.

Leonard Brothers have no need to be introduced to the trade, for they are known the Dominion over. The fish business these days has reached the point where confidence in the shippers is practically everything. Leonard Brothers have that confidence, and consequently get the trade. Their brands are known, and are always above ordinary quality. In smoked fish their "Winter Port" finnan haddie, Yarmouth bloaters and kippers are as good as ever and there are no better on the market. And in their boneless fish the Golden, Gem of the Sea, Favorite, and Satisfaction brands are found the Dominion over. "Ready for the winter trade," which is just about due, is the word from these people.

T. A. Estabrooks.

The finest warehouse in the city is that of T. H. Estabrooks, the Red Rose tea man. Red Rose tea is good tea because it was meant to be good tea, and because it comes from a home where quality is in evidence in every department. Advertising of the brightest and brainiest, integrity and pure, hard grinding have brought its merited success, and the position occupied by T. H. Estabrooks in the trade circles of the Dominion is one that proves how successful a combination these three can make.

Every nook and corner of our Dominion responds to the touch of the seventeen travelers of this far-reaching and fast-gripping concern.

At the recent annual reunion of the company, the boys from all over the Dominion voiced the general sentiment with regard to their chief with no uncertain sound, and "For he's a jolly good fellow," rendered from time to time from the lusty-throated company gathered in annual conclave, just went to show that it pays to be the right sort even in business.

Baird & Peters.

One of the finest wholesale houses in St. John is that of Baird & Peters. C. H. Peters, the present head of the firm, started with the late John Baird in 1886. The firm to-day have modern offices, a very large staff, and keep on the road an efficient staff of travelers. This house is one of the leading wholesale groceries in the Maritime Provinces to-day, with a large and growing business.

The G. E. Barbour Co.

The G. E. Barbour Co., of St. John, N.B., attribute a success, admittedly above the average, partly to the excellence of its staff, partly to the soundness of its business principles, but chiefly to the possession of certain articles of diet which the public found that it wanted. The firm is also characterized by the ownership in bulk of that quality of enthusiastic optimism to which the majority of successful mercantile houses to-day owe their prosperity. It was not long before the public had caught the spirit of the game itself, and had entered into it as heartily as even G. E. Barbour could have anticipated. To-day the city of St. John does not boast a wholesale business more thoroughly representative of its best business traditions, with a more universal spirit of loyalty among its staff, from office boy to boss, or with a rosier prospect before it of future success and public confidence.

GROCERY TRADE NEWS OF NOVA SCOTIA

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 26.

The Halifax grocery markets are in a very satisfactory condition, and a fair volume of business is passing. The commission are preparing for a busy season, as they expect to handle a large quantity of fruit. Early varieties of Nova Scotia apples are now coming on the market in small quantities, and find a ready sale. Eggs are now showing an upward tendency. With the falling off of receipts the price is advancing, and 20 cents is now asked for fresh stock. Potatoes are now coming in more plentiful and they are quoted at $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel. The Nova Scotia crop this year is expected to be heavy. There is very little doing in canned goods just now. Tomatoes are coming in quite plentiful, and there is an abundant supply of beans, but peas are rather scarce. The market is well supplied with cabbage, turnips, beets and parsnips.

The high price and the poor quality of American fruit coming on the market has lessened the demand considerably. Bartlett pears are bringing record prices, the best quality on the market selling at from 60 to 70 cents per dozen. Bananas are not very plentiful, and the quality is only fair. Very few peaches are offered for sale so far. There has been no reduction in the price of beef so far, and it will likely be some time before it gets back to the old figures. Lamb is very high, and there is a great scarcity all over the province. Large shipments of lambs have been made this season from Prince Edward Island to the American markets. The wholesale price for lamb on the local market is 10 to 11 cents. There is very little poultry coming, and the demand is good. The best spring chickens, which do not weigh more than two pounds each, sell for about forty cents. Ducks are quoted at one dollar per pair. The best fowls are selling at 13 cents per pound wholesale. The meeting of the Prince Edward Island cheese board, held at Charlottetown last week, was largely attended. The buyers present were: Messrs. Haszard, Aitken, Spillett and Biffin. A cable received by the board read as follows: "Liverpool, Montreal, 11 to 11½. Brockville sold at 11⅛ to 11¼." The following factories boarded cheese: Lakeville, 100; Orwell, 80; Union, 127; Hadelbrook, 125; Hillsboro, 60; Red Point, 76; Emerald, 180; Gowan Brae, 70; Red House, 72; New Perth, 100; Kensington, 350; Stanley Bridge, 220; Cornwall, 110; Dundas, 112; St. Peters, 87; Hampton, 56; Winsloe, 80. The bidding started at 10¾ and rose to 11⅛, at which price the board was bought by Mr. Spillett.

Butter is fairly steady, with a good average demand and about average receipts. All the creameries are in active operation. Small dairy tubs are scarce, but this class of butter is always slow coming on the market during the haymaking season. It is expected that as soon as the farmers get all their hay in the receipts will improve.

George A. Ormon, grocer of Dartmouth and A. C. Drake, of Larsen & Co.'s, left last week for Toronto and Montreal, on a three weeks' visit.

Thomas Brown, grocer, Birmingham, has just returned from a three weeks' visit to Boston and New York.

G. W. C. Oland, manager of the Halifax Breweries Company, left on Friday last for Toronto and points in the West to make contracts for barley supply for the season's milling.

Mr. McKinney, of the Welcome Soap Company, and F. G. Carter, of the National Drug and Chemical Company, were among the commercial men visiting Prince Edward Island last week.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Aug. 29, 1907.)

Business continues fairly active and there is a more optimistic feeling among the trade, owing to the continued fine weather, and the encouraging crop reports from all parts of the three prairie provinces. Until the crop is assured buying will not be very heavy, but the wholesale houses are now looking forward to a big fall business.

CANNED GOODS—The canners have withdrawn their prices on Fraser river sockeye and cohoe salmon, and it is expected that there will be an advance of from 25c to 40c per case over the high opening prices noted last week. The Winnipeg jobbers are still selling on the basis of the opening prices, but this, of course, cannot last very long. Prices have been announced on the new season packs of Clover Leaf salmon, $7.60 for single case lots, and $7.50 for 5-case and over. E. D. Smith's new raspberry jams are now in stock. Quotations will be noted below. We quote :

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—There is little that is new in the froeign dried fruit situation. Reports indicate that all California fruits will be held at a high price. It is doubtful, however, if the California raisins can be maintained in this market at the high prices asked, as they are meeting with strong opposition from the Australian raisins, which reach this market about the time when the Valencias are out. TEAS—The new Japan teas are costing about two cents per pound more this year than last, owing to a partial crop failure. Ceylons are also stiffening and they are held now at one and two cents higher than a month ago. New Indias opened high, but show some indications of a slight decline.

EVAPORATED APPLES — Opening prices of new evaporated apples will be high. There is considerable excitement in this market now, and jobbers are endeavoring to secure their stock now in anticipation of advances.

CURRANT PULP FOR WINE AND STRONGER BEVERAGES.

Wm. Meyer, of W. Meyer & Co., Patras, Greece, one of the important currant merchants, is now in America in the interest of his firm, and at present is in Toronto, where his agents are the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co. In company with Mr. Marshall, manager of the brokerage department, he visited the wholesale trade.

Besides selling currants, as the grocery trade knows them, Mr. Meyer is interesting Canadian and American capital in another very important branch of the currant industry. This is currant pulp for the manufacture of alcohol, liqueurs and wines. Every year the Privileged Company of Greece receives about 40,000 tons of currants, which, under the terms of its charter it cannot dispose of as currants.

Currants are grapes and will make as fine wine as any grapes, finer than most, it is claimed, on account of their rich content of grape sugar. The course has been adopted of converting these currants into pulp and disposing of them for manufacturing purposes. Already the trade has assumed considerable proportions. Germany takes 10,000 tons, Italy 10,000 tons, and England 5,000 tons a year. This leaves 15,000 tons to be disposed of annually and Mr. Meyer hopes to find the market for it in America.

A ton (2,000 lbs.) of currant pulp will make from 150 to 600 gallons of wine, according to the strength of the alcohol in it. The pulp contains about 60 per cent. pure grape sugar. The sweeter the wine wanted the less can be made.

In Germany, where the commercial manufacture of alcohol from imported material is prohibited, the entire 15,000 tons of currant pulp is utilized in the production of homemade wine for home consumption. The pulp is simply placed in a barrel and a certain proportional quantity of water added. This is allowed to stand for three or four weeks and is ready for use. It will make a wine with about 12½ per cent., of alcohol. In England and Italy, the pulp is utilized commercially.

Mr. Meyer has succeeded in interesting large capitalists in the United States and has prospects of doing so in Canada also.

CANNED GOODS IN PETERBORO.

(By Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

The canned goods trade is receiving considerable attention from the grocers in the city just now, and especially those who buy heavily and carry a large stock. One of them discussing the situation this week said: "It appears that the canners so control the trade and are so well acquainted with the demands of the country that they are in a position where they can do just as they please with the retail grocer." One man who invests several thousand dollars in canned goods every fall said this week that he did not think he would carry any stock. He had been talking with several of the grocers in the city and they all seemed to be of the same opinion. The canners' association has placed the price so that they get every cent of the profit and the grocer hardly breaks even. For instance, when a grocer has to pay $1.17 per dozen cans, laid down at his store and sell them at $1.20 per dozen and deliver them to 12 different houses, he is loosing money, and would be very foolish to tie up a couple of thousand dollars for a year. The men referred to have practically decided to let the packers carry their own goods and buy only in small quantities as they want them. The price is the same and at the end of the season the wholesale price will be lower, as it always is. The canned goods problem is another evidence of the necessity of a separate retail grocers' association, which would be active in the grocers' interests. The grocers have only themselves to blame, as a big effort was made a while ago to organize an association.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Country prices for cheese keep up in a surprising manner. This week quotations show an advance of ⅛c over a week ago. For finest Ontarios dealers are asking 11⅝c, which figure is not tempting to buyers. Yet there are some who ask as much as 11¾c. At either figure it is not the easiest thing in the world to do business with Old Country buyers, who do not seem to want Canadian cheese at prices which are so high.

Because of this hesitancy on the part of English houses buyers in the country do not willingly pay the advance asked, thought they must put up the money if they are to secure the goods. So far this year profit to exporters has been very small indeed. All along there has been trouble in convincing importers that Canadian prices were the best it was possible to make. This has not even yet been realized on the other side. Expectations there are that the figures cabled by dealers here will decline, and because of this anticipation, purchases are not large.

Making it still more difficult for Canadians to make sales, the production of cheese in England this year is larger than it was last year, and until they use up what they have they are not anxious to pay advanced prices for what we have to offer.

Some believe that there has been a marked shrinkage in the make since the end of June, as compared with last year, estimating the falling off at from 35 to 40 per cent. There certainly has been a decrease in the make, as one will have noticed by the figures published weekly.

Last week receipts were 79,521 boxes, against 91,763 boxes for the corresponding week of 1906. Total receipts since May 1 have been 1,262,143 boxes, against 1,383,705 boxes for the same period last year. These figures show how much receipts have fallen off, compared with a year ago.

Exports for the past week were 60,759 boxes, against 89,507 for the same week last year. Shipments since May 1 amount to 1,106,883 boxes, against 1,293,463 boxes for the same period of 1906.

The butter situation is not a great deal better than the cheese. Conditions are, in many respects, the same. In both, high prices are demanded in the country, and must be paid if supplies are to be obtained. Also in both articles, prices quoted in Canada are too high for the ideas of Old Country houses.

English buyers are not anxious to pay present figures. The markets there are being well supplies with good quality of butter from Denmark, Siberia, Russia and Ireland, and with supplies arriving so freely fear of a shortage is unknown, and there is no reason why they should pay a round figure for Canadian butter when they can secure other makes of the same quality, or better, for prices which are more favorable to them.

To-day dealers are asking 22c to 22¼c, according to quality, which prices are too high for English ideas. At most, they do not want to pay above 22c for the best. Very little trade is being transacted at ruling quotations. Last week sales were made at figures very near correct, one dealer selling a round lot at 22⅛c.

Receipts last week were 14,780 packages, as compared with 26,344 packages last year for the same week. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 265,589 packages, against 411,614 packages for the same period of 1906. It will be seen from these figures that receipts this year are not a great deal more than half of what they were last year, both as regards weekly receipts and total receipts for the season.

Shipments for the past week were 3,688 packages, against 26,307 packages for the corresponding week of 1906. Total shipments since May 1 amount to 47,689 packages, against 242,716 packages in 1906.

Dairy butter is very scarce and prices are advancing, being one cent higher than last week to-day.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

The live hog market is on the down grade because of the unfavorable conditions existing in England, where the bacon market is in bad shape. The f.o.b. price for live hogs this week is $6.35, and next week it will be at least a quarter lower, the packers say. As usual, on a declining market, the farmers keep their hogs at home, and still the packers are getting all they want. Receipts last week were about 20,000.

The Old Country market is very disappointing, and is at least 4s. lower this week. The slump is due immediately to large deliveries of Danish and Irish bacon. American shipments also have been large. Canadian shipments appear to be about normal, and include too much heavy stuff. Buyers in England are holding off in anticipation of lower prices, and heavy lines are moving particularly slow.

As might be expected, the domestic provision situation is somewhat weak. Packers are all holding pretty heavy stocks of Canadian cuts, and, with the live hog market declining rapidly and the Old Country market for product in a very unreceptive mood, it is not strange the packers would like to reduce their holdings. The two exceptions seem to be lard and short cut. Both are firm. The packers are now seeking to take only enough hogs to keep their plants going.

The American market is not lending any strength to the situation. The Journal of Commerce, reviewing last week, says:

"These markets have been a smaller side show to the grain markets the past week than the week before; but they have sympathized speculatively with them, although to a very small extent, without stimulating activity in any branch of the trade. In fact, it has only affected the option trade at all in hog products by scaring in the small short interest to cover, not on what has happened in these products, but rather on the fear of what might happen, as the telegraph strike has not improved between this market and the packing centres, and, in fact, has been worse, as the daily receipts of hogs have not been reported or known by official despatches, and they have been in doubt all the week at all points, even Chicago being unreported part of the time. This made the few shorts uneasy in view of the strength in the grain markets, and especially in corn, owing to the cool weather all over the corn belt this week and of the frosts in the Northwest threatening a short corn crop, on which the shorts in corn have been heavy buyers, putting up prices very sharply, and running in the provision shorts in sympathy. This, however, has not been a large enough interest to produce activity or more than a fractional advance, confined entirely to the options, with which spot prices have refused to sympathize, as cash trade has remained at the minimum summer volume all the week, with packers willing to sell at old prices and unable to do so in more than job lots for current wants which have been very small. This is all there has been to the market for hog products, as the packers have not appeared in sight, though it is assumed that they sold what the shorts wanted, else there would have been more advance in prices, if, indeed, there was any considerable short demand, which some doubt, so small has been speculation in these products this season."

BUTTER—Butter is about the same as last week. Dairy is higher, owing to its scarcity, the make being poor. CHEESE—Prices remain firm with business but fair, owing to the high figures demanded. Buying in the country is being done at prices which are hard to get from English buyers. Local trade is not very brisk since cheese is not in great demand at this time of year.

EGGS—Eggs are firm this week at prices ranging from 18c to 19c for No. 1, and 22c, and sometimes 23c, for selects. Quality of eggs arriving is better, but receipts are falling ioff, being hardly sufficient to supply the local demand. They are not arriving in large enough quantities to warrant storing. Prospects are that there will be some export trade this year, as already inquiries are being received from Great Britain.

HONEY—White clover honey has been short and prices are firm. Buckwheat looks good, and it is likely that prices will be lower, although it is a little early to say what will be the yield. Prices this week are easier.

BUTTER—The market continues firm, but there is not the buoyancy to it that the burnt-up condition of the pastures in Ontario might be thought to warrant. While the make here is undoubtedly smaller, Quebec has been more freely supplied with rain, and Montreal is offering Toronto finest creamery prints at 22½c. In addition, the export business is in very small compass this season. Some wholesalers think prices are now at winter level. For choice, prices are about a cent higher than a week ago. Special brands of creamery being as high as 26c.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Wheat Markets, Again on the Advance, Led by Unfavorable Crop News From All over Europe and America—Flour Trade Quiet—Confectionery Profits.

The wheat market is on another strong upward move, and flour prices must follow. It seems to be the turn again for unfavorable crop reports, and they are coming from all over Europe and America.

A gentleman just returned from a three months' sojourn in Germany says he has heard nothing but talk of poor crops and high prices the coming year, and says the opinion there is that America will be able to sell all her grain export surplus at her own prices this crop. The hay crop was not all cut on the fifth of August from Berlin to Hamburg on account of the previous six weeks' wet, showery weather that prevented harvesting, and the potato crop was considered in great danger of being very short also from the same cause.

Flour is feeling the advance in wheat, and American prices for winter wheat flour have improved some, but demand is not yet very active, and buyers are rather inclined to a waiting policy. They would like some more definite information on the outcome of the present crop. The fall cereal trade has not started yet, either, and while a fair business is passing, the mills, as a whole, are not rushed.

Confectionery.

The possibilities in business for the man with energy to invest, are simply illimitable. The grocer who does not see good profits in confectionery is simply letting possibilties go by him. Like any other line of foodstuffs, it requires to be handled with discretion, to be well displayed and advertised. In business, as everywhere else, it's the little things that count. The grocer cannot afford not to handle good lines of confectionery. Every day he delays to do so he is missing money.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—This week the market is very firm and an advance would not surprise. Some little excitement was felt owing to reports of frost in the west. Export demand has been very satisfactory, and importers seem willing to pay for flour, while local trade has been all that could be desired.

FEED—Since last week there has not been the slightest improvement in the feed situation. To-day, highest winter prices are being paid, which is certainly something extraordinary. As far as can be seen ahead, there is no sign of improvement in market conditions, and it looks as though present quotations would rule for a long time to come.

BENEFIT OF TRADE JOURNALS.

Trade journalism has developed so rapidly that to-day there is scarcely any line of business that does not have one or more journals devoted exclusively to its interests. These journals wield a strong influence in their respective fields—in many lines they are considered the final authority. Ably conducted by men who fully understand the conditions and requirements of the trade they represent, these papers contain a wealth of information in every issue, and are closely studied by their readers, who are kept fully abreast of the times in all matters pertaining to their field of business.

Every copy of a good trade journal hits the mark. It is bought because it means dollars and cents to the buyer; its contents refer directly to his work; it is not read for pastime or amusement, but because the information it contains is of a practical, every day use. A trade journal is read more carefully and with greater interest than any other form of publication.—C. C. Prescott, in Selling Magazine.

ENGLISH MARKET FOR PEARS.

Some Suggestions for Canadian Shippers —Packing.

By J. B. Jackson, C.C.A., Leeds.

On other occasions I have made mention of the opportunities which await Canadian pear exporters for securing a ready market for this fruit, and the following hints should be of some value as to the method of packing now in vogue.

To export pears, is, of course, a totally different thing to exporting apples. The former ripen in much quicker time than the latter, and for this reason they should be packed in a hard, green condition to enable them to "come up" during transit. When a pear is being packed for export it should always be remembered that it has to arrive here in such a condition that it obtains a ready sale, as it passes through the hands of the importer, the merchant, and the retail shopman, and, even after this, has also to be in a fit condition to please the actual consumer.

Packing.

On the all important question of packing there is very little room for improvement in the French system, and Canadian exporters are advocated to adopt it. Under this system the fruit is packed two layers in a box, the usual quantities being as follows: 30 large sized pears, 48 medium sized pears, 56 smaller sized pears.

On account of their very soft nature it is advocated that each pear should be wrapped in tissue paper, as should any of the fruit happen to become too ripe during transit it absorbs the juice. In the case of exceptionally small pears, these, it may be mentioned, are shipped loose in crates and are usually sold by the pound. If tissue paper is not used for packing, a layer of wood fibre should be placed above and around each layer.

Importance of a Name.

If Canadian exporters intend to seriously compete with other countries in supplying pears to the British market, it is essential that they should give their fruit some good "selling name" by which it will be known by. French shippers, for instance, have adopted the names, "Duchess," "Williams," "Louiebourne," "Jargonells," "Boncues"; while from Ghent comes supplies of "White Philips," "Grey Philips," etc. As an appropriate name for Canadian pears, "Choice Canadians," or something similar would meet the case, and at the same time, would prove a very effective advertisement for this class of Canadian produce. In any case, the word "Canadian" should, in some way or other, appear prominently on the box in other to distinguish the fruit from that grown in the United States.

A new line of cleaner has made its appearance on the Canadian market, and its advent is felt by the old lines. The name, "Snap," speaks volumes, it does its work quickly and well. The Canadian company at Montreal are behind with their orders. Grocers can find out full particulars by addressing the Snap Company, Montreal.

About Private Price Marks

Some Important Secrets of the Cost and also Prices Ciphers of the Big Retail Stores that may be Used by the Country Retailer if Desirable.

Almost every merchant has a secret price mark. It is a business necessity. The greatest point in its favor is that the dealer who marks his articles with a code is not subject to comparisons of price, which the one price dealer always has to complain of.

The majority of dealers have a secret code from which to determine the price. A great many of them so arrange this code that they can tell the cost as well at a glance.

Most frequently the price code is arranged on a word of nine or ten letters, in which word there are no two letters alike. The letters correspond with the numbers from one to ten, like this:

1234567890

This is the commonest and easiest way of marking the price. All dealers are familiar with it, but they seldom change their key-word, on account of the difficulty of looking up a new word or the bother of becoming accustomed to the new code.

It is essential that the key be changed often, for when two or three persons, aside from the clerks, know the key it is useless as far as any idea of secrecy is concerned.

Nine Little Price Marks.

Here is a list of nine-letter words which can be used for keys. They are all adapted to the use, they offer great variety, and are difficult to decipher. These being nine lettered words, the o, or last number, can be used as it stands, or any other letter or sign substituted for it.

Thus.

1234567890

Similar nine letter words are:

cavernous	machinery
blasphemy	manifesto
clerkship	monastery
dangerous	nocturnal
drinkable	numerical
dropsical	obscurity
duplicate	observant
facetious	outwardly
fisherman	outspread
gunpowder	prudently
hamstring	pneumatic
harmonize	porcelain
heptacord	subaltern
labyrinth	voluntary longevity

"Abruptness" also may be used in this class by substituting O for the final "s."

The advantages of the nine letter word are many, they are simpler to remember, simpler to read (on account of the O), and more inexplicable than the ten letter words. The nine letter word, however, is not used as often as the ten letter word.

List of Ten Letter Words.

The following list of keys of ten letters will aid the dealer in picking out a new price mark:

background	lachrymose
birthplace	manipulate
blacksmith	manuscript
chivalrous	plastering
daughterly	pneumatics
deaconship	profligate
fishmonger	formidable handsomely	phlegmatic
importable	forgivable

The following eleven letter words, also may be used by dropping the final letter, or using it as a repeater:

Candlestick Disturbance
Neighborly

The two words, "birthplace" and "blacksmith," in the ten letter list, are well fitted for pricemarks. Being double words and each word containing five letters, they are much easier to remember and far simpler for the clerk to decipher.

The simplicity is seen from the above, the first word ends with the number five and the second begins with number six, the letters being equally divided in the compound word makes the key much simpler.

Using Hyphen for Figure.

But even more suitable is the hyphenated word. There are few, if any, dealers who have discovered and used this class of words for keys. They are ideally adapted to such use.

hailstone
1234567890

Other hyphenated words, which are suitable for price marks, are:

back-slide
hail-stone make-shift ship-board shop-lifter yard-stick

The word "fish monger" also may be used, the same as "shoplifter," by cutting off the final letter.

Five is the most frequent number occurring in price marks. There usually is a five somewhere in the combination, and for this reason the type of words above makes the ideal work key. At a glance the clerk can read the dash or hyphen and it is confusing to the curious customer, who cannot account for a figure in a letter code, unless it represents a figure one or a naught. The five never is thought of by the investigator and easily thought of by the clerk. In those two points lies the beauty of such a word for a price mark.

Letter X for a Repeater.

The figure x, as a rule, is used for a repeater thus, with "manuscript" for the key;

Mstx—$V.

It will be found in key words that the p's and m's predominate and words beginning with those letters are used by the majority of dealers. For that reason it would be advisable to pick out one beginning with a letter other than p or m.

There is some humor in price marks; for instance, "shoplifter," as a constant reminder and warning to the clerk; "yardstick," how ironical it must sound to the "counter jumper." Think of a clerk determining the price of face powder from the key "gunpowder." And how suitable the code "labyrinth" is to the new clerk winding in and out among the letters of the word in a vain effort to find the price of a 5-cent cake of soap.

With the introduction of the spelling reform there has been an innovation in price marks. It opens up a wide field, and articles marked on such a key surely are inexplicable. For instance, among the novelties are the following:

Sell th gudz.
Charg enuf.
Plez be onist.

The keys are novel and intricate, but it is not seriously thought, however, that many of the dealers will adopt this scheme of marking.

Phrases Better than Words.

Some merchants use phrases instead of words. For instance, a big wholesale jewelry house in New York uses the legend, "Now be sharp." A firm in Chicago uses, "Be watchful." Some houses think that phrases have certain advantages over mere words.

Many merchants form keys upon their business names, for instance:

Klein Bros.	C. L. Hornsby.
Born & Smith	Jones Drug.
Yalding Co.	S. & G. Penfold.

There is a personality about such a key that makes it of value to the merchant, and it is, as a rule, hard to decipher.

A simple device, which is preferred by many, is plain figure marking, The real figures are written down as a stock number, in a row.

For instance, in 2468793: $4.80 would be the price mark. Beginning wih the first number and using every other number as a blind, this is read easily and not as liable to mistake as the word method. This may be varied, beginning with the first and skipping every other one, reading backwards, and divers other ways. The merit of this lies in its readability and simplicity, together with the fact that it is usually taken for a stock number, instead of a price mark.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

All Lines Active in Anticipation of the Exhibition—Oyster Season Well Under Way—Shortage Probable in New Lemon Crop.

The approaching exhibition is having a marked effect on all lines of fruit and fish. Vegetables do not seem to be so much affected, but the cold weather is probably responsible for this. The fish trade, quiescent for some time past, nas been stimulated to an activity which the wholesalers are optimistically regarding as the fitting herald to a record business for the coming fall.

The oyster season has opened propitiously from everyone's point of view. The stock this year is better than ever, and the price is 15c lower than the opening quotation of last year—$2 was the price at that time, but this season $1.85 is the opening mark. Another probable benefit to the consumer will be the increased supply. Last year this was frequently unsatisfactory, the market at times being practically bare of supplies. This year the outlook is better, and present indications are that there will be little or no shortage. Finnan haddie has arrived on the Toronto market, and bloaters are expected very shortly. Trout and whitefish are scarce, almost to the point of extinction. One wholesaler summed up the situation a few days ago with the remark: "The supply and demand of whitefish is in the proportion of about one to seven. A week's supply is barely sufficient for the demands of one day."

Lemons remain very firm, with Californias slightly higher. Stocks held here, however, do not amount to much. Reports of the new crop are unfavorable, and state that a considerable shortage must be looked for. Bananas, despite the famine rumors recently circulated, continue to flow in by the car-load, but prices are stiffening under an unusually heavy demand.

GREEN FRUITS—Owing to the late season, California grapes are not yet quoted, but dealers expect to give out prices next week. One firm in a circular, give their probable price as $3 to $3.50 a crate. Meantime, peaches, pears and plums are high and business is only fair in consequence. Pears have been put up $1 a box. Montreal melons and Almeira grapes are two oew lines quoted this week. Prices are high on both. Demand for oranges and lemons is nat great, trade being made up of orders for goods required for immediate use and on this basis there is not much business doing.

VEGETABLES—Market gardeners are doing a first-class business in all lines. Prices are low enough to warrant a continued strong demand, and, receipts being large, it is likely that present figures will rule for a short while longer. Tomatoes, however, have been advanced considerably since last week, as will be seen from the quotations. Potatoes are a little cheaper. No new lines are being quoted.

FISH—Lately the weather has been cooler and demand for various lines of fish has shown some improvement. The decline in haddock and cod prices has had the effect of improving business as far as these two lines are concerned. The marked scarcity for these has been relieved. Halibut is plentiful and is selling in a steady manner. Pike and dore are not arriving in large quantities, but whitefish and lake trout are plentiful for all requirements. Receipts of brook trout are small, but ought to be larger now that the September fishing days are about here and the fish are biting more freely. There is some enquiry reported for boneless and prepared fish, but otherwise, smoked is quiet. Labrador salmon and sea trout in barrels and half barrels are being purchased by merchants in various parts of the country. The former is quoted this week at $13 a barrel.

TORONTO.

FRUITS— An unusually large number of price changes are noticeable this week. Quotations on late Valencias have narrowed down somewhat, blueberries have advanced considerably, and California fruit is rapidly reaching a prohibitive point. This, however, was expected, and though Canadian pears, plums and peaches are in no instance a full yield, they will provide at least a temporary substitute.

VEGETABLES—Canadian tomatoes dropped another five cents during the week and may go lower before long. Canadian new potatoes are easier, and the supply has no difficulty in keeping pace with the demand. Celery, corn and beans are all easier.

A NEW FRUIT FOR TORONTO.

The first car of Californian Malaga grapes to ever come to Toronto was received by White & Co., and sold Tuesday last. Considering it was all one variety, and 1,000 cases in the car, the prices realized were very satisfactory, varying from $2.25 to $3 per crate.

The high prices of Californian fruit, such as peaches, pears and plums, have been remarkable. Monday, at White & Co.'s auction, the record price of $5.20 was realized for Bartlett pears in boxes.

A NEW OLIVE MAN.

Sasserno, Piccon & Maunier, one of the oldest established olive oil houses in France or Italy, are to be congratulated on having recently secured the services of Joseph P. Sgueglia, who for some time past has been connected with the firm of Osw. Cagnoli & Cie, of Nice, France. Mr. Sgueglia is one of the best posted men in the business, and is certain to bring added prosperity to any house with which he is connected.

FOODSTUFFS NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 26.

Business in the local market has been very good during the past week. The presence in the city of a large number of merchants from all over the provinces who were here to attend the meetings of the Maritime Board of Trade, afforded an opportunity for them to visit the wholesale houses and book orders in many lines.

Dried fruits of all kinds are very scarce and high-priced, as are also canned fruits. Sugar is very firm, while American plate beef has advanced from $15 to 15.75 and $16. Lard has declined to 12¼ and 12½ cents a pound.

In green fruits, California plums are already off the market. Dealers say that California peaches, oranges and other fruits are selling for just about double the price of last year. New apples are arriving from Boston, but they are very poor in quality and are quoted at from $3.50 to $6 per barrel. In the produce line raspberries are selling at 10 to 12 cents a box by the crate; blueberries are fairly plentiful and all kinds of new vegetables are down in price. Butter and eggs are about the same as last reported.

Reports from the farmers indicate that this year is likely to be a poor one with the crops. The wet weather has spoiled a great deal of hay. It is feared that grains will not ripen before frost comes and fruits are said to be very backward. About the only crop that seems to be satisfactory is the potato, though murmurings are even now heard about the fear of rust in consequence of the recent heavy rains.

Tea importers here are pleased about a change that is to be made in the testing of teas by the customs authorities. In future all teas imported into St. John will be tested in the local office instead of samples being sent to Ottawa. John Finley, of the local customs service, is now in Ottawa receiving the necessary instructions to carry out the work.

Imports of tea through this city are at least equal to the business done through Montreal and the change will be of considerable benefit to St. John importers, as a delay of about four days will be saved. Hitherto no tea could be taken out of bond until samples had been forwarded to Ottawa and a result of the analysis received.

THEY SELL GOOOD CHEESE.

To the Editor Canadian Grocer :

We wish you would call your readers' attention to what we believe is a misleading statement in the article under the heading of "Canadians Don't Eat Cheese," which appeared in The Canadian Grocer of August 23rd. In it you say : "The fact is that the great bulk of our good cheese goes to feed the working classes of Great Britain, while the culls are kept for home consumption."

In a general way this may be true, but in fairness to ourselves, who distribute very large quantities of Canadian box cheese to the home trade, as well as doing our export business, we wish to say that, regardless of its destination, our buyer, Mr. R. Johnston, a gentleman who has had a lifelong experience in the cheese business and is well known as an expert judge of the article, buys only selected cheese of the highest quality, carefully rejecting anything that is not up to the highest standard as demanded in the English market.

Moreover, for our Canadian trade we cure cheese on the latest scientific principles—and grocers can at any time obtain thoroughly matured stock from us. Whilst we are quite aware that there are some grocers who will not pay for the additional cost incurred for maturing cheese, but prefer buying green stock fresh from the factories, and not having the facilities for keeping and curing such stock, pass it on to their customers regardless of its condition, nevertheless our experience is that grocers are becoming more discriminating, as is proved by the fact that we have a large and constantly increasing list of customers who buy but properly cured cheese, and who not only pay the slightly higher price for it, but claim to be increasing their business by doing so—and what is more, making much higher profits.

Yours truly,

MacLAREN IMPERIAL CHEESE CO., LTD.

A FIRST-CLASS CANADIAN SOAP.

The advertisement will be noticed, on another page of this issue, of the Welcome Soap Co., of St. John, N.B., who manufacture a soap which is gaining considerable hold on the Canadian market. The product they call Naptho, and many advantages are claimed for it. It can be used with either hot or cold water as any laundry soap, and yet will do anything that the special soaps will do. It will not injure anything that water leaves unharmed and will remove grease spots, paint, fruit stains, etc., without leaving the material marked. It is also of particular advantage in washing woollens. The Welcome Soap Co., St. John, N.B., will be glad to tell grocers and the trade generally more about their product.

ABOUT PRIVATE PRICE MARKS.

First Figure is Blind.

An even simpler way is to use merely one blind, as, 6,148.

Price would be $1.48.

Any letter or figure may be used for the blind.

One objection to this is that an article marked to sell at less than a dollar often is sold for more, and the scarcity of figures would lead the customer to believe that the price came in two, rather than three figures. This easily may be overcome by using an extra figure, a plus sign, or an x, before the number to make the price look greater.

This method often is used as a cost mark, the selling price being found by adding whatever per cent. profit is to be figured.

A new method of cost marking which would be almost impossible to solve, and yet one which the clerk could handle and learn easily, is the following:

For example, 61483: 6 is the blind; 148 is the cost; 3 is the figure which, multiplied by the cost, will give the selling price.

Curiosities in Cost Mark.

Often a buyer picks up a line of goods at a bargain which he either can afford to sell cheaply as a leader, or which he prefers to get a better profit from. By this system of marking he can get whichever price he wishes and still know the original cost simply by looking at his price mark.

There are some curiosities in price marks, which can be seen once in a while. For instance, a haberdasher in Clark street, in Chicago, uses Stevenson's "dancing man." The marks are curious but almost impracticable.

The solution is that the numbers correspond to the various parts of Stevensoo's famous "dancing man."

The various limbs must be made with care and even then there are frequent mistakes in the reading. The adoption of such a cipher scarcely is advisable.

Probably the best mark possible never has been used. It is most simple and could be adopted with great safety for it is practicaly unknown. There is no code to it, nothing to remember, nothing to figure out. It is simply this, in putting down a price mark merely use the preceding figure in the numerical scale instead of the real figure.

An article to be priced $17.50 would be marked 0649. What could be more simple? What could be more practical?

Or, by reversing the process the article priced at $17.50 would be marked 2861, according to the following table:

2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 0 1
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 0

There are thousands of different price marks in use to-day, and more coming in, as the advisability of an exclusive mark grows upon the dealer. It is a business necessity, as is the frequent changing of the code or cipher for the sake of protection.

R. C .BROWN.

PIONEER GROCER GONE.

James Simpson, Hamilton, for Many Years Prominent in Wholesale Trade.

In the death at Hamilton on Aug. 13, of James Simpson, the Canadian wholesale grocery trade has seen pass away one of the pioneer wholesale merchants of Ontario. Particularly in the City of Hamilton will his death be deeply regretted in grocery circles. There for over fifty years, to be exact, fifty-three years, he has been a striking figure in trade. The late James Simpson was born in Corstorphine, Scotland, Sept. 17, 1832. Was apprenticed to the grocery trade in Edinburgh. After serving his time and acquiring a thorough knowledge of the business, he came to Canada in the fall of 1854, settling in Hamilton. Here he formed the wholesale grocery firm of Simpson, Stuart & Co., which became an energetic, progressive and leading factor in the grocery trade of Ontario. After the dissolution of Simpson, Stuart & Co., he entered the grocery, brokerage and commission trade as James Simpson & Son, and until his retirement, five years ago, was a well-known figure in the jobbing trade of Ontario. He was for many years prominently connected with several Hamilton mercantile concerns, notably president of the Canada Clock Co. and the Dominion Insurance Co.

In his younger days, Mr. Simpson was an enthusiastic curler, and the well-known Simpson rink is still remembered by curlers of the 70's and 80's. It was this famous rink, skipped by Mr. Simpson, which brought the world's championship to Hamilton.

The late Mr. Simpson was twice married. He left one son by his first wife, William Simpson, of Winnipeg, and four sons and one daughter by his second wife. They are Mrs. R. S. McIndoe, of Toronto; James Simpson and R. R. Simpson, of Hamilton, Ont.; Arch. T. Simpson, of New York, and Edward Simpson, of Dawson City. Thos. Hood, Hamilton, and John Hood, New York, are stepsons.

The Canadian Grocer extends its sympathy to the family. The writer recalls many kind attentions and pointers given him by Mr. Simpson when he came into business contact with him in his apprenticeship days in Hamilton, and his optimism was a great encouragement and help, and his genial smile, cheery words and hearty handshake will be a pleasant memory.

THE SCARCITY OF LOBSTERS.

The Grocer was speaking to J. W. Windsor, Montreal, regarding the lobster scarcity, and having just returned from the east, he was able to give some interesting information regarding the past season.

"The weather was exceedingly rough this year," said he, "and the catch was small in consequence. Under ordinary circumstances, and with decent weather, we count upon having about seventy fishing days in the season; which opens April 20, and closes July 10. This year we could not start when the season opened, owing to the ice in the gulf, ice that stayed until well on in May. The result was that we were late in getting our traps set, and with the dirty weather we had all through, we did not get more than thirty to thirty-six fishing days in the whole season. Along the Gaspé shore it was very rough, and while it was bad enough in Prince Edward Island, conditions were slightly better and the catch may be considered fair when one remembers the weather experienced. I believe the packers are quite cleaned out, and anybody having lobsters to-day can get a good price for them, as there are no more to be caught until next spring.

"I believe the codfish industry is being harmed by the nasty weather also. They have all the fish they want down there, but not having favorable weather to dry them, they cannot take care of the fish and they are simply rotting on their hands.

"The kippered herring pack has been an average one. We are practically sold out for the season."

AN INTERESTING BOOK.

A very interesting little book, one well worth reading by any retailer, has just been issued by the Spatula Publishing Co., Boston. It is called "One Thousand Ways and Schemes to Attract Trade," and the matter therein is "gathered from actual experience of successful merchants." Irving P. Fox is the author. Contained in the book are numerous valuable hints on window dressing, paragraphs on trade winning ideas, stories of schemes which have built up declining trade, and other information equally valuable to the grocer and to the next retail merchant. It is worth reading.

EASY MONEY

There is no line in a grocer's stock that will pay him better to work up a trade on than

Halifax and Acadia Codfish

It's a line that once introduced will continue to increase in popular demand. The only reason why people have not in the past eaten more fish is because they couldn't get it prepared right. "Halifax" and "Acadia" are boneless and ready for cooking at a minute's preparation.

The most delicious of all imported Sardines is the

"King Oscar" brand

The care that is exercised in curing and packing and the absolutely pure olive oil used make the "King Oscar" Sardines the delight of the epicure. Your customers want the best if they want Sardines at all. They will want "KING OSCAR" brand once you sell them a tin.

GROCERY STAFF PICNIC.

Jolly Outing for J. A. McCrea & Son's Employes, Guelph.

One of the jolliest crowds that Mr. Ted Spragge's four-horse tally-ho ever carried left the front of J. A. McCrea & Son's Noted Tea Store and China Palace, Guelph, Thursday of last week on the occasion of the staff picnic. The party, including the married men's wives, numbered twenty-one, and from the time that Bugler Alex. McGibbon started the stirring notes of the bugle, till the late evening, when he blew the last call, there was not a slow moment. It seemed as if the weather man had saved up a good day, and from the prosperous look of the country it does not look as if the hard times that are foretold will ever mature.

Arrived at Puslinch Lake, Mine Host Marriott conveyed the party in his gasoline launch-trailer to the island. There had been a considerable amount of discussion over the races, and from the fact that there were numerous and valuable prizes, the competition was very keen.

The programme was as follows:

Cigar Race—1, box of cigars, Mr. Jack Hack; 2, ash tray, Mr. Jos. Harris.

Unmarried Men's Race—1, cash prize, Mr. Charles Edwards; 2, monster water melon, Mr. William Dougherty.

Ladies' Early Call Race—1, cash prize, Miss Jean Weatherstone; 2, china jug, Mrs. Ethel Botts.

Ladies' 25 Yards, Backward—1, $1 coffee, Mrs. Ethel Botts; 2, 60 cents, coffee, Mrs. M. Dougherty; 3, 40 cents, coffee, Mrs. J. Weatherstone.

Men's Early Call Race—1, cash prize, Mr. Albert Vass; 2, china statute, Mr. Chas. Edwards.

Watermelon Eating Contest—1, 25 lbs. Snowdrift flour, Mr. Rex Holland; 2, jardiniere, Mr. A. Hack.

Married Men's 200 Yards, Dash—1, bunch bananas, Mr. Andrew Hack; 2, Mr. Albert Vass.

Soda Biscut Contest—1, 25 lbs. Snowdrift flour, Mrs. Edith Long; 2, china ornament, Miss A. Hack.

Sack Race—1, box eating raisins, Mr. Jos. Harris; 2, Mr. Jack Hack.

Ladies' 50 Yards Dash—1, Miss Letta Drever; 2, Master Stanley Vass(aged 8) allowed to run with the ladies.

Notes.

The cigar race was very amusing, the competitors had a lady apiece to assist them. The ladies each took a cigar and three matches to the other end of the course and the men raced to their partners. The ladies lit the cigars for the men and the first man back with a lighted cigar won. Everybody was in this race but Albert Vass, who is a non-smoker.

In the watermelon eating contest Mr. Rex. Holland and Chas. Edwards secured some snapshots. If they pan out we will publish them later.

In the married men's 200 yards dash Jos. Harris ran the pluckiest race of the day, and if he had not fallen he would in all probability have landed the bunch of bananas.

The lake is a beautiful spot, about nine miles from Guelph. It boasts of a hotel, gasoline launch, boating, fishing and summer girls. If we ever get a street car line down there and some extra attractions it will prove a most popular spot.

Even as it is, the picnic trade considerably helps business in the summer time.

Altogether, everybody said it was the best picnic they had ever attended. Everything went with a swing and a dash. When the prizes were being distributed the boys gave three ringing cheers for their popular head clerk, Joseph Harris, when he stepped forward to get his.

Everyone felt grateful for the Thursday half-holiday, which made the picnic possible and if they have the half-holiday next year the staff picnic is an annual affair.

A picnic like that makes a pleasanter feeling between employer and employe. It makes one feel that the whole staff is working agreeably for the common object—more business.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

HOW TO PRODUCE IT

Brief Talks Given Occasionally by T. Johnson Stewart.

A few candid friends point out to me that while I sling lots of ink about "Effective Advertising," yet, I fail—fail deplorably, in every attempt to describe, portray or reveal how to produce advertising that will sell goods. Now, isn't that cute? Here I sit enthroned in state, doubting many things soothing to the souls of the just, but fondly believing that my writings were as transparent as the heavens above, distinct as the first love of youth or the all-fired passion of an old maid, but, apparently, I've been hugging a whole series of delusions, and, of course, it's against my religious principles to hug anything quite so ephemeral. One of my wise friends called the other day. He looked grave and grieved. After reporting favorably regarding her ladyship, and the heir-apparent, my friend flung some copy on my desk, which he termed, "The Advertising Stunts of an Amateur." If I didn't carry an endowment policy I would print a few of these "stunts" for the amusement of the nation in general and the gayety of grocers in particular. They are all picturesque, some are pathetically so, and a few of them are balanced with sentences just as majestic and wilder than any that ever throbbed between the temples of Macauley. I read them over carefully, or seemed to do so, and the unknown advertising genius requested me to deliver an honest verdict instanter. But the Scotch were ever an obdurate race and politic. Policy caused "my tongue to clave to the roof of my mouth and devil a word could I spake." That's a free and somewhat Irish translation of Ovid's description of being up against a stiff proposition. Well, I was up against a moonstruck, silly giant, who had been toying with the wine when it sparkleth. And finally I said:

"Bill! that's superb advertising matter. It will boost your business like dynamite. Go home and swear out a warrant for the publisher's arrest because—because if that stuff had been set up properly, you'd been in a government position long since. I'll write to Sir Wilfrid to-day and have you railroaded to the Senate. A man with your ability shouldn't be tearing around loose. We must get you a job in the Cabinet at least."

Bill was too grateful to utter a word. He shook my hand kindly and went out to demonstrate to the citizens of this burg that he did not even belong to a collateral branch of the camel family.

Tell a man how to write ads.! Why, gentlemen! the thing can't be done. All that the best of us can do is to hint—and that somewhat vaguely—how good, sales-compelling copy can be produced, but I do not think that there is a man on the continent, earning a respectable salary, who could tell you exactly how he writes his ads. I have told you how most advertising might be made more effective; I've pointed out lots of things many grocers could and should do, and now I am going to make a long quotation from an article written on "Some Advertising Don'ts," by George P. Wadsworth. I don't quite agree with all the "don'ts" of Mr. Wadsworth, but I am convinced that his view-point will be extremely interesting to all men who are out for more business.

"The general advice of all experts and authorities on publicity is 'Advertise! advertise! advertise! Keep at it continuously; never stop.' In this article I want to give my readers a few of the Don'ts of advertising:

"Don't advertise unless you know how. It will only be waste.

"Don't advertise unless you have something to sell that is worth the price you ask for it. The public are fairly well educated, and if you fool them once, then you will not have a second chance. There are always some who are ready for a 'gold brick' or 'Spanish prisoner' chance, but these people, as a rule, are not much use to the regular trader.

"Don't think a simple announcement of you name and address in the paper will bring 'live' results.

"Don't put a good advertisement in the paper and let it remain issue after issue without changing.

"Don't advertise in the lowest-priced paper, simply because it sounds cheap. The paper with 20,000 circulation, at 3s per inch, is much cheaper than the one with 1,500 circulation at 6d per inch.

"Don't use papers that do not circulate extensively in the district whence you can draw your business.

"Don't be afraid of a little white space in your advertisement. Most advertisers like to put as much matter in their space as they can possibly get in. If yours has plenty of white showing it will stand out prominently and be seen more easily.

"Don't be over-persuaded to advertise in a theatre programme. I have found from practical experience that it does not pay.

"Don't take a page in a bazaar handbook. Visitors to a bazaar go to buy at the stalls, and are not interested in your business. If you want to help the cause for which the bazaar is held then give them a subscription, or else send them something they can sell.

"Don't use bill-posting stations unless you have something to sell that is in general demand all over the country. This form of publicity may occupy a place as part of an advertising scheme, but is not an advertising scheme in itself.

"Don't be too hard on the printer. It is a mistake to try and get his estimate down to the very lowest figure. In order to reduce the cost he will be compelled to take it out of the quality of work or paper. Just remember that the printer is in business to stay just the same as you are, and that it is his interest to please you and make you a regular customer. It is greatly against his interest to overcharge you. Of course, I take it for granted you go to a printer who can both set up your matter and print it well. The other sort of printer is no good.

"Don't use jokes or comic pictures in advertisements. They may be attractive and the public may laugh over them, but unless you are the editor of a comic paper they will fail in the purpose you have in mind, i.e., to sell your goods.

"Don't get into the habit of exaggerating your statements. Exaggeration is only a polite, honeyed name for Lying. The public are not slow to see through a lying advertisement, and, naturally, will place you and your store on a level with your announcement.

"Don't talk about price and forget quality. If your goods have quality, tell all about it. Price will be forgotten long before the quality.

"Don't go in for spasmodic advertising. If your appropriation is only small, then go in for small advertisements, but keep at it continually. One large fire occasionally under a boiler won't give any great result compared with a continuous small fire.

"Don't drop your advertising in the quiet seasons. This is the time when you should strive to make business. You will not only mend the quiet times, but the rush will be better when the season comes 'round.

"Don't use the same copy twice. Have fresh matter every time your advertisement appears. This may seem a tall order, but the advertisers who are getting the best results are those who always change the copy.

"Don't try to sell everything in your line of business. Specialize and keep good stocks. Advertise a few lines until you have impressed the public that your store is the store for that class of goods. Better have a good trade on a few lines than a moderate turnover on many different kinds.

"Don't think that everybody knows you and your store, and that you are so well known that there is no need to advertise. The new firm advertises, and in time will be much better known than you, if you don't adopt modern methods and advertise.

"Don't forget that there are experts in advertising.

"Don't think that advertising is simply a hit or miss affair. "Scientific publicity" pulls business, and if you pay for an advertisement that brings results it is much better than filling space with copy that does no good.

"Don't regard your advertising costs as expenses; they are an investment, and the value they attain by persistent and consistent advertising is one of the finest elements of 'good will' in any business."

Our Factory now boasts the most up-to-date equipment for making Catsup in Canada. We also have one of the best Catsup Cooks on the continent.

Last fall we bought tons and tons of the finest Rose Tomatoes. These have been washed, scalded, peeled and seeded, then have gone through the process of making them into Ozo Brand Tomato Catsup. Nothing of the delicious flavor of the ripe tomato has been taken away, and our chef's blending of the spices and condiments has given it an appetizing piquancy that cannot be equalled.

Put up in large 14-oz. screw-top bottle with an exceptionally pretty label, it makes one of the most attractive packages ever put on the market. We guarantee its purity, and the absolute cleanliness of our factory and methods makes its wholesomeness beyond dispute.

CANNING FACTORY THAT NARROWLY ESCAPED DYNAMITING IN ESSEX

The accompanying illustration shows the factory of the Essex Canning Co., which, like most buildings in the town, had a narrow escape from destruction when the car of dynamite exploded there recently. As it was, every pain of glass in the building was broken and the upper storey was slightly disarrayed, but none of the machinery was injured and after the commotion had subsided and the muss cleared away, work was resumed as usual. The factory was four blocks from the explosion and was largely protected by the town hall which stands between it and the station.

Operations on tomatoes were begun at the factory last week. Mr. Ball, the manager, in conversation with a representative of The Canadian Grocer yesterday, said his factory would put up this season the largest pack of tomatoes ever put up by a single factory in Canada. Since last season he said they had doubled their capacity, and they had 400 acres of a splendid crop. The outlook for the pack of both corn and tomatoes was excellent he said. The quality of the corn was good, too. The total pack in the province, he thought, would be smaller than last year. More packers were putting up peas this year, but the pack would be short notwithstanding.

The Essex canning factory which escaped the dynamite explosion.

PURE FOOD A RELIEF.

"Talk about the grocery trade being antagonistic to Dr. Wiley and the rest of the Pure Food authorities," said a New York jobber the other day; "people don't know what they are talking about. I don't believe there's a reputable jobber in the country who won't hold up both hands and vote the law an emphatic success. When we get it all running right there will be some pleasure in being a grocer and selling the nation food that is food.

"We had no idea how far away from decency we had drifted in this matter of serving up goods that would sell, rather than goods that were wholesome and entirely suited to health. Manufacturers had evidently been blinding themselves to the real welfare of the consumer in their race to put out the goods that would sell best. They were bleached and colored and artificially flavored and preserved till there was real danger, let alone an undesirable uncertainty, and we were so engrossed in the commercial side of the question that we entirely forgot the consumer. It was time the Government called a halt, and when we get over the trouble of readjusting things, of packing things as nature made them, of leaving them their natural flavor and color and of telling the truth on the labels, there will be some satisfaction in being a grocer."

GENERAL BISCUIT CO.

H. B. Grubbs, a St. Louis man, has formed a $30,000,000 biscuit company in New York, known as the General Biscuit Co., and a consolidation of about 100 independent biscuit baking companies. It is said that two strong financial institutions in New York are financing the concern and that New York will provide the chairman of the board of directors.

MERCHANTS' OWN FAULT

If Farmers Buy From Mail-Order Houses—A Farmer's View.

A farmer makes a few statements in answer to the occasional articles that appear in print about the mail order houses. He tells merchants that if they quoted prices and facts as do the mail order houses they would obtain more business as a result. He says:

"If the mail order houses get $100 each month out of this county that belongs to the home merchants the fault is with the merchants themselves. The mail order houses advertise and give us prices on everything they offer for sale. They tell us what they have and what they want for it. Of course, we get soaked once in a while, and if we do, we can try some other house. Most of the home merchants who advertise at all, don't quote prices. They neglect to tell us what we want to know—the price. Of course we can go to the store and ask the price of this article and that, but you know how it is, one doesn't know so well, exactly, what he wants to buy when he gets in the store as when he is at home. And here is where the mail order houses make their hit. They send us their advertising matter into the homes and we read it when we haven't anything else to do, and every member of the family who reads their stuff usually finds something that he or some other members of the family wants, and many orders are made up and sent out just at such times.

"Right here is where the home merchant falls down. If he talked up his business to us in our homes the same as the mail order houses do, the people would be in to see him the next time they came to town, and in many cases extra trips would be made to get the things at once that we didn't know we wanted until they were brought to our attention.

"The home merchant can save the expense of getting out a catalogue. We people read the home papers more carefully than we do a catalogue and if the merchant wants to talk business with us, let him put his talk into the home papers, and put it in so that we know he means business. The home merchant, likely, nine times out of ten, sells his goods as cheaply as the mail order houses, and I believe on many things they are much cheaper, but how are we to know it if he doesn't tell us about it?

"A merchant must not think that even his best customers know his goods so well that they can tell what he has without being shown.

"It is none of my business how the home merchant runs his business, but I don't like to see these roasts in the paper all the time about us fellows who get a little stuff shipped in once and a while, and never anything said on the other side. There are always two sides to a question and I have given you mine. If it is worth anything to you you can take it."

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

The Wants of Women——Study Them

MR. GROCER! You may invest more money in your business; you may advertise the best lines of staple groceries on earth; you may know your trade from beginning to end; but—unless you know and study the wants of women—your business acumen will avail you nothing in the struggle for commercial supremacy. Women, consciously or no, dictate the policy of the business world, and no merchant is great or powerful enough to ignore their decision. Now, sir! since these facts are indisputable, and since the women of Canada have almost unanimously declared that of Canned Goods is peerless—beyond compare—surely you owe it to yourself to stock and talk the brand which clinches both reputation and profit. No brand of Canned Goods on the market can do more for you than Old Homestead. That much we are positive about. But the particular and economical housewives of Canada are just as positive that is so much superior to the next best brand of Canned Goods that there is no comparison. And there are strong reasons for their belief. All the goodness of succulent fruit and fresh vegetables is retained in Old Homestead Brand. The name stands for surety of purity and that palate-pleasing, appetizing flavor which has made the brand famous.

OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND

The Turned-Down Corners

Here and there in the Ledger of Life you have turned down the corner of a page for remembrance sake—you'd forget something if the turned-down corner wasn't there.

To-day, turn down a corner deep and wide to remember this one sure fact : "Quality is remembered long after price is forgotten." Every time you come to that particular page—remember. Every time you try to sell inferior quality, think of the turned-down corner—what it stands for, and what it really means to your success.

TWO WAYS of making money selling cigars

The First

Selling cheap goods with a long profit—
(You won't sell many)

The Second

Selling a good line with a reasonable profit—
(You'll sell lots)

The "second way" is the better—Sure profits and increasing trade

If you decide on the "second way" you'll have to have our

"ANCHOR CIGAR"

The best 5c. straight on the market—and there's more profit than some other 5c. lines.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

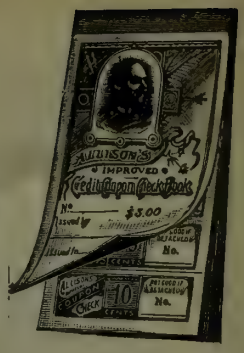
Allison Coupon Books



Are the ball-bearings that will make almost any business run smoothly. Here's how they work:

If a man wants credit for $10.00 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10.00 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him with $10.00; no trouble. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on for all his purchases until the book is used up. Then he pays for the book and gets another one. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, and no disputes. Allison coupon books are recognized everywhere as the best, BECAUSE THEY ARE. Let us send you cancelled sample, free.

The Man Behind the Counter

I BELIEVE I am known as a man who values, and secures in a very full measure, the friendship of the retail merchant and his clerks; and I am very proud of the fact.

But why is it? It is not easy to secure the friendship of thousands of men one has never seen; and I am not egotist enough to think that it is through any personality of mine.

It is, FIRST, the quality of Red Rose Tea that has helped make these friends. To men who sell it day in and day out, from year to year, it has become a standard of quality. They know it can be depended on. "Good Tea," always good.

SECOND.—They are treated as business men should be. Every enquiry has immediate attention—mistakes are corrected promptly. Reasonable favors are granted pleasantly.

THIRD.—My travellers are not mere order takers. They are men who gain the respect and confidence of their customers by their upright business methods.

If one of them calls on you I know you will corroborate my opinion—and if you are not doing business with him now, you feel that you will some day. When you do, I am sure we will be friends.

Why wait? Can't we commence business right now? Send me an order for a c/s of Red Rose and I think it will be soon followed by a repeat.

SATURDAY EARLY CLOSING

Kingston Minister Makes Pulpit Reference to it, and the News Takes Up the Question and Publishes the Views of Local Merchants.

The Kingston News has enterprisingly taken up the question of early closing of shops on Saturday nights, and its published interviews with grocers will interest a great many merchants elsewhere, for conditions in this regard are pretty similar all over the country. Here are some of the views expressed:

"The question has many sides," said Ald. Elliott when approached by the News and asked his views on the subject of earlier Saturday closing, "I am not one of those," he went on, "who believe that the late hour to which shops are kept open on Saturday has any thing to do with church going. If one is inclined to attend church the fact that he or she was detained a little longer on Saturday evening will make no difference to them. I venture to say if it was not too much trouble to find out, that the majority of clerks and merchants do not retire any earlier on week nights than they do on Saturday night. In fact, from my observations the merchants and clerks retire earlier, or, at least, go home earlier than on week nights. Whereas if the stores were closed at nine o'clock on Saturday it would be hard to see some of the clerks in their pews Sunday morning. So much for that side of the question."

"What of its effect on those who go to church?"

"I am free to admit that it would impose an inconvenience on these, for the reason that all the stores are closed on five nights a week. Consequently, the working man would not have an opportunity to make his small purchases. For instance, the purchase of boots and shoes. Consult any of our shoe merchants and they will tell you that they do fifty per cent. more after six o'clock on Saturday night than they do on any two days during the week and fully seventy-five per cent. of these purchases are by people who have not an opportunity to purchase during the week."

"What percentage of the clerks are church-goers?" was asked.

"In one church that looms up prominently in my mind I find, by actual count, one-quarter of 1 per cent. are clerks."

"Then are we to seriously consider this aspect of the case as against the percentage mentioned above?"

"At a future date, if time will permit, I will give you a few suggestions which, in my opinion, might be to some extent a remedy for some of the causes."

Mr. Steacy Says "No."

Mr. Edward Steacy, of Steacy & Steacy, dry goods, was a dissenting voice. To the question, "Are you in favor of the early closing on Saturday night?" Mr. Steacy replied emphatically, "No. I am not. We close at six o'clock every evening and on Saturday nights at ten sharp. This rule is rigidly enforced, and, I think, if every store in the city did likewise there would be fewer complaints. We have a large establishment, and take in enough money between eight and ten o'clock every Saturday night to pay seventy-five hands. You are at liberty to question the clerks if they are satisfied with their hours." This was done and unanimously they were perfectly satisfied.

Mr. F. G. Lockett Says "Yes."

"I am strongly in favor of the movement towards earlier closing of all stores on Saturday evening," was Mr. Lockett's (shoes) first statement. "It is simply a matter of education," he continued, "in a very short time it would be as popular as is the present daily early closing. If merchants are unanimous and honorably carry out any agreement entered into in this direction, there is much to be gained by the movement and nothing to be lost. The consumption in every line of business would be as great. What is now purchased late Saturday evening would be purchased before then as on the following week. So that the yearly sales of each merchant would not suffer in the least. I do not forget that the mechanic and laboring man by the present five o'clock early closing is debarred from making any personal purchases during the first five days of the week, but if nine o'clock was decided upon as the closing hour for all business on Saturday evening, there would then be four good, long hours, which should be ample for all their requirements. A good deal could be said as to the moral advantages of such a movement, but I am looking now simply at the business side, and I say let us agree to nine o'clock closing on Saturday nights and thus keep in line with the spirit of the present times, which is strongly towards shorter hours for all labor."

Mr. Shaw Says Close Early.

Mr. Shaw, of Newman & Shaw, dry goods, said:

"Say that I am strongly in favor of it. It will benefit both merchants and employes. The groceries close at seven, though a few years ago the suggestion was pooh-poohed as impossible. Now it is universal and the nine o'clock movement could be just as well carried out. The majority of houses pay their clerks on Friday, which gives them ample time to get around before nine o'clock Saturday evening. If clerks stay in stores till nearly 12 o'clock you can not expect them to be at church Sunday morning. It is a habit more than anything else to shop late. We certainly would be glad to see early closing."

Redden & Co. Assent.

Both Mr. Redden and Mr. Dyde (grocers) were heartily in favor; indeed, both gentlemen said they would be glad to close as early as six o'clock on Saturdays. The only difficulty was the Saturday market. If it could be possible to have two good market days, say Tuesday and Friday, instead of three indifferent ones, this would do more toward the early closing than anything else.

George Mills in Sympathy.

Mr. George Mills (hats) was one of those in deepest sympathy with the scheme. "There is no necessity of late shopping," said Mr. Mills, "and if a by-law was passed requiring the merchants to obey to the letter, it would be a move in the right direction. But for one to close and two keep open, it would spoil the attempt. The strongest point is there must be unity from the beginning. Some of the stores keep open till twelve o'clock waiting for others to close. Let us all close at nine and both merchants and employees will be benefitted."

"Say for me that I am heartily in favor of the early closing," said Mr.

EARLY SATURDAY CLOSING.

Kingston News.

The question of earlier closing of the shops on Saturday night, brought to the attention of the public by Rev. Dr. McTavish in a sermon last Sunday, is one worthy of consideration. The early closing on other evenings is now generally approved, and where late hours now prevail most are desirous of shortening the time. On Saturday evening, however, nearly all cling to the old system of open shop till the night is far advanced. Yet it may be found that there is no imperative need for doing business late on Saturday night than on any other evening. Some employers pay their hands on Friday, and with a little more effort this number might be increased. In which case, it is as easy to order goods on Friday evening or early Saturday, and have them delivered early in the day, as to place the orders on Saturday evening. Moreover, there are few families where they are living so much a hand-to-mouth existence that they are dependent on the present week's income for Sunday's food.

To close at, say eight o'clock on Saturday evening would enable the merchants and their employees to get home in time to acquire a night's rest, and be thus better prepared to spend Sunday as a day of worship and rest, instead of now, in many cases a day of rest mainly or entirely.

Laidlaw (dry goods), "but it must be with the distinct understanding that there will be a by-law and one that will be enforced. I think every store should close at nine o'clock, not only on Saturdays, but on every night preceding a holiday which often spoils the day of pleasure following it. With one exception and that only on Christmas Eve, would I allow the stores to remain open. Householders do not shop on Saturday nights, it is mainly maids who have been kept in till after eight, but a little thoughtfulness on the part of their employees would give them ample time to get around earlier. Friday markets would help wonderfully with the scheme."

Mr. Uglow is for It.

"What do you think of the new movement in the matter of early closing?" said the News to Mr. Unglow (bookseller), as this gentleman was unceremoniously stopped when walking briskly to his business this morning. "Now," said Mr. Uglow, "you are doing the right thing in taking up local questions and this is a good one. Say, by all means, that I am strongly in favor of closing at nine o'clock on Saturdays and five o'clock every other day. People can be educated to consider others and shop early just as well as late. It will be of public benefit all right."

Jack Henderson (groceries and liquors) is of the opinion that the early closing is a good thing, but is in doubt whether it can be enforced. He suggests a gradual reformation of the late hours, say ten sharp for a month, 9.30 for another, or even two, and then 9 o'clock. By that time the people will have become used to getting around early and will not feel the extra exertion of coming down town earlier in the evening. "Education," said Mr. Henderson, "is a wonderful thing, and the public can be educated to early closing if they think it is for their good and not put upon them as a compulsory restriction. Yes, I am certainly in favor of early closing."

Early Closing All Right.

"The News is making the people wake up and find that there is a paper in Kingston alive to the people's interests," said Charles Livingston (tailor). "Early closing is all right, and I am decidedly in favor of the scheme; in fact, I would prefer it at eight o'clock instead of nine. Like every new movement, the citizens think at first ruin stares them in the face; at the first hint of change in an old-fashioned arrangement. Wake them up to new ideas; to getting out of ruts and the ways of their forefathers. Why, it is like barring up your windows twenty-five years ago. A man would not sleep at night if by chance he had left a shutter off his store window; now he would be ridiculed if he attempted it. All a matter of education. Never mind the opposition from the few. Keep ahead with the other big cities and close up early. Don't be afraid to push the matter and to write up other good local topics. That is what business men like to read about in the papers."

Mr. Waldron Favors Present.

Mr. Waldron, who is one of the oldest dry goods merchants in Kingston, was approached by the News this morning in regard to the early closing, and had this to say: "I think with closing at five for the two warmest months of the year and at 6 every night, with the exception of Saturdays, when the hour is ten, is fair treatment to both customers and clerks. The hours are strictly adhered to and we treat our employees with every consideration. There are no complaints about the hours from our clerks; they are satisfied with the present arrangement, and so am I."

A HUSTLING SALESMAN.

Winnipeg has a reputation as a city of hustlers, and the E. W. Gillett Co. may be relied upon to have as their representative in the Manitoba capital a man who can hustle with the best. George D. Sinclair, who has been the Gillett representative in Winnipeg for two years, is well able to hold his own with the best salesman in the West, and has been responsible for an increase in their Winnipeg sales that must be a source of considerable satisfaction to his firm and to himself.

Geo. D. Sinclair, Winnipeg.

Mr. Sinclair understands the grocery business, having been brought up in it and having had long experience in positions of responsibility in first-class retail grocery stores. A big part of his success in selling goods to grocers is due to the fact that he understands the grocer's point of view, and is able to look at the business proposition from the standpoint of the retailer to whom he wishes to make a sale. He understands his customers and every salesman knows how important this knowledge is.

For a number of years Mr. Sinclair was manager of the grocery department of Mills & McCartney, of Minnedosa, Manitoba, and when John I. Miles went to Strathcona, Mr. Sinclair went with him, retaining the charge of the grocery department. A little later he joined the staff of Whitelaw & Nairn, of Edmonton, from whom he won golden opinions. "George was the best clerk I ever had," Mr. Whitelaw said recently to a business acquaintance. Under Mr. Sinclair's management a first-class grocery business was developed in a store which had formerly been devoted entirely to flour and feed. The foundations were laid for one of the particularly successful grocery businesses of the West.

Three years ago Mr. Sinclair went East to Toronto, where he joined the selling staff of the E. W. Gillett Co. After a year's experience as city traveler in Toronto, Mr. Sinclair was sent West to take charge of the company's business in Winnipeg, and a big increase in the Winnipeg business has followed as a result.

Mr. Sinclair is known as one of the best window dressers in the trade, and he has done a great deal to raise the standard of grocery window dressing in Winnipeg. He has shown many grocers that their windows give them an opportunity for cheap and effective advertising and has placed many an order for Gillett goods by dressing a window for a grocer and showing him that when properly displayed his goods will sell themselves.

C. A. CHOUILLOU RETURNED.

C. A. Chouillou, of C. A. Chouillou & Company, Montreal, has returned from a two months' trip to France, where he went on business and in connection with the meeting of the representatives of the Chambre de Commerce Francaise. The meeting was held in Bordeaux, France, and was attended by representatives of the various bodies forming part of the Chambre de Commerce Francaise from all over the world. Much interesting business was put through, and the meeting was a great success. Mr. Chouillou was the organizer of the congress, and acted as representative of the Montreal section with Mr. Revol and Mr. des Etangs.

Mr. Chouillou stated that the walnut crop in France promised to be small, and supplies would likely be ten days to two weeks late in reaching this market. French prune crop appeared to be in bad condition owing to unfavorable weather.

BRIGT OUTLOOK IN NOVA SCOTIA.

J. Frank Crowe, of Halifax, one of that city's important wholesale grocers, is in the city and called on The Grocer on Wednesday. Mr. Crowe is quite enthusiastic over trade prospects in Nova Scotia. The hay crop, he says, is exceedingly good, and the fruit crop, unlike that in Ontario, is well up to the average. Conditions as a whole, point to a good fall and winter trade, which is just beginning to open up.

GROCERY NEWS FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

CONTRIBUTIONS ARE INVITED FROM MERCHANTS IN SMALL PLACES OR WHERE THERE IS NOT A REGULAR CANADIAN GROCER CORRESPONDENT.

MONTREAL.

One of the worst effects of keeping open late evening after evening is the gradual falling off in the number of good grocery clerks. Retailers about town are finding to their dismay that it is really difficult to secure a clerk who can be depended upon, a man who has a thorough knowledge of groceries. First-class men, clerks with ability, can secure employment in wholesale grocery houses, and in the offices of brokers and manufacturers, where they work less time for more money than they do in the average grocery store.

In many instances their inclinations lead them to a position behind the counter, rather than a place on a stool in a broker's office, or a job behind the shipping desk in a jobber's warehouse, but it is against the grain, contrary to human nature, to work fourteen hours a day for a stated weekly salary when the same weekly remuneration awaits effort put forth in a ten-hour day.

While they recognize the danger likely to result from the lack of good clerks the retail grocers are not doing anything to prevent it. In one way they cannot be blamed. It is not natural that one man should start closing early and his competitor remain open and capture his trade. Every good grocer must act if the situation is to be saved. All must unite in the early closing movement. Then clerks, men who are born first-rate salesmen behind the counter, will not be tempted to forsake the scales for the office stool. And it will be the better for the retail grocery business.

"Modern methods must be used in the grocery store these days," said a Bleury street grocer recently, "if a man wants to make money. Labor is too dear to keep on in the old rut. I have the latest labor saving devices for carrying on my business. Notice my meat cutter there; it saves a lot of time and easily pays its cost. We have not time to use the butcher knife. Anyway, the butcher knife does not do the work so satisfactorily."

* * *

It is the man who is best equipped to meet competition that secures the most and best business to-day. The day of crude devices is gone, and modern methods must prevail if success is to be gained. It costs money to buy perpetual ledgers, install first-class refrigerators, put in up-to-date store fixtures, but it all comes back to the investor. Purchasers are not slow in recognizing a progressive grocer, and they would much rather patronize him than the old stay-in-the-rut, for they can be sure his goods are clean and fresh—he would not carry old stock. Then, when the word gets around, what a nice store Brown has, and what good service there is, people go for curiosity, and, as in old biblical times, "Those who come to scoff remained to pray," so those who come to look stay to buy.

"Yes, sir, you can just bet window displays have paid me," said a north end grocer the other day. "everytime. Of course, a good deal depends upon location. It happens that where I am now the public cannot conveniently see the window, I am so far back from the street, but a few years ago I had a stand on one of the busiest streets in the city, and week after week I dressed different windows and sold various groceries in large lots.

"I remember on one occasion I bought a job lot of preserves. I made a good price, and was able to sell them at a discount and still obtain a good profit. I dressed a window and advertised, and I tell you it was a caution the way they went. I had about one hundred and twenty-five dozen when I began selling, and every bottle just walked out, so great was the demand. This is only one instance; I could give you plenty more from memory. A good window will sell groceries every time, provided you have the goods to back up your display."

Insurance is a fine thing for a grocer and many do not realize it. Come to think of it, when a fellow loses his entire stock, he has to work mighty hard to get a new line of goods. Having insurance to cover half or two-thirds of your property, helps out wonderfully.

I know one grocer who was burned out last year, who did not suffer at all. He had wisely carried a policy and when the fire had run its course, he was little more than inconvenienced. To-day he has a better store than when he was in the old premises.

John Currie, or "Jack," as he is better known to his friends, of Currie Bros., Bleury street, spent some days in Ottawa at the Dominion Rifle Association meet. Mr. Currie is an enthusiastic rifleman, and a bowler. He belongs to the 5th Royal Highlanders.

* * *

H. David, with Fraser, Viger & Co., who has been laid up with appendicitis, will be around again in two or three weeks. Mr. David is considered one of the best window dressers in the city.

There have been three additions to the staff of Fraser, Viger & Co., lately. Messrs. Davies, Kennedy and Watkins.

PETERBOROUGH.

For selling a print of butter, which was supposed to contain sixteen ounces, and only contained thirteen, a well-known local grocer was called to the police court one day last week. While there was no evidence to show that the grocer was guilty of fraud in any way, His Worship severely addressed the prisoner, and indirectly, all the grocers in the city. It appears that a woman purchased a print of butter from the grocer, believing it to be a pound. She suspected it was light and took it to another store, had it weighed, and found that it contained only 13 ounces. The merchant was not fined, but he had to put up with the disgrace of appearing in police court and also to take the reprimand of the police magistrate.

This case is the outcome of the police raid on the market two or three months ago, when the women selling butter were dragged into police court. A little later farmers selling bags of potatoes that were short in weight, were fined by the magistrate. As far as butter is concerned, farmers never buy printers, which are supposed to hold a pound. Probably the women are a little careless and do not always fill the print to an exact ounce. That is a matter for them to look after and they should be compelled to be more careful. Merchants buy butter from the farmers and buy the prints, believing them to be a full pound. As a matter of fact, many of the prints are not. Thus every merchant who handles dairy butter is likely to be selling underweight pound prints. The police could walk almost any day into any store and find a case for the police court. It is, therefore, very urgent for the grocers to be careful in buying butter from farmers, to see that they are getting full pounds, and then be just as careful that they sell it for full weight. A grocer has little idea what amount of money he loses by his appearance in police court for selling light weight or short measure. He could have no more injurious advertising.

Thursday of two weeks ago will be a pleasant memory to all clerks and employers. It was the last weekly holiday the clerks will enjoy until next summer. During the past season Thursday afternoon has been a decidedly interesting time to everyone in the stores. Jas. R. Bell, who was the only grocer who closed his store, stated that he thoroughly enjoyed the rest and did not know how he would get along without it, unless he took two weeks off, which he could not afford to do in the busy season. He will close his store again next summer, and it is hoped that all the grocers will join in with the other merchants.

The word among the merchants now is the prospect of a very small tomato crop. The outlook early in the season was exceptionally bright and the early tomatoes came in in quantities and at reasonable prices. The weather was favorable, and it was felt that at least tomatoes would be plentiful, and that would help to make up for the small yield of fruit. During the past few days, however, things have changed wonderfully. The weather has been cold and the sun none too bright. The tomatoes are not ripening, and in some cases the small green ones are dropping off. It looks very much like a great setback, and the frost will catch them too soon. Reports from all districts are the same and now the grocers who were advising their customers to wait for the late crop, are urging them to buy and take no chances.

Farmers from many districts report a scarcity of potatoes of the late varieties. The late season, lack of rain, and cool weather, are the causes. A change in temperature and weather would make a big difference. It seems that every kind of farm and garden produce has been cut short this year, while the demand is greater. Take hay and oats. The merchants and buyers are expecting to have to pay $18 and $20 for the former, and 60c for the latter. The cereal companies are now paying over 50c a bushel for oats.

The C. W. & L. E. electric line is practically complete to Charing Cross. It is understood that the M.C.R., which was expected to raise objections to the crossing of its lines by the C.W. & L.E., has come to an understanding with the electric road, and that a further result of the understanding will be regular connections between the M.C.R. and Chatham, and the building of a fine new M. C.R. depot in the Maple City. The electric line will run their first business trip over the new extension on Sept. 15 or 16.

Farmers state that the scarcity of rain during the past few weeks has seriously injured the bean crop throughout the county. They declare that beans will be only half a crop as a result of the prolonged drought.

Bean prices advanced on Saturday to $1.50 for handpicked, the grades ranging from $1.30 to $1.50.

One of Chatham's pioneer merchants passed away on Sunday evening at an advanced age, in the person of John Rice. Many years ago he came to Chatham, a poor farmer's boy, and, after working in various establishments, set up for himself as a grocer and general storekeeper. He retired from business quite a few years ago. Two children survive him.

STRATFORD.

John Baker, employed with Mr. Durkin, at Mitchell, during the past three years, has gone to Saginaw, Mich., there to enter a wholesale grocery. Mr. Baker was a clerk of good ability, and a general favorite with the customers.

The other day your representative ran across a retired grocery man, who said: "The tendency of the merchants to-day is to get away from the old methods of doing business, and to strike a more scientific system, a system wherein accounts are better kept, credit watched much closer, more intelligent salesmen employed, and trained advertising men engaged. In other words it has been found that the selling of goods can be reduced to an exact science in the retail trade. Old-fashioned storekeepers paid little attention to the cost of doing business, but they were economical men in their own lives and they also ran their stores on an economical basis.

The S. H. Knox Co. opened up a large 5, 10 and 15-cent store here last week; the Board of Trade is dickering with one or two outside manufacturing concerns, with a view to their locating here, which all goes to show that the city of Stratford is going ahead.

HAMILTON.

September, the golden month, redolent of flowers and fruit, the glorious crowning of this beautiful summer—the month for the big, yellow, harvest apples, the luscious Crawford peach, the Green Gage plum, the cantaloupe—and last, but not least, the Canadian watermelon—which latter in this part of God's good country has a flavor that the southern melon knows not of—a firm delicious, satisfying meat that discounts the American every time. And right here I might say that all the products of this northern zone, in my opinion, excel those of our neighbors, not only in the products of the field, the orchard, the forest, the mine, but in human kind.

This month is the grocers' month in the city. More important than any other time in the year. With the holiday for Labor duly celebrated, comes the opening of the schools, the return of customers who have been away to the pleasure resorts, and the looking up of these people and the care to see that none of them have got away, is enough work for one or two people the beginning of the month. The proper way to greet them and the little helps that you can give then in settling back to the old life is peculiarly the work of the good grocers. It's the time when the dust and the flies cease to trouble, and everybody around the store can clean up, with the satisfaction of knowing that this time it may stay clean, at least a little longer than during the summer. The good clerk, he that loves the grocery business, not only for the weekly salary, but for the business in itself, now takes a fresh grip, and says to himself, that it begins to look towards Christmas and there is nothing like starting in time to have everything in ship-shape for the fall trade, so that the really good grocer and the really good clerk are plugging away for results, which are bound to come from united efforts wherever found. All grocers should make a hustle this month. Time is now on to look out for slow pay customers, and to win over the newcomer. Ontario is prosperous and nearly every town and village is being added to by the influx of new people. To the grocers who read this paper, I say, get after them. That's the start for your winter trade.

LONDON.

Grocery business is only fair, and brokers and wholesalers report very little change in prices. Teas of all kinds keep high, and sugars continue dull. Buyers are holding back on currants and raisins, expecting lower prices when the new crop fruit arrives. The first shipment leaves Patras about the 10th inst., but as the steamer takes on goods at Denia and other points, it will not likely reach Montreal before the middle or end of next month.

One of the largest poultry transactions on record in this province was completed on Saturday, when F. A. Faulds, of this city, sold to one dealer in New York 350 Black Minorcas, for an aggregate price of $1,400. Mr. Faulds got $8 apiece for his rosecomb pullets.

It would seem by this transaction that there is some money in poultry.

There is said to be every probability of an increase in the price of bread shortly, as an advance in flour is looked for. Local bakers declare they are now paying almost twice as much for flour as they paid a few years ago.

In compliance with the request of the Retail Grocers' Association, the market committee of the city council, has instructed the market clerk to proceed against all hucksters found violating the by-law. Six or seven of these people have been in the habit of cornering all have been in the habit of cornering all the produce brought in by the farmers and selling it again on the market or peddling it from house to house. They are all non-residents and pay no taxes or license.

Martin O'Meara, who died on Saturday, was one of London's best known citizens. For a number of years he conducted the Grigg House, and thus came in contact with the traveling public of the entire continent. He was a widower, but leaves a grown-up family, one of whom is Mrs. E. J. Ryan, wife of the treasurer of the Retail Grocers' Association.

GUELPH.

Toronto fair and other special inducements by the railways knocked out the grocery trade in this city on Saturday, and, my! how pleasant we feel when even some of our best customers come in and leave an order and say, "Oh! I am going to take a trip to Toronto, I can't settle this week. I will see what I have left when I get back." The G. T.R. and C.P.R. don't sell tickets on tick, and I don't see why a grocer ought to stand for this kind of business. But you do it—we all do it, and will continue to do so, I expect, until we get a united front. Then, again, you see it done every day during the fruit season. A person picks out your choicest fruit and says, "Just send it up. I will call in again and pay you." You know what "again" means as well as the rest of us. The fruit dealers must have the cash from the grocer, and we should insist on getting the cash from our customers also. If we had in Guelph a good Grocers' Association, it would help us all and need not interfere at all with the Merchants' Association, which does some good work, but does not meet the requirements of the grocery trade exactly, as our own association would.

There were some surprised people on our market Saturday, who came to buy cheap tomatoes. The price was firm at from 35c to 40c by the load, and a few grocers, as well as other people, did not get any. One firm went so far as to advertise a slump in tomatoes, but the slump did not slump on Saturday. It must have went with the crowd to Toronto. Tuesday's fruit market showed some of the finest tomatoes of the season, and prices a good deal easier, from 25c to 35c a basket being paid. Plums and peaches are being picked up quickly, as quite a number of people did not get any small fruits put down.

The house numbering, that has to be done before the Government start the mail delivery, is being pushed along, and when we get our letters delivered, and the new permanent road, costing $40,000, on Wyndham street, we will feel like bragging about our city. But at present the roads are really a disgrace to us. The contract for tne road was signed this week, and to-day we have the report of the manager of the waterworks that we have in the eleven springs at present being weired a capacity of two million five hundred thousand gallons of pure spring water every twenty-four hours, which will be a great help in relieving the anxiety of not only the commissioners, but a good many others.

The Guelph Co-operative Association got their meal store, alongside of their grocery and baking business, going last week, but they were summoned to appear in the police court for breaking a city by-law by selling too near the market. At the request of the president of the company, the case was adjourned for a week, but no restriction was placed upon the sale of meat in the meantime.

The prospects for a pleasant outing on the 12th September are getting brighter every day, and the G. & G. are going to run three trains from here on that day, all going within an hour, from 7.30 to 8.30. The general opinion is that the holiday will be observed, some of the largest merchants deciding to close, and the rest will likely fall in line. Come along and meet the people. It ought to bring a lot of new business our way.

Our Thursday half-holidays are done for this year and have been enjoyed immensely, but, after all, we had to work hard to get all the business done in half a day, and we won't be quite so busy on Thursday mornings now.

The Fels Naptha soap people are booming their soap here this week, sampling the city and dressing windows. It certainly helps the sales.

QUEBEC.

The grocery trade is fairly active for retailers and wholesalers, and a fine volume of business is being put through. However, the usual calm of the present month has evidently settled upon the trade. With berries coming in, the demand for sugar increases and will likely continue for some time. Prices are firmly held. Fruits are generally in good supply, the only notable change reported this week, is for Jamaica oranges, which are quoted $8.50 per barrel. The first Duchess apples of the season have just made their appearance on the market. They are selling from $3.25 to $4.00 per barrel.

Maple sugar is in great demand. Large lots from Quebec are sent to the American market. Present prices to the trade are: 8c to 9c per pound, and syrup, 75c to 90c per gallon. The supply is not heavy, and, on account of the exceeding demand, still higher prices are expected.

The blueberry harvest in the Lake St. John region is now in full swing. The crop is a heavy one and the figures may exceed the $100,000 mark. Last year the total value of blueberries picked in this northern district amounted to $90,000, which with the cheese and butter export trade, which annually amounts to over $1,000,000, makes a very handsome revenue coming into this part of the province. The Quebec blueberries are sold from 50c to $1.25 per box.

New potatoes are plentiful and of fine quality, the prices ranging about 60c per bag. Tomatoes show an advance of 10c, and are quoted 85c per box. It is reported that in the same part of the district vegetables have suffered from the heavy rains of July.

On account of the holiday on Labor Day, a great many of the wholesale groceries, flour, grain and provision establishments of our city were closed.

Crops from various sections of the district are satisfactory. It is expected that the average will be greater than last year. Pasturages are in excellent condition. In the Lake St. John region the hay crop is said to be very good.

There is a scarcity of fresh fish on the local market at present, and the supply is barely up to the demand. Prices are very firm.

The demand for butter and eggs is very good. The supplies coming forward are in small lots, and an advance in prices is expected this week by our local dealers. Prices are quite firm.

FORTIER & MONETTE REORGANIZED.

Letters patent have been granted Adelard Fortier, P. W. McLagan, C. W. Bowman, R. M. Ballantyne and F. Monette, Montreal, by which they will carry on business under the name of Fortier & Monette, Limited, as produce brokers, dealing in cheese, butter, eggs and other provisions and foodstuffs. They may also conduct, if they so desire, a cold storage and warehousing business. They are capitalized at $250,000, made up of 25,000 shares of $100 each. The new concern will take over the business at present run by Fortier & Monette.

NOTES.

The assets of Alfred Ricard, grocer, of Shawinigan Falls, have been sold.

Winfield & Logie, confectioners, of Quebec, have dissolved partnership.

J. E. Gwatchma, baker, of London, suffered a serious loss by fire this week.

On Tuesday the assets of C. Kirouach, general store, of L'Original, were sold.

The assets of MacKenzie Bros., confectioners, of Chatham, have been sold by auction.

The assets of Dufour & Dufour, who conducted a general store at St. Jerome, Que., have been sold.

Woodcock & Martin, of Norland, general store, have assigned to E. A. C. Clarkson, of Toronto.

A NATIONAL SLOGAN.

The new act, "Respecting the inspection of meats and canned foods," passed at the last session of Parliament, went into effect on Tuesday last, September 3rd. The regulations of this act should, if rigidly enforced, restore to the minds of foreign customers a confidence that has been somewhat shaken by past events. The recent packing-house scandals in Chicago, while not in any way connected with Canada, still managed to make themselves felt in Canadian trade. Because meats were shown to have been packed in Chicago under conditions so insanitary as to arouse the hostile criticism of all Europe and America, many people were impressed with the idea that Canada also was implicated in the subsequent exposure. Canadian houses, as a fact, were shown, on examination, to be singularly free from conditions to which anyone could take exception. This absolution, however, did not prevent a great number of foreign buyers, who were either unable or unwilling to discriminate between the two countries, from classing the States with the Dominion wholesales, and shunning the latter's products no less scrupulously than the former's. Canada has now almost recovered her reputation; but there are still a few doubting Thomases who have not yet returned to the fold. It is to these that the new act will appeal with the greatest force.

It is gratifying to note that more attention is given to cleanliness than to any other of the regulations. It is provided that "All appliances must be kept clean and sanitary. All steps in the course of production shall be carried on carefully and with strict cleanliness, and under the supervision of an inspector. Rooms in which carcases, parts or products thereof are prepared shall be frequently whitewashed or painted, and shall contain facilities for cleaning all equipment. Employes of the establishment engaged in handling foods must be free from tuberculosis or other communicable diseases, and must observe such general rules as to sanitation as may be deemed necessary by the inspector in charge.

"No carcases or parts thereof entering into the production of food shall be allowed to come into contact with anything that will contaminate or deteriorate them. Coverings used by employes to protect their clothing or persons shall be of material easily cleaned. Dressing-rooms and lavatory accommodations shall be ample, sanitary and fully equipped, and shall be entirely apart from any room or compartment used for the production or storing of food. The yards and pens belonging to or used in connection with any establishment shall be maintained in a clean, comfortable and sanitary condition, and shall not be used for the fattening of swine or other animals, nor shall any offal or other refuse from the establishment be utilized for feeding purposes. Inspectors in charge of each establishment will suggest to the manager or owner any needed changes in the sanitery conditions, and will be required to report weekly to the Veterinary Inspector-General as to the general observance of this section. Inspectors are authorized to refuse inspection if sanitary conditions are not observed."

The regulations apply only to establishments doing an export or inter-provincial business, but as this includes practically every packing house and canning factory of any size in the Dominion, the act may be said to be all-embracing in character.

Every can or package exported under the new act must be stamped with the words, "Canada: approved." Let us hope that this will, in time, come to be recognized as the national slogan of Canadian commerce in all markets of the world, and that by virtue of the confidence engendered thereby, Canada will receive, as she deserves, the recognition conceded to quality wherever quality is found.

A SLUMP IN POULTRY.

The past week has seen a peculiar condition of affairs in the local poultry market, which, like a good many other changes in the current foodstuffs situation, is indirectly attributable to the exhibition. The worthy farmer seems to think that Torontonians feed their exhibition visitors on the fat of the land and, as a consequence, at this time every year he chops the heads off his spring chickens and ships them in by the hundred, expecting high prices and a pocketful of money, which, in turn, will help him to have a good time at the big fair. In reality, exhibition visitors, particularly in the restaurants and most of the hotels, have to put up with just what they can get, and, outside of the very best hostelries, there is no great demand for poultry. These things became evident last week, and on Friday and Saturday spring chickens, which have only recently been scarce, almost glutted the market. On Saturday the supply was away above the demand and the price fell accordingly. The drop was two cents per pound straight on undressed chicks, and from two to four cents on the dressed variety. The situation was a little easier at the beginning of the week, but the previous condition of affairs is likely to occur again on Friday and Saturday. Ducks are plentiful and prices are going down. Turkeys, on the other hand, are as scarce as hen's teeth. "If I could get hold of half a car of turkeys," said a large dealer this week, "I could clear enough to pay my winter's coal bill." The cold storage stock is almost completely exhausted, and as the young birds will not have assumed their layers of plumpness sufficient to take their place on the market for a month or six weeks yet, the supply of turkeys is practically nil, and this condition will not be remedied for some time.

BE A BOOSTER.

Everybody likes the man who goes around with a smile on his face. Some way or other he seems to help you by his good humor. It's an old saying that happiness is contagious, and so is a smile. On the other hand the fellow that turns up at the wrong moment, and other times, with a long face and a tale of woe makes you feel that you have lost something. Therefore look pleasant. Be a booster. If something goes wrong do not tell all the world of your trouble, but quietly go about righting things, and never lose your smile.

People want to be amused, and they like to hear someone talk who always has a good word for somebody or something. Be a booster.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Currants—Easier in Greece.

Valencia Raisins—Easier.

Flour—Advanced.

Fish—Revised.

Montreal, Sept, 5, 1907.

Wholesalers report a slight picking up in trade already, though the fall season is still some little distance away. Still, the first of the fall months is now here, and as it grows business ought to begin booming. Interest this week centres chiefly upon the dried fruit market. Late reports from Denia would indicate a large crop, considerably above last year in quantity and the same advice reports lower prices. Currant quotations are easier also, while California raisins are being sold at figures slightly below those quoted a week ago. Teas continue very firm and business is handicapped more or less by the prices ruling. A better demand for molasses is reported. Flour has been advanced owing to strong demand locally, and abroad. Evaporated apples are quiet, dealers looking forward to new stock, which will be arriving shortly. Canned fruits and vegetables show no change worthy of special mention. New prices on tomatoes and corn are expected in the near future.

SUGAR—Demand for sugar has been disappointing lately, lots sold being anything but satisfactory for this time of year. The market, locally, is quiet and there does not appear to be any possibility of a change in prices.

TEA—Japan teas have not changed since last week. The firm tendency in the tea markets generally remains, prices all round being quite strong. Black teas are obtainable at prices which are reasonable enough considering existing conditions. Japans are likely to remain strong, and may be firmer yet.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Currant prices are a little easier since last week. Offers have been made of stock at prices 6d. below last week's prices, shipment second half September. Reports from Spain show that a good crop is expected, about half as large again as that of last year. It is estimated that three million boxes will be harvested, against two million boxes in 1906. This means in the neighborhood of 750,000 tons, against 500,000 tons. Prices are easier. California raisin prices are a bit more reasonable, dealers being willing to shade to the extent of ¼-cent or so, recognizing the fact that they cannot compete against the Valencia sellers unless prices

BUTTER—Market firmer. Prices for creamery 23 to 23½ cents. Dairy, stronger, 19 to 21 cents being asked.

CHEESE—Firm market. Country prices high, as much as 12 3-16 being asked. City quotations proportionately high.

PROVISIONS—Hay market not so strong. Lard firm. Smoked meats steady.

are brought down by them to a more reasonable level. Shelled walnuts are up, and nothing good is now obtainable under 25 cents. Shelled almonds are pretty well cleaned up locally, and 30 cents is the lowest that will be accepted for anything which must be delivered before the new crop early in October. Regarding walnuts in the shell, it is questionable if new stock will be obtainable in time for the holiday trade, and as a result, there is a good demand for cold storage walnuts.

EVAPORATED APPLES—There is one dull market for evaporated apples, which are selling around 9 cents in small lots when sales are made. Interest centres in futures. One sale is reported to have been made, New York, for October delivery, several cars, at 9 cents.

BEANS—Beans are slightly easier in price, wholesalers accepting $1.55 to $1.60, which is 5 cents better than last week's buying price. Soup peas are quiet for the time being, pending the arrival of new stock in three weeks or less, when there ought to be more inquiry for the line.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Latest reports would indicate that the corn and tomato pack would be in the neighborhood of fifty per cent. One factory has written the Montreal agent to this effect, and from what can be learned, it would appear that others will not be able to pack much more than this. Other canned vegetables are not being inquired for very extensively, and deliveries being made are not great. Salmon is scarce and high.

TORONTO—Retailers are not yet buying to any extent, but it will not be long now before everyone knows how they stand with regard to the tomato and corn packs. No serious shortage is looked for, but neither are low prices.

The salmon pack being a total failure, practically speaking, retailers who are fortunate enough to have any salmon on hand will do well to think twice before parting with it except at a pretty stiff figure. They will find it difficult to replace it once it is gone.

George Fleming, of Penhold, has discontinued his general store business.

Walsh Bros., of Oxbow, Assa., suffered a serious loss by fire in their general store business during the week.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Plums—Easier.
Pears—More plentiful.
Sugar—Steady.
Slump in hides.

Toronto, Sept. 6, 1907.

Trade for the past week is reported good by the wholesalers, and with the stimulus given to most lines by the Exhibition, there are no complaints. New prices have been given out by the Sugars Limited, on maple goods, and these quotations show an advance of from 40c to 60c, according to size. New crop currants are expected in New York about the last week in September, and samples received show that the stock is of good quality. The sugar market continues very strong, locally, and there appears to be no prospect of the other refiners following the lead of the Acadia Company in lowering the basis of prices last week. The arrival of the plum crop has not so far stimulated consumption to any extent, and it is doubtful if this fruit will show more than seventy per cent. of an average yield, some wholesalers considering even this estimate a liberal one.

Canned goods are going out well, and interest now centres around the tomato and corn packs. The only point on which everyone seems to be agreed is in not looking for low prices.

SUGAR—Nothing of special interest has developed since last week, but there is an indication of weakness to the market, the consumption of refined being greater, if anything, than last week. Early arrivals of the plum crop have not yet had any noticeable effect on the market, and, if present indications are to be taken as a criterion, the entire crop will not be sufficiently large to effect more than a temporary stimulation in the consumption. The general tone, however, is very strong, and there seems no likelihood of a similar action on the part of other refiners to that taken by the Acadia Company last week.

In the New York markets for raws a firmer tone has developed during the week, an advance of .03c having been made in spot quotations on sale at 3.92c for 96 degree test, Porto Rico Centrifugals. On this basis there is a firm undertone to the market, though according to Willett & Gray, reported transactions are not large.

The same firm, in reviewing the situation in raws, says:

"The strength of the position is due to the decrease in the visible supply, to the unfavorable reports of the new crops of Europe and Cuba, and to the action of the Permanent Commission of the Brussels convention accepting England's proposal and renewing the convention until Sept. 1, 1913.

"Receipts at the U. S. Atlantic ports for the week were 7,546 tons smaller than those of last week, and only 425 tons more than the requirements for melting. In Cuba, the stock at the principal ports is reduced to 86,000 tons, and according to our cable, rain is wanted for the growing crop.

"Mr. Licht cabled us early in the week, and, also, toward the close, that the weather was unfavorable for the growing beet crops of Europe.

"The London market advanced on heavy buying by English refiners, reacting only on beet, the close being 3d higher for cane, and unchanged for beet compared with last week. Prompt beet is now quoted at 9s 11¼d, which is the parity of 4.09c for Centrifugals at New York, or .17c above current quotations here. This difference will certainly become smaller as the activity on this side increases. Quotations for beet futures are 9s 11¼d for January-March, and 10s 1¼d for May deliveries. Contracts for February beet are offered at 9s 11¼d."

TEA — The market is featureless, trade being quiet and the demand unchanged from last week. Mail advices from London, under date of Aug. 22, say:

A further shrinkage in the values of medium teas has taken place during the past week—as much as ½d per lb. in many cases. Common leaf, although now obtainable in fair quantity at 6½d, has been steady in comparison, while the strong competition for fine descriptions has been, no doubt, largely caused by the knowledge of the smallness of the supply. Teas between 7d and 9d would now seem to be on such a low basis that consumption must be stimulated, and as soon as the balance of the old crop in second hands is disposed of—some quantity is being discounted somewhat heavily—the outlook for these grades should improve.

The record of the foreign and colonial tea trade during the first six months of the year, details of which we publish, bears evidence of a healthy state of affairs, for in spite of adverse market conditions, shipments of British growths marked an increase of nearly 3 million lbs. over the corresponding period in 1906. This improvement was due to Ceylon, whose exports to Russia—chiefly via the Siberian Railway—were no less than 4 million lbs. heavier than last year. The fact that the Calcutta market was practically closed during the greater part of the period was probably the cause of the falling off in Indian trade.

It is worthy of note that the season's average to date of Indian teas is very little above what it was at the same time last year, in spite of the fact that common teas are 100 per cent. higher. This is accounted for to a considerable extent by the comparatively very low price of medium tea, which will doubtless soon command more attention.

COFFEE—The past week has produced no features of special interest. "The chief feature of the New York market the first two days of last week," says The Journal of Commerce, "was a continuation of the heavy liquidation in the September position. The amount of coffee disposed of for this account was largely in excess of what was expected.

"The leading governing factor is the condition of the growing crop. Notwithstanding reports of frosts having been received from time to time lately, nothing so serious has happened and it is now too late to expect damage from this source. Cables have been received reporting the August flowering poor, with September prospects unfavorable. Estimates as to the size of the current crop have varied to such an extent that no reliance can be placed on any of them. Nobody knows what the carry over is from the previous crop, but the receipts at Rio and Santos have shown a decrease from the figures of a year ago. From July 1 to Aug. 29, Rio received 419,000 bags, as compared with 586,000 last year, and Santos 1 506,000, while last year 2,308,000 came down. Europe has been a liberal buyer of Santos, which has put this variety 15 to 25 points higher than this market, hence the offers of Rio have been more in evidence here, but speaking generally, while quite a liberal quantity of coffee has been offered in the cost and freight market, comparatively little has been available as the prices quoted were too high. In spite of the fact that the counting has continued to supply its wants in a hand-to-mouth way, the warehouse deliveries in the United States from Aug. 1 to Aug. 29 amounted to 397,525 bags. Consumers appear satisfied, under existing conditions, to let importers and jobbers carry the stocks for them. They have no faith in valorization, which is carrying 8,000 000 bags. Notwithstanding the fact that this plan is operative until Dec. 1, 1908. The visible supply, Sept. 1, is not known. During August, last year, it increased 808,600 bags, from 9,948,053 bags, Aug. 1, 1906."

DRIED FRUITS—It now seems to be assured that the Sultana raisin crop has been seriously affected by heavy rains, and while mail advices of two weeks ago still show prospects of a large yield, late cables indicate high prices, which, in themselves, may be taken as evidence that the crop has suffered disastrously. Previous to these cable reports, estimates of the crop were given as high as 55,000 tons, but if the amount of damage thought to have been sustained is even approximately correct, these estimates will have to be revised with some severity.

In currants, also, a vast amount of damage has been done by rains, which have come at a most inopportune moment. This, for the reason that about 75,000 tons of fruit were exposed on the drying grounds, 40,000 tons were still on the plants, and only some 35,000 tons were safely housed. Subsequent cables advise that the amount of rain damaged fruit is very large. Prices for sound fruit are firmly held, showing, if anything, an advancing tendency.

Latest reports indicate that about an average crop of Valencia raisins may be looked for, and state that although the berries are somewhat below the average in size, the fruit is of excellent quality, and, so far, in good condition.

LONDON GROCERS' PICNIC.

Last of the Summer's Outings on Saturday Furnishes Fun in Abundance.

The last of the mid-week half-holidays of the London retail grocers was celebrated on Wednesday afternoon last by the biggest, most enjoyable and most successful outing of the season. The weather was ideal and the street railway took to the delightful park at Springbank, five miles down the river bank, nearly five thousand citizens, who witnessed the best programme of sports presented there this year. Many novel events were provided in the bill-of-fare, affording unlimited amusement to both speculators and contestants. There were certainly "parcels of fun" in the boxing contests in barrels, the manner in which they tumbled helplessly about after receiving the knock-out blow being a source of great merriment to all. W. Bustin, a young pugilist with a great future, was cleaning up on them all, until J. H. Boyd, who travels for Red Rose Tea, got in the way, and he demonstrated that he could travel some in other lines by knocking Mr. Bustin out of his barrel amidst the frenzied cheering of his favorites, who were legion. As a grand finale to the boxing bouts a special three-round go was put on between Chancey Smith and Dick J. Woods, who, after some little squeezing, were forced into the barrels and with Ald. Gillean and Ed. Ryan as seconds respectively, the mill-work began. The fun was fast and furious for three rounds and Richard was getting the better of the argument when his second treacherously let go the barrel which he had been endeavoring to support, and Chancey, seeing his chance, sent home a straight jab to the solar plexus and over went Richard in a heap "down and out," and the championship belt was presented to the winner amidst the triumphant yells of his backers. Where the horde of youngsters who entered the melon-eating contest came from no one could tell, but there was a host of them, and whether they secured a prize or not all secured ample compensation by the enormous juicy slices of melon placed at their disposal. The event that perhaps attracted the greatest attention, and justly so, was the three-legged race arranged between Ed. Ryan and Mrs. Cartledge against Alf. Johnston and Mrs. Finch. Almost from start to finish it was a dead heat, and the judges had to give both teams a prize. Each lady is a 200 pounder—a fact that by no means detracted from the fun. The baseball match between the clerks and the bosses was fast and furious, in spots, and resulted in a tie, 11 to 11. It was called in the seventh inning for lunch. The batteries were as follows: Clerks—Bird and Hamilton; bosses—Ranahan and Abbott. Clem Garvey acted as umpire in a most satisfactory manner, and at no time allowed any brilliant plays to count. There were other races, a dozen and a half of them, and all contributed to the general enjoyment. The committee in charge were: President Harry Ranahan, First Vice-president Thomas Shaw, Second Vice-president W. T. Mullins, Treasurer Ed. Ryan and Secretary C. Hayes. Judges—J. H. Boyd, Clem Garvey, McK. Millman, Ald. Gillean, John Dillon and Mr. Baker, traveler for Sapolio. Grounds committee—Thos. Shaw, Alf. Johnston, J. Wilkey, Frank Paul, G. Leach and H. J. Granville.

LAKEFIELD GROCER MARRIED.

Percy Spence, an enterprising young grocer, of Lakefield, son of Samuel Spence, was married on Wednesday, August 28th, to Miss Victoria Nugent, daughter of Mrs. Nugent, of the same town. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother, Queen street, by the Rev. Hamilton Spence, of Tyrone, Ont., uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. J. Bedford, pastor of the Lakefield Methodist church. The happy couple left for a short honeymoon, to be spent in Toronto and other points, and on their return will reside in Lakefield, where Mr. Spence will have added inspiration toward the building up of a first-class grocery business.

ATTRACTIVE PACKAGE.

Goods for British Markets Should Have Neat Appearance.

Consul Albert Halstead, of Birmingham, reports that in the British market care in packing, attention to making products appear well, and, in general, everything calculated to attract the eye are of the greatest usefulness in promoting sales. The importance of this has been brought more clearly to his attention by an article in a British publication, from which he quotes the following:

"The successful sale here of numerous continental articles of food is due almost entirely to the neatness of the container. Such things as fruit, eggs, and vegetables, which come to us from the Continent, are neatly inclosed in boxes, and have apparently been washed before being packed. An edging of tinted or face paper occasionally serves to make the produce more tempting to the purchaser. Home-grown produce is not, as a rule, so attractively displayed and, in consequence, does not always command the sale. As a guide to the American sending goods to this market, the following incident will be of interest, because it shows something of the spirit of the purchaser with reference to the way goods are offered for sale: A farmer noticed customers in the grocer's shop picking over the celery to find the best-looking bunches, and it occurred to him to take more pains with his celery and see if it would bring a better price. He bought some pink tape and tied the celery with it in neat bunches, and found that it sold quickly and brought more money, while the same kind of celery without the tape sold slowly and brought less.

"After that he marketed all his produce in the most attractive manner, putting labels on his fruit baskets with the name of the variety, wiping his apples, selecting and labeling his tomatoes, always treating his fruit and vegetables as if they were worthy of distinction. The fame of his produce grew, he enlarged his business and became a wealthy man, all because of the pink tape on the celery.

"The bottles, labels, and other items connected with the packing of American proprietary medicines are much admired here, and the chemist readily concedes the fact that such matters are potent in assisting him to make sales. In considering this country as a market for American goods which reach the purchaser through retail shops and stores, I would advise the manufacturer to bear in mind the fact that the package forms an important detail in display either in windows or on the retailers' shelves."

There is a lesson in this for Canadian manufacturers.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon. Thursday, Sept. 5, 1907.)

Crop reports continue to be more favorable than was looked for two months ago, and with the present high scale of prices, it seems likely that the farmers will have quite as much money this fall as last. The railways have made careful preparations for the prompt handling of the crop this fall, and it is not likely that last year's tie-up will be repeated. Everything considered, the business situation in the west this fall is likely to be much better than was expected a month or six weeks ago. The renewed feeling of confidence among the trade is very noticeable.

CANNED GOODD—Most lines of canned fruits are a short pack this year and later in the season it will not be possible to fill orders. Roast beef and corned beef are advanced this week. We quote :

GROCERY AND TRADE NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 2.

During the past week flour has shown some activity, Manitoba patents having gone up ten cents a barrel. Dealers are expecting Ontario to follow suit at any time. Quotations now are: Manitoba, high grade, $5.85 to $5.95; Ontario, medium patent, $4.90 to $5; Ontario, high grade, $5.05 to $5.15.

Sugars are steady, present prices being: Standard granulated, $4.50 to $4.60; Austrian granulated, $4.30 to $4.40; bright yellow, $4.30 to $4.40, and No. 1 yellow, $4 to $4.10.

All kinds of fruits, both green and dried, continue very high.

In the produce line, butter and eggs are reported scarce, and are held for slightly increased prices. Potatoes and all kinds of vegetables are down in price and are coming in freely.

The first lot of Nova Scotia apples brought here this season arrived on the schooner Maudie, of Port Lorne, a few days ago. There were fifteen or twenty barrels of fair quality. The Maudie also brought the first apples of the season last year.

St. John is thronged with visitors today, who are here to attend the big firemen's tournament. Merchants in all lines of trade are expecting to reap a harvest to-morrow from the out-of-town buyers, who have taken advantage of the cheap railway and steamship rates.

The retail dealers report that business is showing some improvement since the schools re-opened, and families are returning from their suburban residences.

Judging from the progress already made in the construction work of the new cold storage plant on Main street, the building will be in readiness for business early in October. Definite arrangements have not yet been made about the three stores that will be provided on the Main street side of the structure, but it is probable that one will be used for vegetables and fruits, another for meats and the third for dairy products.

Good progress is being made with the wharf building operations on the west side, and there is now no doubt that there will be at least one more berth and warehouse than there was last season for the handling of the immense import and export business that is expected.

GRECIAN CURRANT CROP.

A Summary of the Situation and a Forecast.

In view of the present situation in currants the following remarks by vice-consul H. J. Woodley, of Patras, are of considerable interest:

"The regular development of the currant crop so essentially depends upon a sequence of favorable climatic conditions that a survey of the weather during the past six months and its effect upon the currant plantations forms the only reliable basis for forecasting the size of the forthcoming crop.

"The winter of 1906 proved one of the most severe experienced during the last forty years. An abnormal quantity of snow covered not only the higher slopes of the mountains, but also extended down to the lowlands around the coasts, which contain most of the currant plantations. The rainfall during the months of February, March and April was almost incessant. The heavy rains and melting snows resulted in the flooding of many low-lying districts, and cultivating operations were generally retarded in consequence.

"During May and June the weather continued favorable for the regular development of the currant crop, which, according to the most reliable information obtainable at present, is estimated at about 155,000 tons. On the whole, the severe winter appears to have been beneficial to the currant plantations, and the extreme cold is generally believed to have prevented the appearance of the "peronosporos." This disease, which is a species of white blight, is usually most destructive in seasons during which heavy rains alternate with hot weather, and develops most rapidly in the moist heat generated.

"It should be borne in mind that at this period all estimates regarding the new crop are premature and necessarily subject to modification by adverse climatic influences before the crop is finally secured.

No Old Crop Available for Export.

"The general course of the local currant market during the past six months has been remarkably steady, and in consequence of the comparatively small crop shippers have shown no inclination to operate except at full market value. Prices which at the beginning of the season opened at about 15s. 6d. (shilling=24½ cents; penny=2 cents) per hundredweight for provincial fruit, rapidly advanced to about 23s. per hundred weight cost and freight New York.

"In spite of the higher prices ruling, the demand has been greater than in previous seasons, and shipments to the United States up to June 30 totaled about 14,700 tons, against 13,700 up to the same period in 1906. Practically no old crop fruit is now available for shipment, except that held by the Privileged Company, and this fruit can only be exported at the fixed minimum price of 200 drachmas (5½ drachmas=$1) per 1,000 Venetian pounds, which is equal to about 21s. 9d. per hundredweight packed in barrels and cost and freight New York."

EXERCISE CARE IN EXTENDING CREDIT TO NEW CUSTOMERS

F. T. Longley, secretary of the Little Rock Retail Grocers' Association, in the course of some remarks on the best methods of extending credit to new customers, said :

"Beyond a doubt the most important item in all that goes to make a successful credit business is that of handling book accounts.

"No other feature of the business is so necessary if success is to be achieved, and certainly no other one thing is so often neglected.

"A man may have sufficient capital for the volume of business he is doing, may be a good buyer, confining his stock to good selling lines bought at right prices, may be able to establish and maintain a proper ratio between his gross sales and his expenses, may get prices that should leave a fair margin of profit after allowing for expenses and a reasonable percentage for bad accounts, and yet if he does not adopt and follow a definite and correct system in handling his book accounts he is bound to fall short of success and is almost certain to eventually wind up in failure. To this end he should begin by getting the name and address of every applicant for credit, whether married or single, where employed, in what capacity and at what wages, names of persons or firms with whom he has traded on credit, or good references in case he has never run an account, as might be the case of a young man leaving the parental roof.

"With all these precautions," adds Mr. Longley, "losses are bound to occur."

TRAVELERS' HOLIDAYS.

By a Salesman.

Another short week or two will see the close of the summer holiday season, and the last of vacation days for the army of salesmen all over Canada. Instead of being able to look forward to the fishing trips, boat excursions, camp life and summer resorts, all this will soon be a thing of the past for another year.

A good many firms neglect the vacations of their salesmen. Does this pay? If one contrasts the jaded, lack-adaisical manner of those who go vacationless from year to year with the refreshed vigor and animated enthusiasm of the men who have enjoyed a brief holiday, one cannot help but think the question fully answered. The most progressive business houses to-day are those who look carefully after the vacation season of their men, help them plan for it in some cases, but under no circumstances allow them to miss it.

The holding of summer conventions inaugurated several years ago by our enterprising neighbors across the borde" and now being followed by some of our most progressive firms, cannot be too highly spoken of. These conventions not only allow a relexation from business, which is in itself refreshing, but affords an exchange of ideas, an insight into the working methods of the "other fellow" that stimulates each attendant towards better results on his own part.

Another thing that should not be overlooked in mentioning the advantages of holidays for the traveling man, is the opportunity they give him of visiting his family for more than two days at a time.

AS REGARDS TEA SALES

Let us help you. We can do it.

Every grocer is in business for profit, and tea sales are the important feature of his business.

To buy bad tea or to buy tea badly is equally disastrous to his trade. He must sell the right tea at the right price right along if he would hold and increase trade.

Now, that is just where we come in. We are tea experts exclusively. We make every feature of tea our study. Our customers get the advantage of all our knowledge and experience. We have now arriving some very choice new teas, and would be pleased to send you samples.

Remember! It is quality which wins out and only quality. If it is quality you need, we can help you. If it's "package" tea you want, our "Melagama" is the one tea of quality and uniformity and shows good profit. Write us.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Cheese quotations to-day are surprisingly high for a normal season. Last week 11⅞c. was thought to be a very fair figure to mention when high prices were talked, but this week no seller would consider that price.

At the end of the week there was a sharp advance, due, some believe, to manipulation. No matter the cause, the advance is a reality, and quotations to-day are higher than they were a week ago. Some houses quote as low as 11⅞c for Quebecs, but more quote 12⅛c. Ontarios sell as high as 12⅛c, and as low as 12⅜; townships around 12c. It is difficult to-day to give quotations likely to meet the ideas of everybody.

English houses have not by any means followed the advance. They were buying at a little at the prices which ruled last week, but after the jump there was a falling off in demand. Trade to-day is confined almost entirely to local demand, dealers filling small orders for this district and outside points within a reasonable distance.

In the Old Country the market has not changed a great deal, being about steady. There continues more or less talk of a bullish nature regarding the make, but neither buyers nor sellers are to be blinded to the true conditions, which indicate an average English make.

Receipts of cheese last week amounted to 81,388 boxes, against 79,521 boxes previous week, and 91,885 boxes corresponding week 1906. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 1,343,531 boxes, against 1,475,590 boxes for the same period last year.

This week butter prices show an advance of ¼c. At prevailing figures trade is dull, as far as the Old Country is concerned.

Buyers simply will not pay the prices demanded on this side. They are in a position to secure butter of equal quality from other sources, and the prices are much more interesting to them.

The make this year is not large. Feed has been very high all winter, and farmers have not been able to feed their cattle as they should be fed to yield the quantity of milk required. The weather has been dry also, and pastures have not been in as good condition as might be wished, so that all things considered, it is not surprising to find the make below last year. As has been stated before, there are not so many factories running butter this year, as in 1906. So many have been attracted to cheese by the high prices that butter has suffered. The quality of the butter has not deteriorated, dealers finding it first-class. No complaints worthy of mention have been received this year, which must be considered a good sign.

Prices range from 21c to 22½c, according to quality. Townships is quoted 22¼c to 22½c, with Quebec around 22c and Ontario 21c to 21½c. There is very little of the latter obtainable. Consumption in the West is such as to take nearly all there is arriving in Ontario. Dairy is scarce, and prices run all the way from 18½c to 19½c.

Receipts last week were 15,685 packages, against 14,780 packages previous week, and 20,806 packages corresponding week last year. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 281,274 packages, against 432,420 packages for the same period 1906.

Dealers do not expect any orders from the other side as long as present prices rule. They are altogether too high to meet the ideas of Old Country buyers, and until they decline, it is not likely that there will be any sales of any size to the other side. Local dealers are not worrying much, however, as they firmly believe that Canada can consume all the butter produced in the Dominion. Stocks are not accumulating here, which would serve to carry out this statement.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

Receipts of hogs for the past week have been light, running about 19,000 to 20,000. Farmers are not anxious to loosen up on their stock yet a while owing to the very weak tone of the market. Prices declined again last week, and are now quoted at $5.90 to $6.10 f.o.b. country points. The Old Country market has declined about 6s., and there is no immediate prospect of any improvement in the situation. The heavy receipts of bacon from Denmark and Ireland, which were the determining causes of last week's decline, continue without reduction. American shipments have also been above normal.

Though prices are not yet fixed for next week, there is no doubt that they will be lower, and most houses are in a very pessimistic frame of mind with regard to the future. Buyers in England are naturally pursuing a waiting policy, and there seems no reason to doubt that their obvious expectations of a lower market will be realized.

The domestic situation is somewhat improved, and Canadian cuts are moving out more freely. But packers are not yet looking for live hogs in any quantity.

The Journal of Commerce, reviewing the week, says:

"There have been no important developments, activity or change in prices of hog products the past week. There was a tendency to put up options early in the week with corn on poorer prospects of new crop. But after mid-week, when profit-taking sent corn off, products sympathized. It has been impossible to get full returns of receipts, as the telegraph strike still prevents it; but receipts at the east have been light and hogs higher, while at the weat they were lower on larger receipts near the close. There was a little more cash demand for products early this week, but it was at some shading of prices in lard and city bellies, though hams west were held up by packers with the speculative staples. But there has been no activity except in switching September stuff to later months and the high carrying charges as in grain have had a bearish influence. Packers have not appeared to be doing much, except to widen the carrying charge, and this has depressed the September option and steadied up the later ones somewhat. But there has been little to entitle these markets to be called more than a side show to grain, and a pocket one at that."

PROVISION MARKETS

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Provisions are quiet this week. With the coming of cooler weather demand for smoked meats is falling off. Lard will soon be selling freely, the fall and holiday trade requiring extra supplies. Canadian short cut mess pork has been advanced 50c.

BUTTER—Trade in creamery butter is good, at better prices than ruled last week. Nothing worth while is being done in an export way, the business mentioned being entirely local. Dairy is extremely scarce and higher prices rule in consequence of the shortage.

PROVISIONS—Business continues to be active, with the market somewhat stronger, though prices generally hold about the same as a week ago. The approach of the closing of navigation, which forces Western shipments to a considerable extent, and the opening of the lumber camp trade, is causing a briskness in several lines.

In fresh meats, lamb is lower, under heavy supplies. Beef has also dropped a point or two, and, on account of the heavy shipments in hogs, the prices are a little easier.

BUTTER—Butter is still rising, and this week's market is a cent or two above last week's quotations. The demand occasioned by the rush of Exhibition visitors is to some extent responsible for this, but the supply all round is so short, that prices are bound to be very stiff.

CHEESE—The market is somewhat stronger than last week, with prices correspondingly in advance.

POULTRY—Spring chickens came in in abundance at the end of the week, in fact, the supply was ahead of the demand, and, as a result, the price dropped from 2 to 4 cents per pound. The situation was relieved a little at the beginning of the week, but shipments will probably be large to-morrow and Saturday.

SHOULD EXTEND TRAP SEASON.

Fishermen Make Representation to Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Victoria, Sept. 4.—Representations have been made to the acting Minister of Marine and Fisheries, of British Columbia, requesting that the trap season, which terminated on the 25th inst., should be extended for the taking of cohoes, humpbacks and dogsalmon. The permission was granted last year, and it is claimed there is far more reason for it this year.

J. H. Turner, Agent-General for the Province, in London, England, arrived here a few days ago. Mr. Turner, who is a pioneer of this city, and was formerly Premier of the Province, says there is a large counter-motion in England to exploit the British Columbia fisheries for the London market. The operations of the company will be extended to the halibut, salmon and other fish, which will be transported in refrigerators. Arrangements have already been perfected. it is said, for the carriage of the fish by rail and steamer.

THE APPLE CROP.

A Large Quantity, But Small in Size—Shippers Warned.

A recent despatch from the department of agriculture, Ottawa, says:

The reports indicate that there will be a large quantity of very small apples; otherwise fairly good. Shippers should not forget that there is no lowering of the standard, and that the size for No. 1 or No. 2 is not the medium size, as grown in Western or Southern Ontario in 1907, but the medium size in an ordinary season. There will, therefore, be a large number of apples that will be marked No. 2, or even No. 3, for no other reason than that they are too small to qualify for a higher grade. The fruit inspectors have already recommended the prosecution of some shippers who have offended in this particular.

Agner Montague, grocer, Hamilton, has sold out to John Patterson.

Henry J. Vaughan, grocer, of Hamilton, has taken over the business of H. N. McGregor.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Latest Report on the Western Wheat Crop Gives Prospects as Favorable—Fall Trade Beginning in Flour and Cereals.

The outcome of the wheat crop is still somewhat too speculative to induce buyers to abandon the waiting policy that they have been maintaining for some time past. The Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, representatives of which have recently concluded their annual tour thorugh the wheat growing districts of the West, report the prospects excellent under certain conditions. The concensus of opinion seems to be that if the crop can only be garnered before the frost gets at it, the farmers will have an exceedingly profitable year. General cutting will not begin much before next week, and in some districts probably not before September 15.

Flour and cereals, the former especially, are moving more briskly under the usual fall demand. Millers report export enquiry, also, as picking up again, but foreign buyers are still a little shy of present quotations.

Confectionery.

Chocolates and Christmas are, or should be, synonymous terms with the retailer. It is a little early yet perhaps, he thinks, to worry about his Christmas trade, but it is never too early to lay plans, and it is safe to say that many hundred dollars are every year passed up by grocers about Christmas time, simply because they refuse to give their confectionery department the prominent place in their business that belongs to it by right. If you happen to be one of these people, start a reform before it is too late and see to it that you get your share of the fall and Christmas candy trade.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—All flour has been advanced since last report. The market has been very firm locally for some little time past. Demand has been strong and export business heavy, so that millers felt justified in putting up prices as they did. A firm market rules to-day.

PERSONALITY IN SALESMANSHIP.

"Perhaps the strongest factor in salesmanship is personality," says Graphonotes, published by the Columbia Phonograph Co.

"The Diamond Match Co. makes matches; millions, billions, trillions of them. They are good matches. The heads don't fly off. You can strike them almost anywhere.

"As a result, the Diamond Match Co. sells more than seventy-five per cent. of the matches in the United States.

"How did they get the business? Here's how. Trust? Yes, but that didn't get them trade; it rather drove it away.

"Way up in Minnesota there was a man named Mason. His real name was Frederick Mason, but nobody suspected it. He was Fred to everybody. He was big in body and in mind. He was the national organizer of the Retail Grocers' Association. He made that organization one of the most powerful in America.

"He had that mysterious something called personality.

"He has it yet.

"The Diamond Match Co. heard about him. They went after him in the way large corporations have. They got him, but not until he had satisfied himself that their matches were as above described."

We heard him address several hundred merchants.

He talked square and told them the "why" of things. They'd all had the Diamond Co.'s travelers after them at one time or another, but somehow sales hadn't tallied with the company's expectations; maybe they were too optimistic. But within two minutes Fred. Mason had a grip on that crowd that dynamite couldn't break. He told those retailers just where to get off on the subject of Diamond matches, and because they liked Fred's way of telling them, and because his personality and magnetism forced them to weigh what he said, and, in the end, admit he was right, they bought Diamond matches. They believed in them after they had listened to Fred, and their enthusiasm kindled a similar spark in the minds of their customers. The matches were good matches, extra good, in fact, but until Fred took hold there didn't seem to be any way of convincing other people of their merits except in spots. Now everyone knows them and most people buy them. But they don't know that they are doing it on account of the personality of one man.

TRADE NEWS OF NOVA SCOTIA

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 2.

The produce markets are very active just now and large quantities of goods are being turned over. Potatoes are on the downward tendency and are quoted at $1.60 per barrel. A further drop is looked for as large quantities are coming on the market. During the past week there has been a marked scarcity of eggs, and the price went up in consequence, 21 cents being asked for case stock. Very few Nova Scotia eggs are on the market. Those offering are quoted at 26 cents.

The export of blueberries from Maritime ports to the American market this season has been unusually heavy. From Yarmouth they are sending on an average of one thousand crates per week. One of the steamers, the Yarmouth, which sailed early last week, had over eight hundred crates on board. Nearly every boat from Charlottetown also carries heavy shipments, some of them being as high as two hundred crates. Berries are scarce in the United States, and they are selling from thirteen to fifteen cents per quart.

Reports from Prince Edward Island say that the oat crop there this season promises to be the most productive for years.

Apples are coming in more plentifully. The best varieties of local grown stock sell from $3 to $4 per barrel. This price is for sweet varieties. Some apples of small growth are selling at $1.50 per barrel. Tomatoes are coming in quite plentiful and the price is dropping. Twelve-quart baskets can now be purchased for thirty cents.

Notwithstanding that the waters of the Cape Breton coast abound with fish, there is but one Sydney man in Sydney who is engaged in the catching and curing of fish. He is James D. McMillan, and he operates a fish curing plant on McKinnon's wharf. He has a small fleet of boats, and thus far this season he caught and cured ready for market over five hundred quintals of codfish and haddock, the most of which has been shipped to Halifax. Boneless cod, which he boxes himself, is one of his products which has met with a ready sale. Mr. McMillan has found the industry very profitable thus far. The steamer, Halifax City, which arrived here last week from St. John's, Nfld., had, among other cargos, fifteen hundred cases of canned lobsters, which were re-shipped to Havre, France.

The fishermen of Tiverton, Digby Co. are in high glee over the prices realized by them at a sale of fish sounds which took place at Digby last week, the firms of How & French, and R. H. Hamilton, of Boston, and Cunningham & Thompson, of Boston, being the competitors. For the past five years prices have ranged from 30 to 35 cents per pound, but on the present occasion the bidding went beyond high water of any recent years and twelve thousand pounds were knocked down to the representative of How & French at 99½ cents per pound.

The G.L. Murphy & Co., Limited, of Sydney, N.S., has been incorporated under the Nova Scotia Companies' Act, to take over and carry on the wholesale grocery business previously conducted by the firm of G. L. Murphy & Co. The capital stock is $60,000. The directors are: Peter McGrath, Charlottetown, P.E.I.; G. L. Murphy, J. A. Young, and W. T. Lynch. Mr. McGrath, who is largely interested in the stock of the new concern is the President, and Mr. Murphy is the Secretary and Managing Director. Under Mr. Murphy's management the business has been very successful in the past, and success is predicted for the new company in the future. Mr. Murphy, who is a hustling young man, deserves a large share of the credit for the way in which he has built up this business.

People are being educated on every hand into the importance of pure Food.

The government, the magazines, the newspapers, are all in the good work—and the demand for adulterated articles must cease.

Your customers are learning how pure and good St. George's Baking Powder is—how free it is from alum, ammonia, lime and other adulterants. They have been reading about the law in England that makes it illegal to sell alum baking powders. They are beginning to realize what a large percentage of Canadian baking powders contain alum and acid phosphate. They know St. George's Baking Power is guaranteed to be made of Cream of Tartar, 99.90 per cent. pure—and they will be asking you for St. George's.

It will pay you to stock St. George's—Alum and other adulterated brands will soon be impossible lines.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Bitter Oranges and Lemons Will Be Exceedingly Scarce—Canadian Plum Crop About 70 Per Cent. of Average.

Mail advices from Messina, under date of Aug. 5, state that the crop of bitter oranges in Sicily is a failure all over the island, and that in the neighborhood of Calabria there are only about one-third of the fruits there were last year.

Present quotations are higher than last year for new lemons for October shipment. The fruit is rather green and will probably not be ripe enough to ship before the second or third week in October. The first arrivals should be on this market by the first week in November. Fruit on the trees is costing nearly $1 per thousand more than last year. The cost of labor and raw material has advanced, and this, in conjunction with the shortage in the crop, will likely mean higher prices.

Canadian fruit is taking a prominent place on the local market, plums particularly being in evidence. Though the quality of this fruit is very good the crop is likely to be exceedingly short. indeed, a prominent fruit merchant earlier in the week, giving it as his opinion that the crop would not be more than 70 per cent. of the average.

The general outlook for the vegetable crop in Ontario is not at all encouraging. All the crops have suffered from want of rain and cold nights, and the ravages of slugs and cutworms have also been serious. In general, the potato yield is expected to be only half the average. Beets, carrots and turnips will be fair, but parsnips will be rather more scarce than usual.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—New Verdilli lemons are selling freely, while oranges continue in fairly good demand at ruling prices. California grapes are quoted this week for the first time, and though prices are not low, business is satisfactory. Plums and peaches have been advanced. Bananas are slightly lower.

VEGETABLES—Demand for vegetables continues strong. Although supplies are large, dealers have no trouble in cleaning out their stocks every night witnessing cleared stalls on the market. Late growth vegetables are now in their prime. Prices hold steady, but are likely to firm up in the near future as the season draws to a close and supplies begin to get scarce.

FISH—With continued cool weather there has come an improvement in the fish trade, and this week various kinds are in good demand. There have been no radical price changes. Haddock and steak cod are higher, while No. 1 green cod is 50c a case lower. Halibut is not plentiful. Lake trout and whitefish are arriving freely, while brook trout and dore are also in better supply, though prices are not changed. Labrador salmon and green cod are arriving now and are subject to fair demand, as the first of the season. Smoked and prepared varieties are in better demand now that the cooler weather has set in.

FRUITS—The prices of last week remain fairly steady. The unusually high price of California fruit are to some extent affecting its sale on this market but its place is being filled by Canadian fruit, particularly plums, which appear to be of good quality and which are selling well. Pears are coming in slowly, but heavier arrivals are expected shortly, and this fruit will probably be plentiful next week. Peaches continue scarce, with top-notch prices, and it seems that this condition of things will hardly be relieved this season.

PEACHES FOR ENGLAND.

Although, in view of their extremely delicate nature, the export of peaches from Canada to this country, writes J. B. Jackson, Canadian commercial agent at Leeds, does not hold out the same possibilities as the apple and pear trade, still the following particulars may be of interest to those shippers who have had the enterprise under consideration. This fruit generally arrives here in sieves containing half a bushel, which fetch a price ranging from 96 cents to $1.20. The usual course is simply to pack them loose and cover them with very fine wood fibre, which is protected by four cross sticks fixed at various angles at the top of the sieve. Opinions are almost unanimously given, however, that nectarines are a much superior fruit to stand the transit from Canada. Not only are they described as being the equal to the peach in quality (being a cross between that fruit and the plum), but they are also said to keep twice as long as the peach. They are generally packed a dozen or fifteen to the box, each box fetching a price ranging from 24 to 30 cents.

E. D. Marceau Co., Montreal, is advertising elsewhere in this issue their various specialties. They anticipate the arrival of several lots of fine Japan teas.

ST. JOHN MERCHANT DEAD.

Thomas White, Prominent Confectioner, Passed Away on August 25.

The death occurred on Sunday, August 25, of Thomas White, of St. John, N.B. Mr. White was on the train going from Montreal to St. John when death claimed him. With his wife he had been spending a few weeks in his old home in Scotland, and feeling ill, he desired to return to his family in St. John. A cable message was sent to his son Frank at St. John, to meet them on their arrival in Montreal, and when they reached there on Saturday last on the Lake Erie, he was at the steamer's side.

Mr. White was placed on board the train by the steamer's physcian and he seemed to resting easily, but before Sherbrooke was reached he had passed away.

Mr. White was the founder of the White confectionery business in St. John, which now has branched out in charge of several of his sons, into some of the winterport's largest industrial concerns. The business started by Mr. White is now run under the name of the Frank White Catering Company, and besides the confectionery store and restaurant on King street, they control the catering and amusement privileges at Rockwood Park and Seaside Park, St. John. The wholesale firm, known as the White Candy Company, has passed into the control of another son, Thomas F., while still another son, William, is in the firm of White, Phillips & Company, wholesale confectioners.

Mr. White was one of St. John's best known and most highly esteemed citizens. His unfailing good humor made him popular with every one, gnd he will be greatly missed from a large circle of societies with which he was connected.

He was for twenty-five years a member of Hibernia Lodge, F. & A. M. He was twice vice-president of St. Andrew's Society. He was also a member of Clan McKenzie, Order of Scottish Clans, and an enthusiastic member of St. Andrew's Curling Club.

On the first day of January last past, Mr. and Mrs. White celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, when hundreds of friends called upon them to extend congratulations. The deceased leaves a widow and six sons.

Mr. White was seventy-five years of age, having been born near Glasgow, Scotland, on May 22, 1832. His father was Leslie White, a broker, who emigrated to New Brunswick with his family in 1845, but returned the following year. Thomas, however remained, and after moving about for some time, finally settled in St. John and entered the confectionery business with Alex. Martin. In 1865, Mr. White made his first venture in business for himself as a confectioner.

His store was burned in the great fire of 1877. Mr. White retired from business in 1899, since when the business has been carried on by his sons.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR APPLES.

As the apple season approaches the information given in my previous reports as to the excellent market for Canadian fruit this season in the northeast of England, writes J. B. Jackson, Canadian commercial agent at Leeds, is confirmed in every respect, and I shall be only too pleased to assist those Canadian shippers who are new to this market, in bringing them into touch with suitable connections to do business with. It should be kept well in mind that local fruit salesmen are almost as anxious to become known to reliable Canadian shippers as the latter are to become connected with reputable firms on this side, even more so, in some cases.

Canadian apples have attained such fame on the British market that if a shipper will only make arrangements with a local importer to send him regular shipments, and see that his fruit is kept up to standard throughout the whole season, he can rely on not only doing a full season's trade this year, but in years to come also. Let him, however, send fruit of an inferior quality to the "grade" stated, and not only his own reputation, but the reputation of all Canadian apples is materially affected for some time to come in the estimation of this new importer.

EFFECTIVE WINDOW DRESSING

A Well-dressed Fruit and Vegetable Window—An Effective Window—Trim of Cut Glass—Some Timely Hints.

Reproduced on this page is the photograph of a window dressed by H. Jones, of Pembrooke, for J. B. Kemp. Mr. Jones is no stranger to The Grocer, he having been one of the keenest competitors in our various window-dressing competitions held during the past year.

Mr. Jones sends us the following description of the window:

"Bottom of window, reading left to right-hand corner: Cabbages, basket of wax beans, basket tomatoes, bananas, tomatoes, basket of cucumbers cabbages.

"In the centre: Wire basket of oranges, wire basket of vegetables, carrots, beets, onions, lettuce, parsley and radish, arranged as a bouquet, decorated with asparagus fern, glass stand of large oranges, basket of vegetables similar to bouquet, and wire basket of lemons.

"At the back: Crate of raspberries, glass stand of peaches, large fancy stand of water melons, glass stand, with pears, lemons and box of peaches.

"At the left side of the window is shown a branch of a tree with pears hanging from it, and at the right side a branch of choke cherries with the fruit. Suspended from the ceiling of the store at back of window, are three bunches of bananas, which do not show, owing to the heavy reflections of buildings opposite.

A Fruit and Vegetable Window.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

Good window dressers are usually developed by continual practice in displaying goods in their own trade. The training, however, is in most cases of a rather haphazard kind. It is seldom clear, deliberate, or methodical.

Practice, of course, is the chief thing, but before practice in such an art as window dressing we must have theory. Previous to dressing a window we must have a plan.

Imagination must, therefore, be a principal ingredient in the successful window dresser's composition. The man who has little can cultivate what he has to a surprising extent. When he has done so, he will be able to plan good windows.

Imitation will help him. After he has learnt to copy well the efforts of others, and, perhaps, to improve on them; as a result, he will find himself able to think out schemes of his own.

A great help towards this is a keen sense of the value of novelty—the importance of making a complete change every time the window is dressed.

It matters not whether you are showing stationery, fancy goods, grocery, confectionery, drapery, men's mercery, ironmongery, or what not. In nearly every trade, one display one department should be the rule.

Constant observation is of immense help to the learner, because the habit induces a continual mental exercise. Studying other's windows help one to become critical and expert.

Such study should not be entirely confined to one's own trade, for oftentimes a good idea for a window worked out in one trade may easily be adapted to quite another line of business.

A notebook is also helpful. In it the novice can jot down his impressions of good windows he has noticed, and notes as to how the goods were shown. Otherwise, if he trust to memory, many of such impressions, vivid enough at first, will gradually fade quite away. In a book he can by writing them down avoid this losss. He might also write down ideas, which may occur to him at odd moments, for future displays of his own. Moreover, he should keep account of the effect on sales of every window dresssed. By so doing an at least approximate knowledge will have been gained as to what it pays best to show and the best to show and the best paying way of showing it.

To recapitulate, the learner should try to develop his powers of imagination, imitation, observation, and invention: preserve his impressions, and carefully note the effect of his display upon the public.—Smith's Weekly.

CUT GLASS TRIM.

A neat and attractive trim was recently arranged in a window of J. B. Horrell & Sons, departmental store, Midland, by A. C. Carruthers, manager of grocery section, that showed an artistic taste for harmonizing arrangement rather above the ordinary.

The window used has a mirrored back extending up about five feet, the remainder, about two feet, at the top, being prism glass.

A pretty design in Bobinet curtain material was tastefully draped over this ground, an Austrian rug of rich design (in imitation of the genuine Persian) covered the floor, a mahogany stand of artistic outline was placed well back in the window, the shelves being neatly arranged with several pieces of cut glass. Two fancy-colored lamps, one on each side of the stand, completed the trim, which was a rich looking display at night, especially, when the electric lights were turned on, of which there were twenty-one five candle power and six eight candle power lamps arranged round the window frames and pillars.

The rich mahogany being a dark ground, served to increase the sparkling effect of the cut glass, while a glint from the prism top showing through the thin draperies lent an added brilliancy, altogether making a complete and well-balanced trim.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

No. 28.

Ald. N. Lapointe, Montreal.

One of the prominent men in the Montreal City Council is Ald. N. Lapointe, who is known in grocery circles as one of the oldest established merchants in the city.

For thirty-one years Ald. Lapointe has been selling the necessities of life to the people in the neighborhood of his store. During that time he has seen many sides of life in Montreal, and has witnessed one change and another in the grocery trade, but through it all he has maintained a firm grip on his work and has steadily built himself up a large business and a good reputation.

He was born in 1853 at St. Michel de Belle Chasse, in Quebec Province, but not much of his life was spent in this rural community. Early in his career he went to the United States, where he passed a few years in wood turning. At the age of twenty-two he came to Montreal, and, after a year, opened a grocery store. The first store was at the corner of St. James and Dominion streets, where Mr. Lapointe could be found any time during business hours for nine years. Later he removed to Dominion and Quesnel streets, where for the past twenty-two years he has conducted his business. Mr. Lapointe is interested, since last fall, in the business formerly carried on under the name of A. Leduc & Co., now Leduc & Lapointe, provision merchants.

Having been so long among them, it was not unnatural of the people of that part of Montreal to recognize the ability and good citizenship displayed by Mr. Lapointe. He was elected School Commissioner for St. Cunegonde, as that part of the city was known at the time, and in 1902 was elected alderman for the ward. On the Road Committee, and as a member of the committee which looks after the city markets, Mr. Lapointe's wide experience with life and business has been of great value to the citizens who need have no regret for having conferred upon him the honor of electing him to look after their interests.

Mr. Lapointe is fond of describing himself as 54 years young, and certainly in the exercise of that vigorous activity, mental and physical, which is popularly supposed to be the peculiar property of youth, he can give years to many men younger than himself.

Because he has never abused the confidence reposed in him by the people, and because he has shown himself indeed as well as in word to be worthy of his office. Ald. Lapointe is not likely to be allowed to retire from public life for many years to come.

CONTINUITY IN ADVERTISING.

"Advertising," says Elihu Woodworth, "to be thoroughly effective, should expand rather than contract. The merchant who advertises for a time and then stops would better have not advertised at all. Of course, there may be exceptions to this, for it may pay a non-advertiser to advertise a special sale and discontinue the advertising and the sale together, but as a general rule the only way to make advertising a success is to keep it up.

"The merchant who does not advertise will never be widely known and will never do a very extensive business. The merchant who gains a certain amount of publicity through a brief spasm of advertising will be quickly forgotten when the advertising ceases. People in this age will not take the trouble to remember what someone advertised last year or last month. It is enough for them to take heed of what is being advertised to-day. The man who drops out of a race receives no further notice. The attention of the spectators is centred upon his competitors who are pressing toward the goal. They have no more time to waste on those who are forced to disappear, or who voluntarily retire from the public gaze.

ALD. N. LAPOINTE, MONTREAL.

"The cumulative effect of advertising is often one of its most potent factors. This effect, which, after a time, in some cases, brings in more returns in a month than were received at first in a year, depends almost entirely upon continuity. The desired results have been obtained by "keeping everlastingly at it." Even a short truce in the campaign is fatal to success."

COFFEE PROSPECTS GOOD.

Total Crop About 1,000,000 Bags in Excess of Probable Consumption.

F. J. West, in the course of a report on the present statistical position of coffee, says:

"At the moment interest is centred in estimates of the quantity of coffee from the crop of 1906-1907, remaining in the interior of Brazil at the beginning of this crop year and in the probable outturn of the crop of 1907-1908. As to what remained of Santos coffees in the interior July 1, 1907, the lowest estimate to reach us was 1,000,000 bags, and the largest 3,000,000 bags. We think that, say, 2,000,000 bags is about right, and this estimate is borne out by the receipts to date for this year, which are over 1,500,000 bags and mostly old crop,

"The smallest estimate we have had from coffee producing interests as to the probable outturn of the Santos crop for 1907-1908, is 6,500,000 bags and the largest ,coming from a conservative exporter at Santos, 8,500,000 bags, and we think that an average of the two, say, 7,500,000 bags, will be a fair estimate. To this add 2,000,000 bags remaining in the interior of the 1906-1907 crop, and we have a probable total of 9,500,000 bags receipts at Santos during the crop year 1907-1908.

"A correspondent in Rio, who for several years has made estimates that proved to be very close to the outturn, estimates the probable receipts at Rio at about 4,500 000 bags old and present crops, unless prices are very low when coffee will be held back. A generally accepted and, we believe, conservative figure for the receipts of all ports outside of Rio and Santos is 4,500,000 bags, this with 9,500,000 bags old and present crop at Santos, and at Rio 4,500,000 bags, makes a probable total of receipts for the crop year 1907-1908 of near 18,500,000 bags and about 1 000,000 bags more than probable consumption for the same period. The first of this crop year the world's visible was the largest recorded, 16,399,954 bags.

"We have a letter under recent date from one of the most important coffee interests in Europe, reading, in part, as follows: 'Stocks in Europe are very large, new coffees are hardly offered yet, but still nice old green coffees appear in the market. Coffee, no doubt, is kept back by the planters who want at first to get rid of their old crop coffee, besides, having received such high prices for the bumper crop, they are well supplied with money and know very well that the present system is the best one to keep prices up."

H. H. Barnard, Montreal, representing Hunt & Co., Yokohama, spent last Saturday in Toronto.

The Valencia rasin crop reached high water wark in 1890, when the crop yielded 3,500,000 tons.

OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND

Canned Fruits and Vegetables

The climate, where our products come from, is ideal for the gradual and thorough nourishment of the vegetable kingdom. Too sunny lands and sultry winds mean premature growth and quick decay, and nowhere else on the globe are climatic conditions just right for the best fruits and vegetables. Then we better nature's work by eliminating all fruits and vegetables showing the least symptoms of coming taint, and, mind you, the scrutiny of our experts is microscopic in its severity.

THE LAW SAYS YOU MUST

Do you know that a man is obliged by law to keep a proper set of books?

The law says:

"Any man who fails and has not for five years before his failure kept proper books shall be liable to a fine of $800.00 and one year's imprisonment."

Since you must keep books of some sort, and as the law insists that you keep proper books, why not keep them properly?

It is just as easy to do a thing right as it is to do it wrong.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

We told you last month that our Increase in Sales of

during the first seven months of this year over the corresponding seven months of 1906 amounted to 21 per cent.

Eight months have now passed, and our increase in all branches combined over the same peried of last year amounts to 22¼ per cent.

In Canada alone during the month of August we had an increase of 54,380 pounds

or an increased trade in one month of over

1,000 half-chests of Tea and this in Canada alone.

Are you getting your share of this increase? Or are you shutting your eyes to the channel the Tea Trade is running in, and allowing others to profit by your blindness?

The consumer in the long run is sure to get the best, if not from you, then from some other dealer. It will pay you to hand it out when tea is asked for.

"SALADA" is always best. No other concern has ever attempted to compete in quality.

OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND

Canned Fruits and Vegetables

It is not enough that 90 per cent. of the grocers in Canada should stock and recommend Old Homestead Brand. All grocers should. Because it is admitted even by our competitors that our famous brand of canned fruits and vegetables is so much superior to the next best that there is no comparison. Certainly, Old Homestead Brand has paid most grocers well, and it

Will Pay You

Mr. Grocer, if you are out for a lasting reputation and the staying trade—the only trade that pays—you should stock the Superior Brand of canned goods.

Important Reasons: There are important reasons—reasons which you cannot afford to overlook—for the marked superiority of Old Homestead Brand. The fruit and vegetables we can are exceptionable for their luscious and invigorating qualities—these qualities we can, with the result that Canada's particular women insist on Old Homestead.

LEA'S

THE PICKLE WITH THE HOME-MADE FLAVOR

History of the Lea Pickle

1901—Made by Mrs. Lea for her own table.

1902—Made by Mrs. Lea for sale in their store.

1903—Demanded by the outside consumer. A small factory started.

1904—Premises too small; moved into larger place and unable to supply demand.

1905—Factory used last year too small; unable, on account of accommodation, to supply demand; another addition.

1906—Demand so large that Stock was all sold in March, and large orders received through balance of the Pickle season were not filled.

1907—Formation of the Lea Pickling Co., to enlarge premises and carry on business on larger scale, with more up-to-date packages, but using the same care in packing goods, and processing done as before by Mrs. Lea.

Do you not think that Lea's Pickle must be a pickle of quality to have attained this reputation purely on quality and without advertising?

Will you try a small lot and be convinced?

IS THERE MONEY IN THE BRAND?

That's naturally your first question when asked to stock any brand of goods on the market. Well, as far as my brand of Jams and Jellies is concerned I refer you to 90 per cent of the grocers in Canada. They say that

E. D. S. Brand
JAMS and JELLIES

is distinctly the greatest money-maker on the market. They go on to assert that "E. D. S." Jams and Jellies are the wholesomest and best on the markets of the Dominion and—

I can prove the truth of their assertions by government documents.

St. George's Baking Powder

Mrs. Rorer, the famous Food Expert, said recently: "The stingiest people I know have stopped buying 'cheap' foods . . . they are buying the best to be had."

Your customers don't take long to decide that a pound of sugar, half sand, at 5c., is more expensive than a pound of pure sugar at 8c.

And they won't hesitate in deciding that St. George's Baking Powder, with its 99.90% pure Cream of Tartar, is less expensive than Baking Powders containing "Commercial" Cream of Tartar which has 10% to 15% lime and other adulterants in it. Yet "Commercial" is the next best —many worse.

Most of your customers have likely figured it out by this time—for they've probably read our advertising—could hardly miss it—and they'll be glad to get St. George's, which is guaranteed to you and to them.

St. George's is the best Baking Powder that chemistry can evolve.

We've tested it every way.

Allison Coupon Books

Are the ball-bearings that will make almost any business run smoothly. Here's how they work:

If a man wants credit for $10.00 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10.00 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him with $10.00; no trouble. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on for all his purchases until the book is used up. Then he pays for the book and gets another one. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, and no disputes. Allison coupon books are recognized everywhere as the best, BECAUSE THEY ARE. The Possibilities of Trade Development Between Canada and the West Indies—A Fine Exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition—Interview With Sir Daniel Morris, Who Declares That the Sentiment of the West Indies Towards Canada Was Never More Favorable.

The British West Indies are gradually coming to be appraised by Canada at something appoximating their correct valuation. For some years past the imports from Canada to the islands have been increasing steadily, but there still remains a large field untouched by many Canadian manufacturers, which presents unlimited possibilities of mutually profitable development to those who have the necessary qualities of ambition, courage and initiative to take advantage of them. General interest in the islands has recently been greatly stimulated by the visit of the Canadian Board of Trade representatives in February and March, of this year, as the guests of Messrs. Pickford and Black, and this interest has been sustained and the visit, in a way, reciprocated, by the presence at the Canadian National Exhibition of Sir Daniel Morris, the Imperial Commissioner of Agriculture, and the fine display of West Indian products and manufactures brought to the Exhibition by Messrs. Pickford & Black. During the course of the Exhibition this West Indian exhibit was seen by thousands of people, many of whom, no doubt, wandered through the various sections out of pure curiosity, but few of whom failed to acquire some knowledge of an educational value of which they were previously ignorant, and which will be remembered because of the tangible and practical manner in which it was presented.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of West India Products.

Geographical, Historical and Statistical.

The British West Indies consist of a group of colonies in the Caribbean Sea. With the exception of British Honduras and British Guiana, which are on the mainland of Central and South America, the other colonies are islands possessed of great beauty, dotted like gems in tropic seas. The total area, including British Guiana, is 100,000 square miles, and the population, both white and black, is probably about 2½ millions.

These West Indian possessions are amongst the oldest in the British Empire. In former days they produced enormous wealth and much blood and treasure were expended in battles by land and sea in acquiring them from the Spanish, French and Dutch. Their chief production before the emancipation of the slaves, were sugar, rum molasses, cocoa and coffee. During the last 60 years, that is since emancipation, they have undergone many vicissitudes of fortune, but present prospects point to brighter days with general progress and advancement in all branches of industry. To such progress, Canada is capable of contributing a large share, to the expansion of her trade, to the stimulation by competition of industrial enterprise within her boundaries, and in many other ways to, the very material advancement of her own welfare.

The total trade of the British West Indies, including British Guiana, is of the annual value of about $60,000,000. Of this, so far, the trade between the Dominion of Canada and the West Indies is of the annual value of only $11,000,000, or a little over one-sixth of the whole. These figures show the great possibilities that exist for increasing the trade relations between the two countries. The actual figures are as follows:

The value of the Canadian imports into the British West Indies amounted, in the year ended June 30, 1906, to $3,246,075, while the value of the West Indian exports shipped to Canada was $7,521,360. The total volume of the trade carried on between the two countries last year was, therefore, $10,768,435.

In the year 1905-6, British Guiana exported to Canada produce, mostly sugar, to the value of $3,254,985, while the imports of Canadian goods were of the value of $585,780. The Leeward Islands exported, during the same year, to British North America, $1,020,000 worth of produce; the imports being valued at $135,800. From Barbados, sugar to the value of $535,000, and molasses to the value of $493,000, were sent to Canada, and imports of the value of $393,000 received. The value of the imports from Canada into Jamaica was $792,000. or 8.1 per cent. of the total imports, and the exports were 6.1 per cent. of the total exports. Trinidad in 1906-7 sent exports to the value of $1,135,000 to British North America, and received imports of the value of $695,000.

It may be seen from these figures that although a considerable trade is already carried on between Canada and the West Indies, the possibilities for expansion are still practically unlimited. As is well known, the Dominion Government offers a reduction of customs duties for produce grown in the British colonies, and, on this and other grounds, it is anticipated that closer commercial relations will ultimately result between the two dependencies. The exports from the West Indies to Canada are chiefly sugar and its products, while their imports from Canada consist mainly of breadstuffs, fish, and provisions. The trade already built up, largely by means of Messrs. Pickford & Black's Canadian line of steamers, is considerable; but in sugar, molasses, cocoanuts. cocoa, coffee, fresh fruits, spices, and other tropical produce, especially, the trade, comparatively speaking, its only in its infancy.

Sir Daniel Interviewed.

In talking over the present situation with a representative of The Canadian Grocer, Sir Daniel Morris, the Imperial Commissioner of Agriculture for the West Indies, said: "In her race with the United States for the trade of the West Indies, Canada has hitherto been greatly handicapped by her inability to make quick shipments in competition with the American manufacturers. Prices and quality being equal, we are prepared to give Canada the preference every time, but to ask our buyers to wait two months for their goods from Canada, when America will supply the same articles in two or three weeks, is unreasonable. Lack of adequate storage facilities is the chief drawback with which Canada has to contend, and until these are provided she must be prepared to content herself with a very small proportion of the trade she might secure without difficulty if her abilities in this respect were more conspicuous. The matter is being taken up by the Government in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and it is probable that extended accommodation will shortly be provided at Halifax and St. John."

Questioned as to the attitude of the Islands towards Canadian goods, Sir Daniel said:

"The sentiment throughout the islands is exceedingly favorable to Canada. Canadian goods have, in many cases, made a reputation with the people, and nowhere are the products of the Dominion more favorably regarded than in those colonies which at present receive the greatest quantity of imports from the United States. Canadian manufacturers should endeavor to become familiar with the wants of our people, and, in all cases, it is desirable, if not actually necessary, to keep a man on the ground to look after the interests of both parties."

In reply to another question, Sir Daniel said:

"Canada takes approximately three-fourths of all the sugar exported from the West Indies, and of the entire amount of sugar imported into Canada the West Indies supplies about two-thirds."

Great credit is due Messrs. Pickford & Black for the admirable way in which they have handled this exhibit, and to Mr. Charles Pickford, especially, for his unfailing courtesy in giving information about the islands and in answering questions, some of which would have taxed the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon and the imagination of Ananias.

QUESTIONABLE CONDITIONS IN ONTARIO CANNING FACTORIES

The annual report of the Ontario Board of Health, just issued, brings to light some peculiar conditions in connection with the canning factories of the Province.

Dr. Bell, medical inspector, made a tour of inspection in the Niagara district with Mr. Holmes, a factory inspector, and his report disclosed such questionable sanitary conditions that Dr. Hodgetts, Provincial Health Officer, made a personal trip through the district.

"During the canning season," says Dr. Hodgetts' report, "the canning companies provide accommodation for their help, who are for the most part obtained in the Niagara district, from Buffalo, from among the natives of Central Europe, whose habits are far from sanitary.

"For their housing, long shacks, some two storeys in height, are provided, and the better ones are divided into compartments with sleeping accommodation. The bedding was, to say the least, far from clean, and, judging by the way in which mattresses were left in those factories closed for the season, no attempt is made to clean even these. In the very class of work which should call forth on the part of the employer the most rigid enforcement of the most simple laws of cleanliness, this is found in most instances to be wanting, one excuse given being: 'These people are better housed by us than they are in their homes.' This, however, is no excuse for the employers to perpetuate an evil."

Prevent Such Conditions.

The report goes on to suggest methods of prevention.

"The public expect from the manufacturers of pure food supplies the adoption of rules such as will give them guarantee that cleanliness in all its details is a cardinal principle in the business. Such ordinary provisions as are necessary to ensure the same should be made by the employer. It was particularly noticeable that the class of employes improved in ratio to the improved conditions of the environment. The factory in which I found the best class of accommodation, and that in which the employer took pains to keep clean had by far the better and cleaner lot of employes.

"In conclusion," says Dr. Hodgetts, "I am of the opinion rules should be drawn up by this board, regulating this part of factory work—dealing with air, space, number in rooms, the separating of dormitories from living and dining-room space, with sufficient lavatory accommodation, and possibly a matron to oversee the whole should be arranged for in a similar manner as set forth in the regulations relating to the unorganized districts. Certainly personal cleanliness must be insisted upon—for that as a rule is not to be found at present."

Dr. Bell's report goes even more closely into the details of the lack of sanitation in these factories. He says: "About 1,800 persons, two-thirds of whom are females, are employed. About one-half are foreigners, from Buffalo, and there are a couple of hundred Indians from Brantford and Caledonia. In a few cases the accommodation is fair, but in no case are the requirements of the Public Health Act observed. Food was frequently kept in dirty fruit baskets under the beds, and was often eaten either on the floor or on the beds. These sleeping and living quarters were often kept in a most wretched conditions, and in some cases thirty or forty were disgracefully huddled together in one compartment. Many of these buildings were most filthy, and choice places for vermin-breeding."

A Serious Matter.

"How," Dr. Bell asks, can people be clean in these circumstances? Yet these are the persons who handle and put up our choicest foods. Several factory-managers declared that it was impossible to keep these people clean, and that they would not use the facilities if they were provided.

"If such is the case, then I say in the name of all that is righteous, insist on these employers going out of business, who, for the greed of a few extra dollars, hire such dirty help and prepare our food under such unsanitary conditions. They complain of the difficulty in getting the required help. I do not wonder at it, as no clean, respectable woman would for one hour live in such places as I have described.

THE WESTERN CROPS.

It is never wise to whistle until one is out of the woods, but if present indications are not utterly misleading it would seem that the pessimists were wrong. The crop killers were determined that Western Canada should have no crop this year and their noisy predictions of disaster dominated the situation for a long time. For once the cheery optimism of the West was unable to stand up against the pessimistic forebodings of the faint-hearted ones. But it is now pretty generally understood that in spite of the calamity howlers the West has a good crop this year—a crop not quite so large as that of 1906 or that of 1905, but still a satisfactory crop. The Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, after a careful inquiry, estimated last week that the West will harvest this year at least 82,000,000 bushels of wheat. October wheat has already reached the dollar mark in Winnipeg and there is every reason to believe that the Western farmer will get about one dollar per bushel this fall for his wheat. In view of the higher prices there will be no reason to complain if the crop is somewhat smaller than last year. It is indeed not at all improbable that, in spite of all the forebodings of the last month, the Western farmer will find the 1907 crop the most profitable he has ever had.

Many millions will be put in circulation in the West during the coming weeks and months to pay for this crop. There may continue to be a money stringency in the financial centres of the world, but, given a good crop at high prices, the West should not suffer.

SALMON AND SOBRIETY.

The sockeye salmon season, recently concluded on the Fraser River, has been unique in the poor run of fish. From the standpoint of the packers and fishermen, it has had little to commend it, for it is doubtful if the pack exceeds 50,000 cases. This, in conjunction with the small pack of last year, makes the prospect a blue one for the packers. In other respects, also, the season has been unique. Steveston, the headquarters of the fishing industry on the Fraser during the run, is the jumping-off place for individuals of many different nationalities. Chinese, Indians, Japanese, Canadians, Americans, and representatives from almost all the European countries, gather here for the period during which the run of salmon takes place. Naturally enough, friction not infrequently results from the rubbing together of the different sections of this polyglot population. Usually, there is considerable trouble with the Indians, who are popularly credited with greater internal storage capacity for fire-water than any other race. In endeavoring to live up to this reputation, they occasionally make themselves objectionably conspicuous. This year, however, most of this trouble, together with gambling and whisky-peddling, has been eliminated. Life and property have been protected to a degree previously unattained. There has been practically no sickness, and only one serious crime. For this peaceful state of affairs much credit is due Thomas O'Connell, who has so ably filled the newly-created position of Dominion constable, and by so doing, proved the value of such an office and the necessity of continuing it.

If salmon had been more plentiful the season just closed would have been an ideal one in every respect. Because of of the lack of fish, from the viewpoint of the majority, it is an utter failure. It is unfortunate, perhaps, that the reforms at Steveston and all along the coast should have been introduced at a time when the bad fishing discounted enthusiasm, but it is equally to be regretted that they were not instituted years ago, when the need of them was more accentuated than it is at present. Reforms improve with age only when the country is not ready to receive them.

MUST BE REMEDIED.

Sanitary conditions in connection with the housing of the employes of some of the canning factories in the Niagara district appear to be pretty serious, according to the report of Dr. Hodgetts, provincial health inspector, which has lately been issued from his department.

The report does not censure conditions in the factories, but rather the living condition of the employes. The trouble seems to arise from the temporary nature of the employment. Large numbers of people, generally of the lowest class, are brought in from the American cities, and from the Indian reservations, for a few weeks' work during the busy season, and the housing of this class for the short period of the fruit harvest seems to be provided for in the cheapest way possible. The canners lay the blame on the class of labor employed, saying that these people do not ordinarily keep themselves clean and would not do so even under better conditions of housing. This may be to some extent true, but it does not remedy the matter.

The public must be assured that absolute cleanliness exists through all the processes employed in the preparation of its foodstuffs and it is the duty of the government to see that the conditions which seem to exist at present in these canneries are remedied. It may be necessary to employ a better class of labor, but conditions of housing must also be remedied.

The canners will find it to their own interests to improve things. The widespread publicity which is sure to be given the features of the inspector's report will frighten the public, and canned goods from the Niagara district will be religiously tabooed unless reliable assurance is given that these doubtful conditions have been improved.

BERLIN BEET-SUGAR OUTLOOK.

The beet acreage for the Ontario Sugar Co., at Berlin, Ont., is considerably reduced this year, being about 3,200 acres. The crop outlook is good, better than for several years, so far as yield is concerned. The present arrangement whereby a quantity of raw sugar may be imported from Germany is of considerable advantage to the factory, as it can be kept in operation for a longer period.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS :

Beans—Higher.
Fish—Revised.
Prunes—Strong.
Produce—Firm.

Montreal, September 12, 1907.

Some wholesalers report strong demand for provisions lately. Pork and beans for the lumber camps are two lines subject to considerable demand according to some jobbers. Interest centres largely in dried fruits this week. Reports from Greece are to the effect that prices there are advanced. Valencia raisins will be arriving via New York shortly, but buyers are holding off. Prunes are strong, both here and in the primary market. Indications still point to a 50 per cent. pack of corn and tomatoes. Some activity is reported in canned sardines and salmon. Sugar is steady. Teas are firm and high, as usual. Beans have been advanced five cents. Fancy prices are being asked for evaporated apples, but are not taken seriously by the trade. Figures ruling to-day are altogether too high to warrant much business. Chocolates and cocoas are advancing, lines which formerly stood at 38c, now commanding 45c. Camphor has been reduced from $2 to $1.80. Butter, cheese and eggs are all high and the markets are firm.

Collections are reported satisfactory.

SUGAR—Sugars are steady locally, but buying is of a hand to mouth character. Prices may advance, but they are just as likely to decline. Raws dropped 2d. a hundredweight, but no weakness has been felt in this market up to the time of writing.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—Currants are firmer this week, having been advanced 1s., owing, so cables say, to heavy local purchases. Here, the feeling is that the advance is due to the presence in Patras of the first direct steamer, the "Bellona," which is now loading. The boat will proceed from that port to Denia, to take on a cargo of Valencia raisins, and will arrive in Montreal about October 15. New raisins will be obtainable through New York by the 20th inst., but fancy prices will be paid. New currants, also via New York, will arrive toward the end of the month. Offerings of Valencia raisins, by New Yoek boat, are being made to the trade here, at figures which would mean a cost to the retailer of 7c to 7½c. Reports from California state that the raisins are not curing as rapidly as they should, owing to cold weather. Otherwise the outlook is satisfactory. Prunes keep very firm locally, and on the coast. Crop estimates are falling off as the season advances, and it is now thought that the yield will be but 30 per cent. to 35 per cent. of last year's large crop. Shipments from the coast will not be particularly early this year, as far as raisins are concerned. Nuts are firm, most of the chief lines having been advanced. Valencia shelled almonds are quoted 33c to 35c, though new goods will be obtainable at figures two or three cents under these prices. Brazil nuts are now quoted 16½c to 17½c, an advance of 2½c from the lowest point. Shelled walnuts are now 25c to 26c, and likely to advance further. Mayette walnuts are up 1c, dealers demanding 10½c to 12½c today. Pecans are down 2c, 18c to 19c being the ruling quotations. The prices of the last couple of years have had the effect of cutting down business in pecans.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—Prices on tapioca for October to December shipment are slightly easier at first hand. Locally, quotations hold steady, but some wholesalers expect to quote 1c below present figures toward November 1. Medium pearl tapioca is very hard to obtain. Rice is normal.

As much as 10c has been asked here for new goods, but the feeling is, that this is cutting things too fine. There is not likely to be much interest displayed in evaporated apples at such fancy quotations. Any old stock held, and there is little, brings that figure.

CANNED GOODS

Montreal.

Later reports would indicate the correctness of The Grocer's estimate that the pack of tomatoes and corn will be in the neighborhood of fifty per cent First lots of these lines are now being packed, and, needless to say, prices are awaited with interest. Jobbers antici pate higher figures, but have no definite idea as to what will be asked. Wholesalers report all lines in fairly good demand considering the prices. Salmon and sardines show considerable activity.

Toronto.

There has been an active demand for all lines of canned goods during the week, but prospects for the forthcoming corn and tomato packs are checking the optimistic feeling which has prevailed on this subject till recently. Now it looks as though a fifty per cent. pack will be all that the canners will give out, and high prices are naturally expected.

Retailers are buying fairly steadily, but there is little or no speculative trading.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Canned Goods—Heavy consumption.

Tapioca—Large arrivals have relieved the situation.

Molasses & Syrups—Corn syrup prices withdrawn.

Sugar—Very firm.

Toronto, September 13th, 1907.

Heavy consumption of all lines of canned goods, the withdrawal by the Edwardsburg and Brantford Starch Companies of all prices on corn syrup, formal announcement of which will be found on another page, and the long awaited arrival of a heavy tapioca shipment from Singapore, have been the features of the past week in the wholesale grocery markets. The withdrawal of the corn syrup prices was made on Monday, and a meeting of the representatives of the two companies was held in Toronto two days later. It is not known definitely what causes have influenced this action on the part of the controlling company, but a reasonable inference is that the high prices of corn in conjunction with crop prospects of only an average character, have forced the advance to prevent actual loss in manufacturing. The new prices are to be given out on Friday, and the general expectation is for a raise of from ¼c to ½c per pound. This advance, of course, at any rate so far as starch is concerned, will be borne by the retailer. Starch has become too much of a staple for the consumer to regard higher prices therein with anything but unyielding hostility.

Business, on the whole, is reported good, and collections have improved.

TEA—Locally, the situation is unchanged. Prices on all the cheaper grades are very firmly held, but stocks are small and difficult to obtain at the best quotations. Mail advices from London, dated August 29th, say:

COFFEE—The world's visible supply of coffee decreased 324,142 bags during July, and on August 1st was 16,075,812 against 9,948,058 on the corresponding date last year, showing an increase for the coffee year of 6,127,754. Of this visible 8,000,000 is held by the Brazilian Government, principally in New York, Havre, Hamburg and Santos, leaving an available visible supply for consumptive purposes of 8,0775,812 against 9,948,053 last year, or an available visible of 1,872,246 less than on August 1st, 1906.

"It will be remembered," writes a New York Exchange firm, "that the Brazilian crop of 1905-06 was only 10,227,000. If the movement so far has been on the same ratio as that of 1905-06, a crop of not above 8,000,000 Brazilian coffee is indicated for this year, or less than one half the quantity produced last year. This crop, if no more than 8,000,000 together with the world's visible supply of 8,000,000, making a total of 16,000,000, would be the total supply, to fill a consumptive demand of from 17,500,000 to 18,000,000 for the coffee year—unless the price should be advanced to 9½ or 10 cents, the price at which the Brazilian Government is willing to sell its holdings and is pledged to hold for, or some unforeseen developments should cause the Brazilian Government to change its mind and sell at a lower level. No such development is looked for or expected at this time. In any event, should this crop be no larger than is now indicated by the movement, with a consumption of 18,000,000, the visible supply must be sensationally reduced within the next year, a development which present prices for coffee do not discount.

"At this time last year, with an available visible supply as above indicated of 9,948,000, contracts for September delivery in the New York market sold at 6.30, but on August 28th this year the price was 5.50. At the end of August last year July contracts sold in our market at 7 cents; lately they have sold at 6-10, or almost one cent per pound lower. At this time last year the biggest crop ever produced in Brazil was expected; at present, less than one-half last year's yield is indicated by the movement."

plus coffee other than Brazil has pledged.

SUGAR—Consumption of refined is not exhibiting any increased activity over the average demand of last week. The market, however, is very strong, though there is no immediate indication of an advance. The heavier arrival of the plum crop is expected to stimulate consumption to an extent not previously anticipated, as the crop has shown up better, in quantity, than was indicated by early reports.

"In Europe the tone and tendency is towards a constant, steady advance. Here the disposition is to follow Europe as slowly and conservatively as practicable.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS — All prices on corn syrup have been withdrawn by the Edwardsburg Starch Co., pending a revisal, which will be issued by the end of the week. It is expected that the new prices will be ¼c to ½c in advance of the old. The reason for this raise is attributed to the high and advancing prices of corn, under which the companies claim will be unable

Canada's National Fair

Many Fine Exhibits of Foodstuffs by Wholesalers From All Over Canada—The Exhibition An Important Factor in the Industrial Development of the Dominion—New Records Established for 1907—Many Improvements Over Last Year—Average Attendance More Than 85,000 Daily—West Indian Exhibit Again Proved Great Attraction.

The Canadian National Exhibition, designated by impartial critics as the greatest annual fair in the world, ended its thirteen-day course for 1907 on Saturday, Sept. 7. In those thirteen days it broke all existing records. It established new figures for attendance, and a new high-water mark for cash receipts. It has to its credit one brand new building and some important additions to existing structures. To avoid going too minutely into detail, it may be asserted briefly, without fear of contradiction, that the Exhibition of 1907 surpassed that of any previous year in practically every respect. To regard it from no other standpoint, the Exhibition possesses a value incalculable in the opportunity it affords—first, to the manufacturer, of openly demonstrating to the retailer the methods adopted to produce his goods, and in this way of forming and strengthening a personal bond of confidence between himself and his customers; second, to the retailer, of increasing his knowledge of the goods he handles daily and thus enabling him to represent their quality to his customers with a greater measure of appreciation and intelligence; and, thirdly, to the public, of becoming more intimately acquainted with articles of daily use or consumption which they had hitherto been in the habit of taking pretty much for granted as one accepts the assistance of the sun, moon and stars without worrying particularly as to their origin.

The Process Building, in which these demonstrations took place, ranked in popular favor about equally with that of the Manufacturers', which was crowded with people every afternoon and evening. In the former building, about twenty different articles, ranging from bicycles to bread, were shown in process of manufacture. In the building set apart for manufacturers, the number of exhibits was legion. One hundred and fifty would-be exhibitors were unable to obtain space for their booths, and the committee were obliged to refuse their applications for this reason. There were more than 120 different exhibits in the Manufacturers' and Liberal Arts Building alone. Counting those in the Implement, Transportation, Dairy, Automobile, Process, and Stove buildings, and in Machinery Hall and Manufacturers' Annex, as well as some forty-odd, scattered about the grounds, there must have been close upon 400.

Every feature of Canadian life, agricultural, industrial, educational or artistic, was covered by the Exhibition, which, though owing its origin and development solely to Toronto, is, of course, in scope and representative character, broadly Canadian. Its influence as a factor in Canada's prosperity was expressed very succinctly by Earl Grey in his opening remarks. He said: "The object of Canadian manufacturers and producers through their processes of manufacture and the methods they employ for marketing their goods, must be to associate the name of Canada with high quality. The Exhibition, in the success which has attended it, is an excellent illustration of the advantages a country derives where the Government and the people pull at the same end of the rope and work together for the common good. If the people and the Government work together and so secure to buyers the knowledge that the goods they buy are of a high quality, I am sure there is no limit to the prosperity which awaits the people of Canada. Let our inspections be thorough, and let our condemnation of inferior articles be absolutely merciless. No man is such a blackleg, in my opinion, as the man who endeavors to pass as sound, unsound articles, and secures an inferior reputation in the markets of the world."

The newly-erected Agricultural Building, one of the largest and finest on the grounds, containing a wonderfully comprehensive selection of fruits and vegetables from all parts of Canada, was a feature of this year's Exhibition. A cut of this building is shown herewith. Another much needed improvement, and one which was rendered necessary by last year's fire, is the extension to the grand stand, which now has a seating capacity of upwards of 5,000. It was filled to overflowing many times during the course of the Exhibition. Two improvements which will probably be instituted by next year, are a new transportation building, to replace the one burned last year, and a more extended street car service. The cars were unable to handle the enormous crowds that thronged the Exhibition, and next year it is likely that an eastern extension will be arranged. President W. K. George, during the course of some remarks at the concluding luncheon, said that the present entrance to the grounds appeared too small and cheap by comparison with the splendor that lay within its gates, but that next year they hoped to have this remedied by the erection of a new and more suitable entrance at a different part of the grounds. Mr. George also recorded the interesting fact that the increased receipts this year were attributable entirely to the enlarged grand stand accommodation and other receipts within the grounds, the gate receipts being actually less than last year.

Canadian National Exhibition—New Agricultural Hall.

The West Indies.

As has been the case ever since this important department has been introduced, the Exhibition set apart for West India products, proved one of the best drawing cards of the great Fair. The West India exhibit this year was more complete than anything previously brought over to the Canadian National, but the keen interest shown by the public was ample justification of the additional trouble incurred in providing such a representative collection of the various island products. Sir Daniel Morris, Imperial Commissioner of Agriculture to the West Indies, was present in the building every day, and spoke at several luncheons and meetings during the course of the Exhibition. To Sir Daniel is due much of the development of the islands, which has taken place within recent years; his work as Imperial Commissioner has made him an authority on practically every article grown in the islands. He has become a statistical encyclopedia of facts regarding the import, export and manufacture of everything connected with his department, and since his department embraces the whole of the West Indies, it may be logically inferred that he is something more than merely "well posted." His enthusiasm for the work in which he is engaged shows itself every time he speaks of the islands.

The exhibit is to be taken to Halifax, where it will be shown at the forthcoming exhibition there, under the charge of Charles S. Pickford.

Canadian National Exhibition—Edwardsburg Starch Co. Exhibit No. 1

Edwardsburg Starch Co.

The exhibit of the Edwardsburg Starch Co., in the Manufacturers' Building, was in the form of Moorish mosque style, divided into two distinctly separate sections. The corner booth was surmounted with a handsome crown, typical of the display of their Crown Brand Corn Syrup, a line of table syrup enjoying an enormous sale throughout Canada. Miniature sample pails of this syrup were given out to ladies. Many visitors, in receiving the samples, remarked that they were users of the goods already, and pleased to see the exhibit. The adjoining booth was devoted to a display of the company's starch products, the established reputation of which under the brands of Edwardsburg Silver Gloss, Canada Laundry, Enamel Starch and Benson's Prepared Corn (the original yellow package), is one to be envied by any manufacturer. Large showcases and bottles were filled with bulk laundry starches. The whole exhibit was most attractively arranged, and Mr. Fred. A. Veroy, Toronto, representative, and Mr. Paul, of the Ontario traveling staff, who designed and arranged the display and looked after it, deserve great credit for their work during the Exhibition.

For exhibit No. 2 see page 50.

E. W. Gillett Company, Limited.

The consensus of opinion of visitors to the Manufacturers' Building as to the most attractive exhibit, judging by the comments heard, was in favor of E. W. Gillett Co.'s magnificent stand in the main aisle, eastern end. Artistic and good as have been this company's display in past years, it is to the 1907 exhibit that the palm of merit must be accorded. A glance at the accompanying photo will show "those who were not there," that too much praise cannot be spoken in favor of the company's ideas of tasty and effective display of their products. The color scheme was rich and harmoniously carried out, the dark olive green velvet draperies and background throwing into relief the bright colors of the red, yellow and blue tins and packages pyramidically arranged in front. A large gilded lion surmounted the central projecting stand, while on the two corners of the booth handsome banners were placed, bearing on same Canada's emblems, the beaver and the maple leaf, respectively. On top were placed well painted signs bearing Canada's best known commercial legends: "Magic Baking Powder," "Gillett's Lye Eats Dirt," "Royal Yeast Cakes," "Imperial Baking Powder." A large Smyrna rug added to the pleasure of the eye. In the centre of the booth was the pivotal attraction, "The Hindoo Magician," whose magic wand instantly transformed a can of Magic Baking Powder into an appetizing bun. The query, "How does he do the trick?" was echoed by every observer. The automatic operation was a delight and a puzzle to all, and as a lasting advertising impression on the minds of visitors, was certainly a great card for E. W. Gillett Company. Mr. J. F. Holden, Western Ontario traveler, with an assistant, was more than busy handing out thousands of samples of Magic Baking Powder, and useful souvenirs to housewives, egg separators, jar holders, etc. Upon G. H. Macfarlane, assistant general manager, fell the work of superintending the carrying out of the handsome booth and display. Since the reorganization of E. W. Gillett Co., last year, and the election of Wm. Dobie to the presidency of this great Canadian company, the business has expanded in such a manner as to necessitate the building of a six-storey addition to the factory.

Red Rose Tea.

That everybody loves a good cup of tea was clearly demonstrated by the crowds that constantly thronged the large double booth of Red Rose Tea. Situated near the centre of the Manufacturers' Building, it was in line with a constant stream of visitors and never were the lady demonstrators idle in serving the delicious tea that is known as Red Rose Tea is Good Tea." The booth was arranged in the form of a reception room, with small five o'clock tea tables, and the tea served by seven young ladies. Mr. Geo. H. Taylor, of the Red Rose Tea traveling staff, was in charge of the booth, and his assiduous attentions and explanations were highly appreciated by callers. Mr. Taylor's explanations as to the proper preparation of tea will result in many a good cup of tea being made throughout the land. Enthusiastic in the extreme, with a good article to talk about, Mr. Taylor certainly kept up his reputation as a tea expert and model demonstrator. Red Rose Tea, since being placed upon the Western market, by T. H. Estabrooks, St. John, N.B., has taken a leading stand in the trade, and the very apt legend of "Red Rose Tea is Good Tea," is a household word. The experience of the trade since Red Rose Tea was first introduced in Ontario and Western Canada, some six years ago, has been short of marvelous, and to-day branches are located in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg. The Toronto premises are located at 3 Wellington street east, and are under the management of G. H. Campbell, and it would be hard to find a more enthusiastic tea man in the trade. Visitors are always heartily welcomed by Mr. Campbell, and he voices his principal's sentiments in indisputably contesting the fact that "Red Rose Tea is Good Tea."

Canadian National Exhibition—Red Rose Tea.

Canadian National Exhibition—Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate.

Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate.

Unquestionably one of the handsomest booths in the Manufacturers' Building was that of "Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate. Situated on one of the side aisles opposite the main entrance, it drew the attention of visitors most conspicuously. The accompanying illustration shows the artistic and tasteful design and arrangement of the booth and its contents. Cailler's Swiss Milk Chocolate has only been on the Canadian market a little over a year, but during that time its fame and reputation has spread from ocean to ocean. Cailler's Chocolate is possessed of a reputation on the continent of Europe that is the envy of other makers of Swiss Chocolates—in fact, the name is a word as familiar to tourists as that of Baedecker or Cook's Tours. Made from the finest selected Trinidad cocoa bean, purest white sugar and the famous Swiss milk, from the Gruyere Valley, under absolutely perfect hygienic conditions, it is the acme of chocolate manufacture. It is not only a confection, but the most nourishing as well as delicious food possible to offer. Grocers are realizing the value of selling the best, and the Canadian agent, W. H. Dunn, Montreal and Toronto, must feel complimented on the reception it is receiving at the hands of the trade. The booth was under the direct management of Mr. Logan, of W. H. Dunn's traveling staff, who has devoted his sole time to the introduction of Cailler's to the trade, from Montreal to the Pacific. Mr. Logan was assisted by several lady demonstrators and sales ladies. The samples supplied visitors will carry the meritorious news still further through the land.

Thos. Upton & Co.

Among the notable exhibits at the Exhibition, that of Thomas Upton & Company, Hamilton, was easily up with the leaders. During recent years this enterprising firm has established an enviable reputation for their products. The traditions of the house have been ably sustained this year. Occupying a conspicuous corner in the Manufacturers' Building, with its large display of various kinds of jams and marmalades, the booth was both striking and pleasing. The public were invited to taste and learn that the fruit products of the company were high-class and pure. The numerous visitors indicated the acceptability of the invitation. Judging from the frequent remarks and approving glances, the Canadian people fully realize and appreciate the sterling qualities of Upton's preserves.

A little reflection soon reveals the cause of the increasing popularity of Upton's jams and marmalades. It is matter of common knowledge that the conditions of modern housekeeping are rapidly changing. Time was when every good Canadian housewife spent many a weary hour in a highly-heated kitchen preparing her supply of preserved fruit for the ensuing year. Even tedious kitchen work and likewise economizes because of the steady rise in the price of fruits. To satisfy these demands, a new industry has arisen, that of fruit preserving. Foremost among such firms is the Thos. Upton Co. This progressive Hamilton firm was a pioneer in the business. In fact, their business has increased by leaps and bounds. This year it bids fair to exceed all records.

Much of the success of the Upton exhibit is due to the manager, E. E. Hustwitt, who was ably assisted by a courteous staff of young lady demonstrators.

then there was the usual danger of her fruit spoiling. Nowadays, however, the old method is being largely superseded. The thrifty housewife consults her own convenience and demands fruits already preserved. By so doing she avoids the

according to one of their representatives, Upton's was really the first to make a success of packing Canadian jams in glass jars. Since then, Upton's has become a standard for all manufacturers. In spite of keen competition

The Quaker Oats Company.

Among the many exhibits of food products in the Manufacturers' Building, that of the Quaker Oats Company, in a splendidly decorated corner booth on the south aisle, was one of the most attractive. A handsome display of the company's products, which were pleasingly demonstrated, kept the booth surrounded by visitors.

Canadian National Exhibition—Quaker Oats.

Quaker Oats, Pettijohn's Breakfast Food, Quaker Puffed Rice, Appetizo, Quaker Wheat Berries, Cereta Wheat Food and Quaker Cornmeal, all recognized as the purest of pure foods, comprise the company's product.

Of these, Quaker Wheat Berries, the newest of their foods, is a ready-to-eat cereal—the only perfect whole wheat food in the world. It is the whole grain and is made from the choicest selected wheat, thoroughly puffed and baked, and toasted to a dainty brown crispness. The entire process is accomplished in a sealed drum and thus all the richness and flavor of the wheat berry is preserved.

Quaker Puffed Rice is another cereal, which, prepared in a new and novel method, furnishes a delicious and healthful food.

Pettijohn's Breakfast Food is especially prepared for home cooking, and contains all the food qualities of the best of wheat.

Appetizo, with its attractive qualities, has found a large place on the Canadian market, and Quaker Oats, the world's breakfast, is known all over the world as a staple and highly valuable breakfast food.

Majestic Polishes.

In a tastefully decorated booth on the west aisle of the Manufacturers' Annex, the exhibit of Majestic Polishes attracted a great deal of attention. This was one of the displays that appealed to everyone, no matter what their business or profession.

There are two kinds of polishes on the market, that is, ordinary polishes. One requires an inordinate amount of labor to bring satisfactory results. The other kind, while eliminating this feature, are almost invariably injurious, either eating the metal or scratching its surface. Majestic Polishes were evolved, after a great deal of study, to avoid the undesirable features of the general run of polishes, and they have proved remarkably successful. They accomplish a quick-shining polish with positively no injury to the various surface, for which they are specially manufactured.

In Majestic liquid metal polish, only the highest quality of refined oils are used, which are entirely free from all acid and grit. Majestic paste metal polishes are made in three colors—white, red and black—of the same high-grade ingredients as the liquid polish. Housewives generally seem to be prejudiced against a liquid silver polish, and to provide for this, the company have a silver polishing powder. This is a dry polish, which gives a lasting brilliancy to the article cleaned and which has been highly recommended. This powder is guaranteed to contain no acid or alkali, and like other Majestic polishes contains only pure ingredients.

Majestic furniture polish is another special product, manufactured particularly for high-grade polished wood surfaces. Take a piano, for instance. Most people would hesitate a moment before using an ordinary furniture polish to restore its lustre, but there need be no hesitancy in using Majestic Furniture Polish on this or any other article of the finest furniture.

Christie, Brown & Co.

One of the exhibits visitors to the fair and particularly grocers look for year after year, is that of Christie, Canadian National Exhibition—Majestic Polishes.

Brown & Co., Canada's premier biscuit makers. The reason for this is that the name "Christie" is known in every household in Canada. This year the firm was again represented by a large and handsome exhibit, built up of the company's products, comprising over five hundred varieties of biscuits and similar products, such as cakes and tinned puddings.

Canadian National Exhibition—Christie's Biscuits.

Christie, Brown & Co. maintain their proud position by keeping up the standard of excellence in all departments, and by insisting on absolute cleanliness in their large factory. The company's supply of butter, for instance, is purchased from well-known dairy farmers, who supply their whole output. When this supply is insufficient, resort is made to the best creameries. The butter, also, is salted according to the company's direction, thus assuring uniformity in the product. The best of molasses, too, is purchased, no matter what the cost, and this policy is followed with all the supplies purchased, so that the firm have achieved an enviable reputation among the purchasing trade.

With such attention to raw material, it is only natural that special attention is paid to methods of manufacture. Christie, Brown & Co.'s immense factory is a model of cleanliness and organization. Each of the hundreds of employees is furnished with a uniform and handkerchief, which are laundered at the expense of the company. Again, bath rooms are provided for the use of employees and time is allowed during raw material and to put it through the processes of manufacture at the most desirable time, is only one secret of the excellence of the goods. The steady increase in sales is another proof of excellence.

Packard's Popular Polishes.

The fact that L. H. Packard & Co.'s booth attracted more than ordinary attention was quite evident from the eager crowds which continually confronted the staff. Great interest was manifested in this exhibit. In addition to their well-known lines of shoe dressings, a specialty was made of the sale of Black "O." With each package was presented a handsome fan, some blotters and an interesting little novelty in the shape of a "drummer." The "drummer" was a decided "hit," and a clever advertising medium. The exhibit also included French Glycerine and Ladies' Special, Box Calf Combination, Patent Leather Cream. J. W. Strike, E. D. Van Dine and J. P. Neville conducted the exhibit in a courteous and pleasant manner.

F. D. Smith's Preserves.

"Like mother used to make." That's the kind of jams and jellies one got a taste of at the booth of E. D. Smith, Winona fruit king. And many were the visitors who had their mouths water for a moment at the thought of the old days in the country when they used to scrape the scum off the saucer when mother was "doing up" her fruit.

E. D. Smith's pure fruit jams and jellies have achieved a remarkable reputation in Canada. There are several reasons for this. One is that the fruit used in the product is grown either on the working hours so that these privileges may be taken advantage of. The different processes throughout the factory are attended with the utmost care, and much time has been spent in study to assure perfect cleanliness everywhere. Indeed, a lady who has always had a prejudice against factory-made biscuits and who recently made a trip through the factory, expressed herself as greatly surprised at the cleanliness evident everywhere, and said she would have no further prejudice against any of this firm's product.

H. J. Heinz Co.

Every member of the famous "57 Varieties" was present at the company's pretty booth facing the main entrance to the Manufacturers' Building, and the corps of demonstrators did their best to make the general public acquainted with the distinctive qualities of each of these members. The company's product, in cans, jars and bottles of various shapes and colors, were arranged in a striking pyramid in the centre of the booth, while at the top of this was a gigantic cucumber, the firm's familiar trade mark.

The excellence of the Heinz products need scarcely be mentioned. They have gained a continental reputation and are reaping the fruit of excellence of method and organization. The fact that the company has fifteen branch factories and sixty-seven salting stations, and that they own extensive land around these and are thus able to grow their own property of the canner or on adjoining farms, at Winona, in the garden of Ontario, where tempering suns and balmy air produce the most perfect fruit. Another is that the fruit is gathered and preserved when it is ready and does not deteriorate through shipment. Again, the canning and preserving are done by the most cleanly and modern methods and only fresh fruit and pure granulated cane sugar are utilized. No preservatives or coloring matter of any kind find their way into the E. D. Smith product. The result is the "like mother used to make" flavor. In one way Mr. Smith has even got ahead of the mother-made product. That is in the style of his jars. They are of French design and are uniformly labelled. The fine appearance made by an assortment of these jars may be seen by reference to the accompanying photograph, which gives also an excellent idea of the booth as it appeared during the Exhibition.

The world in general talks a good deal about pure foods. There would be no necessity of a food law if manufacturers in general were as scrupulous as the manufacturer of the E. D. S. brand goods. Grocers are pretty well acquainted with the excellence of these goods. It would pay them to recommend E. D. Smith jams, jellies and preserves to their customers, not only to the particular ones who always insist on the very best, but also to even the general class. The "like mother used to make" taste is sure to be pleasing to everyone.

St. Charles Evaporated Cream.

For general attractiveness, artistic display and dainty service the exhibit of St. Charles Evaporated Cream easily occupied a premier place. The booth was decorated in white, suggestive of the purity which is the foundation-stone of this cream's popularity. Judging from the gratifying remarks heard and the large numbers who partook of the booth's hospitality, St. Charles Evaporated Cream scored a signal success.

The many features peculiar to this cream have made it an accepted household article all over America. Whatever qualms people once experienced over the use of Evaporated Cream, have long since been dispelled. It is no longer in an experimental stage, nor is it a novelty. At present it can be utilized in any household and is really a necessity in every well-ordered house. Not only is it practically invaluable as a nourishing food, but it is exceedingly useful for culinary purposes. For fruits, puddings, custards, coffee, cocoa, etc., it has no superior, adding a rich flavor, and, at the same time, being free from the dangers inherent in all unsterilized liquids.

In the process of manufacture, every precaution is taken to insure absolute purity. Science plays a most important part in its preparation, and every detail is carefully watched in both the factory and dairy. A recent Board of Health report on the company's establishment, at Ingersoll, Ontario, says, "scrupulous cleanliness in every department is evident throughout the whole premises." It is little wonder, in view of such commendatory statements, that the high-class products of the St. Charles Condensing Co. are making their way into so many homes and proving themselves so beneficial to the public. Numerous testimonials point in the same direction.

Besides the celebrated St. Charles Evaporated Cream, the company produces such well known lines as Silver Cow, Condensed, Purity and Good Luck Milk. Dane & Co., Toronto, are the enterprising Canadian representatives of this firm, and they deserve congratulation for their splendid showing at the Exposition.

The "Melagama" Tea Books.

Passing down the northern side of the Manufacturers' Building, visitors to the Exhibition could not fail to be struck with the imposing booth of "Melagama" Tea. This exhibit is one which calls for more than mere passing comment. Life and energy were continually in evidence and the stentorian tones of the superintending demonstrator echoed and re-echoed throughout the building, announcing that "Melagama Tea is now being demonstrated free, 40c Melagama, tested at 200 cups to the pound," and if the manner in which the public patronized the booth is any index to the success of the demonstration, then indeed it must have been an unqualified success.

Canadian National Exhibition—Edwardsburg Table Syrup. Exhibit No. 2.

Encouraged by the success of previous exhibits, the proprietors this year had taken a largely increased space—more than twice the size of their previous year's stand. This stand, however, large as it was, was scarcely adequate for the accommodation of the crowds which pressed around. The exhibit was beautifully decorated in red and white, the two favorite colors of "Melagama." The signboard, which was plainly but beautifully written in deep red and white letters, was much admired, and could not fail to be attractive.

The accompanying illustration will give readers of The Canadian Grocer a good idea of this interesting exhibit, and a few of the pointers gathered by "The Grocer Man" at his interview, are well worth recording. "Eo, sir ; we do not find the giving of sample packets of tea at such exhibitions as these to be productive of results equivalent to the outlay. What we want is to get customers to buy from the grocer, having tomers to buy from the grocer. Having once bought "Melagama," the one package is sufficient to convert customers to use it continuously." Such were the sentiments of the "Melagama" ad. manager, and, judging from the pile of orders which were taken at the booth, a large number indeed of the public will soon be "Melagama" converts.

To the casual observer, the rapidity with which the cups of tea were passed round to the crowds, who were five and six deep, was little less than marvellous but to those who looked more closely, system and order were the answer to it all. The tea was placed in the urns straight from a 40c package in the presence of the public, who could thus see the actual tea test and, after the few minutes' brewing, was drawn from the urns and passed round to the onlookers.

It must not be thought that "Melagama" Tea is a new tea to the market. It has been known to the older men of the trade for a great many years and has made steady and sure progress. Minto Bros., the proprietors of this tea, have been known to the trade as an exclusive tea house for more than a generation, and make a specialty of carrying one of the fullest lines of bulk teas on the market. "The Grocer Man" gathered at his interview that their premises at 55 Front Street East, Toronto, were totally insufficient for their purpose and that arrangements had to be made to warehouse a large quantity of "new arrivals" at additional premises. Minto Bros. are evidently one of those firms who are proving to-day the advantage of steadily and consistently studying their clients and placing at their disposal the experience and knowledge of years of practical tea business.

The Stewart Co.

Without doubt one of the daintest booths in the Manufacturers' Building was that of the Stewart Co., Limited, manufacturers of fine chocolates and high-grade confectionery. Around three sides of the booth, as may be seen in the accompanying photograph, were displayed samples of the firm's product in different lines of confectionery, while, tastefully arranged in silent salesmen in front, were some of the dainty boxes and packages of the famous chocolates which the Stewart Co. regularly manufacture. These range from the packages which the small boy and girl buy from the grocer or druggist, to the elaborate boxes and pretty baskets which are used so generally at Christmas and holiday time.

Quality is the one thing above all others that the Stewart Co. are emphasizing in their product, and the high standard reached in their goods has become well-known all over Canada. Indeed, the firm have such confidence in their goods, that every chocolate turned out is stamped with the name "Stewart," as a guarantee to the purchaser, and incidentally, as an advertisement for the goods. The high-quality of the goods has been reached by using only the very purest materials, by insisting on the most scrupulous cleanliness in the factory, and by employing the highest class of help that can be secured in this special line.

Grocers are generally beginning to carry a line of high-class confectionery, and many of these who carry Stewart's goods report that this department is a good profit maker. A line of Stewart's confectionery should aid very materially in stimulating a grocer's fall and Christmas trade.

Snap Company, Montreal.

An altogether new and unique display in the Manufacturers' Annex was that of the Snap Company, Montreal, manufacturers of the new antiseptic Hand Cleaner, "Snap." This article, though but newly placed upon the Canadian market has already secured a good hold among the grocers of the country and the practical demonstration of the quick and ready work shown visitors is bound to spread its fame far and wide. Snap is a paste hand cleaner, on entirely new principles, is hygienically a perfect household necessity. It removes paint, grease, blacking and stains from the hands in a marvelous manner, at the same time leaving the hands soft. For mechanics, printers, metal workers and the like it would appear a practically indispensible article, and the housewife will endorse it freely. It leaves the hands soft as velvet and does not chap. Too much cannot be said in praise of Snap. The company's display was in charge of H. E. Livingstone, the Toronto agent, who was assisted by W. R. Jaffray, of the traveling staff, and a lady demonstrator. All were most assiduous in waiting upon visitors and explaining that "Snap is better than soap."

Bowser Oil Storage System.

Probably no display at the Toronto Exhibition attracted more attention from hardwaremen this year than the exhibit of Bowser Oil Tanks in the Process Building. Several expert salesmen were present at all times, and they had few idle moments, large numbers of hardwaremen, grocers, automobile owners and factory users, being constantly present, studying the advantages to be derived from the use of Bowser Tanks, which have now become such a standard article in the oil and gasoline trade throughout Canada. The large new factory established by the Bowser Company last October, in the vicinity of the Toronto Exhibition grounds, was also visited by many dealers who desired to get in closer touch with the men who are providing the trade with such an economical, clean and money-saving system of handling all classes of oils. The factory since its establishment less than a year ago has been kept in operation to its fullest capacity, in an endeavor to keep pace with the enormous demand for Bowser Tanks.

A representative of this paper spent an interesting hour at the Bowser display, and learned much regarding the Bowser system, and was greatly impressed by the interest manifested by retailers of oil, who already knew much, but desired to learn more regarding oil storage by the Bowser system, and spent considerable of their time while at the Exhibition in gathering additional information. W. R. Hance, the manager, kindly outlined the remarkable development of the business, which was established about twenty-two years ago. In less than a quarter of a century the business has grown until, to-day, Bowser Oil Tanks can be found in all parts of the world wherever oil is used by enterprising men, who desire to handle it in the most economical manner. Competition to-day forces every business man to adopt every device which reduces cost of fire risk, or tends to save time, labor, or material. The Bowser oil equipments accomplish this, and are so complete in detail, and so simple and comprehensive in construction, that they win the approval of every handler of oil who is sufficiently progressive to adopt modern methods of doing business.

Mr. Hance also informed our representative that his company had recently issued a book entitled "Plan Drawings of Model Storage Systems," which they are placing in the hands of everyone interested in the economical handling of oil.

There is absolutely no waste in using a Bowser outfit, and the saving made in consequence, is sufficient in a short time to fully cover the original expense of installing the system. The purchase of the Bowser outfit is, therefore, one of the most profitable investments that can be made in the way of store fixtures, this being borne out by the experience of thousands of merchants who have made the test.

Canadian National Exhibition—Soap Hand Cleaner.

The Bowser Oil Storage outfit is the best system for handling oil out of the store and away from it beyond the distance required by the insurance companies. The company places outside, at a suitable distance from the building, a tank holding any desired amount, generally about twenty barrels. The pump is placed at the most convenient point on the store floor, and connected with the tank by a 1½-inch galvanized iron pipe. The pump is a combination suction and force pump, built entirely of metal, is equipped with all the latest improvements, and measures an accurate gallon, half-gallon, quart or pint, at a stroke.

With this outfit, a dealer may have any desired amount of coal oil on hand, but never more than a gallon at a time in his store. This plan gives most excellent satisfaction and supplies the long-felt necessity that merchants in general have felt; a relief from much danger in case of fire; a relief from a heavy rate of insurance; a relief from being compelled to pay the high price of oil, when everybody wants it.

The handling of paint oils, varnishes, and other non-lubricants, has always been more or less costly, because of the large amount of oil wasted by the dripping faucets and by using measures and funnels, causing besides the waste of oil, time and labor, a dirty and disagreeable oil room. Bowser Measuring Outfits handle these oils in an economical, clean and convenient manner, and are guaranteed to handle all classes of heavy, gummy oils and liquids easily and satisfactorily. They positively will not "gum" up. The pumps are so constructed that all working parts are always submerged in the oil, and hence, never being exposed to the air, never become gummed and always work easily and smoothly.

The company has a corps of able salesmen covering every part of the country, who have been kept busy during the past year in installing several thousand new outfits made by the Toronto plant, hardware dealers and grocers everywhere finding it to their advantage to install a system of handling oil which not only saves time and money, but has the unqualified approval and endorsement of all fire insurance companies.

Canadian National Exhibition—Display of S. F. Bowser & Company, Toronto.

Thos. J. Lipton.

This year's Canadian National Exhibition is acknowledged as the finest, largest and best ever held. Hundreds of thousands of visitors from all parts of Canada were interested in the great and varied displays made by manufacturers, artists, purveyors, etc. The Manufacturers' Building was naturally the centre of attraction and the exhibits were of a high class. It is safe to say that good, great and handsome as were the booths and their exhibits, there was nothing within the walls of the grounds equal in anything to the magnificient exhibit of Thos. Lipton at 91 King street west. The very novelty of having a downtown show, sample and tea room, appealed to thousands of visitors as well as citizens of Toronto, and the magnificient scale upon which the display was made, left an indelible impression upon all callers. The premises were formerly occupied as a show room by Arts and Crafts, designers of artistic furniture and interiors, and had but lately been erected. The decorations of walls, floors, ceilings and stairways were in the old Dutch style and the most perfect possible, the ground floor arranged as a tea room with about twenty tables. Lipton's tea was served by a staff of lady attendants. Two Singhalese tea experts, dressed in the spotless white native costume, their raven-black hair coiled on their heads and held by the indispensable comb. These two tea experts were especially brought to Toronto from the Jamestown Exhibition, where they were employed in Lipton's Tea Exhibit. Their appearance was a good advertisement for the Toronto Exhibit, and their careful attention to customers and tea knowledge was much appreciated. The two windows as well as the running shelving along the walls were devoted to displaying Lipton's Teas, Lipton's Coffees, Lipton's Jams, Jellies, Marmalades, Pickles, Sauces, and other grocers' sundries and specialties. The basement was arranged as a log cabin, with everything appropriate, rustic chairs, settees, tables, etc., and formed a most unique tea room. "The finest tea rooms on the American continent," was the opinion of those who have seen the best on both sides of the line, and undoubtedly, this statement is correct. There certainly never was seen here anything to approach it, and the advertisement obtained by Thos. J. Lipton in this unique and artistic exhibition of his teas and other sundries, is one whose value is hard to estimate. Thousands of visitors were served every morning, noon and evening, and everyone was pleased to learn more of Lipton's goods. The conception of this artistic display and the carrying out

Blue Ribbon Tea.

One of the exhibits that visitors looked for, because of the pleasant reception accorded them in previous years, was that of the Blue Ribbon Tea Company. And the welcome extended this year was even heartier than ever.

In a spacious corner of the Manufacturers' Building, tastefully decorated with bunting and with the familiar Blue Ribbon packages, was the company's booth, and it was filled with and surrounded by visitors during almost

Perhaps the most attractive feature of the exhibit was the welcome extended by the company's staff. This year the honors were extended by Messrs. Geo. F. Campbell, F. Blewett, M. A. Rae, Geo. Simons and R. G. Morgan, and it will not be the fault of these gentlemen if everyone who visited the Exhibition does not believe in and use Blue Ribbon Tea.

to its success is credited to A. E. Carson, the Canadian representative of Thos. J. Lipton, whose offices are at 75 Front street east, Toronto, and the praise is due him. During the Exhibition, W. A. W. Melville, New York. Thos. J. Lipton's general representative for America, spent a few days in the city. Mr. Melville's energy and up-to-date ideas and push are bearing fruit in the increased demand for the world's greatest purveyor's products. Mr. Carson, his Canadian lieutenant, is as full of energy as his direct superior, and Lipton's is their constant thought.

every hour of the Fair. A pleasant feature of the exhibit was a cosy parlor where visitors were welcomed and served, as proof of its good qualities, with cups of the Blue Ribbon product.

The company were generous, for, in addition to their demonstrations, they distributed thousands of copies of the "Blue Ribbon Baby Book," a novel little volume in which nursery rhymes are made to sing the praises of Blue Ribbon Tea. Each of these books, by the way, bore a coupon, entitling the owner to a sample of the tea advertised therein.

the Manufacturers' Building, the product of Tobler, the Swiss chocolate maker, whose goods are found the world over, was exhibited by Messrs. Maclure & Langley, of Toronto, who are the Canadian and United States agents for this firm. The booth, which deserves particular mention, was an excellent reproduction of a Swiss chalet, though unfortunately the requirements of the Exhibition management prevented carrying out the idea of roof construction as far as was intended.

Tobler's milk chocolate is recognized as one of the purest, most delicious, most healthful and most nutritious of sweetmeats. Indeed, it is more than a confection and may justly be called a food, for its nutritive and sustaining values are higher than in most of the so-called "pure foods."

For these and other reasons, Tobler's chocolate is finding a remarkably large market in America, and in spite of the heavy Canadian tariff imposed as a result of the jealousy of Canadian manufacturers, Messrs. Maclure & Langley are having largely increased sales. Indeed, Tobler's chocolate is known and is coming to be regarded as a standard line, not only in the larger centres, but also in every little town and hamlet in Canada and the United States.

Tobler established his business in Berne, Switzerland, in 1845, sixty-one years ago, and has been improving the methods and product, and enlarging his sales ever since. He now stands as the premier manufacturer of eating chocolate in the world.

Samples of the firm's goods were distributed and were on sale at Maclure & Langley's booth, which was a popular place during the two weeks of the Exposition.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Rufus Williams, grocer, of Essex, has assigned to W. D. Beaman.

Geo. W. Thomas, grocer, of Ottawa, has retired from business.

Normandin, Prance & Co., brush manufacturers, Montreal, have dissolved.

Jas. Grieves, of Ottawa, has taken over the business of Cundell & Co., in that city.

The firm of C. Auclair & Frere, broom manufacturers, of Quebec, has been registered.

N. Grafos, confectioner, of Sault Ste. Marie, has assigned to J. Bassingthwaighte.

Jas. B. Campbell, of the Acme Can Works, Montreal, spent last week end on the Rideau, fishing.

Lewis & Robinson, grocers, of Hamilton, have dissolved partnership. Eva M. Walker is continuing the business.

Wm. Robinson, grocer and men's furnisher, of Blind River, has assigned to U. S. Robinson. The creditors will meet on the 13th inst.

Richard Humphreys, who has been conducting a general store at Kirkwall, is succeeded by J. Lothian.

The stock of J. A. Seward & Co., of Montreal, wholesale dealers in teas and coffees, suffered rather serious damage by water, by reason of fire in a neighboring building, last week.

The total production of sugar in Trinidad for the year 1906-7 was 45,000 tons. Of this amount Canada took half. America, upon which the sugar planters relied almost entirely a few years ago, in 1906-7 only took $2,500 worth.

McDonald Bros., general storekeepers, of Jamestown, have dissolved partnership and Duncan McDonald, one of the former firm, is continuing the business.

Moses Moyer, who has been conducting a general store at Jordan Station, died last week.

Salada Ceylon Tea.

The man, woman or child in Canada who has not heard the name "Salada" is a rarity. Of the nearly 800,000 visitors to the Canadian National Exhibition, it is safe to say that every one of this large crowd admired the rich artistic booth of the Salada Ceylon Tea Co. Situated directly opposite the main entrance of the Manufacturers' Building, it at once caught the attention of the visitors. The booth was in the form of an Indian or Ceylon bungalow, in white and old ivory colors, and surmounted by an octagonal tower, the dome of which was bronze and crowned with a golden Buddha. On the corners of the booth were large gilded statues of Singhalese mythological characters, holding up banners with the words "Salada Ceylon Tea." Over the arched doorway in the centre, and on the side of the booth, were large statues of elephants; on the ledges of the arched windows, valuable ebony elephants were placed. In the centre of the booth on a table was a most perfect ebony Buddha. The back and sides of the booth were built up with pyramids of Salada Tea, while a number of palms completed the beautifully artistic conception. Unstinted praise was expressed at the delicate and artistic design, the whole idea being in keeping with the company's well-known plan of having the best in all they attempt. Salada Tea requires no introduction to the trade and consumer. Its reputation as the premier package tea, not only of Canada, but the continent, is one that has built up the largest package tea trade in the world. The word "Salada" is synonymous of the very best that can be produced by the tea gardens of Ceylon, which means the world's best. The constantly increasing demand for Salada Tea speaks the confidence the consumer has in it, and bears out the company's claim that " they are giving the consumer the best tea, uniform in quality and absolutely guarantee every package." The Salada Ceylon Tea Co.'s ad. in this week's issue of The Grocer is worth perusing, and the facts set forth tell a marvellous story of the greatest tea house on the continent.

Kops Non-Alcoholic Beverages.

Not a little attention has been evinced in the exhibit of these world-famous English drinks. A genial manager, a tempting counter, and a well-arranged background of bottled "wet" goods appealed strongly to the visiting public. It is only within comparatively recent years that these goods have invaded the Canadian field. Their success has been quite remarkable and gratifying. Eminent persons the world over testify to the high quality of Kops Ale and Stout, especially.

Kyle & Hooper, 73 Front street, Toronto, are sole agents for Ontario for these goods. Their exhibit was competently conducted by W. J. Wright.

Maple Tree Producers' Association.

At the entrance to the Manufacturers' Annex was the booth of the Maple Tree Producers' Association, Waterloo, Que. This company, organized a few years ago, had the commendable object in view of producing only absolutely pure maple syrup and sugar. The work laid out was one of great difficulty, owing to the blending and adulteration of maple syrups that had crept into the trade. It was through the efforts of this company that the Inland Revenue Department at Ottawa took active measures for the stamping out of the adulteration, and a great improvement is already apparent. The Maple Tree Producers' Association control their own sugar bush, besides paying farmers such a high price for pure syrup that it does not pay the private producer to manipulate the product. M. F. Goddard, manager, is one of the best authorities on maple products in Canada, and a stickler for purity. Energetic and posted as he is on his goods from the run of the sap to the finished syrup or sugar, he convinces one that to use anything but the Maple Tree Producers' goods, is a serious misdemeanor. The word Pure, means perfection, and grocers handling the "Pride of Canada" and other brands of this company, have a guarantee that nothing can be better.

SPECIMEN ORGANIZE.

A Lesson in Newspapers.

It was recently announced from New York that the spice merchants had organized The American Spice Trade Association, and nearly every newspaper headed it with "Another Trust," "A Spice Combine," or similar label. This is a fair sample of the ordinary newspaper's attitude to trade. The organization has no more relation to a trust or combine than an ant has to an elephant. John Clarke, of New York, chairman of the organization meeting, explained the movement as follows:

"In calling this meeting to order it is perhaps as well to state briefly its purposes and reasons for existence. There is one prominent and central statement of policy that it is advisable should be given emphasis in the strongest manner, and that is the attitude of the promoters of this organization of the spice trade toward Pure Food legislation and regulations. It is the distinct and sincere purpose of this association to uphold the law in every possible way, and not in any case to oppose, evade or attempt to discredit it.

"For many years there have arisen in the spice trade innumerable questions and disagreements on qualities, contracts, terms, deliveries, etc., and these have proved unpleasant and unprofitable; and, within a year, the Pure Food legislation has proved another subject which demands trade action, as a trade, on the part of those interested in spices. In the belief that these conditions may be improved; that much unnecessary friction and loss may be avoided by intelligent action, and that the dignity and influence of the spice trade, as a trade, may be enhanced and further established, we have called this meeting to-day."

It is curious how the passion for sensation clouds the judgment of so many newspaper men. It probably explains why the daily paper is so unreliable in matters relating to business.

Metallic Roofing Co.'s Exhibit.

The accompanying photo shows what is probably the finest exhibit of sheet metal building material that has ever been made. The workmanship could not have been excelled. This very attractive exhibit clearly shows that sheet metal can be successfully used for nearly every portion of a building and produces a handsome, durable, fire and lightning proof finish.

The exhibit included cornices, skylights, finials, embossed fireproof doors, pressed zinc ornaments, Haye patent metallic lath, ventilators, conductor pipe, eave trough, spun zinc balusters, metallic ceiling, centre pieces, cores, moldings, etc., fireproof wired glass windows with hollow sheet metal sash and frames, "Eastlake" and "Empire" metallic shingles, corrugated iron, both galvanized and painted, straight or curved. Some of these articles are most beautifully decorated in colors and only need to be seen to be appreciated.

The company makes only reliable, artistic and durable articles, and point out that theirs is the only exhibit of sheet metal building materials that has ever been considered worthy of a gold medal, and this high honor has been given no less than three years in succession. What more need be said?

Canadian National Exhibition—The Metallic Roofing Co., Toronto.

The company's products are exported to nearly all foreign countries and their Canadian trade has increased so greatly that they find it necessary to operate their factories both day and night.

Retail Merchant and His Window

By H. L. Hall, Circulation Manager Business Man's Magazine.

The properly used show window is the best advertising medium within the reach of the retail merchant, and yet, curiously enough, it seems to be the least appreciated of all the means he uses. His show window is his best medium, because it will sell goods for him at a less percentage of cost than any other means at his command. I say that it is the least appreciated because of the fact that it is so very generally neglected. Most retail merchants have not yet learned its true value. Many of them seem to think that it is merely a space which must be filled up with something—it does not really matter what or how. All this is wrong.

Your department store manager appreciates his window space and makes good use of it. If you do not believe that he considers window space valuable, go to him and try to rent one of those he is using. You will soon get a larger idea of its value. The big store even goes to the length of employing an artist who spends all his time and thought in getting up and executing attractive window displays. And these window displays sell goods enough to make the window dresser and his big salary a good investment. We called these window trimmers artists, and many of them are nothing less, as an inspection will soon show, but it is not enough that a display shall please the eye. It must sell goods or it is not successful. The big store demands that there shall be a material increase in the sale of a displayed article while it is in the window, and if the increase does not come the fact is chalked up against the window dresser in the records of the manager.

In show windows the acme of achievement is to be found in the big stores on Broadway and State Sts., New York, and there are not lacking those who will whisper that the latter is in the lead. The other extreme is to be found in the window of the little store in a side street, where the sole decorations consist of a smoky lamp or a flaring gas jet and a choice collection of fly-specks. And the latter has just as great a relative value as the former if the merchant did but know it. The advertising agent of your local opera house knows the value of show windows, for he is willing to exchange seats worth money for the privilege of hanging his lithographs in your window, and I cannot conceive of him doing it unless your window has a real value to him—and if to him, why not to you?

The real potential value of a show window lies in the number of people who will pass it within a given space of time. Its value may be computed on the same basis as that used for the computation of any other means of publicity. Magazines charge so much a line per thousand of circulation. If you buy space in the pages of a magazine you pay for the privilege of exhibiting your announcement in a place where a given number of people will pass. It is up to you to make your announcement in such a manner that these people, or a goodly number of them, will stop to see what you have to say. It is just the same with your show window. No matter what your location, there will be about so many people pass your window each day, and it is your task to make that window catch and hold their attention to such an extent that some of them will feel a want of what you there offer.

Of course the average retail merchant cannot afford to pay a big salary to an exclusive window trimmer, but the chances are that there is some one within reach who can do many times better than he is now doing with the means at his command. It may be his clerk or porter. It may be his wife or daughter. The proper thing to do is to experiment till he finds the right one, and then let that one do his best. Window trimming is an art, but like most other arts it can be studied and acquired. Get out on the street and study other windows. Analyze the ones which appeal to you as being above the average. Learn what it is which makes them better than most of the others. Pick out the good points and emulate them. Pick out the faults and avoid them. I do not mean to advise copying, but we can learn from the mistakes and successes of others without copying.

It is at night when the outside world is dark that your window will look the most attractive. Hence the best time for window display is in the fall and winter, when the evenings are longest. For this reason, too, it follows that one of the first things to be seen to is that the window must be well illuminated. Nothing so surely kills off a window display as poor lights. And at the same time it may be stated that there is no other investment which will pay a merchant so well as good lights throughout the store as well as in the window, but if the lights must be cut down anywhere, let it not be in the windows.

The chief fault of the ordinary window display is crowding. Don't try to put your entire stock in your windows, but leave room for an effective arrangement of what you do put there. Too much stuff will defeat your purpose, which is to call attention to the items displayed with enough force to make the gazer want to buy. The handsomest and most effective window the writer has seen in a long time was at the same time the simplest. At the season of beautiful window displays—Christmas—this one was easily the best. It was in the window of a shoe store. The back and sides of the window were finished in plain wood of a dark shade, and in the window were three pedestals about fourteen inches high. Over these pedestals were draped three skins, one white, one red and one blue. On the top of each was a single slipper, matching in color the skin under it. In the centre of the window, on a white mat, was placed a single shoe, one of a new pattern. This shoe was marked "Our Marquise Shoe —$3.50." I'll warrant that the display sold that brand of shoes and sold plenty of them.

There is one more point. Do not expect a window display to sell goods indefinitely. Those who pass your place will get tired seeing the same thing day after day. Give them something new to look at once in a while. Let them get into the habit of looking to see what you are going to offer them next. Sooner or later you will catch the fancy of the regular gazer and sell him, or her, something. If your offerings are made on the basis of attractive prices, make the price a part of the display. In most cases it is well to do this anyway, as the combination of the article and the price together sometimes make an irresistible combination to the vagrant fancy of the window-gazer.

One word more and I am done. Wash your windows. Is this an unnecessary suggestion? Not so much so as it might be, as you will see if you will take a walk along any street you like, for I will warrant that you will find at least half the windows you pass would be all the better for a little attention from the porter. It is a big job to wash windows frequently when other work presses, but do not allow yourself to fall into the habit of letting it go till a more convenient season. Even if you do not do it for the benefit of the window display, do it anyway for the sake of the appearance of the store generally. If nothing better is possible, cover the floor of your window with clean paper of a light color. It looks much better than stained and blotched boards. A little attention to your windows will pay well for all the time and trouble it will cost you, as you will soon find out.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS MAY FORM SEPARATE ASSOCIATION

Strong Feeling of Discontent Among Members of Grocers' Branch of Retail Merchants' Association—President Laniel Favors Separate Association.

Will the Montreal branch of the Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association break away from the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada?

This is the question in retail grocery circles in Montreal, which is asked of those interested in the association and its work.

The monthly meeting of the Retail

R. Laniel, re-elected President Montreal Grocer's Section of the R. M. A.

Grocers' Association took place Thursday evening last week, and it was then that the first whisperings of discontent became public.

Not much was said, and nothing definite was done, but from the little talk of one man and another it was to be seen that there is considerable discontent over the present state of affairs.

At Thursday evening's meeting the feeling was that the members of the Retail Grocers' Association were not getting fair play. Under the circumstances many thought the best thing for the association to do was to break away entirely from the Retail Merchants' Association and to form a separate association of their own.

The grocers feel that they are the most important body in the Montreal branch of the federation, and from the standpoint of numbers, they undoubtedly are, forming as they do two-thirds of the entire membership.

Six hundred and fifty members are annually paying in to the Retail Merchants' Association a fee of $2, or $1,300 a year. Where does the Grocers' Association come in on this? is the question.

According to the constitution of the Retail Merchants' Association, Article IV., Section 8, $1.50 of the membership fee shall be forwarded to the Secretary of the Provincial Board, while the remaining 50c "shall be retained by the Executive officers of the branch, or the section, agreed upon by both parties." According to Section 9, of the same article, where there is no organizer working, and where the officers collect their own fees, only $1 must be forwarded to the Provincial Secretary, which leaves the other $1 for the local branch.

In Montreal, there has been employed an organizer, so that according to the constitution, only 50c. of their membership fees would go to the retail grocers.

But The Canadian Grocer has it on good authority that after this constitution was formed there was held a meeting at which it was decided that the Retail Grocers' Association should turn over the entire $2 to the Retail Merchants' Association, and they should then be free of any expense. With the 50c. they formerly retained, they were supposed to pay their share of rent and light of the hall occupied by the various branch associations in Montreal.

Section 10 same article, makes it possible for each branch to obtain money for current expenses by making special assessments, on a two-thirds vote, or by charging sufficient dues.

The foregoing will give an idea as to how matters stand, and, under the circumstances, the retail grocers feel that they are not being justly dealt with. They claim they are paying $1,300 into the coffers of the Retail Merchants' Association, for which they receive no return, beyond, perhaps, free hall, light, heat and the like, and, possibly, the payment of the expenses of grocer members of the few delegations to the Government or conventions during the year.

Did they receive this $1,300 themselves, they feel they would be able to put it to good use in organizing a powerful body of retail grocers and in generally furthering the aims of the retail grocery trade.

As it is to-day, the grocers have no money to go about these things in their own way. They receive the proceeds of their annual picnic, amounting to perhaps $300, but this sum is pitifully small to carry on the work of a Grocers' Association in a city like Montreal.

Though the retail grocers desire to withdraw from the Retail Merchants' Association, it is hardly likely that they will do so for some time, as the constitution provides that "no local branch can become separated from the Provincial Board unless it gives six months' notice before January 1 of any year to the secretary of the said Provincial Board."

President Laniel, of the Retail Grocers' Association, seen by The Grocer, said: "I do not think the Retail Grocers are receiving fair play at the hands of the Retail Merchants' Association. We are paying in a large sum in membership fees every year, and are receiving very little in return. We are not getting a square deal, and unless there is a decided change in the state of affairs, we are very likely to cut loose from the federation and organize a purely Grocers' Association, which we will make the largest and best of its kind in Canada."

It is very likely that some motion will be made at the next meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association to find out what is the feeling of the members in this matter.

Officers were nominated at the meeting as follows: President, A. Laniel; First Vice-President, J. A. Dore; Second Vice-President, J. D. Boileau; Treasurer, H. Laniel; Secretary A. Sarazin; Auditors, N. Chartrand and E. P. Lalande.

Selling the remains of the donations to the annual picnic occupied what time was left. The amount realized on the sales was $143.

CHATHAM.

The old trouble over peddlers and transients is once more occupying the attention of the City Council.

This time the fruit dealers and grocers are particularly interested. The culprit is Gaspar Favata, who, a short time ago, after a brief spell of exile, returned to Chatham and opened a fruit store on Queen street. On Saturday Gaspar appeared on King street and proceeded to dispose of cheap bananas at cut prices. Storekeepers complained and P. C. Dezelia warned Favata to quit, as he had no license to conduct pushcart sales. The Italian blandly rejoined that he wasn't going to move, and that he had a good lawyer who had informed him that he didn't need a license—furthermore, that the magistrate wouldn't do anything to him.

The magistrate declined to take an information in the case, pending a decision on the appeal in the Brodie case, in which he some time ago decided in favor of the defendant, on the ground that a $100 license fee was prohibitive. The appeal was to have come up this week, but the hearing has been postponed.

The incident was the theme for much heated discussion at Monday night's city council meeting, and the magistrate's refusal to take an information came in for a deal of caustic comment. It was suggested that the matter could probably be dealt with by two justices of the peace, and, accordingly, the Property Committee were instructed to consult the solicitor, and, if possible, lay an information against Favata before two justices.

The Kent Canning Co. started operations on corn last week. The crop is late this year on account of unfavorable weather, but, weather permitting, the company hope to have three or four weeks' work for a large number of men and women.

GUELPH.

The Saturday market was a good one all round. The farmers have got practically all their crops under roof, and, as a result, the market was one of the largest in some months. In fact, so great was the demand for wagon space, that some vehicles could not get into the building, and then, too, the demand being scarcely in proportion to the supply, those with produce stayed around until an unusually late hour. Butter and eggs were plentiful, the former at from 23c to 26c, and the latter from 18c to 20c a dozen. Potatoes also dropped to 75c a bushel. Tomatoes are now apparently in their last stages, and are in great demand not a basket being obtainable after 6.30 a.m. The price was from 35c to 40c a basket. Plums and pears were a little firm, from 60c to 85c being paid.

It seems as if the Merchants' Association have fully decided to keep open their stores next Thursday, after all, which doesn't by any means say they have used the best judgment. There may or may not be too many holidays, but this is a grand opportunity. This should have been Merchants' Day, and none will regret it more than those who keep open and find it would have been pleasanter and, perhaps, cheaper, to have closed up. We all know what a small city is like for business when a large excursion like this is going out, and at the small fare of $1.25, who would not go?

HAMILTON.

The tomato outlook in this section looks rather gloomy. The drouth in August seems to have cut off all chance of a crop that will be of much use to the canners. The farmers who have contracted with the canners at 25c a bushel, are looking with envious eyes at their neighbors who are getting 80 and 90c a bushel on the Hamilton market, and the canners may find other reasons than the small crop for the shortage in stock coming into the factories. Human nature is pretty much the same among all classes, and while we blame the farmer just now, may they not have resisted the temptation, as a class just about as well as the mercantile community? Of course, all retail grocers live up to all the contracts they go into, and do not demand anything from anybody but what is morally and legally theirs.

Fruits and vegetables in this city are abnormally high, but even at the lofty prices demanded by the grocers there does not seem enough to go around. It is to be hoped that labor may be fully employed during the coming winter, as at the prices all commodities have reached, a man out of work would have a pretty hard time of it. The obliging grocer would have to extend a helping hand to a good many of them.

LONDON.

Fair week with tens of thousands of visitors in the city and so many more mouths to feed, finds the grocers and all other food providers very busy. The demand for all commodities is very great, and storekeepers wear a glad smile. Grocery travelers are staying in this week, meeting their customers from all over the province, but more particularly from the western part, the result being orders large and numerous. Fair week is a veritable harvest time for purveyors of food and foodstuffs.

Farm, garden and orchard produce brought in this week finds ready sale at good prices. The great demand for fruit keeps the price of plums, which are more plentiful than anticipated, at a high figure, for with an unusually small supply of berries and other small fruits, and anything but a good peach crop, housekeepers are looking on the plum as their only salvation. Growers must certainly find profit in the prevailing prices—from 90 cents to $1.25 per small basket, according to variety. The recent warm, dry spell has had the effect of ripening belated tomatoes and they are now coming in in large quantities. A drop of ten cents a basket is recorded since last week.

QUEBEC.

The latest reports on the state of the crops in the Province of Quebec are far from being favorable. The Deputy Minister of the Department of Agriculture, whom your correspondent met a few days ago, told him that the rain at the beginning of September compromised very much the crops which in July were expected to be better this year than they were last. While in 1906 we had only a general average of 72 per cent., this year we were counting upon 80 per cent. On account of the rain, the average will now be very poor. Fodder and pastures suffered most from the unfavorable temperature. The same thing is remarked for green fodder, which was showing in July an average of 86 per cent.; clover 82, and timothy 77. At that time the averages in grain were: For wheat, 78; barley, 84; oats, 88 rye, 78, and buckwheat 79. Actually these grains are fine, but on account of the rain began to rust in the field. Apples are deceptive, for after a splendid flowering they only show an average of 68 per cent. Other small fruits are abundant. Potatoes are at present fine, but according to the latest information, which has been positively confirmed, the potato rot is just beginning.

The wholesale movement of groceries in our city is very satisfactory for the present season of the year. Good orders are received from travelers on the road. Retailers are satisfied with the actual state of business and with the arrival of their usual customers from summer resorts, trade will revive again. However, a good demand is noted for refined sugars and teas.

Small consignments of fresh fish arrived on the market this week. Cod is very scarce and prices are firm.

CORRESPONDENCE

MONTREAL.

It all depends upon the grocer whether one of those particular, fault-finding customers known as cranks shall be, if one may use the words, an asset or a liability. There are so many grocery stores to-day that housekeepers can afford to take an independent stand and dictate to their supply man pretty much as they choose.

Grocers have to stand a great deal of it. If they act nasty it means trade lost. Diplomacy is required in dealing with these exacting customers. Their whims must be catered to; they must be shown that they are welcome, and that their trade is valued. All this can be done by the diplomatic grocer in a pleasant, business-like manner, without in the least offending his sense of pride.

It is difficult at times to wear a smile which hides a frown, but thinking things over, does it not pay? These very people who talk in such a provoking manner about your groceries every time they enter the store, are frequently your best friends when your back is turned. They not infrequently have an idea that they are securing the best you have by their constant complaint, but, receiving the best, they do not hesitate to let people know it. They advertise your store to their neighbors. If you treat them well they will advertise the fact surely enough.

And good words coming from a crank possess a particular value not equalled by kind words coming from the average customer. People think that Brown must be all right if such a crank as So-and-So says he is the best, the only decent grocer in town.

Treat the crank badly, on the other hand, and you are doing yourself a great injury. Nasty little stories will get around that will hurt you in a surprising manner. And no grocer can afford to have stories about him floating around these days—even though they be unfounded.

Just a few days ago the writer was in a retail grocery store and saw a woman fairly well qualified for the crank class handled as nicely as could be desired. The grocer was very pleasant to her and secured her order, which was delivered in pieces, in good shape. This woman didn't know just what she wanted, and took up valuable time ordering. She gave one little order and started out of the store and after the grocer had thought himself finished with her, she suddenly thought of something else and came back. This she repeated three or four times, but the retailer never lost patience with her. He kept his smile the whole time. She was not a customer who bought largely each month, but her patronage was worth so much and her good will was worth so much more.

N. Chartrand, who is one of Montreal's veteran grocers, has opened a store at 694 St. Antoine Street. He has a good stand, and his store is arranged in his usual good-looking style. Mr. Chartrand is an enthusiastic retailer, and is about as well informed in retail grocery conditions in Montreal as any man in the city. He is a member of the Retail Grocers' Association, and has served at different times in an official capacity, having been president more than one year.

In the city, where rents are high and space is consequently valuable, it behooves the grocer to arrange his stock as economically as possible. There can be no such thing as waste room, unless there is plenty of money lying round idle and the grocer can afford to be lavish in the use of business quarters. I saw a good example of economy the other day in a retail grocery. This was a fair-sized store, which originally had three entrances, two side and the front. It was found that having two side entrances took up too much space, and one door was blocked. Instead of allowing the two feet of space between the inner and outer walls to be wasted, this grocer arranged a fine bread and pastry pantry therein. Sanitary glass shelves were secured and hung by means of attractive brass brackets, and the bread and cakes placed on these. A glass door was put in to complete the arrangement and the shelves on that side of the store were built over the door.

J. A. Renaud is one of the younger generation of grocers who is doing well. He conducts a bright store at 622 St. Antoine Street, where he has, in three years, built up a good connection with the neighborhood. He is a member of the Retail Grocers' Association and is quite up to date in other respects. He is one of Mr. Chartrand's old clerks.

Early closing is becoming more fashionable in grocery circles every month. An increasing number of retailers are taking up the movement, and it is hoped that every good man who has his own welfare and that of his brother grocers at heart will put his shoulder to the wheel and help along the good work.

Rapidly the time is passing when men will work fifteen and sixteen hours a day. This is an age of nine and ten hour days, and if men can obtain the same money for ten hours' work as they do for fifteen, it is not unnatural that they should prefer working for the man who gives them the former.

INGERSOLL.

The shareholders of the Canadian Condensed Milk Company met at the Daly House on Thursday last, when organization was completed.

The following were elected directors: Dr. J. M. Rogers, Chas. White, John E. Gayfer, Ingersoll; Dr. Parke, Woodstock; F. R. Lawlor, M.P., Dunnville; D. Marshall, M.P., Aylmer; R. L. Innes, Hamilton.

The directors at a subsequent meeting elected the following officers: President, D. Marshall; vice-president, Dr. J. M. Rogers; secretary-treasurer, R. L. Innes.

The head office of the company will be in Hamilton and it is expected that the factory will be erected in Aylmer.

Although plums, the last of the small fruits in this section, are being marketed in rather plentiful quantities, the fruit situation from the consumer's standpoint remains practically unchanged. It has been a long time since fruit remained at such high prices throughout the season, and it has had a most discouraging effect on the average housewife. The difficulty began with the strawberries, which were scarce, and the prices much higher than in former years. The advent of the other berries failed to relieve the situation, and now that plums and peaches are being marketed at figures away above expectations, it is pretty certain that "preserves" will be more precious than ever this winter. There are several small plum orchards in this district, especially to the south, and the yield is said to be large, but the scarcity in other parts of the country and the shortage of fruits in general, have boosted the prices, until, in many instances, the fruit is regarded as being beyond reach.

After a protracted drought, this section was favored last week with a copious downpour, which, in the language of the west "was worth millions." The country has been crying out for rain. Vegetation has been retarded to a great extent on account of the absence of rain. The tomato crop is at least ten days later than in other years. Speaking to a gentleman a few days ago, who is interested in the canning business, your correspondent was informed that the tomatoes were suffering for the want of rain, and that under the then existing conditions it was difficult for him to say just when operations would be commenced at the canning factories. However, the rain since that time has improved the situation considerably, and although backward, a fairly good crop is anticipated.

J. S. Smith, manager of Beattie & Co.'s grocery store, spent Labor Day in Berlin, where he was employed for some time prior to coming to Ingersoll.

With the almost general scarcity of small fruits, the apples are receiving more attention than in previous years. From enquiries made by your correspondent, it is believed that the crop in this section will be about an average one. In many instances the quality may not be up to the usual mark, but it is gratifying enough to know that it will not be a failure. The apples are probably smaller than in other years, for which the dry weather is held accountable. The buyers are now going amongst the farmers, but it is a trifle early to obtain definite quotations, although it is understood that good prices will be paid for first-class fruit.

The return of the cottagers from the summer resorts, and the close of the Toronto Exhibition, which according to the press "every one attends," are looked upon as encouraging signs by every merchant of the smaller places. Business is usually given an impetus with the advent of Fall, that is not characteristic of any other season, and in anticipation of a lively trade, the local grocers have stocked up well and have everything in first-class shape.

WANTED

A Capable Managing-Editor

THE CANADIAN GROCER wants a Managing-Editor. It wants a thoroughly capable man—a man who is live, up-to-date, full of ideas and one who understands the newspaper business from the riglet box to the editorial chair. Furthermore, it wants a man who is thoroughly conversant with the commercial situation in Canada.

We realize that this is a big want. Not every one can fill the bill, but we're willing to pay at the outset $2,500 a year to the man who can do so. The right man can eventually make his place worth $5,000.

If you think you are this man we want to hear from you, with your experience and qualifications—by letter only.

This appointment may be considered one of the prizes in Canadian Journalism. THE CANADIAN GROCER has for many years been recognized as the authority on the Foodstuff Trade, and its reports have been accepted as final by the Courts of Law, Arbitrations and by official statisticians. The Managing-Editor will be expected to still further strengthen the position of the paper in this respect.

WILL PAY FOR YOUR ENERGY

It is a well-known fact that no Tea ever placed on the Canadian market possesses as much intrinsic value as

RED ROSE TEA

There are many ways to prove it.

Try the Tea yourself
Ask other people who drink it
Ask any disinterested Tea man

Put the energy into selling Red Rose Tea that you put into other brands, and you will sell more Tea and make more money.

If you are not selling it, I think these facts will be proved by a single case. Is it not worth ordering one?

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Cheese has continued strong, and this week the highest market price is only ¼c below 12¾c. Some dealers are asking as much as 12⅝c for finest Ontario, and they are getting this money, as they will hold on to their cheese if they do not receive their quotation. There are others who are willing to sell at ⅝c, but these are not many, and it is probable that they will hold out for more as the month advances. Townships cheese is bringing 12¼c to 12⅝c, while Quebecs are selling at figures ranging from 12⅛c to 12¼c, some being willing to accept 12c even money.

It is fully expected that 12¾c will be reached before the month is out. Prices are usually firm in September, and this year is no exception to the average season in this respect, as one may see by comparing quotations of the last three weeks. The tendency of the market has been steadily upward, and in all probability this upward trend will continue in a more or less marked degree throughout this month, though it is unlikely that any advances will be large.

No lower prices than now rule need be looked for before October sets in. Then holders may be willing to accept a little less, provided cheese is coming forward freely and demand from the Old Country is not overly strong.

Recently there has been considerable rain in Quebec and Ontario, rain that was much required. This has encouraged farmers considerably. Pasturage will be better, and it is likely that the make will be better for the remainder of the season.

A pessimistic tone is never in favor, but it must be admitted that the outlook for the coming winter is not any too bright. Feed is exceedingly dear and scarce, and crops are not as large as could be desired under the circumstances. Reports come from some sections of farmers parting with some of their cattle at ridiculous prices rather than carry them through the winter. However, there may be a brighter side, the proverbial silver lining, not yet visible.

Receipts of cheese last week amounted to 66,045 boxes, against 81,388 boxes previous week, and 71,562 boxes same week last year. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 1,409,576 boxes, against 1,547,152 boxes same period 1906.

During the past week 64,944 boxes of cheese were exported, as against 85,026 boxes same week last year. Total shipments since May 1 have been 1,244,878 boxes, against 1,434,510 boxes same period a year ago. The decrease for 1907 amounts to 189,632 boxes.

Latest advices from the other side report a better feeling on the part of buyers, who seem a little more disposed to take hold.

Butter has scored a further advance since last report. To-day good creamery is not obtainable under 22½c to 22¾c, and for the best 23c must be paid. Quebec butter brings 22½c.

Supplies available are not large, but it is likely that there will be an increase in receipts in a week or two. The rains mentioned in the foregoing will have the effect of helping out the butter situation as well as benefiting the cheese makers.

Trade is almost entirely local, and demand is such as to take care of practically everything that is coming forward. Demand from the other side is slightly improved, but it is not by any means great. From present indications winter prices for butter will rule high, though it is rather early to look that far ahead.

Dairy is extremely scarce and high prices are obtainable for lots held. The average figure quoted to-day is 20c.

Receipts of butter last week amounted to 10,932 packages, against 15,685 packages previous week, and 21,887 packages same week last year. Since May 1 total receipts have been 292,206 packages, against 454,307 packages same period 1906.

Shipments last week were 3,757 packages, against 23,051 packages same week 1906. Total shipments since opening of navigation have been 57,584 packages, against 281,212 packages last year. This means a decrease of 162,101 packages in 1907 exports.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

The market for live hogs, from the standpoint of the packer, could not well be in a more unsatisfactory condition. Prices for live hogs, fo.b., country points, while not showing any actual decline from last week, are undoubtedly on the downward grade and next week's price has already been fixed by Davies & Co. at $5.85. At present, the packers are offering from $6 to $6.10, and, at this figure are getting all the hogs they want, which, as may be inferred, is not a remarkable amount. Deliveries at Canadian points for last week were light, probably not over 18,000 or 19,000.

The Old Country market shows no improvement. Danish deliveries of hogs have been phenomenal, and the situation is regarded by the packers here as unprecedented. At present there is nothing in sight to relieve matters.

The Danes are cultivating the hog-raising business at a speed with which Canadians find it impossible to compete. Danish deliveries to the Old Country have been from 7,000 to 10,000 above normal for a long time past. Under this apparently limitless supply of hogs, the English market is not in the most receptive mood imaginable, and immediate clearances here are at a considerably lower price than the actual cost of the bacon. Canadian exports to the Old Country have naturally been very light for the past fortnight, though this will not be reflected in bacon in the English market for the next two weeks.

The New York Journal of Commerce, reviewing last week's situation, says:

"The past week has witnessed an effort to advance the price for hog products by the packers in sympathy with the excitement and strength in the grain markets; but they have met with very little success, as there have been few buyers, and those mostly shorts, while the packers appeared to be free sellers on even the slight advance secured. At the same time they have been offering cash products at old prices without stimulating demand, although it is supposed that consumption is still normal; but, in view of the fact that the home trade have bought very sparingly all summer, and from hand to mouth only, it would seem to throw some doubt on the volume of consumption. Receipts of hogs have been moderate, in fact, rather light, and this has been used to help the bull market for products; but returns show continued excess of heavy hogs, largely over last year's average in weight and greater than in recent years, while heavy hogs are selling at an unusual discount and light ones at an unusual premium as they have been all summer in all the markets of the country. This, of itself, as well as the liberal supplies, is a bearish feature, notwithstanding the reduced estimates of the corn crop, although the abnormally high prices for that staple do not warrant expectation of much, if any, lower prices the coming year. The packers own the stocks, and the trade is perfectly willing that they should hold them. Hence it looks like a dull, dragging market all the fall, without much change in prices."

PROVISION MARKETS

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS — Considerable demand for pork for use in the shanties of lumbermen this winter is reported in some quarters. Prices hold steady, though hogs are easier. Lard is unchanged, subject to fair demand, while the market for smoked meats is featureless.

BUTTER—The butter market is firm and higher, receipts being small and local demand heavy. The entire trade being transacted to-day is local, with the exception of the few parcels shipped to the other side. Firm markets will rule during the entire month, from the present outlook.

EGGS—Strong demand is reported for eggs, for which firm prices are asked. For selects, dealers demand 22c to 23c; No. 1, 19c to 20c; No. 2, 15c and sometimes 18c and 18½c, though these are high prices. Quality of the eggs arriving is first-class, and some dealers are endeavoring to put a few lots in storage, though present prices are not satisfactory for storing purposes. They count upon high prices ruling during the winter months and thus making their profit.

CHEESE — Cheese is considerably higher this week. Supplies are not large and dealers, having to pay higher figures in the country, are in turn asking better money of purchasers. The recent rains, which have been general, will help out the make somewhat. Export business is slightly better.

PROVISIONS—The market continues firm with business active. Lard shows signs of strengthening, though an advance is not generally quoted. Cables earlier in the week quoted cheese a point higher and this caused a similar advance on the local market. Butter is exceedingly firm and has made advances, particularly in the lower grades.

Fresh meats remain about the same, though lamb has gone down another cent. and veal is slightly higher.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Bright Outlook for Record Fall Business—Export Enquiry Increasing in Both Flour and Cereals—The Fall and Christmas Confectionery Trade.

Bright prospects all round have spread a general feeling of optimism among the trade. At present, though prices are higher than last week, there is no immediate indication of further raise, as the millers prefer taking no chances until it is possible to get a definite line on the crop outcome. The market, however, is very strong, and the export demand is showing greater activity than is usual, even at the opening of the Fall season.

One good feature of the situation, is that the grain is all in the hands of the farmers, who will thus get the advantages accruing from a rising market instead of the speculators, in this way benefitting themselves and the country at the same time. The crop situation in the west is dealt with editorially on another page.

In cereals, prospects are exceedingly good. The regular Fall trade is in full swing, and some dealers declare that they are already overstocked on orders. It seems assured that all handlers of oat products will this year have as much business as they can look after. Export inquiry is good, and from the scarcity and poor quality of American oats, it looks as if Canada will have almost a monopoly of this branch of trade, if she can get the supplies with which to meet it.

Confectionery.

Grocers all over the country, the wise ones, that is, are beginning to make their plans for the Christmas candy trade. This is about as expensive as you like to make it. You can start your Christmas candy trade in October with facility, if you go about it in the right way. Devote a little of your advertising space in the local paper to telling the people what you are going to do; that you are going to make a speciality of confectionery this Fall, and that the latest things in fancy boxes and fine bonbons may be found at your store. It doesn't take long to educate your customers to the fact that you are selling candy every bit as good as the store that sells candy and nothing else. But don't wait. Be first on the ground.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Since last report there has been an advance of 15c to 30c in flour. Crop reports from the west have not been encouraging, and the market is very firm, with possibilities of a further advance. Local demand is reported strong, despite high prices, while export business has been satisfactory at figures which one would think unlikely to interest buyers.

FEED—Feed is again higher, and the situation is as bad as ever. Orders are plentiful, but millers are at their wit's end to fill them, though they are in receipt of high prices for anything they can supply. Feed flour has participated in the general advance, and is 5c higher.

FIRE IN SPICE MILL.

Early last Saturday morning fire broke out in the premises of the Dominion Coffee & Spice Mills Company, 305 St. Paul street, Montreal, and before the flames were conquered damage to the extent of $30,000 was done the building and its contents.

J. A. Simard, proprietor of the business, does not know how the fire started, but believes it was caused by one of the roasters.

GREAT PACKER DEAD.

But His Influence Died With Him—An Estimate.

This is how one of the New York papers comments upon the recent death of Nelson Morris, who was for many years one of the controlling influences in the packing business:

"There has been considerable comment upon the death of another of the original Big Four packers in Chicago, namely, Nelson Morris. But his personality was not such as to afford much interest except as to the amount of the fortune he had accoumulated in the packing business. But on this point there were wide differences of opinion, running from eleven to forty million. His business will be carried on by his son and his death had no effect on the markets in which he had been so important a factor in life."

PERSONALS.

Thos. Montgomery, jr., of Thomas Montgomery & Son, Montreal, has returned from a holiday trip spent in American cities.

S. J. Mathewson, of Mathewson's Sons, Montreal, spent a few days in Bloomfield last week, returning to the city Monday last.

J. Frank Crowe, one of the leading wholesale grocers of Halifax, and his brother, W. E. Crowe, a retail grocer of the same city, were in Toronto for the last week of the fair.

James Wagstaffe, of Wagstaffe's Limited, Hamilton, Ont., called on The Grocer last Monday, while in Toronto on a short business trip. There were no complaints forthcoming as to this year's pack of fruits.

Mr. A. H. Brittain, agent for the Atlantic Fish Company, Montreal, called at the Grocer office yesterday. Mr. Brittain says that fish are exceedingly scarce in all lines, and that the situation is somewhat serious.

John R. Marshall, Montreal manager of Rolla L. Crain Co., Limited, Ottawa, was in Toronto last week. He paid The Grocer a visit. Business in the Crain Co. system is reported exceedingly good in his territory.

R. French, Lemonville, Ont., was a caller at The Canadian Grocer offices during exhibition week. Incidentally he was pleased to pay his subscription to the Grocer, and expressed himself as very much benefitted by the valuable and interesting information supplied every week.

W. E. Crowe, Halifax, was a visitor to Toronto last week, taking in the Canadian National Exhibition. To the Grocer representative, Mr. Crowe, who, by the way, is a prominent Haligonian grocer, reports business very good, and if the All Red Route makes its terminus there, business will take a strong leap forward. Mr. H. M. Piper, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., guided his footsteps through the mazy midway.

Wm. H. Dunn, Toronto and Montreal, has recently been appointed wholesale distributing agent in Ontario for Royal Crown Toilet Soaps. He now has charge of this product for the territory from Fort William to Sydney.

APPLE CROP IN QUEBEC.

A 50 Per Cent. Crop Expected—Export Business Already Started.

Montreal, Sept. 12, 1907.

Prospects are that there will be 50 per cent. of a full crop of apples in Quebec this year, against a 60 per cent. crop last year. This is an approximate estimate.

There has been much dry weather in the province at the time when rain was needed. During three weeks when rain was most required, not a drop fell in the Eastern Townships, where a large percentage of the Quebec apples are grown. Strangely enough, the Island of Montreal has been blessed with any amount of rain, too much, in fact, for the fungi, or black spots, have made their appearance on the apples. These spots are caused largely by excessive rains, followed by heat, and naturally retard the growth of the apple.

According to what can be ascertained, the apples will not be as large and perfect this year as usual, owing to the late summer and the unfavorable weather mentioned in the foregoing. The Fameuse apples, for which the province is famed, are doing well. The other varieties grown chiefly are : McIntosh, Duchess, Wealthy, St. Lawrence, Yellow Transparent, and Montreal Peach, the latter purely a local apple.

A 65 per cent. crop of crab apples is expected. The first of these apples are now offering at 35c to 40c a basket, but they are not in strong demand.

There are some Duchess apples selling around $3.

Shipments of the earlier varieties are already being made through the port of Montreal. Colverts and Jenettings are being shipped in fairly large quantities, some 1,208 barrels in all having been exported last week. The apples, however, are not of the right sort for export, having been taken from the trees before they were fully matured.

WILLIAM LEVACK DEAD.

Well-known Cattle Dealer Succumbs to Heart Disease.

Stockmen and prominent provision dealers generally will regret to learn of the death of William Levack, the well-known cattle dealer of Toronto Junction, who passed away suddenly on Friday morning, as a result of an attack of heart disease. He was fifty-seven years old.

Mr. Levack came to Toronto about forty years ago from Wick, Scotland, started at once in the cattle trade and has been engaged in that business ever since. He was an extensive exporter of live stock, and as head of the Levack Abattoir Company at Toronto Junction, has made himself respected by all with whom he has come in contact.

He is survived by a widow, one son, Walter, and two daughters, Mrs. R. J. Cluff, of Toronto, and Mrs. Samuel Thompson, who is at present on her wedding tour. The funeral was held on Monday from the family residence, 118 Halton street, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

MILK AND BREAD ADVANCED.

Montrealers will pay ten cents a quart for milk after October 1. This was decided at a meeting of the Milk Shippers' Association held recently. The price has been eight cents a quart during the summer, but the suppliers of milk, feeling that the cost of maintaining cattle had increased greatly, think themselves justified in raising the price once the fall season sets in. The labor unions are talking milk trust and threaten to apply to the government for the appointment of a royal commission to look into the matter.

Bread has been advanced two cents a loaf for the larger size and one cent for the smaller. Eighty master bakers decided that this advance was necessary at a meeting held the other day. They considered their action justified because flour has gone up and is likely to advance further.

S. S. Adams, successor to Adams & Rogers, retail grocers, of Cardinal, Ont., was in Toronto for the last week of the fair and called at The Grocer office. While paying his subscription, he expressed himself as remarkably well pleased with the journal and spoke quite enthusiastically of the help he found in his business from perusal of The Grocer's columns.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Outlook for Plums and Pears Considerably More Encouraging—New Brunswick Promises Bumper Potato Crop—Recent Rains Very Beneficial.

The report from the fruit markets is considerably more encouraging this week. Canadian fruit is arriving more freely, and the crop of plums and pears, which has till recently been reported as away below the average, appears to be turning out considerably better than was expected. The free arrival of Canadian fruit is materially affecting the demand for the foreign variety, though some Californian fruit is still being brought in.

The outlook for vegetables is also more encouraging this week. Recent rains have had a beneficial effect, and with continued favorable weather the crop of vegetables may not be so very much below the average.

In Ontario, the potato crop promises better, though the tubers will be small in size. Better news, however, comes from New Brunswick. There is every indication of a bumper crop from that province, and as more land than usual has been devoted to potatoes this year, the yield should be well above the average. Visitors to the fair last week from that province concurred in this view, but spoke of the possible danger of rot, which had made itself evident to some small extent.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—California pears are much easier this week, owing largely to increased offerings on the local market. Demand is better at the lower quotations. Plums, peaches and grapes hold steady, with business satisfactory. Oranges are 25c lower, and in good request. Lemons are selling fairly well. Grape fruit is practically out of the market. Apples are quoted this week, the first of the season, $3 to $3.50 a barrel being asked. Crab apples are in small demand at 35c to 40c a basket. Fair lots of early apples are now being exported, some 1,200 barrels having been shipped last week.

VEGETABLES—First "late in the season" advances are being made. Celery is higher this week, as are potatoes and tomatoes. Business transacted by the farmers continues wonderfully good. This has been an excellent season for them. They have secured top prices for all their produce and their only regret has been that supplies have been short. Sweet potatoes are quoted this week, $4.25 a barrel being the price asked. An advance in onions is expected.

FISH—Haddock is very scarce and this week's price is one cent above that quoted last issue. There is nothing obtainable in Canada in this line, owing to stormy weather and lack of bait, and fish dealers are depending upon the United States for their supply, paying one cent a pound duty on all importations. Halibut are plentiful and in good demand at current prices. Receipts of lake trout and whitefish are greater, and the quality of the fish is improving as the cool weather sets in. New kippers are quoted and appear to be in strong demand. Haddies are scarce. Skinless and boneless cod continue arriving and sales of them are good.

FRUITS—Canadian fruits are coming in much more freely, and as a result prices are somewhat easier than last week. Plums and pears are quite plentiful, apples, particularly the early varieties, are arriving in fairly good quantities though the quality is rather poor. Grapes made their first appearance on the local market early in the week, and from now on are expected to come freely. This week will see about the last of the Californian oranges. Their place will be taken in a couple of weeks by the Bahamas and later by the Mexican varieties.

VEGETABLES—The supply of carrots and beets is somewhat larger this week and promises to continue easier. Cauliflower also is plentiful, beet cabbage, on the other hand is decidedly scarce. Corn, too, seemed to disappear from the market at the middle of the week. The Jersey variety of sweet potatoes made its first appearance on the market this week, and they are exceptionally fine stock. They sell in hampers at $2.50. Canadian potatoes have dropped a notch during the week. Delawares and cobblers will be on the market next week.

VIGOROUS ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED.

Vancouver Merchants Band Together for Mutual Benefit.

The grocery business on the Pacific coast appears to be in a flourishing condition and its members seem to appreciate the value of modern methods. For some time Victoria has had a flourishing Retail Merchants' Association. Now Vancouver has fallen in line.

At a recent meeting, attended by fully seventy-five per cent. of the merchants of the city, the Vancouver Retail Merchants' Association was organized. The executive, including some of the strongest business men in the city, was elected as follows: President, W. J. Andrews; Vice-President, Luther McTaggart; Secretary-Treasurer, T. J. Hunter; Directors, H. A. Edgett, H. Lee, Frank Wright, Will Webster, and W. Clark. R. D. Scott was appointed Acting-Secretary to look after the interests of the association under the direction of the Executive.

Price-cutting has been particularly troublesome in Vancouver for a year or more, and an active campaign against this as well as against the custom of extending indiscriminate credit, was outlined.

The interest shown in the new organization is very encouraging, and is an earnest of the success which should result. The association should be a material aid in many ways to the grocers of the city.

AUSTRALIAN FRUIT FOR CANADA.

The Australian dried fruit trade with Canada has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the leading exporting firms in the former country, and, according to reports recently received, measures have already been taken by these firms to increase next season's exports to Canada to at least 1,000 tons.

PACK BY LOCALITIES.

The pack of the British Columbia coast is now figured out as follows: Skeena River, 110,000 cases; Fraser River, 55,000 cases; Rivers Inlet, 87,000 cases; Naas, 14,000 cases, and outside points contributed 19,000 cases, making a grand total of 285,000 cases. Of this amount not more than 90,000 cases are available for export to England, as Canada has taken 120,000 and Australia about 75,000 cases.

British Columbia will be well represented at the forthcoming exhibition of colonial grown fruits, to be held by the Royal Horticultural Society, in Vincent Square, London, England, in November next. The fruit will afterwards be shown at other points throughout Great Britain.

TRADE NEWS OF NOVA SCOTIA

Wholesale Trade Quiet—Scarcity of Beef—Beans Advancing—A Plea for Honest Apple Packing—General News and Markets.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 8.

The retail grocery trade in Halifax is good, but business in the wholesale trade is a little on the quiet side, due in some measure, it is said, to the high prices of all lines. The grocers are only purchasing small lots. There is a scarcity of American and Canadian plate beef. Some of the American packers will offer any beef for shipment, and Canadian beef cannot be purchased. Flour is firmer and an advance of fifteen cents has been made by the millers. Corn continues on an upward tendency, and beans are firm and advancing, owing to the short crop. Valencia raisins also show a slight advance, and cheese is very firm. The price quoted is 12 to 12½c for large, and 12½ to 13c for twins. Butter remains unchanged. The New York market is well supplied, and it is thought this may have some effect in keeping the Canadian market in check. Eggs are unusually scarce for the season of the year, and it is reported that the Prince Edward Island dealers cannot fill their orders. The price quoted for case stock is 21 to 22 cents.

One of the large Liverpool (Eng.) firms which handles Canadian products, writing to its representative in Halifax about the grading of Nova Scotia apples, says: "We are pleased to learn that there is a prospect of a good crop of Nova Scotia apples, and hope steps will be taken by dealers to see that the fruit is packed in an honest and proper manner. If this is done, the future of Nova Scotia apples is assured, but the present system of packing and marketing them (solely from the buyer's point of view) is rotten to the core, and until such time as the packing is done honestly, you will not find any buyers willing to touch Nova Scotia apples, except at a ridiculous price. Take ourselves, for instance. If we could get your Kings packed properly, all one grade, we would not have the slightest hesitation in buying 10,000 to 20,000 barrels, but as the business is done now, a few barrels from one packer and a few from another, one lot fair, another lot rubbish, we dare not buy; it is unfair to the man or firm that does so.

"In our opinion there are no finer apples grown than those produced by Nova Scotia, but owing to bad grading and false packing, there is no package of apples which reaches us from any part of Canada or the United States so unsaleable as Nova Scotians. This is clearly seen by the prices realized, Ontario packing always commanding shillings more per barrel than Nova Scotians."

Apples are coming in more plentiful and they are finding a ready sale. The varieties on the market are: Astrachans, Sweets, Early Moscows, Transparent and Early August. They sell from $1.50 to $3.00 per barrel, the Sweets bringing the highest price.

F. B. Chute, of Berwick, N.S., has received a cable ordering two thousand half barrels of early apples for shipment to South Africa. John Fox, of the firm of John Fox & Co., London, Eng., has been spending the past month in the counties of Kings and Annapolis, visiting the orchards. He states that he found the fruit exceptional in quality and a large crop, and 25 to 30 per cent. cleaner than last year. The prospects for good prices in the English market are excellent, owing to that country having but half a crop this season. Mr. Fox has had a very successful trip and is emphatic in advising the fruit growers to hold their apples and ship direct, if they wish to make good profits. He believes spraying has been very beneficial in producing the clean crop of the present season.

A SUCCESSFUL SALESMAN.

R. Muat, whose photograph is reproduced below, and who is the subject of this sketch, is known to about all the retailers worth knowing from Halifax to Calgary, as the representative of H. J. Heinz Co. He has been connected with this firm in one capacity or another, for close upon a dozen years. He is likely to be there for another dozen from present indications. Mr. Muat's early work consisted largely in breaking in new territory and building up businesses for other salesmen to take hold of, strengthen and increase if possible. Because he commends confidence at first glance, his success in this class of work has been remarkable. Some men would sooner break stones than fresh territory. They find the job hard. Mr. Muat doesn't. He attributes this fact to having at his back a house of so well-established and extensive a reputation as the Heinz Co. Whatever the reason, his success remains undisputed. He is said to have attached to himself and his house the largest connection of any one man in the line and quality of the goods he carries.

Mr. Muat is now the traveling representative of the Heinz Co. in Ontario. He was in charge of the Heinz booth at the recently concluded Canadian National Exhibition. For five years he held the office of secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association. During the time he occupied this position, the membership of the association was augmented by from thirty to forty new names each month. He was largely instrumental also in persuading the grocers to adopt the Wednesday half holiday, which so many of them enjoy to-day.

Besides being secretary of the Retailers' Association, he was for some time president of the City Travelers' Association, resigning both of these offices in order to accept the position he now occupies. No one we ever heard of wishes him anything but good luck.

APPEARANCE COUNTS.

The necessity of attractiveness in packing, to which some reference was made in a recent issue of The Grocer, is becoming more and more fully recognized by Canadian firms. The Ozo Company of Montreal, to mention only one instance, have fully realized the value of attractive packing and now put up one of the neatest-appearing packages on the market, the kind that attracts the attention of a customer at once. This line retails at 40c a 2-lb. jar and costs the dealer $4.50 a dozen.

Gordon Winter, St. John's, Newfoundland, was in Toronto last week. Mr. Winter is a son of M. G. Winter, of T. & M. Winter, one of the oldest wholesale grocery firms in the ancient colony.

MAKING WAR ON CATALOGUE HOUSES

Half a Million Retailers Combining for Offensive nnd Defensive Aetion.

War has been declared on the great catalogue houses of Chicago by the 500,000 retail merchants of the western states. The struggle between these two great interests has been in progress for many years. The advance made by the catalogue houses has been such as to threaten the very existence of thousands of smaller traders throughout the west, and they are now fighting, as they say, for their lives. In the struggle, jobbers and manufacturers are involved with the retail merchants.

The retail merchants are being guided at the present juncture in the struggle by an organization known as the Home Trade League of America, which has existed for several months as a publicity bureau, with headquarters in the Monadnock building, in the city of Chicago, but which is shortly to incorporate and institute a more systematic and aggressive campaign against the catalogue houses, through a board of twenty-one managers, with a vice-president and a committee of ten members in each state. This Chicago league has, as its support, commercial associations in the states of Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan and Kansas. The connection between these scattered associations and the Home Trade League of Chicago, is very close, the officers of the associations being in constant correspondence with the league, the new officers of which will be chosen from the body of active business men in all the leading towns and cities of the entire west.

Plan of Campaign.

The steps which are being taken by the Home Trade League to aid the retail merchant in the competition with the catalogue houses is indicated by the press of Chicago, as follows :

First.—Bringing pressure on manufacturers, jobbers and wholesalers generally, to give to local merchants the same rates as are granted to mail order companies. Under present conditions, retail merchants are, it is claimed, compelled to sell certain lines of goods at higher prices than are charged by the catalogue houses, owing to the fact that the wholesalers grant a lower price to the catalogue house than will be granted to the small retailer.

Second.—Pressure is brought to bear on the consumer, in all possible ways, to persuade him to give the local merchant a chance to figure on the order which is to be sent to the catalogue house, before it is sent, in order that the retail merchant may have the opportunity to show the consumer that he can compete with the catalogue house.

Third.—Merchants are pledging themselves to buy no goods from any wholesaler who sells any goods of any kind to any catalogue house. The results of the operation of this method of warfare are already apparent in Chicago, where a number of the large wholesale mercantile institutions are said no longer to sell to catalogue houses. The League is using all means to enlarge the number of merchants who refuse to buy from concerns which sell to catalogue houses.

Fourth.—Appeals are made to local pride and the loyalty of every community to support its local institutions.

Fifth.—Local merchants in many of the larger towns and cities have organized excursions to their towns, for the purpose of persuading buyers that they can compete with the large catalogue houses of Chicago and elsewhere.

Sixth.—Farmers who deal with catalogue houses are refused all accommodation at the retail stores of the country towns and cities.

New Method of Attack.

In the existing struggle, injury has been done to the large catalogue houses, owing to the fact that their competitors have organized a system through the operation of which the catalogue houses have received thousands of bogus letters requesting that catalogues be furnished them. Catalogues cost about one dollar each, together with the cost of mailing. Cases are now pending in the courts of the United States, in which catalogue houses are taking action against those who have occasioned them losses in this way. This is true, however, apparently not of the houses dealing in all classes of goods, but of the houses which have been selling lumber by mail order. This method of competition does not meet with the approval of the Chicago league. The business done by the mail order houses in the western states is now said to amount to hundreds of millions of dollars annually, and if it should continue to increase in the future as it has in the past, it is feared that hundreds of villages of the country will actually disappear, since the entire reason for their existence is to furnish the needed supplies to the farmers of their vicinity. Those which do not disappear, will steadily decrease in size and importance. The jobbers and wholesalers are interested, since their fortunes have been created through the business done by them with the small retail dealers of the country. It is claimed that the jobbers of the western states lost, approximately, sixty million dollars in 1905, owing to the great advance made in the business of the mail order houses. As much business was done from Chicago through the mail order houses in that year as all the jobbers of the city combined. Not many years ago, all of this business was done by the jobbers. That is to say, the jobbers and the country merchants have already lost one-half of the total trade of the country.

Manager Clark, of the Chicago league, stated, in conversation with reference to the work of the institution, that all that the retail merchants of the country wanted was a square deal. If they could get the same terms from the jobbers and wholesalers that are granted to the catalogue houses they would be satisfied to take their chances with consumers. They were in direct contact and touch with them, and, with the same advantages, could more than hold their own. He added that the majority of the jobbers and wholesale dealers of Chicago had taken but little interest in the work of the league, owing to the fact that Chicago was the home of the great mail order houses, whose accounts had been of great value to these wholesalers and jobbers. There were, however, notable exceptions, certain houses giving up accounts, amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars per year, rather than run the risk of the entire destruction of the business of the country merchants, whose continued existence was of so great importance to the houses referred to.

SUGAR AS FOOD.

Shown to Be a Powerful Stimulant Under Certain Conditions.

Some interesting experiments with reference to the nutritive value of foods containing sugar were recently made at the instance of the War Office at Berlin. It is a fact well known to Alpine tourists that on difficult climbing excursions an increased desire is felt for sweets and sweetened foods, and many who never touch such things at home devour large quantities of them on these tours. It is also frequently remarked that the guides eagerly appropriate any sugar that may be left over, and consume it on the journey. Whether the sugar afforded real benefit to the mountain climber was the subject of the German investigation; that is, did the consumption of sugar render the tired muscles capable of renewed exertion? To answer the question conclusively, the subject of the experiment was not allowed to know that a test was being made. One day a sweet liquid, containing thirty grams of sugar, was administered; on the next a similar liquid, sweetened by saccharin to render it indistinguishable from the other, as far as taste was concerned, took the place of the sugar. The result was a complete triumph for the sugar. It was found that a greater amount of work could be accomplished on the days when the sugar was given than on those when saccharine took its place. This serves, as far as it goes, to prove that sugar is food in a true sense, and that it is in particular food for the muscles.

A CALGARY BOOKLET.

A book dealing with Calgary and the surrounding country has just been issued jointly by the City Council and Board of Trade of that city. It is attractively printed and illustrated and contains much of interest. The last report of the present Board of Trade is printed in full. There are also articles dealing with the industrial and climatic conditions of that part of the Dominion. The compilers of the book are to be congratulated.

STAPLE AS GOLD

Grocers are wise to sell more Royal Baking Powder, because in the end it yields a greater profit than the low-priced powders, many of which contain alum, which is injurious to health.

Royal Baking Powder is always worth one hundred cents on the dollar, and no grocer need hesitate to carry a large amount of it in stock.

Royal Baking Powder retains its full strength in all climates all the time.

Varying atmospheres do not lessen its leavening qualities. You have no spoiled stock.

It is absolutely pure and healthful and always sure in results.

It never fails to satisfy the consumer.

It is sold the world over and is as staple as gold.

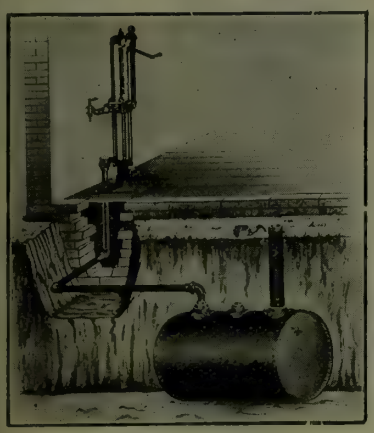
A Fire-Proof Gasolene Tank



Cut 42—Pump with Underground Tank.

That old tin gasolene tank setting out behind your store is dangerous, it's liable to explode and set fire to your store at any time, and because it is so close to the building, you may have trouble collecting your insurance.

YOU'RE INVITING A BLAZE.

On the other hand, put in a Bowser Gasolene Tank and Self-Measuring Pump and you remove every particle of danger.

The tank is fire-proof, the pump is fire-proof—there's no evaporation, no leakage, no waste. Being self-measuring, there is no spilling or overflow. All the gasolene is in the fire-proof tank or in the customer's can. It's the safest, surest, cheapest method of handling gasolene.

Then, too, the Bowser is a money saver, it's convenient, and it's speedy. Your customers like it and it draws trade.

"Just the CHEESE"

All the good things that have ever been said about MacLaren's Imperial Cheese—and that means everything that has been said—may be summed up in this one little expression—is remarkable for other reasons than its purity and delightful individuality of flavor; it contains three times the nutriment of ordinary cheese, which in turn is twice as nutritious as meat—taking weight for weight. This cheese combined with bread contains everything that the human body requires in the way of food to keep it in health and strength.

"Just the Cheese"

MacLaren's Imperial Cheese

Words fail to tell you how good it is—the only way to know is to try it.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

Your Profit Has Always Been Good

on Edwardsburg Starches and "Crown" Brand Corn Syrup

THE gradual and heavy advance in the price of corn during the past six months, and the prospects of a still very much higher price in same, has forced us to make an advance in the price of our products. This advance will enable you to secure a better profit, as it will prevent the sale of Syrup and Starches at close margins of profit. Wholesale Grocers TORONTO

Your Tea Sales

The Grocer's "goodwill" depends largely on his tea trade: Consumers are very critical of the "cup that cheers," and judge the grocer and all his goods by the quality of the tea he sells. It is therefore imperative that his teas should be of such "stand out" character that he can meet all opposition.

We know that competion is very keen and we have always recognized that the retailer has no easy task in combating the attack on his tea trade.

We are a solely Wholesale House, and rely entirely on the Retailer for our trade, and thus his interests and ours are identical. It is therefore to our advantage to help the Retailer, and as our sales this year have shown a very large increase, we feel sure we can help many a Retailer to likewise increase his sales in both Package and Bulk by handling our teas. Write us for samples and prices, and be convinced of the exceptionally fine quality we can offer you.

Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

WHOLESALE COMMISSION MERCHANTS AND BROKERS.

Winnipeg, August 23, 1907.

To the Wholesale Grocery Trade of Canada

DEAR SIRS:

We beg to advise the Wholesale Grocery Trade of Canada that we have been appointed sole selling agents for The British Columbia Sugar Refining Co., Ltd., of Vancouver, B. C., for the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. We cover the whole West, through our head office in Winnipeg, and our branches at Calgary and Edmonton. We will be pleased to quote car lots. Sugars delivered at any point in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Write or wire us to Winnipeg, Calgary or Edmonton. We will attend promptly to your enquiries.

Very truly yours,

NICHOLSON & BAIN,

CALGARY WINNIPEG EDMONTON

ESTABLISHED 1882.

The Woman That Said to her grocer, "Mr. Smith, I've brought back these canned goods because they're bad," had not been served with Old Homestead Brand.

Do You Fully Realize that when you sell canned goods to a woman she holds you responsible for the quality? It's a fact. If you sell a thrifty housewife a bad can of peas she blames you—not the canner. She wants you to take them back.

The Incomparable Quality of our goods, however, will make hosts of friends for you, but never an enemy. Every can of Old Homestead Brand which passes over your counter is a friend-maker. No customer who has ever tried has ever gone back on them. The reason is as clear as the light of day. Our splendid factory has every appliance that science can suggest to turn out canned goods of the highest grade. Expert inspectors go over every piece of fruit and vegetable. Anything with the slightest taint is at once absolutely rejected. No bruised or over-ripe fruit or vegetable ever gets into a can on which is the label of Old Homestead Brand. It is the brand of Canned Perfection. The verdict of thousands of Canadian women is that Old Homestead is the brand of Purity.

OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND OF CANNED GOODS

Then, Just Think of Your Profit!

IS THERE MONEY IN THE BRAND?

That's naturally your first question when asked to stock any brand of goods on the market. Well, as far as my brand of Jams and Jellies is concerned I refer you to 90 per cent of the grocers in Canada. They say that

E. D. S. Brand
JAMS and JELLIES

is distinctly the greatest money maker on the market. They go on to assert that "E. D. S." Jams and Jellies are the wholesomest and best on the markets of the Dominion and—

I can prove the truth of their assertions by government documents.

Kops Ale and Stout
(NON-ALCOHOLIC)

Are prepared from ingredients of undoubted purity, and the bitter principle is derived from the finest hops. The ALE has a delicious and appetizing aroma, and is an agreeable salutary bitter, and whilst they both will be found to act as tonic stomachics and aids to digestion, they are so free of alcohol that they will be found a veritable boon to total abstainers. Sufficiently aerated to make them pleasantly sharp.

HAVE YOU TRIED THEM? IF NOT, DO SO AT ONCE.

By introducing them to your customers you are likely to create steady demand and permanent trade in a very profitable line.

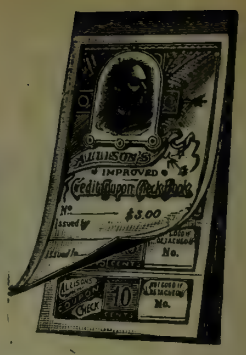
Allison Coupon Books



Are the ball-bearings that will make almost any business run smoothly. Here's how they work:

If a man wants credit for $10.00 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10.00 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him with $10.00; no trouble. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on for all his purchases until the book is used up. Then he pays for the book and gets another one. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, and no disputes. Allison coupon books are recognized everywhere as the best, BECAUSE THEY ARE. WANTED

A Capable Managing-Editor

THE CANADIAN GROCER wants a Managing-Editor. It wants a thoroughly capable man—a man who is live, full of up-to-date ideas and one who understands the newspaper business from the riglet box to the editorial chair. Furthermore, it wants a man who is thoroughly conversant with the commercial situation in Canada.

We realize that this is a big want. Not every one can fill the bill, but we're willing to pay at the outset $2,500 a year to the man who can do so. The right man can eventually make his place worth $5,000.

If you think you are this man we want to hear from you, with your experience and qualifications—by letter only.

This appointment may be considered one of the prizes in Canadian Journalism. THE CANADIAN GROCER has for many years been recognized as the authority on the Foodstuff Trade, and its reports have been accepted as final by the Courts of Law, Arbitrations and by official statisticians. The Managing-Editor will be expected to still further strengthen the position of the paperin this respect.

PLEASURE OR PROFIT ?

Some grocers seem to be in business for their health.

They appear content to handle goods for the fun of turning them over. "Anything to get trade."

A policy of this sort is senseless and destructive, and will eventually ruin any business.

The Modern Grocer.

I pride myself on being somewhat aggressive. I like to be in front or near it. I like to think that I am doing my share of setting the pace. And no man can occupy such a position or try to lead in this way without offending some others in his own line and running up against many who do not agree with him. I stop to think over this at times and try to see wherein I am wrong, if I am wrong, or how the other fellow is at fault, or takes the wrong view. In order to be aggressive, or be in front, or set the pace, a grocer must break away from hard and fast prices and occasionally depart from what some of the brethren will surely hold are the only truly logical rules of the retail grocery business. But I question whether I depart more radically than do many of those who are ready to find fault.

Here's something that happened a few days ago: A salesman comes in who asks me if I need anything. I do not, and he proceeds to see if he can create an artificial want or two. In feeling around, he finally says: "I see you have some of that Red Anchor Salmon—a good fish that, and I can make you a very low price on it. I can sell you that salmon so that you can make a leader of it at 15 cents. The regular list on it to-day is $1.70, but I can put it in to you so it will net you $1.55 with the cash discount." Not being interested in salmon, this remark did not "take hold" of my inner consciousness—I hardly noticed it, for I was looking after the work going on in my store and thinking of other things. But, as the selling drawl kept working on my nerves, it gradually struck in and I began to "take notice." Suddenly, then, I turned to the salesman: "$1.55 did you say? and sell at 15 cents a can?" He nodded. "Not here, Mr. Van Dyke, not here. You will have to go to some of my good friends who are continually telling about Johnson and his 'ruinous cut prices' and sell them some of that fish to hand over to their customers at much less than it costs them to do business. Why, do you know what I am getting for that salmon? Go and look, and you will see that not a can is sold for less than 19 cents, and, by the dozen I get $2.25 for it. Yet it cost me much less than the figure you now name to me. It strikes me that if all my worrying friends would study their own business sufficiently to know a little about it and thereby learn to get a profit on their goods, not being so mad after opportunities to buy 'leaders' they would have less to talk about!"

And is it not true? Is there any sense in buying goods to sell at a margin less than 10 per cent. on the selling end of the deal? There most certainly is not. I further said to my salesman friend: "I am dropping out the Red Anchor brand, and your people's private brand, and all the so-called well-known brands I know of, with the exception only of some which are in absolutely imperative demand. Why? Because every one of them is cut to pieces. Not long ago I got in a 'future' on the Jamestown brand. I took the time to call up the seller and ask what it was retailed for. He told me 20 cents. Costing me $1.80, I certainly could not sell it for less than 20 cents, so I agreed; but I put in the proviso that, if I learned of others cutting it, I would follow the cut. Sure enough, not two weeks had passed when I found a man who was selling it for 18 cents and giving two cans for 35 cents. Not for me. I met the cut and dropped the brand. I will not handle goods for the fun of turning them over."

Genuine "Leaders."

Truth is, you do not need to buy leaders. You can find them any day in your stock. Look over the goods and pull out the stickers. Put these out in front, push them, advertise them at 'way down figures—cost, or below, if need be. That will clean out your stock in good shape and at the same time enable you to stir up a lot of interest. And you need not fear that you will ever run out of those things; for, try as we may to avoid it, we all get stuck occasionally and I fear will continue to get stuck a sufficient number of times to keep up the supply of things we shall be always glad to sell "regardless of cost." And right here is my justification for cutting. We get the goods and it is good business to unload them promptly, get the money out of them and start over. You will make more that way than by holding onto them and letting the capital rot itself out. Get rid of them—clean 'em out—be ready for live stock and good offerings. That is the way to turn defeat into victory.

Another excellent way to get leaders is to LEAD! For instances, along comes a fellow with a new thing. Say it is Dr. Price's Jelly Dessert. It is "the same thing" as the half-dozen other successful ones in the field, except that we may notice that it is put up in more flavors and may therefore be a better seller. It is offered under a deal whereby we sell one package and give another with it. Then the maker pays us full retail price for the freely-given package. Here, now, is the chance for the quick actor. He gets out after the business by offering the one package for 9 cents, and advertising his offer, each package bought to carry one free along with it. What has he then done? He has got 19 cents for two packages—a merely nominal cut; he has sold a lot of the goods, seemingly at prices much lower than others could make, and he has been a leader in the most obvious sense, for he has got there first, ahead of all the others, and he has stirred up a good business interest among buyers.

Get Your Profit.

These opportunities are coming along so often that the man with the "git up and git" to seize the chance when it comes his way can almost always make a leader out of a money-making commodity every day. For the rest he can cull his stock out as I have suggested.

It is, indeed, not a matter of regulation, legislation, association or co-operation, as the word is commonly understood. It is a matter strictly of education. We must learn that inevitably two plus two makes four, and that each of us must make his own margins. As the druggist said to me years ago: "We do not live on the price; we live on the margins!" True for you, old boy! And it is time the grocer learned that it is not in selling $300 worth of goods in a day that money and success are made. It is in selling whatever you do sell, let it be much or little, at a profit over what the goods cost, plus expense. Let the grocer say to himself truly what my good friend who wrote us what was published last week, said; that the grocer aims to get just about so much whether he sells to Mr. High Price or Mr. Simple Life, and then let the grocer have the nerve to do as he says.

Do you know that dried apricots costing 20 cents a pound cannot be sold profitably at 25 cents? Well, you should know it, and you should get 27 cents for them. On the other hand, you may know that sugar on a gross margin of 10 per cent. is a fine thing for the grocer to handle. And now why are these things so? Because the apricots waste very much in quality, in sampling, in weight, through shrinkage. Besides that, you sell one pound, and often half a pound of such fruit. You deliver the article which you sell for 13 cents, or even, in the west, 15 cents, at a cost to you of about 7 cents to 10 cents. But with sugar it is different. The waste, shrinkage, and even overweights, amount to very little, while it is the exception for you to sell any quantity less than 50 cents' worth and more often it runs into the $1 package. Then again, sugar is nearly always bought along with other goods. The point of difference comes in the nature of the goods. At present "cots" are a luxury and as such must pay luxurious profits—don't forget that, and don't forget the "margin!"

EFFECTIVE WINDOW DRESSING

A Winnipeg Store's Strong Tinned Goods Display—Some Hints to Card-Writers—Ticket Everything in the Window.

I. J. Davis, whose store is at the corner of Notre Dame and Spence streets, Winnipeg, is responsible for the window shown on this page. Mr. Davis, apparently, did not dress the window himself, though he has no reason to be ashamed of it on that account. It was put in by Geo. D. Sinclair, city representative in Winnipeg for the E. W. Gillett Co. This type of window is now well known in pretty nearly every town and city in Canada, and most grocers have a Gillett window display at one time or another.

The window shown here is a typical example of a strong effect produced by simple material. The articles used are a few signs, pictures, and several dozen tins of lye. The picture, in fact, might well have been omitted without detracting from the general effect. It bears no relation to the article displayed, and serves no purpose but that of distracting attention. For the rest, the window, while not in any way remarkable, serves its purpose admirably, and, as such, may be labelled a success. Mr. Sinclair tells us that it resulted in the sale of every tin of baking powder in Mr. Davis' store within three or four days after the window was dressed; and further, that these sales were made for the most part to casual passers-by, who were not regular customers.

A Winnipeg Window—T. J. Davis' Store.

THE CARD WRITER.

Tea and Coffee Journal

The card writer is indispensable.

Everything in the window must have a price ticket on it.

Everything you display on the floor and on the counters must speak right out. If the card writer knows his business he won't wait for copy. The manager must let him understand it.

A fly-specked or a greasy ticket is worse than none—almost.

He must pick them off and replace them without being told.

A card must be on the desk of each cashier informing people the department for which she makes change. He must have his fish bulletin ready every Thursday night.

It's his business and his privilege to follow up the ads. and the ad. man. He must be able to make a frame and cover it with heavy manila paper. A dozen of these ought to be in reserve for the Friday and Saturday specials.

This is the effectual follow-up scheme for the retail grocer.

He must know the elementary end of electricity; be able to rig up fifty incandescent lights for the window. That's the kind of a card writer to have.

His work must have no frills to it. The outside signs, especially, must be read at a glance by the people passing on the car and by passers-by on the other side.

Good idea to have the initial letters and the price in red; the rest black. Avoid the use of colors on the glass. Let him keep the lettering on the brass signs in shape.

If he doesn't know how, the maker of the sign will tell the firm.

Tickets on everything. That's the game. Every kind of fresh vegetable. Every kind of fresh fruit. "Numbers" on every piece of meat and every fish.

Buy your wire sign holders by the gross. They should be in charge of the sign writer. This man should never write a sign Saturday, but should keep out on the vegetable department or do relief work in other departments.

A CHINA WINDOW.

J. A. McCrae & Son had a fine window display last week, which reflected credit on the designer. It was neatly draped with long curled strips of pink crepe paper, in front, and on the sides, the electric globes shaded with the paper, also throwing a pink light. In the centre was a neat display of Darby ware, also a sign reading:

Royal Crown Darby Ware.
The manufacturers have had the proud distinction of catering to the tastes of the Crown family and nobility since 1770.

THE NIAGARA CANNERIES.

The report of Dr. Hodgetts, Provincial Health Inspector, recently issued, censuring sanitary conditions in connection with some of the Niagara canning factories, has aroused considerable comment throughout Canada. The Grocer, feeling that the matter was too serious to be passed over, and recognizing that the general acceptance of such facts would in all likelihood mean a serious blow to the canning industry of Ontario, determined to investigate the conditions complained of. A member of the staff was sent to the district early in the week. He visited every canning and preserving factory in that section, made a thorough and impartial inspection of the factories, methods of housing employes, and general sanitary arrangements. His report, which will appear next week, is a refutation, to a great extent, of statements made in Dr. Hodgetts' and Dr. Bell's reports regarding conditions in this industry.

Dr. Hodgetts' report, recently published, is the result, not as many suppose, of a recent visit, but of a visit made some time last fall. At that time, he states, his attention was called to the matter by Mr. Holmes, a factory inspector, and Dr. Bell, a medical inspector. Dr. Hodgetts told The Grocer representative that he had inspected only a few of the factories in the vicinity of St. Catharines. Why, then, did he couch his report in such a way as to apply to all the factories of the Niagara district?

Whether there has been a material change in the sanitary conditions of these factories and buildings since last fall, we are not in a position to say. The managers of the various factories say not, though, of course, some improvements have been made. This statement, at least, can be unhesitatingly made. Conditions such as are complained of in Dr. Bell's report are not now prevalent in these canning factories. The managers of all those factories stated that Inspector Holmes had visited their plants this season, and had expressed himself as satisfied with existing conditions.

Some of Dr. Hodgetts' statements in his report are applicable to a small extent, but not to all these factories. Some of them, in their methods and sanitary arrangements, are absolutely above criticism.

A TAPIOCA SUBSTITUTE.

The scarcity of tapioca on the Canadian market before the recent shipment from Singapore was received, has given rise to a condition of affairs in which grocers, and the public in general, will be interested. For some years past there has been manufactured in Germany, and to some extent in France also, an imitation of tapioca. With the recent scarcity and the consequent stiffening of prices of the genuine tapioca, this imitation has found its way into the Canadian market, and has been, to some extent, purchased by grocers. The article in question is manufactured from potato paste, and in appearance, at least, is a remarkably good imitation of the Singapore and East Indian tapiocas, having all the pearly whiteness and hardness of the original, and in the opinion of some people, surpassing it in general appearance.

How the substitute behaves under the cooking process does not seem universally agreed upon. One wholesaler says that boiling resolves it into a state of pure mush. Another affirms that it holds the glutinous form of cooked tapioca. It seems hardly likely, however, that an article manufactured from a paste, would, when cooked, so closely resemble the tapioca grain, and the first statement seems the more reasonable one. Granted the truth of this, then, the substitute will not have the particular food value of the genuine tapioca, and it is just here that danger to the grocer may arise. It seems scarcely probable that any quantity of this paste imitation-tapioca has been purchased unwittingly by Canadian grocers, but it would be wise for the retailer to test any recently-purchased stock of tapioca before distributing it to his customers. The imitation is of such good appearance that even an old grocer might be readily deceived.

What has caused the shortage in tapioca is rather an interesting question. It appears to be the result of over-production in the Singapore and East Indian fields some time ago. In consequence of this, the price dropped and kept falling till the article scarcely paid for manufacture. With this condition, the producers seem to have used their land and factories for other purposes, in many cases for rubber production, and gradually the available supply of tapioca has been exhausted, and the price has risen. This peculiar circle promises in time to remedy itself, but in the meantime the substituted article should be carefully watched, and sold as a substitute, if it is found to be worth selling at all.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

J. Christopher McRitchie, of G. Walker & Son, Glasgow, who is an occasional correspondent of The Grocer, and from whose pen we published an interesting, if somewhat acrimonious, letter, in our issue of March 1st, 1907, writes to us from Edinburgh, enclosing a clipping from a Scotch daily anent the visit, recently concluded, of tne Dominion Dairy Commissioner to Europe. Mr. McRitchie apparently objects to Canadian produce appearing in Scotland; he is indignant at Scotland's recognizing the existence of any article of food other than that produced by Scotland, and he becomes almost vituperatively eloquent when he allows himself to speak of Canada and Canadians in general. If you have a copy of The Grocer for March 1st of this year, turn up Mr. McRitchie's letter and read it. It is worth while, and for this reason—the writer is evidently typical of a large and, unfortunately, increasing number of Old Countrymen, who regard with a dignified and sweeping disfavor Canada, and everything connected with Canada. Their attitude is one of blind, unreasoning and jealous hostility. Jealousy, in fact, is apparently the only tangible factor in their opposition, and jealousy would seem to be accounted for, in this, as in most cases, by ignorance. In the course of his former letter, Mr. McRitchie says:

"I consider Canadians a very selfish race, and the treatment meted out to some "Old Country" visitors to your domain very discreditable. I know I received more courtesy in the States.

Personally, I never visited a more selfish and inhospitable country. Your folks forget what they owe to the Mother Country. Let all that forced emigration from here cease and it would make a big difference to Canadians—Canada, without 'British prestige,' and 'capital,' would be another story. Only ignorant, bigoted, conceited and selfish Canadians won't admit such a view, and, unfortunately, they are apparently in the majority. Remember, we have other sources of supply for our food than Canada. Personally, I actively discourage 'Made in Canada' goods, for very good reasons—for 'value received.' "

In view of Mr. McRitchie's ill-concealed admiration for the land of the thistle and the rose, the last remark seems almost unnecessary.

Six months have not sufficed to cool Mr. McRitchie's patriotic ardor. Under date of September 6, he writes to us :

"It is just as well for your folks to remember that the frequently despised 'Old Country' is still their safest and best market. We, here, take 95 per cent. of your total exports. And it will be a bad day for us here when we put a tax on food imports in order to give your folks a preference over other equally deserving nations. Your premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, told me on his recent visit that he had no objection to my arguments. Well, let us keep our food supply open, and then your greedy Ontario manufacturers won't get a chance to 'sweat' the western farmers after they have made more out of us through getting higher prices wrung from the British people.

"What a slow, humbugging set of folks many of your business people are ! 'Hustle' with them means 'bustle' and 'fuss,' and they take an age to settle an ordinary business proposition." (This from a Scotchman, too). "Yet they think they are very smart ! What a lot of procrastination there is in the Queen City !'

"P.S.—Don't guess, but make certain.'

Now won't somebody take up the cudgels for Canada ? Here is an opportunity for some aspirant to achieve fame at a bound. To undertake to show a Scotchman the error of his ways is to assume a task herculean in its proportions. And yet, the longer the gauntlet remains unlifted, the longer must Canadians be pointed out to a derisive world as "ignorant, bigoted, conceited and selfish." On whose shoulders shall the mantle fall ?

BLACK AND GREEN.

The Statistical Department at Ottawa have sent us the tea imports for the fiscal year ending June 30th last.

They consisted of 18,459,499 lbs. Ceylon and India black tea, and 2,548,745 lbs. of the same countries' green tea, a total of all kinds of Ceylon and India tea of 21,008,244 lbs.

China supplied 562,457 lbs. of black, and 600,787 lbs. of green; total China teas, 1,163,244 lbs.

Japan supplies 4,226,406 lbs.

All other countries, including Java 92,666 lbs.

Thus the total importations of tea into Canada during the fiscal year amounted to 26,490,580 lbs., about four-fifths of this coming from Ceylon and India—a wonderful change to take place in a few years. For how much of this change are the packet tea men responsible? Certainly a considerable proportion.

SHIPPING GREEN CHEESE.

Attention is once more called to the shipping of cheese before it has matured, in the report of the Canadian High Commissioner in London. The report deals with the year which ended March 31, 1907, and speaking of green cheese the Commissioner says:

"The short-sighted policy—not to use a stronger term—of shipping Canadian cheese in an immature or green conditions, cannot be too strongly condemned. That this practice has, during the current year, prevailed to a most regrettable extent, is evidenced by the numerous communications that I have before me from leading importers of this staple Canadian product. As I have been requested by several firms of standing to bring this matter as forcibly as possible to the attention of the Canadian shipper, I append quotations from some of the letters that I have received, in the hope that they will command the most serious attention, and have some effect in leading to the discontinuance of a practice which cannot but fail, if persisted in, to have a disastrous effect upon a trade which has been built up by great care and expense on the part of the Canadian government and people."

Several letters are quoted, in which the writers strongly deprecate the practice of Canadian makers in allowing cheese to leave the factory before it has fully matured.

Ordinarily cheese requires ten days after making to mature properly. The scarcity of old cheese and the temptingly high prices offered for the new led many makers to ship their cheese to Montreal, or another central point, before it was really fit for selling. In Montreal stocks have been so low at times that everything received has been rushed across the ocean to fill standing orders. It is true that good prices were secured, but equally true that the temporary profit was discounted by the loss in reputation suffered by Canadian cheese. Recipients of green, or immature, cheese are likely to form a very bad opinion of the Canadian article under these circumstances, because they cannot help losing money on it, and Canada has not yet reached that stage where she can disregard complaints.

The practice, if continued, must have a disastrous effect upon the cheese trade. The words used in the report are none too strong. It is a short-sighted policy to jeopardize the reputation of any article of Canadian manufacture for the sake of some slight extra monetary consideration in a year of abnormal markets.

QUALITY IN DAIRY PRODUCTS.

J. A. Ruddick, Dominion dairy commissioner, whose recently concluded European tour in the interests and for the advancement of Canadian produce, has already been productive of such gratifying results, has, in his evidence given at Ottawa on the result of his trip, laid especial stress upon the vital necessity of exporting to England Canadian produce of the very highest standard of quality only. This advice is given as the outcome of Mr. Ruddick's personal observation, and is strongly backed up in some statements made recently by a competent authority, who, speaking in this connection, said :

"It is certainly the fact that some very large traders on this side are studiously dropping the practice of selling the main lines of produce under specific names. They are encouraging the public to rely on their grocer's judgment, rather than to depend on names of origin or brand names, which are both troublesome and dangerous. For instance, it is the practice with one of the largest firms of distributors never to sell butter as 'Danish' or 'Irish,' but simply according to quality and price. From a retailer's point of view this refusal to be bound by names is entirely right. But the producers, like Canada or Ireland, Denmark or Holland, must note carefully the difference as regards the trade demand. The trade do not ignore these national names or brands, which are so often of real importance as a guide to quality. The moral is that the producers must take care to keep their special names before the trade, and leave the traders to look after the final destination and the public preferences. Let the Canadians attend to quality, and see that the trade here know the names and brands that stand for quality, and they need not trouble to ask whether the public here know it is 'Canadian' they are buying when they get good bacon, cheese, eggs, butter, apples, or anything else."

GROCERY NEWS FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

IN THESE COLUMNS THE GROCER IS IN TOUCH WITH THE TRADE IN EVERY PART OF CANADA.

CONTRIBUTIONS ARE INVITED FROM MERCHANTS IN SMALL PLACES OR WHERE THERE IS NOT A REGULAR CANADIAN GROCER CORRESPONDENT.

MONTREAL.

"I am cutting out credit altogether," said a centrally-located grocer the other day, "and the more cash business I do the better I am pleased in every respect. I thought at first that I would lose trade by adopting the cash system, but I have found this idea to be erroneous. I am doing a better business today than ever I did."

It is a great thing to be able to conduct a cash business—to do away with credit and all it means. Sometimes, though, it is impossible to avoid giving credit, and once the ball starts rolling it is difficult to stop it.

It is not possible for a country grocer to carry on a strictly cash business and succeed. That is, nine times out of ten. There are some who are doing well, but their number is few. In the city, however, a cash business is always possible for the man who insists upon it. It is merely a matter of education. Educate the people to pay cash and they will pay cash and get credit elsewhere.

I know of one grocer who did a cash and credit business for a while. He found that his customers, when they had cash went to his competitors, "so as not to run up the bill" at the credit store. That settled his credit. He sells for cash now, and he has his trade—no running to the other fellow.

Of course, one is always sure to offend somebody in refusing credit, especially when a party has been buying for cash for weeks and asks for credit "just once." Better to offend and lose that one customer than to break the hard and fast "cash" rule, though, once the step is taken, for "just once" too often means every day.

An uptown grocer who is doing a cash business is now and then asked for credit, but he very nicely explains that he is too busy to keep books, make up accounts, and look after credit, so that he really cannot begin selling for anything but cash. He says he loses a few customers, but they are replaced by others, and eventually, he loses nothing.

Montreal grocers take a wonderful interest in horse-racing. He was lucky, who, during the past two weeks, was able to find all his grocer acquaintances behind the counter or in the office. Racing has been the attraction at the Blue Bonnets course, and many a retailer has dropped a few "tens" playing the ponies.

Racing is a fine thing to look at, and to put your money on a horse is the easiest way to increase your cash in hand—provided the horse wins. But the average retailer is not in a position to run risks. Some way or other the grocery business does not permit of the proprietor losing more than half a dozen "tens" a week. But everybody liked the races.

"Say, those window-dressing articles you run in The Canadian Grocer are just the thing," said a clerk the other day, "we dress our windows by them very often. We get any number of bright ideas from them." It is good to hear the like of this once in a while.

A grocer was remarking on some figs that were lying in a box on his counter. They were pretty well dried up in appearance, the sugar having "come to the surface." It did not bother this retailer. He prepares a tub, or boiler, of hot water, into which he pours a small measure of molasses. He dips the figs into the mixture and they resume their usual moist, attractive state.

On the city council there are several grocers, among them Jos. Ward, R. Turner, J. B. A. Martin (formerly of Laporte, Martin & Co.), N. Lapointe, E. Lariviere. Messrs. Lariviere, Martin and Lapointe are on the road committee, the former being chairman. The point is, cannot these men do something toward bettering the roads in the centre of the wholesale district, in the heart of the grocery and provision centre of the city? Some of the streets are in disgraceful condition—not only are they anything but pretty to look at, but they are such as to play havoc with wagons, with merchandise and with horses. Place d'Youville, for instance, on a wet day is three inches of mud and water.

Grocery men are good business men—cannot the grocery brigade on the city council inaugurate a movement for better streets where they are so badly needed? Business men would appreciate their action.

CHATHAM.

Officials of the C. W. & L. E. electric road declare that the report to the effect that arrangements had been completed between that line and the M.C.R. for a crossing at Charing Cross, were premature. The right of way across the M.C.R. has not yet been secured, and the matter will probably have to go before the Railway Commission for adjudication. The M.C.R. are said to have a watchman on duty night and day to prevent the laying of the tracks.

Judge McHugh, of Windsor, has handed down his decision in a case of interest to hundreds of farmers and tobacco growers. Frederick W. White, of Harrow, was induced to take stock in the McAlpin Tobacco Company, of Leamington, on the assurance that he would receive 6 per cent. on his money, and that the company would purchase his tobacco at a specified price for a certain term of years. A note, taken in payment, was endorsed to the Traders Bank, who, after the failure and winding-up of the company, sued for $300 and interest. White defended on the ground of fraud, alleging that the bank had ample notice of the circumstances. Judge McHugh sustained this contention, dismissing the action with costs.

The exposure of fruit, vegetables, fish and other eatables offered for sale by grocers and butchers, was warmly criticized at a recent meeting of the Board of Health. Dr. Charters introduced the subject, urging that action should be taken to compel a discontinuance of the practice. The manner in which meat is brought into the city, often in open wagons without covering of any kind, was also criticised. The secretary was instructed to write the Toronto Health Department for a copy of their regulations on this subject.

Dr. Hall, M.H.O., reported that a second test of the city's milk supply, made recently, presented much more satisfactory results than the first test, which took place some time ago.

Chatham will not have a free mail delivery service for some time to come. The matter has been agitated off and on for a couple of years; but a recent letter from R. M. Coulter, Deputy Postmaster-General, states that Chatham, though possessing more than the required $20,000 annual revenue, has less than the necessary 12,000 population, and is, therefore, ineligible.

J. P. Taylor, the Park street grocer, accompanied by George Taylor, left last week on a holiday trip to Edmonton, Alta.

J. D. Baxter, until recently in the bakery business in Dresden, is moving his family to this city.

Chas. Jeffrey, who has conducted a grocery business in Blenheim for some time past, has sold out to J. B. Little, of London.

C. H. Mills, of Thos. Stone & Son, secretary of the local Board of Trade, will shortly return to his old home in Berlin, where he has accepted the management of the Berlin Leatherette Co.

Jas. R. Palmer, of Tilbury, who proposes establishing a large wholesale bakery here, has purchased a block of land on Patterson avenue. Contracts have been let for a fine brick bakery, to cost in the neighborhood of $3,000. Building operations will be commenced shortly.

Representatives of a large 5c, 10c and 15c store were in the city last week with a view to locating a branch in Chatham. They were unable, however, to secure a vacant store large enough for their purpose; so that the scheme had to be abandoned, at least for the present.

GUELPH.

The Guelph and Goderich excursion was a success and certainly means a lot for Guelph merchants. The trains were all crowded and everybody had a good time. We went, we saw, but we did not see much to eat or drink. In fact, the eatables and drinkables were mighty scarce. Lake water may be alright in its place but to live on it for 24 hours makes a fellow feel like saying, next time we will take a bottle along. On an occasion like this it pays to be an alderman. There is no doubt we will receive a big share of the trade between here and Goderich and the new line means a great future for both Guelph and Goderich in the way of business.

The last train came home at 6.15 next morning and we got a lot of external enjoyment for our $1.25 but not much for the inner man.

The only two grocers we have heard of who closed up for the day were Charlie Hicks and Inglehart & Co. They deserve credit for being able to decide for themselves without waiting to see what the other fellow would do. About a dozen stores closed altogether and the rest kept open but might just as well have closed.

All previous records were broken in the building line in Guelph this year, a total of $502,750 being spent and $15,800 of this was spent on store improvements alone, while $137,400 was spent on factories and extensions.

There was another bumper market on Saturday with a large attendance for both buyers and sellers in both the inside and outside markets. There was a particularly large amount of fruit on sale and there were a large number of Hamilton grocers and dealers as well as the local people. Prices remained unchanged, except plums and potatoes, which took a drop. The plums were to be had at any fair offer from 25 cents up. The Irish man's favorite fruit being as low as 75 cents a basket for the first time this year. But business, generally, among the stores was quiet.

Does it pay a grocer to order his canned goods ahead subject to any price that may be asked? The travelers have been booking orders all summer for fall delivery and have no price to offer yet. It may pay, but I doubt it very much. Why should a retail grocer have to buy and carry all winter the stock his wholesaler ought to carry for him? The travelers all tell us they are protecting us. But are they protecting us or the wholesalers? Don't think for a minute it is the retail merchant they are worrying about.

Of course, there are exceptions, but as a general rule most grocers can buy at any time during the winter at or very near the same price as the fall and don't have to tie up their money in canned goods. Sometimes they can be bought cheaper in the winter, but in this case we have the frost to contend with, though it is not any more of a risk than filling up your cellar with a large stock of canned goods at fancy prices. A grocer has got to be a pretty level-headed fellow to run a business successfully and if the wholesalers are protecting the retailers, as they claim, why should the retail grocer have to carry the stock and run all the risk? It takes a lot of good judgment, but the most of the buying ahead business for a retail grocer is just speculation and you get caught about as often as you make any money out of it.

We hear some complaints from private people that the grocers should not be allowed to buy up the fruit and green stuff so early. But that is an old story here and I firmly believe that when the fruit, etc., is bought to retail again in the city, the public are greatly benefited, as they have it right in their own neighborhood by seven o'clock, and can easily depend upon their grocer buying the best for his own people, and he often knows what they want better than they do themselves.

Then, again, he gets a better price from the wholesaler than they could possibly do, because of the quantity he must buy. The wholesaler cleans up his load early, and is ready to go home with his money in his pocket, while if he waits on the market to sell in small lots and don't sell, he immediately starts to peddle from door to door, and they have not the same chance to get back at the wholesaler if their fruit is not what it is represented to be, which is sometimes the case. So, as it is, the public ought to thank the grocer for the care and trouble he takes for them, as he could just as easily lay in bed another couple of hours and still buy his fruit before the public handle it all over, by buying it in loads and not going near the market.

Your correspondent came in for his share of abuse for saying in a tecent issue that the police were not all they were cracked up to be, and some of the Wyndham street merchants tried to blame the fact to the fruit displays being ordered in on Saturday. They could get much nearer home, and not get off on Wyndham street, either. However, suppose it was for that reason. If they are breaking the law, which apparently is the case, the police should not have let it run all summer, and longer, for that matter. It was not attended to before their attention was drawn to it. We are sorry for nothing we have done so far, and don't feel inclined to drop in line with the Wyndham street merchants as hero worshippers of our police force for the sake of leaving our fruit on the sidewalk. If we break the law we expect to be accountable to the law, but we don't intend to be muzzled. We are good friends with both the police and merchants, have no axes to grind, and are not personally interested either way.

HAMILTON.

Grocers are beginning to be anxious about the price that canned tomatoes will open at. That they will be high, no one questions. The best-posted grocers are looking fot a price at about $1.25. This will leave the retailer a small margin (as much as he will ever get on canned tomatoes), selling at two tins for a quarter, and it is to be hoped, that this year the canners will keep the departmental stores off the wholesale list, as they are very unfair competitors for the grocers. The corn situation looks pretty bad, maybe worse than tomatoes, with the quality likely to be very poor, also. The writer had a chance of buying some good old corn at 72½c the other day, but now the people want 80c, and even at that, I believe it is better to buy on samples of old corn that is good, than wait for the new pack, and I would advise grocers to lay in a stock of the old at a fair price, as the chances are very much in its favor.

Sugar sales are small, and although the raw market may be strong, the demand is so much less, that I think instead of sugar advancing, we may more reasonably look for a decline. Some time ago, I think it was The Grocer's Guelph correspondent, who referred to pushing sales of 100 lb. bags of sugar, and a very silly practice it certainly is. See how it works out in Hamilton: The grocers are selling 100 lb. bags at $4.55 to $4.60 each, and are retailing 20 lbs. for $1.00. Selling at $4.55, they make a gross profit of nine cents on an investment of $4.46. Now, do you wonder why retail grocers get rich so quickly? In most cases if they let the consumer alone they will buy the dollar's worth every time. A great many times the customer will do better for you than you can do yourself.

INGERSOLL.

Far out on the autumn breezes is now borne the appetizing odor of catsup and the other relishes which the housewife is preparing for the winter's store. Grocers' delivery wagons also rattle by more frequently than usual, and circumstances in general indicate that with the advent of autumn there has come an increase in the volume of business. The preserving season is not as active as in previous years, owing to the scarcity of fruits and the resultant high prices, but there is, nevertheless, a large demand for sugars, spices, etc., and the busy period which the grocers have been looking forward to since "dog days" has arrived. Plums are probably more plentiful here than in many sections, and the prevailing price is seventy-five cents per basket, or $2 per bushel. Peaches are about double the price of a year ago and the supply is very small.

The rains of the past few days have done much to ripen the tomatoes, and a good crop is reported. They are being marketed daily by local growers, with eighty cents per bushel as the ruling price.

Butter is one of the staple articles which shows but little fluctuation in price here. Ingersoll is in the peculiar situation of being surrounded by cheese factories, as well as having the factory of the St. Charles Condensing Co. in its midst. Of course, these are very valuable institutions to the town, but as the major portion of the milk supply is taken to the factories, but very little butter is manufactured, the consequence being that it is usually as high here as in any other place. Thirty cents per pound is now the ruling figure for first-class creamery butter, which is apparently the most in demand.

The prolonged drought has reduced the cheese production in this section. The pasturage has been very short for some weeks and there has naturally been a marked falling off in the flow of milk. The rains, however, of the past few days have relieved the situation materially.

* * *

Much interest is now being centered upon the apple outlook. From what can be learned, the crop will not be as heavy as last year, and it is doubtful if the quality will be as good. Exporters are now calling upon the producers and preparations are being made for packing and shipping.

KINGSTON.

Owing to many circumstances, such as clerks being off on holidays, excitement over advancing markets, investing and overstocking causing financial cramps, and many other accidents too numerous to mention, I did not feel in a position to write and add my little quota to the most valuable and interesting columns of grocery news from Atlantic to Pacific, which is one of the most valuable of the grocer's assets. I sometimes feel discouraged about this correspondence business. Then I take up a Grocer and commence reading Belleville, Chatham, Guelph, Hamilton, Quebec, and others, and after reading I feel as though the letters were personal, and that I must answer them. I sometimes wonder what they look like and would be glad to have their faces sent me on a postal card. I can buy an album now for 10c at Knox's big 5, 10 and 15c store, which opened here a week ago, and took in over $1,500 opening day. Such a jam, everyone crowding somebody into jelly and the rattle of double boilers, tin pans and bakers' knick-knacks would deafen you. Other dealers in other lines claim it stirred up trade and brought people to the city and their sales were increased. Well, it is best to look at the shining side and see the good points.

I am sure all the correspondents regret Editor Armstrong's leaving The Grocer's staff.

The Made in Canada exhibition in Kingston promises to be one of the biggest and best things we have had since the famous grocers' picnic. The ladies interested in the affair are very enthusiastic and expect to make a lot of money for a very deserving institution, the General Hospital.

The general aspect of the canned goods situation is not very inviting to the retailer who has a small stock on hand. Buy as you go is a good rule year in and year out, but some years the early buyer of futures gets the plum. The retailer cranes his neck to see what prices for tomatoes, peas and corn will appear above the horizon and say retailers who have bought and have stocks on hand are fools if they do not advance with the market. Getting trade by cut prices is like bagging fog—you can't hold it.

O Wee Kay No salmon is sold here yet at 15c; corn and peas, 10c, 3 for 25: tomatoes, 10c. It is ridiculous. If you hire a carpenter you pay $2.50 a day, a laborer $1.75 to $2. Natural gas has gone up, and the retailer who does not advance with the market will be in the soup. The fruit and vegetable peddlers have things their own way. Our officials are afraid to carry out the bylaws they are sworn to protect, and our aldermen seem to be doing little to protect the honest grocers and market gardeners.

Carloads of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia potatoes are coming in and are of good size and quality. A great many have their coats rubbed off, but still they are a good investment, as potatoes are very small around here. Jobbers are asking 95c a bag. Cars are being offered at 75c to 77c.

Albert Glover has just completed a large brick warehouse for potatoes.

Saturday market was a large one and urices were good: Tomatoes, 75c to $1 bush; potatoes, $1 a bag; pickling prices were good: Tomatoes, 75c to 30c; eggs, 20c.

The fruit dealers and grocers had large shipments of plums sent in and a large amount of this had to be sacrificed. One dealer turned 100 baskets over to the W. J. Crothers Co., Ltd., for jam. Prices started at 75c, and in the evening sold for 40c and 50c a basket. It is a bad practice for fruit growers to load up dealers on Saturday. The dealers advertise low prices for Saturday night. People wait till that time to buy, and you can smell jam cooking all day Sunday. If some preacher took for his text "plum jam" he would have few empty pews. There would be a jam surely.

I don't think there is enough honey in this district to make 50 sheets of fly paper.

LINDSAY.

Trade here has been somewhat dull this last week, as the farmers seem to be waiting to do their buying next week when they come in to attend the big Central Fair held here. This is always one of the big events of the season and lasts three days.

Numerous towns have been complaining of short weight on butter, etc. Lindsay was not considered to be on this list until last Saturday, when it was found out that some farmers in this part were "cheating" the public.

The shortage was on butter. Our market clerk had always boasted of the good weight given on our market, and to prove his statement went over to a basket nearby and picking out a supposed pound print, found that it only weighed fifteen and one-half ounces. Several other prints also lacked. Five prints supposed to weigh five pounds, lacked about four ounces.

The market was very brisk, the following being the prices: Eggs, 18c to 20c; butter, 25c to 26c; chickens, 60c and $1; ducks, 80c and $1; apples, 15c per peck; cream, 25c per quart, and hay, $13 per ton.

Lindsay is very well supplied with grocery stores, there being eleven on the main street. On going into Lindsay stores, it will be noticed that each merchant deals in groceries, and groceries alone, there being not a general store among them.

The fruit question is one that every grocer is paying special attention to now. Plums seem to be plentiful, selling for ninety cents per basket. Peaches are very scarce, and are retailing at $1.75 per basket. Grapes are just beginning to arrive, and are selling from fifty to sixty cents per basket. Great quantities of sugar are being disposed of these days. One grocer remarked that when he saw a man come in with a dollar in his hand it was becoming a habit for him to put down in his order book "granulated sugar." Many grocers are smiling these days because they had their fall supply of syrup bought before the late advance in price, which was about sixty cents per case.

LONDON.

Fair week was, as usual, a busy time with the local wholesale grocers, and it required the combined efforts of the warehouse staffs and the travelers who were in for the week to attend to the wants of customers, who took advantage of the low railway rates to visit the city.

Brokers report some changes in prices, not the least notable being an advance of 6d to 1s in currants. Stocks of this fruit in the country have been allowed to run pretty low and the natural consequence has been a brisk demand. Valencia raisins are a little lower. As yet no large quantities have been bought, wholesalers holding off for lower prices. No change in sugar. There has been a slight drop in low-grade teas, while some higher grades have advanced a little. Japans keep very high.

One of the breakfast food firms adopted a novel method of advertising their goods during fair week. At their own expense, they arranged in the windows of some of the downtown grocery stores attractive displays, in the shape of arches made up of artistically-printed boxes of their cereals, interwoven with vari-colored ribbons. The effect was very pleasing and served the double purpose of advertising the goods and saving the merchants the trouble of dressing their own windows at a very busy time.

Plums and tomatoes are coming in quite freely just now, the warm weather, with plenteous rains, having had the effect of ripening the latter very rapidly. The result is that baskets of these products take up a large amount of room in the city stores. Plums are now selling at from 60 cents per basket up, and tomatoes, which for weeks have been held at 45 cents, can now be bought for 30 cents a basket retail.

Hucksters are still openly violating the city by-law, in spite of the city council having, at the instance of the Grocers' Association, instructed the market clerk to keep a sharp lookout after these gentry. A few mornings ago two prominent grocers saw one of them buy out the entire lot of garden truck brought into market by a farmer, and transfer it to his own wagon. The clerk was looked up, and the first prosecution may be expected any day.

Wholesale grocers state that the outlook for the pack of canned goods is an exceedingly gloomy one. This is partly as a result of the shortage of the fruit and corn crops, but wholesalers state that the report made by the provincial medical authorities upon the filthy condition of factories will, in all likelihood, result in the curtailed sale of canned goods.

The crusade against dishonest milk dealers is still being carried on. This week a Dorchester farmer was charged before a county magistrate with introducing water in too liberal measure into milk sold to the Union cheese factory in that township, and was fined $25 and costs.

Driven to their wit's end by the restriction of the area in which they can carry on their business in the streets of London, the Greek banana and peanut men are now seeking small locations in the business part of the city, where expenses will be light. One of them has taken up a position in an unused hallway on Richmond street, near King, and there finds business quite active. It is not likely, however, he will be allowed to remain there long.

What was at one time a sore grievance to retail grocers, was the custom of certain wholesalers selling direct to consumers. It was not the proprietors, but their employes, who were the offenders in this respect, the latter yielding to the importunities of relatives and friends, and procuring goods for them at prices intended only for the retailers. The proprietors, however, have put a stop to the practice, and now it is rare that a complaint is made in this connection.

PETERBOROUGH.

Should the grocers of Peterboro adopt the cash system? This is a question which has been receiving considerable attention here for some time, and both pro and con arguments have been put forth. Other lines of business have adopted the cash system, why not the grocers? There is little doubt but that it would be more profitable all round if it could be worked satisfactorily; but several grocers, to whom your correspondent spoke regarding the matter, said it was hard to lay down a hard and fast rule regarding payments in the grocery trade. Two years ago the coal merchants of Peterboro adopted the cash system, refusing to deliver coal or wood unless money was close in sight. The following spring the grocers of the city noticed that they had more accounts on their books than at the end of any former spring, and they had no difficulty in finding the cause of this state of affairs. The coal man got his money; the grocer did not. He had to wait until the customer was able to pay up. If the cash system were universal among the grocers of the city, everything would be all right, but unless there is united action, it will not work out well. Incidentally, this is a point in favor of co-operation among the grocers.

A big howl is being made in wards one and two of the city regarding the high assessment. These are the two new wards, and they have grown rapidly during the past few years, and the residents claim that the valuation this year is altogether too high. The city council has taken into consideration the proposal to establish a public abattoir in Peterboro, where all animals intended for consumption could be slaughtered. The claim is made that many diseased animals will be offered for sale to the butchers of the city, now that there is a rigid inspection at the packing houses. It is likely that the scheme to have a public abattoir will go through, as the butchers of the city are in favor of it, and the council has taken it up.

W. C. Tully has purchased from S. C. Ward the grocery store located at the corner of Aylmer and Murray streets. Mr. Tully has re-stocked the store and as he has had considerable experience in the grocery trade, there is every prospect that he will make a success of the business. The location is a good one, and the previous owner had many customers.

Peterborough is well supplied with grocers, there being three wholesale and sixty-five retail establishments in the city. As the population of the city is about 15,000, this means that there is a grocery store for every 250 inhabitants approximately. It would almost appear as if there were too many groceries for the size of the city, but the majority of them appear to be doing a good business. The wholesale men report trade as being unusually brisk, no doubt due to the large number of retail establishments.

There has been some trouble between a Belleville cheese buyer and several factories in the Peterborough district, regarding difference in weight between the weighing of the cheese at Peterborough and Belleville. The buyer claimed that there was a difference of about one pound per box between the figures given. The question of "short weight" cheese was discussed at a recent meeting of the local board, when it was decided that the buyer shall have the privilege of weighing several cheese from each factory's product at Peterborough, this weight to govern the sale of the respective lots.

QUEBEC.

Business is brisk at the present time in grocery circles. Wholesalers, as well as retailers, have been very well satisfied with the week's trade. Prices of leading staples are firm. The fruit season has been one of the most successful on record. A heavy pack of all lines of canned goods is noted. The market is very strong, though there is no immediate indication of an advance. Collections are still slow and no improvement is remarked since last week.

The butter and cheese situation is very satisfactory. Creamery butter continues in small supply, with good demand; prices have advanced a cent per pound. Cheese is a little higher and the demand is excellent. We quote: Creamery butter, 23c to 24c; second choice, 22½c to 23¼c; fresh butter, 21c to 23c; colored cheese, 11⅞c to 12½c; white cheese, 11⅞c to 12c. A new advance is expected. Eggs continue to arrive in small quantities and are priced from 22c to 23c. The demand for pork is still good.

Owing to the unfavorable weather, the fish markets are in a quiet condition. The arrivals have been much smaller than usual and the market is practically bare of good fish. On account of the shortness of supplies, prices are firm, with a poor demand.

Trade is fairly good in flour and grain markets. Retailers are buying heavily, fearing a new advance in prices. The advance registered this week is considerable and wholesalers sell at the following quotations: Indian corn, 82c. Flours: Winter patent, $4.75 to $5; Manitoba patent, $4.75; straight roller, $4.25 to $4.50; seconds, $5.10 to $5.80; patent Hungarian, 98 lbs. $2.75; Ontario patent, $2.15 to $2.25; straight roller, $2.10; oat flour, $1.50; Indian corn flour, $1.60.

Sealed tenders are asked and will be received till the twenty-third day of September, by the city clerk, to supply hay, (timothy hay, 15 lbs. per bundle), oats, straw, bran, gandriole, for the fiscal year, from the first day of November next, 1907, to the thirty-first day of October, 1908, for the fire department.

At their annual meeting, a couple of days ago, the Grocery Clerks' Association, presided over by M. Boissonnault, elected the following officers for 1907-08: Hon. president, Adj. Pouliot; president, J. A. Gagnon; vice-president, J. A. Rochette; secretary, Wilfrid Cantin; assistant secretary, J. E. Falardeau; treasurer, Uld. Fiset; assistant treasurer, J. A. Drolet; auditors, Uld. Lachance, Nap. Drolet; committee, J. A. Roy, L. N. Fiset, Jos. Gosselin, Ad. Poitras, J. A. Rochon, N. Boissonnault, Alb. Bernier, Jos. Dubuc, Eng. Paradis, Eng. Vermette, F. T. Allaire, E. Falardeau.

Fruits and vegetables are abundant this week on the market. A decline is noticeable in banans, which were priced last week at $2.50; present quotations are from $2. to $2.50. Peaches, per box, had a decline of 50c, and are now quoted from $1.75 to $2.25. Tomatoes are sold for 85c per box, green grapes, 75c per basket, and blue grapes, 60c.

* * *

The export trade of cheese from Quebec for England has been since the first of May this year, 44,885 boxes. Last year, for the same period, the shipment was 14,381 boxes.

ST. CATHARINES.

St. Catharines has returned to its normal condition, now that the holiday excursion and half-Wednesday vacations have expired. The merchants are alive to the fact that business must be looked after, and apparently every one of them is doing a profitable trade.

Changes have occurred recently, and new business has been established. Donald L. Cruickshank, for more than thirty years a prominent and successful grocer, concluded that he needed a rest, and his business was taken over by T. B. Hare, of St. Thomas, who has been in the business for a number of years. Mr. Hare had for some time been in Toronto; from thence he went to St. Thomas, and since his advent to St. Catharines he has made many friends. He occupies the Cruickshank stand at the junction of St. Paul and Geneva streets, and by its favorable position he should secure a good trade.

A new venture has been made by J. C. Ellis, who for a time conducted a tailoring and gents' furnishing business. Mr. Ellis and his wife have embarked in the grocers' trade on St. Paul street, a point where business should be good for no supply store has been in that neighborhood since W. T. Richardson changed his location to Geneva street, several years ago.

Since opening business, both Mr. and Mrs. Ellis say the patronage has been better than expected.

Andrew Foster, of the firm of Andrew Foster & Co., met with a misfortune to his left leg some years ago, from which he had suffered a good deal from time to time, and was finally compelled to have an operation amputating the limb below the knee. Mr. Foster has almost fully recovered from the operation, and is sometimes seen in his store. It was a remarkably quick cure, as Mr. Foster is well advanced in years, and his many friends congratulate him on his speedy recovery from what many thought would be his death.

There is a good deal of crockery, china and glassware used in St. Catharines and surrounding country. The outside world come to this city for their wares and can procure supplies in all lines they need. The American Bazaar is an up-to-date store, replete with fancy goods, commodities for the table, glass, china, silver, gold, and the proprietor, ex-Alderman J. T. Petrie, takes good care to have sets of the choicest of wares in his show windows, occasionally, showing varieties that have been secured from London, England, Paris, France, and German manufacturers. Mr. Petrie is also a live grocer, supplying the needs of his many customers.

The Horticultural Society is no mean asset to St. Catharines and elsewhere. The promoters are the most energetic and prominent people of St. Catharines and other towns. A two days' show will occur this week in the Armory main floor, permitted by military authority, and hundreds of people will avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing nature cultivated by man—crude to begin with, but by culture, exceeding what old Nature intended.

The farmers and fruit growers have had an anxious year. The grain, of which little is grown in this part of Ontario, excepting oats, has been a poor crop. The late spring retarded planting, the cold summer, with dry weather retarded growth, and practically the two kinds of vegetables and fruit—tomatoes and grapes—are the ones the growers look to for profitable results. The rose bug hurt the grapes on sandy soil, but the clay land vines reap a bountiful supply. Tomatoes will be a good crop if the frosts keep off, but until the last few days, ripening was very slow. All sorts of commodities bring good prices in the St. Catharines market, and are readily sold.

TORONTO

The ordinary housekeeper is getting a little anxious regarding her supply of fruit and vegetables to be canned for winter and spring consumption, and the grocer is besieged these days with inquiries as to this and that in the fruit line. This week the situation has been a little relieved by a somewhat plentiful supply of plums, but when 80 or 85 cents a basket and $1 for the best ones is asked, the customer usually frowns a little. Tomatoes are selling well and a lot of culls and wrinkled ones, which do very well for catsup, are going for 25 cents. Better ones go at 30 to 35 cents and the best at 40. The beginning of the pears this week helped some, too, and the early apples supplied many a household with good old-fashioned and appetizing "apple sass." There has been a big demand for cucumbers and peppers for pickling purposes and a good supply of cauliflower and cabbage has also helped in this good work. For table purposes muskmelons sold well at from 5 to 30 cents apiece.

An Old Country grocer, who has also seen a good deal of the development of things in this city, Samuel Hazlitt, passed away at his home, 362 Bathurst St., on Sunday, Sept. 8. Mr. Hazlitt was born at Castleblaney, County Monaghan, Ireland, and learned the grocery business in the Old Country. He came to Toronto about forty years ago and after some time opened a store here and ultimately became a well known merchant. He had been ill for some months and the end was not unexpected. Mrs. Hazlitt, whom he married in Toronto, survives him, as do also two sons, U. S. and J. K., who are wholesale confectioners in the city, and one daughter.

It's rather a pleasure to an up-to-date grocer to take a walk up upper Yonge Street these evenings to see how the early closing movement is taking hold. There's scarcely a grocer from College to Bloor—and there are a good many stores in that section—but closes at six or very shortly after, on every evening but Saturday. The big fellows, especially, are prompt in shutting up and up around the corner of Yonge and Charles, where Simpson and Barron and Davie Bell are making things go, you would find it hard to get an order in for love or money at a minute after six. Davie Bell, by the way, is happier than ever in his recently enlarged store, and his two big show windows, which he keeps in good shape, give a fine idea of the cleanliness and brightness of the interior of the store. Above Bloor two or three of the smaller men keep on working till eight and even till ten, regularly, and they claim they have to do this to supply the poorer class of trade which surrounds them.

VICTORIA, B.C.

The summer season is drawing to a close, and one might say that in Victoria it has been a strenuous one, conditions here being exceptionally bright, and each month's business exceeding that of the previous one by a very substantial margin. Many of the grocers have found it difficult to procure sufficient experienced help to handle their rapidly-increasing business, but, in spite of the busy times, the grocers have managed to find time for a little recreation, every Thursday afternoon having been observed as a holiday, and all grocers and butchers closing their stores at 12.30, and remaining closed for the balance of the day. And every merchant in the city found a spare day for the annual picnic on August 8th, which was a grand success. The picnic was to have been held on July 25th, but on account of a disastrous fire just previous to that date the outing was postoned till August.

The MacLean Publishing Co.'s representative, R. J. Gay, was in the city last week, and seemed to have a busy time. If Mr. Gay is always so busy, he is likely to be dubbed "The live man from the east."

At present the canned goods question is interesting the grocers very much. The new prices are exceptionally high, the Canners' Association evidently trying to keep abreast of the times on prices, but there is such a thing as overdoing matters. For it means the retailer will have to sell tomatoes at 20c a tin, and corn, peas and beans at 15c a tin, and fruits, etc., at correspondingly high prices.

Of course, everyone realizes that there is an upward tendency on almost all lines of groceries, but there is, or should be, a limit to everything, and the Canners' Association should bear in mind that there are live business men in California who are only too anxious for an opening for their goods in the Canadian market, and even if they don't fear competition, they should not overlook the fact that at such advanced prices the consumption will be much less.

At last the much vexed liquor question has been settled, and all grocers having a license have been compelled to divide their stores and keep the liquor separate; in one way this is a satisfactory state of affairs to the temperance element in the city, but it has spoiled many of the finest stores, which are now cramped for room, and are all cut up with partitions and separate entrances.

The summer has been exceptionally dry, and consequently, the hay and potato crops are short, and prices high, so the grocer will have to figure which will be the cheaper as a motive power for delivery, hay and oats or gasoline.

The lack of good pasture has kept butter at an unusually high figure; in fact, the supply of local creamery is not nearly adequate to the demand, and for some months the grocers have been getting 45c per pound, and still there does not begin to be enough.

Flour has advanced 40c per barrel, is the latest news. It was high before, and one wonders when it will reach the pinnacle.

* * *

Sugar has been fairly reasonable in its movements this season. This is due to a little competition. Some Scotch and China sugars were put on this market, and the result was a drop of 40c per hundred-weight.

WOODSTOCK.

Your correspondent has been jaunting around the country on his holidays, something he doesn't get with the regularity of the seasons, for the past couple of weeks, and that explains why there has, for two or three issues, been no Woodstock letters in The Grocer. But that wasn't what I started out to say. I intended to tell all Grocer readers that in no place I was in, did I see any finer grocery stores, for the size of the place, nor any half as good, as we have right here in Woodstock. I was in Quebec and Montreal and Toronto, and smaller places, and stores that were better than Woodstock's were scarce, while there were stores without the clean and inviting appearance local grocers delight in showing to visitors and patrons. And Woodstock's stores are probably no better than those of its surrounding towns and cities, though, of course, we would like to believe that they are. It is probable that the dealers in smaller places pay more attention to detail than do those in large centres of population and trade. They become more closely acquainted with their customers, and feel a personal pride in displaying a store from which they need have no scruple in taking home goods for the table.

I always think that if grocers and men in other kinds of retail business who dispose of table goods, realized how much depends upon appearance, they would be more careful of the surroundings of articles they expect people to buy and eat. I do not buy goods to run a house, but if I were in that business, I know the places where I would not buy goods. They are the places where you see cut hams, sausages, etc., lying on the counter, entirely unprotected by netting or otherwise, and see the flies making it their happy hunting ground; where you see fruits and vegetables piled up on the pavement in front of the store at the mercy of the dust and filth of the street, and every passing canine; where the clerks wear dirty aprons, and where griminess and dust reign supreme and in no danger of molestation. Most everyone takes a deep interest in the source of what he eats, and there is no surer way of increasing business than in making that store a model of cleanliness, brightness and beauty.

While I am on the matter of cleanliness, there is another matter that should be earnestly taken up by health authorities everywhere, in my humble opinion. That is the manner many bakeries have of delivering their bread. You see the driver of the wagon stop in front of a store or residence, and, if the former, go in with the loaves of fresh, warm bread, piled up high in his arms. It is, to say the least, not a sanitary way of doing things, and the introduction of the wire basket, while only a partial remedy for the evil, is to be welcomed. The only true solution is in the introduction of separate paper bags, one for each loaf, in which they should be placed as soon as baked, and not removed before delivery.

There are not many stores in Woodstock where china and crockeryware may be purchased. The store of Poole & Company is the only grocery which handles this adjunct to the grocery trade. "We do not make a specialty of it, either," said Mr. Peter Poole to your correspondent to-day. "We keep the department merely for the convenience of customers, and do not pretend to have a full assortment of all kinds of fancy dishes. Our stock is made up of what is in most demand, what the people ask for, and what we do keep is good." Mr. Poole keeps his display in good order, and it is an attractive feature of his big store. He makes a specialty of fresh fruit, and always has a good supply on hand of those which are in season.

The departmental store of the E. J. Coles Company is one of the business establishments Woodstock has of which the city is proud. They have there the largest display of china to be found in Woodstock, and the stock is always large and strictly up to date. They have also a splendid grocery department, well equipped, and a furniture flat. In addition to these, all manner of incidentals are carried in stock. The staff is a large one, and the clerks are courteous. They are all trade winners, and, what is more, trade keepers.

The fruit season locally has been rather disappointing. No crop has come up to the average, and the consequence is that many good housewives are wondering where their fruit is to come from next winter. Even plums, usually considered as the last hope, this season failed to a considerable extent. Apples are a fair crop in this vicinity, though probably not as many as usual will be sold for export purposes.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Butter—1c advance.

Corn Syrup—Higher.

Future Valencia Raisins—Lower.

Starch—Advanced.

Trade at present is in quite a healthy condition with, comparatively speaking, no complaints from either jobbers or retailers on the score of lack of business. On account of the high prices ruling just now, most merchants are buying on the hand to mouth principle, in preference to placing large orders.

The greatest scarcity at present seems to be in dried fruits, and there is very little of this article left on the market. A reduction of ¼c per lb. has taken place in Fairbank's lard. Tarragona almonds are lower by ½c per lb. over prices ruling one week ago. At present the currant market is in fair conditionf There is a reported advance in Greece of 1s 3d per 112 lbs. Pimentos, quoted last week at 9c to 11c, are now ruling at 10c to 12c, making a 1c advance on this article. Glucose has advanced 25c per 100 lbs. Corn syrups in cases are 15c per case higher and in bulk, ¼c higher. Candies in general lines. have advanced ¼c per lb. Starch has been advanced ½c per lb. American chocolates and cocoas are now quoted at 2 cents per lb. higher than figures ruling a week ago. Hams are now ½c lower than last week. Prices of butter and eggs are very firm, and, judging from stocks in hands of dealers, there will be a continued strong market for some time.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—The feeling for canned goods is quiet. Prices for corn and tomatoes are not yet given out, and this partly explains the uncertainty. Canned fruits are only in fair demand. Canned fish is more active and the demand is reported satisfactory. The canned meat market is quiet.

TORONTO—It all depends on the weather now—a late, open fall will mean everything to the corn and tomatoes—the latter, of course, especially. Still, the general consensus of opinion seems to be against a higher percentage of a full yield than 50. In this connection it is interesting to note what a Maryland firm says of the tomato situation.

"Packers located in southern peninsula of Maryland and Delaware points report the glut of tomatoes as being on at this time; similar conditions should reach the northern sections next week and the race will indeed be on. Those handicapped with future sales will be eagerly watched and anxiety is at the maximum notch. How many will pass the wire with a round unsold surplus to the good? This is now the question, and on this condition hinges the fortunes of many thousands, either directly or indirectly interested. Besides the late start and the heavy sales of futures, another sandbag is worthy of prominent mention. Labor is far from what could be desired, and as tomatoes become more abundant, it seems to be the general condition that it is impossible to get help enough to handle judiciously, and the packer fixed in this respect is the exception.

"As glut season approaches, raw stock price declines, but the average price, so far, is so ridiculously high that it will take many days at present figures to equalize or obtain a fair average season, which seems impossible in recent years in comparison with conditions of several years ago, and then when the rush is over, in all probability, up will go the price again and ditto the average for the season. If such conditions are beyond the jurisdiction of the Inter-State Commerce Committee, it would, indeed, be a philanthropic move to request the Government to appoint an equalizing price committee offering a $1,000,000 prize to the grower who would live up to his contract and play fair. 'The Pleasure of Packers' has not yet gone to the publishers and it may be quite a while before all sections have been heard from and experience handed in."

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—
Sugar—Very strong.
Corn Syrup—Prices raised.
Dried Fruits—New crop currants and Valencias expected.
Vegetables—New Brunswick potatoes show large percentage of rot.

Toronto, Sept. 20, 1907.

Business has been active in most lines during the past week, but some houses report collections as only fair. Opinions are divided as to whether the raise in price of corn syrup and starch will have the effect of checking consumption. The majority are of the opinion that it will not, as starch is too much of a staple, and corn syrup will be no higher in proportion than maple syrup, to which the consumer might have turned in the event of a lower price ruling in the latter. The advance is likely to be maintained for some time. The corn situation is growing worse daily, and crop reports are not such as to warrant the expectation of lower prices.

Canned goods are moving freely, but the new pack—corn and tomatoes—looks bad. Most of those interested are agreed that the canners will not be able to deliver more than 50 per cent. of their orders. Much, of course, depends on the weather, but the crops are so late that even the most favorable conditions can hardly alter the situation very much. The tapioca shipment which arrived recently from Singapore is said by wholesalers here, to be of none too good a quality. The demand, following a period during which no stocks were to be obtained, has naturally been very strong, but it is thought that the present supplies will be sufficient to take care of consumption until the next consignment arrives in November.

SUGAR—The situation in refined is very strong; but no immediate advance is expected. Acadia continues on a 10c lower basis than the other refiners. Late advices from New York state that "the outlook is for a steady refined market, with contracts safe from decline."

Willett & Gray take the following view of the raw situation:

"In consequence of weakness which developed in the European markets during the week under review, carrying beet sugar quotations from 10s 3d to 9s 10½d, there developed a desire to sell by the holders of Surinam, Porto Rico and Cuba sugars.

"Buyers met this desire fairly well and business resulted to the extent of fully 125,000 bags centrifugals, including Surinams at 3 15-16c, basis 96 degrees, Cubas at 2 9-16 c. and f., basis 95 degrees, equal to 3.95c for 96-degrees test, and Porto Ricos at 3.95c per pound, 96 degrees test basis, which is the official quotation at the close.

"At the close London shows a tendency to improve again, with a steady market at 10s for beet sugars, per cwt., f.o.b. Hamburg, equal to 4.11c per lb. for 96-degrees test centrifugals here.

"The business done shows an advance of .03c per lb. for the week, showing a stable condition notwithstanding the fluctuations in European beet sugar. Cane sugar in Europe made no change in quotations. The crop news of Europe and Cuba changed during the week from unfavorable to favorable, and remained favorable at the close. The European beet market, being at this season entirely a weather crop market, is influenced to fluctuations with every change of weather.

"The only effect of these fluctuations here is to make holders sell or withdraw at current values.

"Some days they are sellers; other days they are not sellers, when in hopes of improvement, and if it don't come, they are sellers again. This keeps a comparatively firm and steady market here without fluctuating prices, and resulting in a quiet business generally not reported until a few days old.

"Louisiana crop conditions continue favorable, and the prospects of turning out the largest crop in the history of Louisiana are improving. The largest crop on record was the one of 1904-05, when the crop outturned 335,000 tons.

"As the time draws near for the crop of domestic cane sugar, the planters show more interest in the general situation here, and the course of the European markets must be studied carefully for suggestions of the future.

"The general situation looks steady and firm, with the question of improvement now in abeyance and depending largely on the course of European markets."

The total stocks of Europe and America are 448,453 tons, against 1,735,794 tons last year at the same uneven dates. The decrease of stock is 287,341 tons, against a decrease of 270,517 tons last week. Total stocks and afloats together show a visible supply of 1,698,453 tons, against 1,985,794 tons last year, or a decrease of 287,341 tons.

COFFEE—The market is unchanged locally, with business quiet. Willett & Gray say:

"The receipts at Rio and Santos so far this crop are about 500,000 bags less than they were at this time two years ago in the crop that gave a total of 10¾ million bags. To the eyes of those who have made large estimates these receipts appear very small, but in the judgment of others who, from the beginning, supposed the present Santos crop at a maximum one-third of the last Santos crop, the receipts seem regular. It is the opinion of every large and conservative house that the Rio and Santos receints this season will be ten to eleven million bags, with the latter figure as a maximum, and inclusive of 1½ million bags left over from the previous crop.

"The coffee trade is holding off, in fact, the interior is buying only the minimum possible to get along with, and as they have followed this practice a very long time they have thus been laying the foundation of thoroughly sound conditions by which the position of the current crop must be judged, and quite a time must elapse before anything positive is known as to the now-growing crop. The trade will only accept or believe that which is in conformity with its wishes, even if the advices so far indicate the possibilities of another small crop.

"As regards the Government holdings, their influence would only be felt in case the market should be several cents higher, strong and advancing and consumers demand additional supplies, for otherwise, arrangements have been made for carrying the coffee until December, 1908—a date altogether too remote for the average dealer to take as a basis for calculations or his requirements now. Desirable goods have been in demand and sold at full prices, regardless of the occasional reactions in futures."

TEA—New crop May Japan teas are expected on this market shortly, but nothing but high prices are anticipated. With this exception there is no feature of special interest. Demand continues quiet, and stocks are small.

"Little change has taken place in the statistical position during the past month, the falling off in clearances having been more than balanced by smaller imports, so that the stocks for the time of year are relatively light. It is worthy of note that China was the only growth to show an increase in deliveries, the total for the three months ending 31st August being one million pounds in excess of last year's figures. Compared with the total consumption this amount is insignificant, especially in view of the much freer use of China which occurred during the previous time of scarcity—1904—but nevertheless it indicates the extent to which these teas might again be used during a prolonged period of short supplies from other countries.

"The low quotations ruling for medium descriptions appear to be attracting attention and the more general buying noted last week has developed into a distinct improvement in tone, although so far little advance in price has taken place. The old season's Indian teas bought earlier in the year have now been freely discounted and are passing into consumption, so that it seems reasonable to hope for a more healthy state of trade in the near future."

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES — Corn syrup has been advanced, as indicated in our last report. Prices are likely to remain this way until there are better corn prospects, but the companies responsible are not saying anything about their future intentions. The cool weather is helping the consumption of molasses.

DRIED FRUITS—New crop currants and Valencias are expected on this market within the next two or three weeks. The S.S. Queen Olga has left Patras with 2,500 boxes of currants for New York; and the first of the new crop Valencias is due in that city by the time this will be in print. This latter shipment, however, is reported nearly all sold.

Some interest is being taken in the Smyrna fig crop, which is reported as being of first-rate quality. The first shipment is due in New York this week. Prices have not yet been made on Persian dates.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—The tapioca shipment which arrived the week before last is not showing as good quality as some of the buyers would like. It is anything but bright, and has a dirtyish appearance that is not attractive. The demand, however, is too keen for this to have much effect, and it is not expected that a great deal of this shipment will be left over by the time the next consignment is put on the market. This will probably be some time in November.

J. R. Wilson will represent Thos. J. Lipton from Regina to Revelstoke, the Edmonton branch and Kootenay district. He leaves for his territory this week.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Sept. 12, 1907.)

All indications now point to a fairly good crop at high prices, and unless something happens another year of prosperity is assured in the West. There is, accordingly, a marked revival of confidence among the trade.

Except for advances in salt and jams, there are no new features of interest in the Winnipeg wholesale grocery market. Business continues fairly active.

CANNED GOODS—Upton's jams and marmalades have been advanced to 52 cents per pail, an advance of 2 cents. We quote:

GROCERY TRADE NEWS AND MARKETS OF NOVA SCOTIA

(Special Correspondence of Canadian Grocer.)

Halifax, Sept. 16.

Butter, cheese and milk will advance in price, according to dealers in this city. The high price of feed is attributed as the cause. Milk now sells for 7 cents per quart in this city, but it will likely go up to eight cents in the course of a few weeks. It is estimated that ten thousand quarts of milk are consumed daily in Halifax. The farmers are now talking of putting up the price, and if they make a demand, the dealers will have to charge more for the milk.

In some districts farmers and dairymen claim the haying outlook is not good, because of so much wet weather this summer, and it is expected that good hay will cost, this winter, about $20 per ton, instead of $10 and $12, as formerly, while feed, costing some years from $12 to $16 per ton, will command this season from $30 to $35, it being now four dollars per ton higher than any price touched last season. What is considered by many to be almost prohibitive prices may have the effect of causing some of the dairymen to sell their cows at the good prices offered by the victuallers, and go out of business, rather than undertake to feed their cattle all winter if the prices of hay and feed are going to be as large as they threaten. Mill feed is now from $30 to $32 per ton, more than double the price of last year. The root crop in Nova Scotia is light, and good hay is not very plentiful.

A Halifax commission merchant, when asked for his opinion of the existing conditions, said :

"If the price of milk goes up, butter and cheese will also advance. Prices here are ruled largely by the Montreal market. The outlook here is that butter will have to move higher, in order to yield the same return as cheese."

The produce and fruit markets are now very active, and the commission men are getting busy. In addition to the early varieties of apples, pears, plums and crab apples are now coming in. Pears are quoted at 35c per six-quart basket, and the poorer grades of plums about the same. The best quality of plums sell from 40c to 45c per basket. There has been no change in the price of Nova Scotia apples. Corn is very plentiful, and selling at 10c per dozen by the crate. Tomatoes are higher this week, 35c being the price for six-quart baskets. Fresh eggs are scarce, and the case stock cannot be depended upon. The price is unchanged from last week. Potatoes are in good demand at 50c per bushel. The price will probably come down before the end of the week.

Fire at Maccan last week completely destroyed the grocery stock owned by David P. Kent. The loss is about $3,000.

Thomas J. McGrath, who for many years successfully conducted a grocery business at the corner of Agricola and May streets, died last week at the age of 66 years. He was well known throughout the north end of the city.

In the vicinity of Auburn, Kings county, N.S., within a district of six miles square, twelve thousand dollars worth of cranberries were sold last year, and if the frosts keep off until the crop is harvested this season, there will be $15,000 or $20,000 worth placed on the market this year.

* * *

The Furness line steamer Rappahannock, sailed for London to-day with 13,000 barrels of apples. This is the first large shipment of Nova Scotia fruit to the English market this season.

A GROWING TEA CENTRE.

We take the following from the Maritime Merchant:

"A recognition of the importance of St. John as a tea importing centre for Canadian trade is acknowledged by the decision to have tea samples tested here instead of sending them to Ottawa. A member of the local customs staff has been sent to Ottawa to receive the necessary instructions, and hereafter teas imported will be tested here, thus saving much trouble, and a delay of four days will be obviated. The growth of the business of importing, blending and packing teas at St. John in recent years has been quite a remarkable feature of trade.

THE RIGHT CHANGE.

One of the little things that comes up frequently between customer and clerk is disputing over change. Occasionally the net result is deadly to the store. Many a good customer has been known to leave the store for good because of such a difference.

"I gave you five dollars," said the customer.

"No, ma'am, it was a two-dollar bill," says the clerk.

But the customer knows different and is sure she is right. And the clerk is equally sure.

You know how such differences arise. You also know they are well worth any little care and system that will tend to eliminate such disputes.

One of the best things yet advanced as a solution is to have the clerk always announce the amount of the coin or bill handed over by the customer.

Supposing the customer gives a five-dollar bank note in pay for goods. The clerk says immediately, "You gave me five dollars."

Then if the customer thinks that the bill was larger, the correction can be made before it is too late. This is a simple little method, but it is very effective. Many city stores now insist that this be done in every instance.

HOW IS IT?

To the Editor of Canadian Grocer:

A few weeks ago your journal contained an article on the question of percentages which rather surprised me and I have been waiting to see it challenged as to its correctness. However, as no worthier disputant has entered the lists I take the liberty to question it. I have not the article in question before me so cannot quote, but the problem and answer given is somewhat like this: "A buys a horse for $50 and sells him for $100, what percentage of profit does he make?" The answer given is 50 per cent.

Now, then, Mr. Editor, if this is correct, will you please inform me at what price that horse must be sold in order to make 100 per cent. profit.

I will grant that in the case given, the profit is 50 per cent. of the sale price, but claim that the animal was sold at 100 per cent. profit.

Now, just suppose, for a moment, that your answer as given is correct, and suppose "A" pays $50 for the horse and sells him for $1,000, then if your rule is correct "A" made a profit of 95 per cent., although he received twenty times what he paid for the horse. Under your rule a profit of 100 per cent. is an impossibility, even if he sold the horse for a million dollars. Is that good mathematics?

MONTREAL GROCERY CLERKS.

White & Bayne, general store, of Bankhead, has been succeeded by Williams Bros.

THE COST OF DOING BUSINESS

A Practical Solution of a Difficult Problem.

A question that has engaged the attention of grocers in all parts of the world and under every conceivable circumstance, is that of the cost of doing business. The number of ways in which it has been answered is in about equal proportion to the number of people to whom it has been put, and that is running into pretty high figures. It seems almost impossible to induce merchants, as a whole, to give this subject the consideration it deserves, or to persuade them that every ounce of thought in this direction inevitably returns many pounds of profit. It is no more than logical that if a man is half the time unaware of whether the sale of a certain article is netting him a profit or barely covering the cost of handling, he is hardly in a position to state definitely that he is not an actual loser on the transaction.

It is well known that the fruit grower prefers a short crop at high prices to a record yield at average prices, and on the same principle the retailer finds it more to his advantage to handle a small amount of goods at a clearly-defined profit than twice the quantity at figures which show the barest margin of income over outlay.

Recently a Montreal merchant, who has devoted considerable time and thought to the subject, drew up a list of questions, covering practically the whole field of the cost of doing business. These questions he submits to us with the following letter:

"Every dealer claims to be in business to obtain an honest, well-acquired wealth which will provide for his family and secure an income for old age.

"This being admitted, how can we explain why merchants, as a rule, are selling goods at such a small percentage over cost, and still expecting to make a living? An answer that would apply to many jobbers and retail merchants is, that they do not know the cost of doing business, and are too much inclined to seek a large volume of unprofitable goods rather than a small amount, bringing better returns.

"You might print in The Canadian Grocer the enclosed questions, leaving sufficient space for answers, asking those who wish to take advantage of our joint offer to fill in the blanks without signature or address, using some nom de plume, such as "B2306," for the dealer's guidance. Replies could be sent to The Canadian Grocer in Toronto, and we would undertake to demonstrate to every retailer what it costs to do business, both on cost and selling prices, giving the answers through your valuable paper free of charge."

All replies sent in will, of course, be treated as confidential, and no names will be published without permission, but dealers can, if they wish, fill in the accompanying blank columns and forward to the editor in a plain envelope over some fictitious signature, understood only by the sender.

If merchants will take this matter up in their own interests as well as in those of their brother tradesmen, some valuable light will be thrown on a problem which is at present too carelessly regarded and insufficiently understood.

The series of questions is as follows:

EFFECTIVE GROCERY ADVERTISING

ITS PRODUCTION AND POSSIBILITIES.

Occasional Chats by W. F. Ralph.

Layout and Display.

"A wagon without grease, like business without advertising, is a mighty slow proposition."—Rusty Mike's Diary.

It's a fact. Rusty Mike touched bottom when he wrote the above little piece of concentrated truth. There are few grocers to-day who would deny it. Every one—consciously or unconsciously—appreciates the benefit of an advertisement. You will observe that I say "consciously or unconsciously." Some people will deny any belief in the efficacy of advertising, while at the same time, advertising, in some form or other, occupies a great deal of their time.

I know a man who prides himself in what he calls, "My downright honesty, sir. I don't beat around the bush, I don't, I always call a spade a spade; and I tell you, I think advertising's a fake idea." Yet, all the time, this honest gentleman goes around, and by every means in his power lets everyone know about his peculiarity. He's a constant advertiser without admitting it.

Advertising, like eggs, can be dished up in many forms. Take the lady who thinks she is the mother of a musical prodigy. Every one who enters the house, from the iceman to the canvassing politician, is treated to a few minutes of the young gentleman's skill on the piano. The lady would deny any intention of advertising her boy. She would tell you that she was merely letting people know how well he could play the piano.

That's the point! "Letting the people know," is merely a long-winded way of saying "Advertising."

Progressive readers of The Grocer will probably skip the foregoing, because they have heard it before and fully realize its truth. I don't mind if they do, because I only want it to reach the man who is hesitating, and wondering whether a little advertising grease will make his business wheels go round easier and faster. It certainly will, Mr. Hesitating One. Try it, anyway; but give it the right sort of trial.

Every grocer can write his own ads. if he knows the rudiments of English composition. To begin with, he has the first requisite of an ad.—something to advertise.

Eye-catching—I'm talking of newspaper advertising now—is the first thing to be considered in an ad. After that comes interest-waking. The former may be must be something to awaken interest or it wouldn't catch the eye. That's true to a certain extent. The layout or border work of an ad. may attract the eye momentarily. Indeed, that is often the main function of a layout. But there must be something to awaken the interest in the matter so attractively laid out. After interest has been awakened there must be something to hold it by creating a desire, and then something to create a determination to buy. Those are the four quarters of the ideal newspaper advertisement. For the present we will confine ourselves to the first quarter—layout or display.

To catch the wandering eye of a woman, the ad. must stand out distinctly. Many an otherwise good advertisement is spoiled because of its similarity to the surrounding ads. Unless it is a little island of display surrounded by reading matter it won't be effective above the efforts of its competitors. The grocer hasn't as much field for ingenuity in display as the dry-goodsman has. The drygoodsman, on account of the variety of his stock, much of which is well capable of being illustrated, can practice an almost unlimited number of layout plans. A grocery ad. by the side of a dry goods ad. is liable to be swamped.

Since the range of type from which to choose in most towns is strictly limited, distinction in type is out of the question. The effect of isolation must be obtained by the type at your disposal. Some successful advertisers hold that if one just writes the copy and hands it in to the printer, the best results will be obtained. They claim that the printer is apt to make a poor set-up if hampered by too many instructions. Others claim that very little discretion should be allowed to the printer.

The best way, I believe, lies between these two opinions. Certainly the printer knows better than the grocer, what style of type will best fit a certain amount of copy into a given space. So much is apparent. But since your ad., to be really effective, must mirror your personality, the arrangement of the display lines should not be left to rigid mechanical rules. As a matter of fact, most printers prefer to have as little left to their discretion as possible. Particularly is this the case in newspaper offices, where leisure is scarce.

The best results are obtained by the grocer who takes an evening off, and considers what particular lines he will advertise during a certain number of days. He then considers what space he can afford and how much matter he can effectually display in that space. Next he will take up the newspaper, and scan the usual style of the ads. which will run near his. The object is to make his ad. distinct from the others. Perhaps the others all have borders. Well, a certain distinction might be obtained by running his without a border. Maybe the other ads. are crowded to the limit of the space. In that case a generous margin of white space will make his distinct.

The Bradley & Son ad. reproduced herewith, is a fine sample of every-day retail advertising from all points of view. It isn't a big, splashy, bargain sale ad., but is a sane ad., well laid out, well set up and well written. Its eye-catching quality consists of its long oblong black border, set within the hair-line border which separates the columns. The interest-awakening quality is contained in the fact that the only two display lines, except the name lines, feature two articles of every-day consumption, with the price attached. The eye of the housewife, wandering casually over the page, is unconsciously attracted to the long oblong space, separated from other spaces by the black border with rounded corners. If there were no other items of interest particularly noticeable, her eye would immediately wander off again. But in this case it is almost unconsciously held by seeing the names of two articles which she frequently buys for household use. Her interest is further awakened by mention of the price, and is held by the description of the goods. Then comes the invitation, briefly given, to have the salesman call.

There is, however, one weak spot about the ad. There is no street address given. A street address in this case seems to be all the more necessary because the store is situated in a town other than that in which the ad. is published (Thorold). But take it all round, it is a fine specimen of retail advertising for a moderate space area.

J. A. McCrea & Son, of Guelph, several of whose ads. have been reproduced in this column, have sent in a good specimen of a general ad. of fruits. No No prices are given, but the copy is of the "persuasive" order, explaining the quality and cheapness of their fruits, and the conveniences they offer to customers in the matter of delivery, etc., at their store.

The fruit ad. of Ruppel & Co. is reproduced to show how badly some grocers write their advertisements. We don't know how successful Ruppel & Co. are in the grocery business, but unless they are the only grocery in the locality, and thus hold a monopoly of trade, ads. such as the one reproduced will be highly detrimental to them. As an eye-catcher, the ad. is a good one, because of the prominence given to two articles likely to be occupying the housekeeper's mind about this time of the year.

But the disappointing, uncertain, confidence-destroying tone of the copy speedily kills any advantage it derives from a good set-up. The ad. probably states the plain truth, but it does so in a blunt, tactless way, likely to inspire little confidence in the mind of a customer as to the advisability of placing an order with Ruppel & Co.

The truth might have been told a little differently, and in a manner which would have left a good impression on the mind of the reader. There is not much use paying for space unless every word you put into it will increase your business. The ad. would have created a better impression, without swerving from the truth about crop shortage and higher prices, had it been written something in the following manner :

Buyers are shy birds and have to be gone after scientifically if a flock of them are to be brought into your store as regular customers. Every ad. should breathe with the merchant's self-confidence.

CORRESPONDENCE

STRATFORD.

Another week has passed, and the ushering out of the six days saw the closing of a big six-days' output of various kinds of fruit. The grocers report a tremendous sale of fruits for preserving, especially in the plum line. Plums are very plentiful in this vicinity, both in the stores and on the markets. Several of the retailers purchased carloads of plums last week and sold the baskets quite readily. There is and has been, a great demand for plums. And as the quantity is sufficient, the prices are reasonable. But in peaches, the scarcity makes the price pretty steep, and as a consequence, few baskets are being sold.

Last week one or two of the merchants laid in an extra supply of "home brew" flour—flour manufactured by the McLeod Milling Co., of this city. The price of flour has advanced considerably during the past week in the surrounding country, and although it has not yet advanced in this city, it is expected to do so at any time, and the merchants are getting on the "wise side."

Almost every grocer in the city reports an unusually big sale of sugar during the past week. Large quantities were sold presumably for preserving purposes. The busy housewives are right into the preserving season and the grocers are reaping the benefit.

E. K. Barnsdale, the veteran grocer of this city, and the head of "The Hub," the up-to-date grocery establishment run by the Barnsdale Trading Co., arrived home from the Old Country a week ago in the best of health. He speaks very enthusuastically of his trip. On Thursday evening last he was banquetted by Court Good Intent, A.O.F. The gathering was a very enjoyable one.

Several dealers report that apples are seriously marked this year, and that the value is lessened on account thereof by hundreds of dollars. The dry, heated season caused a great many crops of apples to shrivel and drop, especially among the early varieties. Generally speaking, the yield of early apples and fall varieties has been below the average. The present indications are that winter apples, as a whole, will be an average crop, of excellent quality.

The market here on Saturday was largely attended by the citizens and residents of the surrounding vicinity, but not much change is reported, except in butter, which has a little easier tendency. Other produce remains about the same.

F. Kirouac & Fils, flour and provision merchants, of Quebec, have dissolved and the business is being continued by Wilbrod C. Kirouac.

Riggs & Whyte, general store, of Cumberland, B.C., have dissolved.

MARKET CONDITIONS IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Flour Advanced and Rising—All Staple Groceries Higher—Full Potato Crop Probable, But Rot May be Heavy.

(By The Canadian Grocer's Special C rrespondent.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 16, 1907.

The recent advances in the price of flours of all kinds, and the increased prices of nearly all staple grocery lines, is causing a howl of protest from the consumer. Dealers who had good stocks of the advancing lines are, however, not feeling very badly over the present condition of affairs, and some of the jobbers who bought on the ground floor are congratulating themselves on their foresight. Manitoba flours have taken an upward bound of 40 cents a barrel since August 29, and Ontario is now being held at 30 cents advance over the quotations on September 3.

The fact that local dealers have advanced their prices with the millers has caused some people to rush to the newspapers with letters of protest against their action. One of the prominent jobbers has answered these protests by pointing out that local dealers have no control over the price which the millers charge, but it is their practice, invariably, to follow the mill quotations, whether they advance or decline, so that no blame attaches to them for present prices. This merchant referred to an occurrence in 1898, when Leiter undertook to corner the wheat market, and his firm, in the slump at that time, lost over $1,000 on one brand of flour that was purchased at nearly the top price and sold as the market declined. He added that the present prices were fully warranted by the returns coming in from the harvest fields across the border and in our own northwest. Short crops in Europe have also assisted in strengthening the market.

Manitoba high grades of flour are now held at $6.15 to $6.25, while Ontario's rule from $5.20 to $5.45. Both roller and standard oatmeal have also advanced. Cornmeal is higher and cheese is now worth 13 to 13½ cents a pound.

All chocolates and cocoas have likewise advanced within the past week and owing to short crops of corn, the starch manufacturers have advanced their prices. Canned apples are 25 cents a dozen higher.

In the produce market, butter and eggs are reported scarce, and dealers say they will likely be higher. In the feed line, middlings and bran are dearer. Oats are also held for a higher figure, but pressed hay in car lots is somewhat cheaper.

A Hartland, Carleton Co., despatch quotes a prominent shipper as saying that from careful inquiries he is certain that the potato crop will prove quite up to the average. Some fields have been badly struck by rust, but generally the yield is not seriously affected. At present the fields are like big mud puddles, and if this wet condition continues, digging will be delayed and heavy loss from rot will result. From his own field, this shipper finds potatoes turning out 100 barrels to the acre. Eighty barrels is considered the average. The price is $1 for Irish Cobblers and eighty cents for Green Mountains, with a tendency toward still lower prices.

A local wholesale dealer, who returned recently from a trip through Nova Scotia, reports that the crop of fall and winter apples is very good, but the earlier varieties are not up to the standard. As the Ontario crop is said to be short this year, the growers in Nova Scotia should reap a benefit in better prices.

Application has been made by C. P. Harris, E. A. Harris, W. C. Harris, Geo. W. Harris, all of Moncton, and W. L. Harris, of Providence, R.I., for incorporation as the E. A. Harris Co., Ltd., doing a mercantile business in Moncton, with a capital of $10,000.

The buildings, machinery and entire plant of the F. B. Dunn Packing Company, near Fairville, have been offered for sale by public auction on September 28, in this city. An extensive pork packing business was carried on by this firm until a few years ago, when the plant was closed down, and it has not since been used.

Arthur De Forest, of Geo. S. De Forest & Sons, wholesale grocers, was operated on at the hospital about a week ago, for appendicitis. He is rapidly recovering and expects to be around again in a few days.

James Patton, manager of the local branch of the Ogilvie Milling Co., who has been ill at the private hospital for some weeks past, is improving and will probably be around again in a few days.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

During the past week the cheese market has ruled firm, and the high price mentioned last week, 12¾c, has at last been reached, some dealers quoting this figure for the best Ontario make. Last week's price for this grade was 12⅝c, at which figure there is still some quantity obtainable, Ontario make, though if the present advancing market continues this price will soon be of the past. Quotations are all high, the lowest price being 12½c, this for Quebecs, though there are some who might accept 12⅜c. Townships is quoted at from 12½c to 12⅝c.

These prices are very high in the estimation of English buyers, who are not coming forward very eagerly in consequence. They are still interested in their own make, and have not lately been taking up the Canadian cheese in their usual manner. One can see this by looking at the export figures week by week. In some cases the weekly exports have been half, or less, what they were for the corresponding week in 1906.

Receipts continue about the same as they have been for some time past, not at all large. Last week 87,334 boxes of cheese were received, against 81,402 boxes for the same week in 1906. It is a pleasure to note that the receipts for one week of the season at least surpass last year's figures. Total receipts this year amount to 1,496,910 boxes, as compared with 1,628,554 boxes for the same period last season.

One dealer estimated stocks in Montreal at 100,000 boxes less than a year ago, but, of course, it is difficult to estimate, since one cannot be sure of the holdings in private warehouses. In public stores stocks are certainly not heavy. In the opinion of some there are not more than one or two really heavy holders to-day.

Butter has been remarkably firm, and further advances have been scored since last report. Last Saturday the Cowansville market closed at 23⅝c to 24⅛c. Butter purchased at the latter price cannot very well be marketed in Montreal for at least another week, or perhaps two. It would have to be sold not a great deal under 25c, for buying at 24⅛c in Cowansville would mean 24½c laid down in Montreal. If the market does not advance quickly enough, it is likely that the stock will remain in store for three weeks or a month. The range of prices offered is: Townships, 23½c to 24c; Quebec, 23c to 23½c. In both instances buyers have to contend mainly with the higher figure.

Dairy butter is not plentiful, and good prices are received for anything that is offered. To-day the ruling prices are 19c to 20c, some asking more.

In certain sections of the trade there is talk of poor quality butter being offered for sale by a few dealers at the high prices now ruling. It seems this stock was purchased at a low price, and apparently, the holders are trying to take advantage of the good demand there is and the high prices, by offering these lots.

Last week 13,860 packages of butter were received, against 21,914 packages for the same week last year. The decrease in 1907, it will be seen, amounts to over 8,000 packages. Total receipts amount to 306,066 packages, against 176,221 packages in 1906.

It will be noticed that, according to Board of Trade figures, the make this year, as received in Montreal, has fallen short of last year's to the extent of 170,155 packages.

Exports of cheese to Europe from Montreal and Quebec, for the week ending September 15th, 1907, were 68,972; for the corresponding week last year, 61,377; for the same week in 1905, 50,125. Total shipments since May 1, 1907, have been 1,313,850.

Exports of butter to Europe from Montreal and Quebec were 5,098 for week ending Sept. 15, 1907; 12,156 for the corresponding week of last year, and 26,599 for the same week in 1905. Total butter exports since May 1, 1907, have been 62,682.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

Prices for live hogs are lower again this week, and if the causes which have contributed to produce the present state of affairs continue many more weeks, the packing industry in Canada will be popular only as a pleasant form of losing money. Certain it is that the majority of Canadian packing houses would have shut down long ago, if they could have afforded to do so. Labor, unfortunately, cannot be had for whistling.

Five dollars and ninety cents f.o.b. is the ruling offer this week. $6.15, fed and watered, and $6.40, loaded on cars, are also quoted by a leading house. But this is more than the majority are prepared to pay. A slight, but only temporary, relief is afforded by the somewhat decreased deliveries of Danish to the Old Country, on account of the harvest, but a few weeks will see the end of this, and there is nothing on the horizon at present to warrant a prophecy of anything but a return to the old conditions when the harvest is over.

Canadian farmers are not overstocked with salable hogs, despite the unreceptiveness of the packers. They have the hogs, but are not anxious to put into them high-priced grain, for which they can obtain a profitable value on the market. The amount of market-ready hogs does not, therefore, greatly exceed the number required by the packing houses. Receipts for last week would probably not exceed 17,000.

American shipments to the Old Country have been above normal, Danish have run about 31,000, and the English market is very weak in consequence. Fifty-six shillings is about the price quoted.

Lord Strathcona, Canadian High Commissioner in London, England, says, in his annual report, that:

"One of the largest firms in the trade in London consider there is a danger as far as the English markets are concerned of Canadian bacon losing its prestige, owing mainly to the declining quantity available for export, and they assert that it is imperative on the part of the Canadian farmer to devote more of his time to the hog business that he has done for the last two years. They add, 'It is undoubtedly one of the most profitable departments in farming. The hogs, as soon as they mature, can be sold for cash, and we have no doubt that if more attention were paid to this business we should see Canadian bacon again holding the place on English markets that it held two or three years back. If during the current year the quantity again decreases, we fear it will take many years of hard work to get the British retailer of provisions interested in the article.'

"A west of England firm in the trade writes that the quality has been good on the whole, but that greater care is required in curing, as there have been many cases of taint. While aware that the public demand is for mild cured bacon they contend that during the extreme heat of summer it is better to err on the side of safety than to ship the bacon too fresh."

The Journal of Commerce, reviewing last week's situation, says:

"Hog products have shown very little change, feature or activity the past week. Receipts of hogs have been moderate, but demand for products has been more so, and except for small purchases of lard for export, almost at a standstill. Packers have apparently been sellers of futures on any firm spots, and it is believed that the improved prospects of the corn crop have made them more bearish for the future. But there is no outside speculation to enable them to sell much and the home trade, as well as exporters, pursue their old hand-to-mouth policy of purchasing only for immediate wants. In beef products there has been a further advance in barreled beef of 50c on the higher grade, although the supply of cattle at the west of the lower grades has been more plentiful."

Persons addressing advertisers will kindly mention having seen their advertisement in The Canadian Grocer.

BUTTER—During the past week there has been a very sharp advance in the price of butter, owing to active local demand and a considerable decrease in the quantity procured. Prices paid in the country this week range from 24⅛c to 24½c, making a general advance of from 1c to 1½c since last quotations.

CHEESE—The cheese market is quiet. Prices in the country remain steady. Owing to the heavy rainfalls which have prevailed over the greater part of the country during the past week or two, fodder has improved, and an increase in the make is generally expected, shortly.

EGGS—The market for eggs is very firm. Current receipts show improvement in quality. There are very little surplus eggs to be put away in cold storage, and from outside enquiries a continued firm market is anticipated. Prices paid in the country are 18½c f.o.b.

PROVISIONS—Lard has stiffened up during the week, but the advance is not more than ¼c with most houses. The raise is due probably to increased demand and some shortage in stocks. Business, as a whole, has been slow, with a fair inquiry for smoked meats and a more active movement in pork, consequent upon the opening of the lumber camps and the cooler weather generally.

LOOK OUT FOR HIM.

Some one has been going through the Ottawa valley and working up towards the Cobalt representing himself to be a traveler for S. H. Ewing & Sons, spice manufacturers, Montreal, and has ingratiated himself with hotel keepers, and others, from whom he is in the habit of borrowing money. Ewing & Sons wish it understood that their sole representative in this district is W. M. Fielding.

TRADE NOTES.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Flour Prices Advancing Steadily in Sympathy With Wheat—Cereals in Strong Demand—A Successsful Grocer's Comments on Confectionery.

Following the rising wheat prices, flour has advanced steadily, a rise of from 15c to 25c in all lines of both Manitoba and winter wheat having taken place within the last week. Cereals also are very strong, and advancing steadily. Rolled oats went up 20c on Monday last, and this advance is almost certain to be duplicated within the next few days. The demand in all oat products is reported excellent, and millers are well stocked up on orders for future delivery.

Export inquiry for flour is good, but, owing to the heavy local demand, no concessions are being made by Canadian dealers, and English buyers have to meet our prices if they want the goods.

The west's total crop is estimated at a hundred and ninety million bushels. This includes, however, wheat, oats, barley and flax. Wheat alone is estimated at 80,000,000 to 85,000,000 bushels; oats, at 87,500,000; barley, 18,500,000, and flax, 1,300,000. This estimate was given out by W. J. Bettingen, the retiring president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Mr. Bettingen said also that the monetary value of the crop would probably be greater than that of any former harvest. Another interesting comparison made by Mr. Bettingen was that of wheat acreage. In 1905 the total area sown to wheat in Western Canada was, as nearly as can be estimated, 5,910,000 acres. In 1906 it had grown to 7,830,000 acres, an increase of about 23 per cent. in one year. This year, from various causes, the increase will not be so remarkable, but, taking into consideration the unusual natural conditions prevailing, it will be equally satisfactory with that of 1905 over 1906.

Confectionery.

A retail grocer, who has made a success of his business, and has lately added a large addition to his store, said the other day, with reference to profitable side lines: "There is nothing to beat confectionery. Nothing shows such good returns with so little expenditure of trouble and time. Confectionery attracts to a man's store custom which otherwise he would never see; children bring their parents, for one thing. Every grocer should make a point of being attentive and polite to the wants of children, no matter whether they come in for a cent stick of candy or an expensive box of bonbons. It all comes back to him in the long run, and it all pays."

FLOUR—Prices have advanced from 15c to 25c during the past week. This is due to the high price of wheat, which is itself attributable to conflicting rumors of frost-damaged crops, and the late harvest. Millers anticipate a further advance very shortly.

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

THE LATE WILLIAM LEVACK.

By the death of William Levack, of Toronto, to which reference was made in last week's issue of The Grocer, one of the most capable men in the provision business in Canada has been removed. That he was not an immensely rich man, one of the rich men of America, was due at once to his great integrity and extreme generosity. He cared little for money itself, but more for the achievements of greater success, which money made possible. He was the largest butcher and wholesale dealer in meats in the country. He came to Canada from the north of Scotland, where his ancestors had been butchers for many generations. From them he inherited loyalty and honesty of purpose. He never forgot a favor and he was the soul of honor. When he first began business, Edward Leadley, a large buyer of hides and skins, assisted him with advice and possibly money. In a few years, when he began to attract attention by the rapid growth of his business, the other buyers tried to get part of his trade in these by-products. They offered him more money than he was getting from Leadley. One of them came from the same town in Scotland, and tried that influence, potent at other times, with Mr. Levack, but he never swerved in his loyalty to his early friend.

He was an extremely hard worker. For over thirty years he had put in 16 to 18 hours out of the 24. He was fortunate in having a wife who was his business partner, as well as his constant companion. Between them, until recent years, they did all the bookkeeping and financing of the concern. The Hon. Mr. Crawford, M.P.P., remarked to The Grocer that he had never known a more ideally devoted couple. The great esteem in which he was held was shown by the large and representative attendance at the funeral last week, and the unusually large number of floral offerings.

By no body of men was he held in greater esteem than by the newspapermen of Toronto, who in the last twenty-five years have reported the live stock markets. It is very much to the interests of both buyers and sellers to manipulate prices to suit their own ends. Nearly every quotation has to be verified several times before being published. In the late Mr. Levack's case at no time were the prices given by him questioned.

CASE WILL BE RESUMED.

Wholesale Grocers Will Stand Trial in October.

Officers of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild have been notified that their case will come up for hearing at the Fall Assizes in Hamilton, which open next month.

It will be recalled that the Guild case was given a preliminary hearing in Hamilton about a year and a half ago, before Magistrate Jelfs, and the case was sent by him to the higher court.

Col. Davidson, of Toronto, then president of the Guild, and about six other wholesale grocers, were charged with unlawfully enhancing prices. The case was of the greatest interest to the grocery trade throughout the Dominion, and was closely followed.

The members of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild endeavored to have the Dominion Government go on with the case in the Fall Assizes of 1906, but were not successful.

Many thought that the case had been dropped entirely in consequence of this, but now it would seem that the matter will be pushed to a final stage and those charged with the offence will stand a trial, the outcome of which will, at least, be definite, whichever way the verdict goes.

A CHANGE OF NAME.

The name of the Codville, Georgeson Co., Ltd., has been changed to "The Codville Company, Limited." This company is one of the largest of and has a connection as extensive as any firm in the west. Modern methods were introduced from the outset, with the result that the company now possesses the most up-to-date facilities for the conduct of its business.

The G. L. Murphy Co., wholesale grocers, of Sydney, Nova Scotia, has been formed into a limited company, with a capital stock of $60,000.

Fish Scarce in Both Provinces—Plums and Pears in Unexpectedly Liberal Supply—Speculators in These Lines Have Lost Heavily.

Montreal, being threatened with a fish famine, sent buyers to Toronto last week, but they could not secure more than a car and a half, most of which was composed of trout and whitefish. However, this relieved the situation temporarily, and their own sources of supply are now better able to take care of the market. In Toronto finnan haddie is more plentiful than it has been for some time past, but fish all round have been unusually scarce this year and at no time has the supply been altogether satisfactory. Trout and whitefish, of which the Toronto market takes an extraordinary amount, have been growing less and less each year, and will probably become a comparative luxury within the next ten years.

The first shipment of Mexican oranges are to arrive here about the 10th of November, about the same date as the first expected arrival of the new lemons. Up to Christmas there is a great demand for these oranges, and Toronto takes probably 200 or 300 cars every season. This year they are likely to hold the centre of the stage, so to speak, as the Jamaica oranges, with which they had to compete last season, are reported to be short.

Plums, pears and peaches have been arriving from all quarters in unexpected profusion, and it looks now as though the foretellers of evil, with regard to the plum crop especially, will have to revise their prophecies. Peaches, apparently, are short, to a considerable extent, but pears are flooding the market at a great rate, and a big drop in price is the consequence. Plums dropped 30 cents last Friday and there is some discussion among the speculators who have paid 60c to 65c f.o.b. country points, and found their fruit worth only about 40c on arrival. They feel vexed and are not above saying so. But it is not the jobbers' fault, who do not create the market, but have to accept it as they find it.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Canadian fruits are now being quoted, and Californian varieties are being forced into second place. The arrival of home-grown lines has sent down the price of California goods. In the latter there has been a severe decline in peaches and plums, as will be noticed by the quotations. Dealers report a very good business in Canadian varieties, orders coming in from most all districts. Bananas are easier, $2 buying the best there is. The supply is a little more plentiful.

VEGETABLES—Corn is higher this week, receipts being smaller, and onions are firmer. Beyond these there are no changes in the vegetable quotations to record this week. Business is reported by dealers as being satisfactory for the tail-end of the season. It will not be long now before Canadian vegetables will be finished, and then the imported truck will have its season. Already there is a noticeable falling off in the receipts of a great many lines, and this will be more marked as the season advances.

FISH—Several changes will be noticed in the list this week. Haddock, steak cod, brook trout and market cod are a few of the lines that have declined. There are more market cod arriving this week, though haddock are still scarce. Stormy weather has resulted in a scarcity of halibut for the time being. Trout and whitefish will now be coming in more plentifully. Haddies are scarce and a full supply is not looked for before the end of the month.

FRUITS—Unexpected sources of supply have developed in plums and pears, which have slumped in consequence. No one is giving out any estimates, not under their own names, anyway. CANADIAN APPLES IN THE ENGLISH MARKET

By the Canadian High Commissioner.

There has been a general complaint regarding the smallness of fruit received during the past season, and the quality generally does not appear to have been as good as usual. Several importers have pointed out that a quantity of rather inferior stock was shipped, and the advisability of packing No. 3 grade has been questioned by them, the opinion being that apples of that quality should not be put into packages for general use, but should be consumed for cider-making or other purposes

On the other hand, some commendatory letters have been received regarding the packing of fruit suitable for the markets in the United Kingdom, the result having been that buyers here have more confidence in purchasing when they know that a brand is really "genuine packed."

Many consignments appear to have deteriorated through delay in forwarding, owing, it is alleged, to scarcity of cars on the other side, and losses were consequently made through the fruit having been frozen, it is stated, while en route. This, however, is a matter which may naturally be expected to right itself.

The work of the fruit inspection officers in Canada appears to be giving great satisfaction to importers on this side, from the fact that persons attending sales are gaining confidence in the inspection. In instances where one barrel out of every twenty is turned out for examination by the importers' customers, it can readily be understood that the importing firms are in a good position to judge if the inspection work has been satisfactorily carried on, and I have received most satisfactory and eulogistic testimony to the effectiveness of the inspection from reliable sources.

A well-known firm of importers in the west of England have intimated to me that there is room for a considerable increase in shipments of apples to their market. Great quantities of fruit have to be brought there coastwise or by rail from Liverpool, in spite of the fact that there is a regular line of steamers between Bristol and Canada. This firm favor the case as campared with the barrel, as they claim that waste and damage are caused by the heavy weight of fruit in the barrels. They consider that any extra cost of packing the fruit in cases would be more than repaid shippers by the better prices obtainable for fruit in sound condition. It is suggested that the better varieties should be paper-wrapped, in the same manner as fruit from Tasmania. My correspondents say that there is an increasing disinclination among the growers in Canada to send fruit on consignment, and, with a few exceptions, all seem to desire to sell outright. Owing to the great risk entailed in handling apples, buyers on this side hesitate to purchase and from the condition of some arrivals there has been cause for that feeling.

A Liverpool paper, in giving for the benefit of its readers a summary of the provisions of the Canadian Fruit Marks Act, points out that if the regulations are observed, apples from Canada will earn a reputation for guaranteed uniformity which should ensure their preference on this side of the Atlantic. It is added that the inspectors appointed to see that the law is obeyed discharge their duties with thoroughness and care. Attention, however, is drawn to certain infractions on the part of shippers, one case being where the marks on barrels were altered, thereby incurring loss to the firm when the apples reached Liverpool. It is further stated that a common method of improper packing is to "face" the top and even the bottom of a barrel with good, attractive-looking fruit and to put bad stuff in the middle, one firm who ship to Liverpool having been convicted six times in twelve months and fined for violation of the regulations. The journal points out that if the Act is amended it would be well to so increase the penalties that the fraudulent trader would in no case find it to his advantage to break the law and pay the fine, rather than adhere to the standard. It is further stated that "Under present conditions, the most effective deterrent would be the publication, both in Canada and in this country, of the names of firms who violate the Act. The importer and buyers would then know, at least, which firms not to patronize. The overwhelming majority of Canadian exporters to this country are 'square' dealers, but their fruit is subjected to the same form of rigid inspection because of the acts of evildoers. Still, their own reputation, coupled with the guarantee of the Government, should establish for them a name in the markets of the world likely to increase the volume of their business."

SHORT COCOANUT CROP.

The scarcity of cocoanuts this season is causing some concern. The market is in a very unsettled condition, and it is stated that owing to drought in the West Indies, cocoanuts are not maturing and in consequence there will only be an amount equal to about half of last year's crop harvested. Last year there was also a scarcity, so that future conditions can be pretty well estimated by this comparison. Already they have advanced materially in price and still further increases would not be at all surprising.

The death occurred on September 6th of Wilson Tibbo, of Grand Bank, Newfoundland. Mr. Tibbo was bathing in the Garnish river, and being suddenly seized with cramps, was drowned before help could reach him. He was a young business man of great promise, and his loss will deeply affect a wide circle of friends. For some time he had been managing the general store business of Tibbo & Son, at Grand Bank, and his honesty, ability and straightforward character had earned for him the affection and regard of everyone with whom he had come in contact.

THE ETHICS OF RETAILING

An address read before the Seventh Annual Convention of the Retail Grocers of New York State.

By Joseph A. Weis.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen :

The honor of addressing a grocers' convention is a pleasure I would not willingly wish to forego ; but I want prohibition when given a choice of subject upon which to speak.

When I realized I had to choose my own subject I found myself more embarrassed than the young lady who sat beside the deaf, old gentleman at dinner one evening.

"Do you care for bananas ?" asked the young lady, as some of you who have heard the story, may recall.

"Umm?" questioned the old fellow, perplexed and bending his few grey hairs towards the golden glitter of his engaging neighbor.

"Do you care for bananas ?" again asked the young lady, making every effort to be as pleasant as might be permitted when deaf old age and sprightly youth are coupled.

The old fellow looked confused ; he blushed, paused, and then seemed to consider. Evidently he formed a low estimation of the conversational abilities and charms of modesty of the young women of the generation, for he growled, reprovingly :

"No, I never use 'em ; I prefer the old-fashioned night shirt."

Gentlemen, do not mistake me. When I say that grocers have taken to the new fashion in night attire, and given up the old-fashioned night shirt, I merely speak figuratively ; and I do not wish for one moment to be thought to insinuate that there is not at least one reputable and up-to-date man in this audience who did not come to this convention without bringing the time-worn garment in his grip.

But if some of us have not changed our night attire, the times have changed, and with them our trade has changed, too. Its conduct cannot any longer be considered a source of humor to show up the pettiness of dealers and the insincerity of trade marks. The old sharp practices simply appear to you and me as prehistoric tricks that would ruin any decent establishment to-day. We think of them as ludicrous, and look for them only in novels with love scenes laid in country stores where codfish tails are said to stick out of kerosene cans.

However, one may speak of the common things observed in life without being laid open to the charge of being a theoretical impressionist or an impossible fool. The faculty of observation is needful for more than testing eggs. We might learn to observe details in our own stores, our own methods, our own relations in the trade ; for perhaps we overlook them while they may appear as obvious faults to our customers.

My duty, then, is to record a few plain facts observed by the wayside by a plain grocery man who has walked in his trade for more than sixteen years. We can deal with common matter coming, commonly, as matters of course, into the lives of us all, but which if not met with underlying sound principles and firm handling will soon break a man's record and help confirm evil opinions of our trade, as one rotten apple contaminates a barrelful of good fruit.

Honesty Keeps Trade.

Honesty is still the best policy ; but we have heard that so often that it has become almost too familiar. The truism is always being bawled from housetops ; but we forget that the money lies in the practice of honesty. In the singular workings of commerce it has come to be demanded to-day more than almost ever before. You find that in many phases—in the rebate contests and railroad affairs, in the needs of Wall Street, in political investigations and the purer note struck in civic life. Honesty is wanted, first and last. It makes a man's business. It keeps trade, which is what counts.

Redress for the wronged customer is readily obtained by a change in dealing; wrongs in the trade are not so easily righted. And if for that reason alone they must be the more strictly guarded against. We'll ask ourselves a few plain questions that, most of us will admit, will suggest ill-practices that only underlying principles of honesty will redress.

Should we sell goods underpriced?

Is to sell for 40 cents which is bought for 50 any more honest to the trade than to tax the same customer 50 cents for 35-cent tea?

Again, is being afraid to say "No" to a customer who will not pay regularly, weekly or monthly, honest to the trade? Is it good business? Did any one ever know a case where it paid? The habit is due either to carelessness or fear; and either is equally bad.

Only a few days ago a grocer in my own city complained to me that he had more than seven hundred dollars outstanding. I have less than three hundred dollars, but he has been in business only a year. I have been in business sixteen years. The moral is obvious. I am afraid I have not much sympathy for the other fellow. I fail to see either the honesty or the fairness in the habit of a grocer giving credit to customers he knows in his heart are already getting credit from and owing money to another grocer. I grant there may be individual cases warranted by extenuating circumstances, but now we are dealing with ethics that govern retailers' relations.

Insistance upon payment of bills with regularity gives the retailer a test that loses him only bad customers. Mind you, experience must have taught many of us that the essential is to have a right understanding from the outset. Let the customer realize that we will do business with him as he will with us. We have our bills to meet; let us meet them when they come due. To tell a customer so gives the retailer an enormous "pull," for decency is still uppermost in every customer's mind, unless they have been perverted by getting credit too readily from too many men in the trade. You see the point. Where can a customer get groceries if any grocer will not supply her when he knows she is already owing money to a brother grocer? There is the rub. Grocers overcome the defect by neighborliness. Introduce a little more Pinkertonism and do a little less splurging. Pass along the warning, then there need be fewer bad debts. While we all understand the undesirableness of undue familiarity, we cannot be indifferent to this value of friendliness. It is a quality that can well be cultivated in the trade.

Mind Your Own Business.

Another thing. We blame department stores for meddlingly dipping into all sorts of business, but some grocers want to sell clocks, antiques, beds, green stamps and every old thing. Are we not trying to pull out the mote in our brother's eye while there is still a beam in our own. Let the grocery man stick to groceries; then we will have the right to say what we like to others. Every grocer who gives trading stamps eventually drives a customer to a tea store and helps damage our trade as a whole. He is not honest either in his selling or his wares. Perhaps we should not blame a man who finds he cannot thrive on straight dealing, for going into the fandangle business, but he ought to know that the best success to-day is cornered in the straight goods business. The chance or "catchy" customer never yet made a man's business. Fortune only comes with the customer who keeps coming, and in my experience customers who keep coming are those who find they get groceries worth having. The antique, embossed, Turkish shield, made of Pittsburg iron, that decorates the parlor wall will scarcely compensate your customer's husband for the indigestion he suffered through eating the inferior qualities that went with the advertised ancient piece of furniture.

These matters are as well known to each of us as the numbers on our doors. Only, like our latch keys some night, they do not always seem to fit when we want them. Some of us might make a little more if we traded Sundays, but then most of us wish to be reputable. Personally, I do not want ever to have a Sunday customer, for as sure as I do I know I shall be getting paid money that should have gone to a brother grocer the evening before.

These common places may be styled the "Ethics of Retailing" without doing hurt to any one, but, bearing them in mind cannot help benefitting ourselves and improving our trade.

Gentlemen, I cannot finish without making one request, but I first have to thank you for your very gracious hearing of those old-time saws for present day reflection. I must implore you to bear witness that while I may have made suggestions that should accord with changing times and ideas, I have not divulged the great trade secret and told whether the grocers attending this convention have brought with them their pajamas or their night shirts.

UNITED FRUIT COMPANY MAY CONTROL BANANAS

In view of the recent developments in the banana market in Canada, the following information, which comes from New York, is both timely and interesting:

"The situation in the banana trade just now is the most interesting that has developed in years, and, from present indications, it would seem that if the many so-called independent companies are to preserve their status and cut any figure in the trade in future they must make a hard fight.

"Within the past week, according to cable information, there has been an unheard-of jump in the prices of bananas offered to West Indian and Central American planters, who are not under contract to any particular purchaser, but who have found a market through connections independent of the fruit combine, which is generally regarded as the United Fruit Company.

"When £6 5s sterling was offered for 100 payable bunches of bananas in Jamaica it was accepted as a recognition of the value of the fruit, based on the returns from cargoes sold in the United States, which are said to have been at prices that netted gains heretofore unknown. It is said that the summer months have been a golden epoch in the sale of bananas, notwithstanding the season was for domestic fruits that took natural precedence over bananas. Within the last week £12 was offered in Jamaica for 100 payable bunches, and suddenly the price went up to £25 for 100, which would make the cost on board more than $1 a bunch. To this must be added the cost of transportation, and the selling price at any port is expected to be less than cost.

"As the independent concerns cannot meet this cost, they are expected to withdraw from the business and leave the field to the greater factor in the business. Whether they will see fit to retire or put up a fight remains to be seen.

"Just what amount of money is invested in the independent trade cannot be definitely arrived at, for the very simple reason that there is a question as to the companies which are independent and those affiliated with the United Fruit Company. In addition to the major interest, there are operating at the present time the Atlantic Fruit Company, representing the di Giorgio interests; the Cuneo Importing Company, the Cuba Planters' Company, and the Lanasa & Goffe Fruit Company, of Baltimore, to say nothing of a dozen or so little concerns without transportation facilities. All but the last named are under suspicion of having certain agreements with the United, although no actual proof to that effect has ever been brought forward.

"Discussing the situation yesterday a fruit jobber with headquarters in this city and extensive connections in the west said:

" 'It looks very much to me as though the United Fruit Company is engaged in an effort to smoke out the independents and force them to show just what their resources are. Circumstances are all in favor of the big concern—call it a trust if you please—owing to the long drouth in Jamaica and the hurricanes and earthquakes which have devasted other portions of the banana producing territories.

" 'Whether or not the United is deliberately keeping down the price of bananas to the jobber is a question, but with production limited and consumption at the highest point ever reached, I fail to see how any but a concern with millions behind it can survive. As a matter of fact, the fruit is being sold throughout the United States at a price which all experts unite in declaring below the actual value. It is well known that the deciduous fruit crops in this country have been short, and with increased consumption of bananas here and abroad, the banana grower is in a position to fix his own price. Therefore, why should not the United Fruit Company take advantage of the situation to force the independents out of the field?

" 'Some time ago it was said that there were no independents of any consequence left, but recent developments and activities have shown that there are at least two or three Richmonds in the field. Possibly the United has decided that it will be cheaper to force them out by means of low prices than to buy them out.'

"The United Fruit Company all told has ninety-two vessels in the fruit trade, while all other companies, independent and otherwise, have only about twenty."

PROPER BOOKKEEPING OR JAIL

Because he failed through keeping no books, The Canadian Merchants Protective Association have entered proceedings against a man.

The law says:

"Any man who fails and who has not for five years before his failure kept proper books shall be liable to a fine of $800.00 and one year's imprisonment."

It is cheaper to keep proper books than to pay a fine of $800.00 and go to jail for a year, isn't it?

BRADSTREET'S

Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World
Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

A LONG STORY IN FEW WORDS

Reliable — TRURO QUALITY BRAND — Preferable

Saleable — TRURO QUALITY BRAND — Profitable

Truro Condensed Milk Co., Limited
TRURO, N.S.

Reputation and Money

¶ A grocer's reputation depends to a large extent upon the brand of canned goods he handles. There is absolutely no doubt that every woman who is served with canned fruits and vegetables of inferior quality blames it on the grocer—not on the canning factory.

¶ It is an equally indisputable fact that every woman who is served by her grocer with Old Homestead Brand of canned fruits and vegetables, gives the credit of their incomparable goodness and quality to the grocer.

¶ Therefore the grocer who shows most evidence of prosperity is he upon whose shelves are to be seen the labels of Old Homestead Brand. It is the brand which never goes bad on your shelves waiting to be sold. It is the brand which sells the quickest, and which is never brought back by a dissatisfied customer.

OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND

of Canned Fruits and Vegetables is put up in a factory which is equipped with every scientific and sanitary appliance to insure absolute cleanliness. Every particle of fruit and vegetable used is certified by expert inspectors to be absolutely free from taint or over-ripeness. Nothing but perfectly sound, luscious fruits and vegetables ever get into an Old Homestead Can.

And the Margin of Profit is just Right.

But they DO save you not cents, but DOLLARS, so many dollars that, as a business proposition, you should have them, whether you can afford to do without them or not. Thousands of progressive merchants are using them.

How They Work:

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him $10; no trouble. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on for all his purchases until the book is used up. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors and no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best, BECAUSE THEY ARE. Let us send you cancelled sample, free.

WANTED

A Capable Managing-Editor

THE CANADIAN GROCER wants a Managing-Editor. It wants a thoroughly capable man—a man who is live, full of up-to-date ideas and one who understands the newspaper business from the riglet box to the editorial chair. Furthermore, it wants a man who is thoroughly conversant with the commercial situation in Canada.

We realize that this is a big want. Not every one can fill the bill, but we're willing to pay at the outset $2,500 a year to the man who can do so. The right man can eventually make his place worth $5,000.

If you think you are this man we want to hear from you, with your experience and qualifications—by letter only.

This appointment may be considered one of the prizes in Canadian Journalism. THE CANADIAN GROCER has for many years been recognized as the authority on the Foodstuff Trade, and its reports have been accepted as final by the Courts of Law, Arbitrations and by official statisticians. The Managing-Editor will be expected to still further strengthen the position of the paper in this respect.

The Niagara Canneries

The Grocer's Representative, who Visited the Factories in This District Last Week, Tells of Conditions as He Found Them—General Conditions in the Factories Are Good and Methods Strive Toward Cleanliness—The Matter of Housing Employes a Difficult One—Conditions Regarding This Not So Satisfactory.

"I'm not going to eat any more canned peaches," said a gentleman prominent in Toronto business circles, the other evening, "until this business about questionable conditions in the Niagara canneries is cleared up." His opinion may be considered typical of the feeling of that portion of the general public who are entirely unacquainted with the conditions under which the Canadian fruit packing industry is carried on and who takes things on trust, as it were. To such people, the report of Dr. Hodgett's, Provincial Health Officer, in regard to unsanitary conditions in the factories of the Niagara district, which has, within the last fortnight, been circulated pretty widely through Canada, and which has been referred to in The Grocer in the last two issues, is alarming. This is only natural. The Niagara district is generally regarded as the premier fruit section of Canada, and the amount of fruit grown and canned in the country extending from Hamilton to Niagara is, without doubt, considerably larger than the output from any other section of the Dominion. If questionable conditions were prevalent in the canneries of this district, were they not likely to be present elsewhere? The public had a right to be alarmed.

Recognizing the seriousness of the situation in regard to the canning industry of Ontario, and seeing that the matter might spread not only throughout Canada, but also to our markets in Great Britain and Europe and reflect injuriously on Canadian export, The Grocer last week sent a representative to the district under discussion. His report, which appears herewith, tells of conditions as he found them.

Some Significant Facts.

Two or three facts which bear importantly on the matter should be mentioned at the outset.

Dr. Hodgett's report was not based, as many seemed to think, on any visit made this year. His visit was made last fall and the report written shortly afterward, but through delay in passing the House and further delay in passing through the printer's hands, it was not issued until recently, when it was embodied in the Sanitary Journal for 1906. The report, then, has no direct bearing on conditions as they exist this year.

Again, Dr. Hodgett's told The Grocer representative that he had visited only the canneries in St. Catharines. Thus, his report, including the Niagara district, is based on conditions found in one town only. There are fourteen canneries in the Niagara district, only five of which are in St. Catharines. Furthermore, one of the factories which Dr. Hodgett's visited and which local parties admit to have been in the least desirable condition, is entirely closed this year.

Alter all, the public need not be much alarmed. The general conclusion one comes to after a visit to these canneries is that the food put up there is just as pure and just as sanitary methods are in force in its preparation as in a first-class hotel or restaurant kitchen. With the factories, on the whole, not much fault can be found. Most of them, considering the character of the work done, are in surprisingly clean condition. They show evidence of frequent flushings and scrubbings, and it seems that a good deal of trouble is being taken to keep them in a conditions compatible with the industry.

SOME "DON'TS" FOR CANNED GOODS PACKERS.

A wholesale grocer who feels that he has a few kicks coming recommends the following "don'ts" for the consideration of canners:

"1. Packing canned goods in crates instead of in cases. But little is saved and when the goods are shipped by local freight in less than carload lots, the classification is raised, a higher rate charged, and the jobber is charged with it.

"2. Putting canned goods in miserably thin and poor boxes, so that they sometimes arrive almost in bulk, because the boxes are so cheap and poor that they will not hold together.

"3. Putting the labels on their goods as if they had been thrown at the cans. Goods should go out neatly and tastefully labeled.

"4. They should see that cases are all properly stenciled and numbered as requested by buyers and the different grades, brands bill and bill of lading, so that and labels carefully specified on the they can be properly unloaded, carted and handled. The most annoying thing a packer can be guilty of is to mail a bill, for say, '2,000 cases of tomatoes,' without further information, except the price and extension of amount.

"5. A packer should never try to mix with new, bright goods a lot of rusted cans and cans with spoiled labels, trying to work them off that way. It would be far better to set the rusty cans aside and have them aluminum-lacquered or scoured and then sold, for they, in all probability, will cause a rejection of the entire lot and great expense."

Specially Built Factories.

With only two or three exceptions, each of the factories was built especially for the canning business. Thirteen of them are provided with lateral floor troughs which, with more or less fall, empty into sewers or refuse tanks. The refuse and sweepings are flushed into these and thereby carried off. Of the three factories not so equipped, two seem to accomplish the same result by other methods, and are, perhaps, as clean as any of the others. The writer was told in almost every factory that the floors were flushed at least twice a day and were scrubbed weekly. One manager even affirmed that his factory was flushed three times daily, morning, noon and night. This seemed rather too good to be true to the newspaper man, and he stole back suddenly and quietly at noon hour, some time after he had said "good-bye," with the purpose of verifying his suspicions. He was pleasantly surprised to find a hose going and evidence of a general clean up. With plums and peaches, all this floor-cleaning is, of course, scarcely necessary, but when tomatoes are being peeled by the thousands of bushels, it can be imagined that it is required.

Factory methods, also, appear in most cases to be satisfactory and an attempt seems to have been made from reasons of economy, as well as cleanliness, to avoid handling the fruit as far as possible. Plums, for instance, are not touched by hand, except in the process of picking over. Tomatoes, pears and peaches, after they have been peeled by hand, are mechanically fed into the cans, which are then sealed and the fruit cooked, without being handled. Several of the factories, indeed, have installed machines for peeling peaches, so that in these places, the fruit is not touched by hand after it leaves the orchard. In every case the fruit, whatever its nature is thoroughly washed by an effective machine before being used.

Good Quality Fruit.

Having heard rumors of rotten and over-ripe fruit being handled in these canneries, the writer was particularly careful to inspect the quality of the raw article. Without exception, the fruit which was packed in cans was of good quality. Indeed, the packers seem to insist on this, for in all the factories, special employes, usually men, in number about one to every twenty women employed in peeling and sorting, carired on a sort of inspection as the peel fruit passed round the table. This fact is worthy of more consideration when it is known that just at the time the writer made his visits most of these factories were overloaded with plums and tomatoes, as a result of unexpected arrivals, and that a considerable percentage of this was over-ripe and had to be thrown away. Most of the factories were running night shifts, making a working day of from twelve to sixteen hours.

The Canner's Difficulties.

Just here a little story may be told concerning the cupidity of some of the fruit farmers of the district and incidentally illustrating one of the difficulties the canner has to contend with. One of these factory managers, when a shortage in plums was anticipated, contracted with several of the farmers in his vicinity for their whole crop at 50 cents per basket. When the plum crop suddenly materialized beyond expectations the price of the fruit dropped to half of this and a few of these worthy yeomen, not content with flooding the unfortunate manager with their own bumper crop quietly bought large supplies from their neighbors at a much lower price than their contract and sold them again at contract price.

One Questionable Feature.

It was remarked above that no bad or rotten fruit went into the cans. That does not, however, entirely dispose of the matter, and just here may be cited one condition which seems questionable. That is, the use of rotten and over-ripe tomatoes along with the peelings in the securing of what the canners call "tomato pulp" for the manufacture of low-grade catsup. Six only, out of the ten or twelve factories which handle tomatoes, utilize the refuse for this purpose. The others dispose of it at once. The process of "pulp" manufacture is substantially as follows: The tomato peelings, and as mentioned before, the over-ripe and rotten fruit, are dumped promiscuously into a machine, a "pulper," which removes any substance which could harm food value and incidentally, it seems to us, a good deal which is objectionable as such, and discards the dry skin. The "pulp" is run off from a tank under the machine into barrels to be subsequently transformed into catsup. One or two of the mangers tried to insist that some sort of a selection was made and that the bad fruit was thrown out, but the matter was too obvious to be passed off in this way. Other managers frankly admitted the existence of this questionable process. The only redeeming feature about the matter, if it is such, is that this tomato "pulp" is only made into catsup of the lowest grade. It is sterilized, it is true, going through a lengthy process before being bottled or canned, but this does not seem to us to remove the objection.

Every factory in the district was supplied with conveniences for washing, such as sinks, washbasins, towels, etc., and everywhere there was a plentiful supply of water. The towels gave evidence of frequent changing, in some cases daily, in others less frequently, but in no case was there more than one towel to twenty employes, and the average was less favorable than this. Two or three of the factories had notices in a prominent place instructing employes to wash before beginning work. Taken altogether, the writer would criticize this equipment as scarcely adequate.

The Labor Problem.

The canner in the Niagara district has no problem which troubles him more than that of labor. The season in these factories is usually from June till December, though one is open all winter and three or four close in November. To secure local labor for this season is almost impossible, particularly in the Niagara district, where the women who might otherwise be secured are engaged in the orchards in fruit picking, and in other seasonable occupations. To solve the difficulty, the managers of most of the factories bring in Pollock and Italian women, and a few men, from across the line, most of them coming from the east side of Buffalo. To house these people during the canning season the companies have erected buildings of a more or less temporary nature, and it is upon conditions arising from this system of housing that Dr Hodgett's report, in particular, twelt. Matters in connection therewith are certainly not ideal, but there appears to have been very considerable improvement since last year. At three of the factories, for instance, new houses have been erected at a cost of from $3,000 to $5,000, with a view to bettering conditions and at others very material and evident improvements have been made. In these new houses, which, by the way, were erected by the Beamsville Canning and Preserving Company, at the L. Schenck factory in St. Catharines, and at the Lowrey factory, in St. David's, conditions are very fair, and not much fault can be found. In the other houses conditions are not quite so pleasant. The writer did not find these houses filthy, as Dr. Hodgetts reported. They were, with the exception of one or two cases, fairly clean, some of them surprisingly so. The only way to deal with the matter satisfactory seems to be to take each case in detail. The two Hamilton factories do not house their employes, and, of course, cannot be included under this head, though it is only fair to say that the writer found the least pleasing features regarding factory cleanliness and an evidently lower class of help in one of these, the Simcoe factory, than in any other in the district.

Conditions of Housing.

At Beamsville the company has two houses, one a converted farm house for the housing of the English-speaking labor, in which, by the way, conditions are absolutely unquestionable, and a large, new concrete house, of three stories, divided into two sections, for the accommodation of their Italian and Pollock women. In this house only four women are quartered in each of the rooms, which are of good size, and other large rooms for cooking, eating and washing are provided downstairs. The rooms were clean and the bedding, which is provided mainly by the company, was passably clean.

The Grimsby Canning Company employ, beside some local help, Pollock women and a few men and boys. These people are housed in a row of frame houses behind the factory, these houses being provided with kitchen and living room downstairs, with sleeping rooms above. One woman is employed to look after the premises, which, on the whole, were surprisingly clean, though the bedding in one or two rooms, while not exactly filthy, was questionable.

In the St. Catharines factories vigorous attempts appear to have been made to provide cleanliness. The most unpleasant feature here is overcrowding.

At the Simcoe factory a row of two-room houses are provided. A women is employed specially to look after these and they were particularly clean. The management has provided sanitary wash basins and even a modern steel clad bath tub. Wash tubs are much in evidence, and it is an obvious fact, that the women here are clean. Even a row of clothes lines are provided. Asked if these people washed regularly, Mr. Kidder, the jovial manager, grew vehement. "Wash!" he said. "There're always washing. They cover my crates and my factory roof and all the fences with their drying clothes." Conditions inside bore this evidence out. The only objection one can make to conditions here is the fact of overcrowding. The houses are fourteen feet square. In these eight women pass their leisure time, eating in the room below and sleeping above. It is true the rooms are fairly well ventilated and the beds, now, by the way, and bedding are quite clean, but it seems rather out of the way for eight humans to sleep in a fourteen-foot space.

At the Pure Food factory Italian families are employed, almost exclusively. These, men, women and children, are housed in a row of one-storey buildings with living room in the centre and sleeping rooms, equipped with double decked bunks. The mattresses and bedding were in very fair condition. Here a man, a young Italian, has special charge of the rooms.

Ideal Housing.

At the L. M. Schenck factory, as was noted above, a new home for the operatives has been erected during the year. This is an excellent building, roomy, airy and clean, with kitchen, dining and living rooms, dormitories and sleeping rooms above. To show to what lengths the manager has gone in this case to provide proper accommodation, it may be mentioned that each family, or four women together, are supplied with a washtub, city water is piped into the building and steel-clad sinks are being installed. Gas stoves are provided for cooking, and the lighting is by gas jets fitted with Auer mantles. There are even curtains on the windows. The bedrooms are supplied with white enamel bedsteads, and the bedding and mattresses were scrupulously clean. A large room below has been left unfurnished, and the employes use this as a sort of dancing and concert room. Being Italians, they are exceedingly musical.

Unfortunately, these happy conditions are not everywhere prevalent. Alongside this new building is a row of shanties, some of them unoccupied. Those which are in use are in anything but a desirable condition as regards the floors and bedding.

One other point in connection with the Schenk factory desedves mention. At the time of the writer's visit the women were working with plums, and the large, movable peeling table, which had been in use the day before on tomatoes, was deserted. This had been washed and scrubbed to a snowy whiteness, and this fact alone showed what care was taken to obtain cleanliness.

At the Wethey Company's factory the employes, Pollocks and Italians, are housed in two rows of rough frame houses. A pleasing sight here was clotheslines filled with washed and drying clothing, and a woman and a girl sweeping. The houses, however, were not so re-assuring. In apartments not larger than twelve feet square three, and sometimes four, women cooked, ate, dressed and slept. These rooms, however, were, as a whole, quite clean, and the bunks used were supplied with clean and fresh straw ticks and in many cases with freshly washed white sheets and pillow cases. These houses, also, are supplied with abundance of running water, and incidentally, with gas mantles on the lighting fixtures.

The St. Catharines managers, in every case, stated that their factories were frequently visited by the local health inspectors and were passed as satisfactory.

At St. David's.

The Lowrey factory, at St. David's, is equipped with a new two-storey house, 64x33 feet, built this spring, which provides excellent accommodation. It includes thirteen rooms, 12x15 feet, to be occupied by four persons, and kitchen and dining rooms are provided downstairs. The rooms here were generally in good condition, and further improvements are being made; as for instance, the installation of stationary wash bowls, to be supplied through a line of piping from the factory. A middle-aged farmer looks after the premises, and the way he made the Pollock girls step out of their rooms, so that the newspaperman could inspect them, was an example of the way in which his authority was respected.

At the Ussher factory, half a mile away, the women employes are housed in a large building of cement construction, a year or so old. Downstairs is the living room, equipped with stoves and washing utensils, while sleeping quarters for perhaps thirty women are in a large apartment above. This building was fairly clean, being under the control of a matron. The men's quarters, some thirty yards farther east, were in a less desirable condition, though nothing very questionable was apparent.

PROFITABLE RETAILING

Suggestions that Should be Followed.

Some mistakes that make for failure.

Promptness, neatness, accuracy, politeness and reliability are the antidotes.

The credit system of the retail store is the cardinal cause of so large a percentage of failures among the keepers of small stores. It is an actual fact that hundreds of small storekeepers become insolvent before they know it, and they believe themselves prospering until aroused to their actual condition by the credit man of their wholesale house. This statement will, I am sure, be verified by the credit man of almost any wholesale house, particularly in the grocery business.

One of the rocks upon which thousands of storekeepers go to pieces is that of failure to figure the cost of their goods. I do not believe it an exaggeration to say that not one storekeeper in a thousand the country over adequately figures the cost of the merchandise which he sells. Almost invariably he fails to include in his estimate some important element of fixed charges of his running expenses. For example, if he owns his store building he figures that he is saving the entire item of rent and consequently he does not include this in his fixed or running expenses; because he has his son helping in the store as an assistant, and his nephew delivers the goods, he makes no charge for their services on their salary account; again, he is unusually exact if he makes any charge on account of the insurance which he is obliged to carry on his building and stock. Of course, not all merchants are as careless as this with regard to their record of operating expenses but it is safe to say that very few of them charge anything to the account of interest on their investment beyond, perhaps, the actual sums which they are obliged to pay out for interest on money borrowed.

In a word, the average keeper of a store has no idea whatever of his total operating expenses, and he is uncommonly fortunate if he figures into the cost of his goods one-half of the expense which should be charged under that head. Really, I do not think that 50 per cent. of the smaller storekeepers in the country districts figure into their cost of a specific invoice of goods the money actually paid out for the transportation of that shipment, to say nothing of any charge for hauling and handling inside the store.

Let me give one instance, which is thoroughly representative of hundreds of others, of how a storekeeper figured his cost. He bought a case of canned goods, and had it hauled from the station to his store in his own delivery wagon. The fact that he did not have to pay cartage on these goods was the one thing prominently in his mind when he opened them, and for this reason he told the boys to mark the cost at ——, and the selling price at ——. When he sold these goods he flattered himself that he was making a good margin of profit, while, as a matter of fact, if he figured in a right percentage of all his operating expenses he would have realized that he was selling the goods at a margin of less than a halfpenny, if not at actual cost. Depend upon it, the customer will always name the brand which gives the least margin of profit, unless the storekeeper takes the matter in his hands, and makes the decision in favor of the brand against which the manufacturer is not obliged to charge the expenses of a heavy publicity advertising campaign.

There is no necessity for a merchant to give the most prominent display to brands in which there is the least profit. Instead, it is the part of discretion and good salesmanship to give the most conspicuous place in his show windows and on his counters and his shelves to those goods which he is most anxious to sell because they yield him the larger profit. A little intelligent work, in a hand to hand way, will do wonders in educating his customers in the idea that certain unadvertised brands of goods are equal in quality to those which have received greater publicity and for which a higher price is charged. It is human nature to feel gratified over a good bargain, and when once the customer is made to feel that he is buying something for —— as good as others are getting for —— he feels a certain sense of gratitude to the merchant who has put the bargain in his way. Of course, the small country storekeeper cannot get the jobber to put his own brand on goods which he buys, but this is easily possible with leading merchants in the larger towns and provincial cities, and this is one of the strong points in good merchandising, particularly in the grocery business. No opportunity to do this should be neglected, provided, always, that there is no doubt as to the intrinsic merit of the goods. When the storekeeper, little or big, recommends an unadvertised brand of goods as against an advertised brand, he must be absolutely certain that the goods have the merit and will bear out his recommendations. It should not be inferred from what I have said, however, that a merchant's stock of goods is complete without the leading standard or advertised brands of goods in the various lines.

The Value of Right Service.

There are always, in every community, people who will demand these and be dissatisfied unless they are able to get them.

Perhaps the most important thing which any merchant sells is that for which he does not make a direct or open charge. The name of this commodity is service. Nothing on his shelves or counters is of greater value, and the quality of service which he gives his customers is just as vital to his success, perhaps more so, than is the quality of the goods which he sends out in his delivery wagon or puts into the hands of his customers. On the other hand, service is just as tangible a commodity as sugar or dress goods, and should be as carefully reckoned in his cost account as his bills for goods or his freight or insurance expenses.

It is not too much to say that good service is the most profitable thing which the merchant can sell, and that poor service is, by the same token, the most unprofitable thing that he can have about his store. Comparatively few storekeepers have any realization of this, and seem to conduct their business upon the supposition that service is an intangible quantity, and that the cheaper they can get their assistant hire the better. Few mistakes can be more fatal than this notion. From the delivery boy up to the proprietor, quality of service should be considered the very essence of good merchandising. It is a fundamental trait of human nature to consider the manner in which a transaction is done to be quite as important as the more material part of it. Neatness is a prime factor in storekeeping. Many merchants have found their trade going to their competitors, and have been unable to account for this loss of patronage. Knowing their merchandise to be as good as that sold by their competitors, and their prices to be as low, they were unable to account for this loss of trade. If they could have taken their customers into their confidence and arrived at the real reason of this falling away of patronage, they would have been astonished to learn that lack of neatness was the real cause at the bottom of the matter.

To put it less bluntly, women are especially secsitive to all that is cleanly, neat and attractive to the eye. They like pleasant and tasteful surroundings, and anything which suggests disorder and confusion repels them. Although, perhaps, men are not generally as sensitive to these things as women, at the same time they are confused by a disorderly array of merchandise and are attracted by a neat and pleasing display of goods. Any well-circumstanced man or woman shrinks from attempting to buy in a store where the stock is untidy and "cluttered." Instinctively the best trade in any community will gravitate towards the store which is kept up in the most orderly and attractive manner. Consequently, not only will the merchant who has the real trading instinct be awake to this important element in merchandising, but he will also see to it that he hires assistants who have a sense of neatness and order, and have an ability to display goods in an attractive way. Goods which are not handled with cleanliness, neatness and order, deteriorate much more rapidly than those which are kept and handled in a neat and orderly manner. The cluttered, ill-arranged, and untidy stock of goods is the one which is going down hill with the greatest rapidity.

Equally important in the manner of service is the quality of promptness. This comes into play from the moment the customer enters the door of the store until the goods are delivered in his house. What reader has not heard the remark: "I like to trade with Smith, because I get waited on right away, and because I know that the goods I order will be delivered in time for me to use them as I have planned." Thousands of times grocerymen in villages and small towns have lost good customers because the goods have not been delivered in time for the next meal. This may be caused by the slowness or the carelessness of the assistant, or the delivery van man, or perhaps the proprietor himself. But no matter where the blame may rest, the disappointed customer will not forget the incident, and if it is repeated, the loss of the family's trade is almost sure to result. This suggests the not unimportant point that a bright and active delivery boy is quite as important a member of the storekeeper's force as is the manager. Many merchants are prone to give very little consideration to the selection of a delivery boy, but this is decidedly a mistake. The right kind of a delivery boy has many times been able to hold the trade of a customer, in spite of defects in goods or prices, and in the service rendered by the proprietor and his assistants. The delivery boy who is a natural hustler, is a tower of strength in the organization of any store, and the merchant who does not recognize this fact is overlooking an essential point. The storekeeper should not forget the fact that the delivery boy is the person who closes the transaction, and who goes into the homes of his customers to do so. He is, so to speak, the living link between the store and the home. In many cases much of the buying is done by servants, and it is the delivery boy who comes into daily contact with the maid of the house. If this work is done in a prompt, intelligent, and agreeable manner, he gets a personal standing in the home at which he calls, and not infrequently brings out the remark: "They may be a little slow at the store, but that boy is all right, and can be depended upon to get the things around in time and in good shape." Perhaps some of my readers may feel that I place too much importance upon the delivery boy, but he is a factor in community trade which has received altogether too little consideration—and perhaps he also generally receives too little compensation. Certainly there is no kindergarten for the merchandising business equal to the delivery wagon, and the boy who makes a success in that humble capacity is the best possible timber out of which to make an assistant or proprietor.

A GENTLE REMINDER.

When returning goods to the wholesaler, always enclose your name and address and an itemized list of the goods in the package. Read the conditions on the invoice, as they constitute a part of the sale, and always inspect merchandise as soon as it arrives. Be sure that you do not sign receipts for goods you do not receive. Check the list over carefully before you put your signature at the bottom. Then if there is anything wrong be prompt in making your claim.

THE COFFEE SURTAX.

President of the State of Rio Refuses to Sanction Repeal.

A report, recently received from New York, has the following on the coffee surtax:

"Ever since the surtax of three francs per bag was imposed, there has been some agitation against it in Rio. The product of the two coffee states of Rio and Minas is exported through the Port of Rio. The State of Minas holds to the three francs extra export duty and has made her calculations based upon it in the budget for the fiscal year, and is not willing to make any change. The President of the State of Rio refuses to sanction any action to repeal the surtax, and the President of Brazil supports him in this attitude, maintaining that the surtax shall be enforced by all three of the coffee states. In Santos the surtax cannot be removed until December 1, 1911, as it is pledged against the loan up to that time, so even with a strong desire on the part of a large number of merchants in Rio to repeal the surtax there, they will find great difficulty in effecting any change or to act alone as against San Paulo and Minas, and furthermore, it is absolutely contrary to the law passed by the Federal Congress last year. The agitation will be kept up, as well as the hostility to the market in general that has been indulged in so long."

AN ENTERPRISING CLUB.

The Calgary Hundred Thousand Club has instituted a series of business men's excursions into the different parts of the province tributary to the city, with the object of promoting trade and advancing Calgary's position as a manufacturing and wholesale distributing centre.

The first excursion took place on August 6th to 8th to Lethbridge and included representatives of over eighty of the town's business concerns. A special train of sleepers was chartered and all the important points along the line were visited.

AN ABSURD PRACTICE.

In Collingwood, nearly all of the stores remain open until eight, nine or ten o'clock, ordinarily, and on Saturday night till eleven or twelve o'clock. One firm had the courage and good sense over a year ago to close at six-fifteen ordinarily, and ten o'clock Saturdays. It has continued to do so, and states that from the first, business did not suffer in the slightest degree. None of the others has followed its good example, although, we believe the results would be equally as satisfactory. Doubtless all of them would like to, but some are too cross-grained to co-operate with their competitors in bringing about this much-needed change, or to admit that it could be made a success.

If the majority of retailers are favorable to a fixed closing hour, the town council might be persuaded to pass a by-law providing that no stores, of certain classes, be kept open after a reasonable specified time. Collingwood is altogether too big a town to tolerate any longer an absurd practice which should have been dropped when it stepped out of its village clothes.

There seems every probability that Ald. Wm. Potter, for the past two years chairman of the civic property committee, will be a candidate for the mayoralty for 1908. This is perhaps a little early to look ahead, but it is certain that Ald. Potter has been strongly urged by many representative ratepayers to stand for the post of honor. Other candidates are mentioned, but none quite so positively.

There has been lots of trouble lately in the ranks of the local vendors of ripe yellow bananas. The centre of the trouble was Gaspar Favata, Italian, whose successful attempt to peddle fruit from a push cart without taking out a license recently aroused the ire of the city fathers. Keen rivalry has for a long time existed between Favata and the Zakoor Bros., Syrians, who deal in the same lines, and there have been frequent charges and counter charges made to the police of threats on the part of one or other of the rivals. Last week Favata took his stand with his push cart in front of the Zakoor place of business on King St., and proceeded to sell bananas at three dozen for 25 cents. The Zakoor delivery wagon appeared on the scene shortly after, and there was a collision, as a result of which the push cart was overturned, and the fruit scattered over the pavement. Information was laid by Zakoor against Favata, charging him with obstructing the street, but the case was, after a number of adjournments, finally dismissed without costs. A counter action by Favata against Zakoor, charging malicious damage to property, has still to be decided.

Despite unfavorable weather, the Peninsular Fair this year was one of the most successful in its history, particularly in the matter of attractions, while the attendance was, all things considered, very encouraging to the directors. The exhibits were all excellent and entries numerous, every inch of space in the main building being taken up. Local merchants put on a great many attractive displays. The directors of the Exhibition certainly spared no efforts to put the fair in the forefront of Western Ontario exhibitions, and it is to be hoped that next year the elements will be more propitious.

A PERSONAL LABEL.

Carl Grossman, an enterprising grocer in Chilliwack, B.C., has a particularly good address label which he attaches to parcels leaving his store. Space is left at the top of the label for the address to be filled in, while below there is a small half-tone cut of Mr. Grossman, accompanied by the following:

My Special Request.

Are you pleased with this purchase?

Does it "open up" to your entire satisfaction?

Is it just as represented?

Did you get your money's worth?

If your answer to any one of these questions is "No," you will do me a favor to tell me about it the next time you are in. I am doing my best to run this store right, and I want a chance to correct any fault that may creep in.

Thanking you for this, and past favors, and soliciting a share of your future patronage, I am,

Yours truly,

Carl Grossman.

GALT.

Grocery affairs in Galt are rather quiet, due in all probability to the between season period. The fall trade has not yet started and the summer trade is about over—that is, in respect to fruits. And right here it might be stated that the fruit season has been most disappointing in Galt. Of course, there was a plentiful supply of the small fruits, such as plums and gages, but the fruits which the house wife generally depends upon to stock her cellar for the winter, were a total failure. The crops may not have been a failure, but the prices have been so high that the local grocers refused to handle the fruits. It would not be out of the way to say that not one hundred baskets of peaches were disposed of in Galt by local dealers. Your correspondent interviewed a local dealer regarding the apparent shortage of peaches, and was given the following explanation: "The peach crop is not what you would call a failure, although there is some shortage. We are not handling them this year for the reason that in order to clear ourselves we would have to dispose of them around $1.75, per basket, and that is more than the public of Galt care to pay."

The Galt market is undoubtedly growing to be the largest in Western Ontario. That of Saturday was the largest ever seen here. The following prices are given in order that brother correspondents may compare them with those prevailing at their centres, and comment on any difference as there is a general opinion among the merchants of Galt that farm produce is much higher in price here than in other towns: Butter, 27 cents pound; eggs, 20 cents per dozen; ducks, 50 cents each; chickens, 30 to 60 cents each; pears, 75 cents basket; potatoes, 85 cents per bushel; pumpkins, 5 to 10 cents each; tomatoes, 30 cents basket; apples, 35 cents basket; corn, 10 cents per dozen; cabbage, 5 and 10 cents head; elderberries, 10 cents quart; centeloupes 5 to 10 cents; water melons, 15 to 25 cents; cauliflower, 5 to 20 cents head; celery, lettuce, onions, turnips, etc., 5 cents bunch; beans, 5 cents quart; blue plums and green gages, 40 to 75 cents basket.

The following occurrence took place in a local grocery this week: The grocer in question is a loyal Scotsman and was endeavoring to impress upon a few hearers the fact that his countrymen had been the means of saving the nation on more than one occasion. The listeners comprised an Irishman, who, for a while, said nothing, but at last unable silently to hear his Scotch brethren overpraised, broke in with the statement: "I'll have you understand, me fine frien', that just as brave a heart beats under an Irishman's waistcoat as under a Scotsman's kilt." The blunder caused on end of amusement, and the Irishman's favorite corner in the grocery store knows him no more.

The Retail Merchants' Association of Galt intend holding a banquet in the near future. It is indeed time they were up and doing again. When the association first organized it accomplished some good work, but of late its affairs have been rather lax. They have as yet made no attempt to remedy the Transient Traders' Bylaw which the courts a short time ago declared invalid, and, as a result, an occasional peddler can be seen doing a door to door canvas.

GUELPH.

Last week was exhibition week and the merchants all made great preparations for a good week's business. But why the Central Fair is called a three-days' fair, I don't know. I do know that it is just a one-day or day and a half-fair. It was a great success, however. It was estimated that over 10,000 people passed the gates on one day. The afternoon crowd was the largest in the history of the Central. Business was good. The fair was a success and everybody was satisfied.

Were we surprised? Well, some. But we get those occasionally in Guelph. The grocers were all sitting on a bench in the fruit market at 6 to 6.30 a.m. this morning, and it was not hard to see the cause. A big, burly policeman and a don't-you-do-it smile from the dealers, and a warning kick from a brother grocer made us sit down also. We were informed that henceforth and forevermore we could lie in bed instead of getting up in the middle of the night to buy fruit, as we were breaking the law in doing so. It was not unwelcome news in a way, as it has been hard work to get on the market by 5.30 a.m. all summer and there was no use going any later this year. Our grocers in Guelph are a friendly bunch and were not anxious to see anyone pay a fine, so as each newcomer came in, he was made wise in his own generation. The dealers suffered most, as they had to sell and had to come to the grocers. You know what that means—we bought 10c a basket all round cheaper. But now we find, after some argument and hunting up facts, on Thursday, that the bylaw under which we were ordered off the market was rescinded in 1902. I guess someone made a mistake.

The Guelph Co-operative Association are again summoned to appear for selling fresh meat contrary to a city bylaw, and why a small fine of $1 and costs, and then summoning for the same offence the next day is kept up is another nut to crack. It ought to be settled one way or the other and for good, and be done with it.

Guelph is 1,100 feet above the sea level, but I don't think that is the cause of the milkmen raising the price of milk to 8c a quart, to go into force at once.

The market Saturday was a very large one, both of buyers and sellers, and tomatoes dropped as low as 20c a basket. But tomatoes and cauliflowers were the only drugs on the market. The other prices remain about the same. Crawford peaches were quoted from $1.25 to $1.50 a basket.

Hay at $20 a ton is too high and is not likely to stay at that, I have not heard anyone say wages had gone up any.

* * *

The bakers are pretty foxey, though they did not put up the price of bread, they quietly cut the weight of the bread from 1½ to 1¼ pounds, and put a label on the bread with the weight; so we get less weight at the same old price. They might just as well come out and be in the sunshine, for flour is going up so fast we don't expect the bakers to do otherwise than raise the price, and you can't hide behind the screen and pose as public benefactors and make it pay. Come out and don't be afraid to ask a fair profit. The public don't ask any man to work for nothing.

KINGSTON.

Notwithstanding all the talk about a potato famine, there seems to be good prospects for all that is needed. The late potatoes are showing up well. New Brunswick and Nova Scotia potatoes are plentiful, and quotations for car lots are coming in by every mail, 75c delivered at your station. One merchant here got a car and lost considerable in consequence, and so did those who took part from him. They had been dug too early by some Nova Scotia farmers who should have known better. They were soggy and rotten at heart. Everyone predicts high prices for everything except grapes. One grocer on the market said: "I am putting up butter to 30c and eggs to 25c."

For several years past Kingston has been benefited by a low excursion rate to farmers on the line of the C.P.R. It was the means of bringing large crowds of farmers to the storekeepers with big supplies of butter, eggs and poultry. The cut-rate has been discontinued by the C.P.R. on account of the continual grumbling of storekeepers along the line. It is a big loss to Kingston, and one merchant suggested boycotting in shipping, and it may be done. There is prospects of a huge hotel being built by one or other of the railway companies, and it is much needed. I am ashamed of the poor and limited accommodation Kingston affords to the traveling public.

The two Chinese restaurants here are doing big business. They give a bill-of-fare for dinner for 25c. equal to any 50c. dinner in the city. The Chinamen here are of a good class, honest, industrious, and mind their own business.

The late rains and continued warm weather has produced a big crop of ripe tomatoes. They fell in price from $1.50 a bushel for pink, to 75 cents. Finest creamery butter is retailing for 30c, second grades 28c. Makers of creamery butter should get name of creamery copyrighted, in order to protect dealers and the public from inferior store-made prints, with same name or one resembling it. One leading creamery took my advice and put the name of their town in large print, instead of maple leaf. The Victoria Creamery, of Lindsay, has one like it, called Victoria Road, put up by or owned by a grocer there.

Eggs are advancing rapidly. By the way, kindly hold up your hands, all grocers who have been robbed by the meanest kind of thieves outside the penitentiary. I refer to the Hawk produce dealers, who offer ½c to 1c more for eggs and butter than legitimate dealers, and make no returns. I ran up against a good looking big Scotch Presbyterian in Montreal who was unloading a wagon load of hen fruit. I said: "What are you paying?" He gave me good quotations and a handful of tags. He also offered to sell me choice butter at 2c or 3c a lb. lower than the market. I bit, and now I feel the hook. I sent him in June over 600 dozens, and only got the empty cases back, and, at that, in bad condition. Such men should be on the stone pile at our penitentiary.

The horticultural and poultry exhibit in the Armories was a big success. The display of flowers was pleasing to the eye, and the ear was tickled by the orchestra and crowing of roosters and cackling of hens.

LONDON.

Brokers and wholesalers report business very good and payments fair, with, as one broker puts it, "no grumbling." Lower grades of tea show an upward tendency, prices being a little higher than a week ago. Fine teas continue firm. The currant market is advancing very rapidly, and the trade is buying freely, fearing that the top has not yet been reached. The first shipment of new-crop raisins has arrived at Montreal, and the goods will be in the hands of local wholesalers during this week. The market is easier. Sugars are unchanged, though an improvement in the movement of this staple is noticeable.

Now that the holiday season has ended and families have returned to their homes, retail grocers find a distinct improvement in business. Housekeepers are busy with their pickles and catsup and are making great demands on the grocers for the necessary vegetables, spices and vinegar. Late fruits coming in rather more freely than expected causes an increased demand for sugar.

With the return of citizens to their homes comes a great increase in the supply of garden produce, and for a week or two the largest markets of the season will be seen. Last Saturday's market was one of the biggest in the city's history. With but few exceptions, all kinds of produce sold at the lowest figures in some time. Especially was this so of tomatoes, which sold at from 15c to 20c a basket. The offerings in this line were by long odds the largest of the season. Farmers give as a reason that those who have been in the habit of selling to the canning factories all season, brought them into market in expectation of getting a better price for them than factory buyers offered. Potatoes, too, were away down, 75c a bag being the average price. Pork, wholesale, was lower, and many farmers refused to sell at the prevailing price. Advices from other points state that hog prices are likely to go still lower.

The fruit situation is still causing dealers and consumers concern. The apple crop, it is said, will be 25 per cent. larger than last year, and will, on the whole, be a fair yield. Plums have been an average crop and are now pretty well all in. Hereabouts there is a pronounced scarcity of home-grown peaches, and as a result, fruit from southern Michigan is being shipped in in goodly quantities. These peaches are known as Elbertas—a very fine variety of uniform size—and come in bushel baskets, which sell at from $3 to $3.50 each. Grocers buy them freely and retail them in smaller baskets.

Speaking of the fruit situation, Chas. Mountjoy, the well-known wholesale fruit dealer, said: "There will be quite a scarcity of fruit. Peaches are especially scarce, with a great demand for them. Very few peaches, in fact, hardly any, are coming to us from the Leamington district, and this affects the supply very much. Owing to the scarcity of small fruits such as strawberries and raspberries, the canning factories are taking all the peaches in sight, and that causes a scarcity as well as raising the price. Plums have been a fair crop. I think there will be plenty. Pears are not very plentiful. Grapes will be a good crop, and apples will be larger than last year. I do not look for any lower prices, especially in peaches."

The grocery firm of Langford & McKenzie, northeast corner of Piccadilly and Colborne Sts., has been dissolved, Mr, McKenzie continuing the business. Mr. Langford has secured a position in the office of Scandrett Bros., the Dundas street grocers.

* * *

President Harry Rauhan, of the Retail Grocers' Association, has been confined to his home by illness for a week or more, and though somewhat better, is still unable to get back to business.

* * *

The retail grocers are not yet satisfied with the way in which the by-law governing hucksters is being carried out, and a meeting of the association will be held next week to further consider the matter.

* * *

As a result of injuries sustained by James Palmer, a former employe of the McCormick Manufacturing Company, through the falling of an elevator last April, the firm has been made defendants in a $1,500 damage suit, which will be heard at the assizes, which open in this city on the 7th day of October.

MONTREAL.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—"The way a grocer treats children who are sent to his store will do him a whole lot of good, or a great deal of harm," said a friend of mine the other day, "and, unfortunately, there are a number who do not realize this as they should. The old wise heads, you will notice, if you have your eyes open in a retail store, will treat the little ones that come along just as well, in a different way, as they do the grown-ups. One's customers cannot always order groceries in person, and there are times when something is required at once, which cannot be delivered over the telephone, though it may be ordered that way.

"It is then the youngster of the house, or somebody else's kiddie, is sent to the grocery store. The customer expects that the child will be given the same treatment as she would receive herself, and it is a foolish storekeeper that disappoints her. The little one is not apt to mind being pushed aside and missing his turn, though he may, but if he is kept needlessly waiting for half an hour or so the housewife is very likely to form a new opinion of her favorite grocer, and it is not likely to be a very good one.

"Yes, the wise old grocer knows his business too well to neglect children. The youngsters are served in turn. They are treated like little men and women, which naturally makes them feel more or less important, and they are very anxious to "go to the store," and they always make straight for Brown's, where they are treated right."

Montreal grocers are awaiting with considerable interest the outcome of the next monthly meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association, which will take place Oct. 3. There has not been much said in official quarters about what will come up regarding the Retail Grocers' Association and the Federation, but the general opinion is that the officers of the Grocers' Association will have the present misunderstanding cleared up. Grocers are not pleased with the way matters have been going for the past while, feeling that they have had practically nothing to do with their own association. Their natural desire is that they be kept well posted on all that is happening.

One of the points the grocers feel sore about is the fact that they received no notification, according to one of the officers, of the recent meeting of the Federation at St. John. This officer said that since they were supposed to be part of the larger body, they should have been informed of the meeting, and should have had delegates in attendance.

As was announced in The Grocer a couple of weeks ago, the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association started off a new year with the old board of officials, with one exception. Last year's officers gave every satisfaction and deserve great credit. A. Laniel made a first-class president. He always has the interests of the grocery trade at heart, and cannot work too hard to help along his fellow grocers. He stands up for his rights, too, and any man who does that is fit to represent his fellow-men, for he will stick out for their rights also.

Messrs. Dore, Boileau, H. Laniel and Sarnazin, the other officers, all served the association well last year, and will give equally good service in 1907-08. Mr. Boileau, the new second vice-president, is widely known in retail grocery circles in the city.

Burglars entered the grocery store of Oscar Desjardins, 118 Bleury street, Sunday evening, and managed to get away with some $200 worth of goods. They forced the front door, and when they got in, smashed things right and left in their search for booty.

QUEBEC.

For the past two or three weeks business has been continually improving in local grocery circles, and this steady gain in the volume of business is more than ever in evidence this week. Consequently wholesalers and retailers are very satisfied. A decline of a few cents has been registered during the week in rice, lard and almonds, but corn starch, preserves, olive oil, peas, salt, Mennier's and Fry's chocolates, and canned lobsters have advanced. Quotations of canned goods are firm on account of scarcity.

A good demand exists for grain and flour, and supplies are fairly well up with the trade. A marked advance is noticeable this week, and many dealers have evidently come into the market in order to get the advantage of the present prices, which are already expected to advance, although no large sales are reported. For the present, wholesalers sell at the following quotations: Oats, 57½c to 59c per 34 pounds; flour, straight roller, extra, $4.25 per barrel; seconds, $5.35 to $5.50; Ontario patent, $2.25 to $2.30; oatmeal, $1.40 to $1.55; barley, $2.10 to $2.20; Indian corn flour, $1.60.

The demand is much heavier for fish and prices are beginning to stiffen in response to inquiries. Fresh fish are scarce and an advance of $3 for salmon has been registered. Present prices are: Salmon, No. 1, $17; salmon, No. 2, $16; salmon, No. 3, $14.50.

The local market for country produce is still exceptionally good, and prices are advancing as a consequence. The present state of affairs is caused by the small supply arriving. Creamery butter has advanced a cent and a half. It is quoted from 25c to 25½c per pound. The same advance is in evidence for fresh butter which is worth now from 22c to 23½c per pound. White cheese is sold dearer this week and cannot now be obtained at less than 12½c per pound. There is also a considerable scarcity of eggs on the market. Prices for these show an advance of a cent per dozen, and are now quoted from 23c to 24c per dozen.

The fruit market is much steadier, and sales have increased largely during the week. The only changes noted are for tomatoes, which declined ten cents, and are now quoted at 75c per box. The same decline is noted for grapes, which are sold at 30c per basket.

Whether Quebecers will have the privilege of purchasing their meat and market produce outside the city markets was one of the important questions discussed at the last meeting of the City Council, but no decision was arrived at. It is a well-known fact that most of the butchers would prefer to continue the present system. Quite a discussion arose on that question, and some aldermen remarked that in Montreal and other large cities where free sale of meats is allowed, the meat is much dearer, and that is what will happen here.

Mayor Garneau stated that for several months back efforts had been made to obtain a property suitable for the erection of a post office in St. Roch's, but the prices asked for the sites had been excessive. Hon. R. Lemieux, Postmaster-General, had suggested to his Worship that the city should give the site, and asked if the Jacques Cartier Market could not be secured. The Mayor did not favor giving away any property, but thought the market place might be sold.

A decision of the Council on those two important questions is delayed till the next meeting, which will be held on Friday, Oct. 18.

HAMILTON.

Considerable discussion has arisen over the report of Dr. Hodgetts regarding the canning factories in the Niagara district. The prevailing opinion among the grocery trade here being that it either went too far or not far enough. As it stands, it is certainly taken as condemning all the factories in the district, as none are specified. I think, if it was necessary, action should have been taken against the factories with unsanitary features, instead of making a sweeping assertion against all. It is well known that this section is the best in Canada for the growing and preserving of fruit and vegetables. Peaches, plums, pears, cherries, grapes, etc., are finer flavored and nearer perfection than those grown elsewhere, and as the growers and canners have invested large sums in the industry, it is a very serious matter to have any slur thrown on the manner in which the goods are handled. There are so many people interested, directly and indirectly, that anything happening to the business means a great blow to the prosperity of the Niagara peninsula.

This once more brings us back to the association idea. No set of men in business to-day are so well fitted to aid the Government in enforcing the Pure Food laws as the grocers of the country, and the sooner they are organized and take a personal interest in the matter the sooner will the Pure Food Act become operative.

* * *

I trust Dr. Hodgetts will arrange his tour of inspection so as to cover the Niagara district in the immediate future, while the factories are working on peaches and plums. A report now would greatly help the canners, as well as the grocers, in disposing of the pack of 1907.

STRATFORD.

During the past two or three weeks there has been an epidemic of burglaries in this city and in one or two cases the raiders have visited and tried to gain entrance to a couple of grocery stores.

In Montreal, the outcome of the next monthly meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association is being awaited with interest.

Read what Ingersoll says on the manner in which fruits are disposed too close to the sidewalk to allow them adequate protection.

Compare the Galt prices for produce with those prevailing in your own town.

Chatham is having some difficulty with her push-cart men.

Hamilton is interested in the publicity recently afforded the Niagara canning factories.

The market last Saturday was attended by one of the largest crowds of sellers and buyers that have turned out for some time past. Produce also was very plentiful, and buying was brisk. Butter advanced. Wheat also has taken on a decided step, but it is in hay that the price has commenced to soar. This article has jumped from $8.50 and $12 a ton to $14 and $15 per ton. The increase is general, and is felt by merchants and others in the city.

Last Friday the town of Mitchell, about twelve miles from this city, was visited by a sugar famine. On that particular day there was not to be had a grain of good sugar in any of the stores for some hours, and householders right into the preserving had no little difficulty in doing down their fruits. Several of the stores were flocked with housewives in search of the granulated article, but it could not be had at any price. The situation was relieved late in the afternoon by the arrival of Mr. Martin, traveler for the Stratford Wholesale Grocery Co. In a short time there was ample quantities of sugar in the stores, and the wants of the busy housewives were satisfied.

During the present fruit season the proprietors of grocery stores in this city, who are in the habit of "weighing in" goods as they are received, have frequently come across short weight, but they attribute this, not to the wholesalers, but to the method of transportation. Several baskets of fruit have been opened during the transportation to the city, and many smashed. There should be some better way to guard the shipments of fruit on the railways.

Grocers report the trade to have been exceptionally good during the past week, especially so in the fruit trade. The demand has been active, and, in the majority of cases, the supply has been met.

ST. CATHARINES.

The district that makes St. Catharines the centre of trade is valuable in many respects. Rich lands, principally used for the cultivation of fruits and vegetables, make this city an important factor in trade and commerce. The present conveniences of shipping fruit by the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway to Port Dalhousie, thence by steamer to Toronto, or to Niagara Falls on the main line of that railway, connecting with the Michigan Central and Pacific Railways or by the Grand Trunk Railway to points east and west, are becoming a boon to the shipper. The firm of James and William Tetterington is the principal one for shipping fruits from this point and they make large consignments to Manitoba and other points in the far West, as also supplying customers elsewhere. John J. Fee, another shipper, confines his business principally to the apple trade. When the season arrives Mr. Fee not only purchases apple orchards in this section, but he, with experienced packers, goes to Bruce and Grey counties and ships his stocks principally to the English market.

The grape crop will be a good one if no untoward circumstance occurs, such as frosts or damp weather, causing mildew. Outside of this there is a bright prospect for a more than bountiful supply of choice fruit.

The tomato crop promises to be a good one if frosts keep off. Fruit and vegetables are now coming rapidly into the canneries, of which there are five in St. Catharines.

Speaking of glassware, crockery and china, there are a few stores in St. Catharines that carry stock of this nature. The merchant who makes one of the finest displays of these classes of goods is ex-Alderman James T. Petrie. He has a fine pair of windows to display his stock, and as he has a general assortment of goods, including groceries and small wares, his window occasionally presents a varied appearance, and a passer by can hardly fail to be attracted by the sight.

RECIPROCAL DEMURRAGE.

Vexatious delays in the delivery of freight have led to the organization in the Manitoba capital a few months ago of the Winnipeg Jobbers' and Shippers' Association, through which the leading business men are making an earnest effort to find the proper remedy. The remedy which they favor is that now being advocated by boards of trade throughout the United States, and known as the Reciprocal Demurrage Law. Briefly stated, the agitation for this law grew out of a conviction that it is a poor rule that will not work both ways. When shippers are responsible for delay in loading and unloading cars they are forced to pay the company's demurrage charges. This is an absolutely fair and just rule, without which there would be many delays that could easily be avoided. But it is only natural that it should have occurred to someone to suggest that when the railways put shippers to inconvenience by long delays in the delivery of freight, the aggrieved parties should have some speedy and adequate compensation; in short, that there should be a Reciprocal Demurrage Law subjecting the railway companies as well as shippers and consignees to the payment of demurrage rates when delays occur.

In the United States there are two main features of the Reciprocal Demurrage Law which the boards of trade desire to have placed on the statute book. In the first place, they desire a provision subjecting the railways to penalties when they are unable to supply cars asked for at given points, and in the second place they ask for penalties when cars are not moved more than a certain number of miles per day when once en route. The former provision is probably unreasonable and it is not being emphasized by the Winnipeg Association. The time may come for such a provision, but it is felt that under existing conditions it would be unreasonable to press for its enactment. However, with the provision penalizing the railways for delays in forwarding freight already shipped, the Winnipeg Jobbers' and Shippers' Association are in hearty and enthusiastic accord, and they have asked the Railway Commission for a clause in all bills of lading providing as follows:

"That all goods shall be transported on an average for the entire journey of at least 100 miles on all main lines and 50 miles on all branch lines, per day of 24 hours; that all goods shall be forwarded and loaded within 24 hours after delivery to the company, and all goods to be unloaded by the company shall be placed for unloading within 24 hours after arrival at destination, Sundays and legal holidays to be excepted. When these conditions are not fulfilled the company shall make the consignee an allowance of $1 per day for all carloads and one cent per 100 lbs.; maximum $1 per day for all less carload shipments for every 24 hours or part thereof until the shipment is unloaded or placed for unloading at destination. Provided that nothing in this clause contained shall be constructed to deprive the owner or consignee of any rights to which he may be entitled under existing law in respect to the subject matter hereof, the foregoing allowances being intended by way of additional remedy."

It is contended that if there were proper handling of freight in terminal points there would be no difficulty in moving freight at the rate provided by the above clause. It is stated that cars are often allowed to accumulate in the railway yards through lack of motive power; that there is little care taken to insure that cars that have been longest delayed shall be the first to be sent on their journey. Usually these cars are not the most easily accessible, and trains are made up of cars that have been in the yards only a few hours, while cars that have been delayed for days or weeks are allowed to be delayed still longer.

It is true that there are regulations covering this point, but in the absence of adequate penalties it is said by the shippers that the rule is honored more in the breach than in the observance. The Winnipeg Jobbers' and Shippers' Association argue that it is not unreasonable to ask the railways to move a car 100 miles per day on the main line or 50 miles per day on the branch lines, but after investigation of the experience of their members for some months, they show that the actual average is only 35 miles per day. They argue that the railway companies need more motive power and more effective supervision of cars in terminals, rather than an increased number of cars. If cars were moved at the rate provided for by the provision which the association desire to have enacted, one car would do the work of three at the present time.

The Winnipeg Jobbers' and Shippers' Association have the co-operation of nearly all the boards of trade in Western Canada in their endeavor to have this provision enacted.

LAW SUITS COSTLY.

It is announced that the cost of the case before the courts to settle the dispute between the steel and coal companies at Sydney amounted to about $60,000, and the end is not yet, as the decision in favor of the Steel Company provides for an arbitration award on certain points, and even this settlement may be appealed and the case carried to higher courts. For every hour the court sat the case is said to have already cost $1,000.

The case was purely a business disagreement, and in the light of events it would appear that the most sensible settlement would have been arrived at by an arbitration. The cost would have been much less and the results more satisfactory.

NEW WESTERN WHOLESALE CENTRES.

Portage la Prairie and other western towns and cities having laudable ambitions to become wholesale centres of importance, have recently been urging upon the Railway Commission the unequality of freight rates in the west, contending that there is discrimination in favor of Winnipeg. The Portage la Prairie Board of Trade presented a strong case before the commission last month, asking to be placed on an equality with Winnipeg as a wholesale centre. The secretary of the board and several of the leading business men of Portage la Prairie appeared before the commission, and the whole question was argued at length. The decision of the commission has not yet been announced, but there are well authenticated rumors that the requests of the ambitious western city will be granted almost in their entirety.

Whether this be true or not, there can be no doubt that it is only a question of time until many of the western cities must be given advantageous through and distributing rates which will permit them to become important wholesale centres. Winnipeg has been the first western wholesale centre of importance, but the country is too big to allow it to have a monopoly. In the far west there are several cities of importance already. Calgary, Edmonton and Regina are rapidly growing in importance as wholesale centres and they will have many rivals.

"TO FEEDING RATS—$25."

It is curious to reflect, occasionally, upon the number of common facts to which the average grocer gives little attention, and upon which his knowledge, if he possesses any, is superficial. How many grocers, for instance, have ever taken the trouble to estimate what it costs them to keep rats about their stores? To determine approximately the cost of each individual rat is not impossible, and it is instructive, for it adds one more item, unnecessary because avoidable, to the cost of doing business. How many grocers can show an entry in their cost book—"To feeding 50 rats, per annum, $25"? There, then, must be many who are lucky to get off as cheaply as that.

It is estimated that a single rate will account for two ounces of wheat or corn in a day, and that the average cost of feeding one on grain for a year is about 50 cents. It is gratifying to learn, however, that being a pest whose uselessness is unredeemed by the smallest virtue, their presence in a store is as unnecessary as it is expensive. They are not difficult to get rid of if the right means are employed. The commonly accepted methods of destruction are five: Poisons, traps, ferrets, fumigation, and rat-proof construction of buildings. One of the most effective rat poisons known is barium carbonate, or barytes, possessing, as it does, two distinct advantages. In the first place, rats killed by this means usually take some time in dying and have generally left the building in search of water before this desirable consummation takes place.

Secondly, the very small quantity of this poison required to compass a rat's decease, precludes the possibility of its having any effect on dogs, cats or any large animals. This poison possesses a third advantage—simplicity. It may be spread on bread and butter or given in the form of a dough composed of one-fifth barytes and four-fifths meal, or it may be mixed with ordinary oatmeal. Water is the usual mixing medium.

A REMEDY REQUIRED.

The publicity recently accorded the Niagara canning factories has brought to light the existence of a peculiar anomaly in regard to the sanitary side of factory inspection. The Government inspector has jurisdiction over conditions regarding the safety and welfare of employes. If he or she, finds, say, a dangerous machine or an infraction of the Child Labor Law, the matter may be brought to the attention of the Department of Agriculture, to which he or she is responsible, and an improvement enforced.

In regard to sanitation, the situation is very different. In this case, the inspector's duties are not clearly defined. He may report any unsatisfactory conditions but the fact that the Department of Agriculture has no direct connection with the Health Department prevents any action being taken.

Again, confliction between the authority of the local Boards of Health and the Provincial Health Department is another source of difficulty. The local Boards seem to have jurisdiction over concerns within their municipalities. They act, or are supposed to act, on the report of the local health inspector. It will be seen that there is room for considerable conflict between the reports of the local and provincial inspectors. Beside these difficulties, it is quite obvious that there is overlapping and duplication in inspection as well as in the matter of control.

Under these circumstances the work can never be satisfactorily performed. The remedy seems to be in a thorough definition of the offices and powers of the Local and Provincial Health Boards. Dr. Hodgetts, referring to the matter in the Sanitary Journal for 1906, suggests that the responsibility of local factory inspection be placed on the local health authorities, leaving the general supervision and inspection to Provincial officials, who, to increase the scope of their usefulness, should be inspectors of this Board. The suggestion seems to provide a satisfactory remedy for the present unsatisfactory condition.

GOOD TRADE LOGIC.

In the course of a conversation with a traveling man, writes F. A. Parker, the salesman said: "Whenever I go into a town and find a man there who has been a customer of one of our competitors for years, I at once lay plans to land him as a customer of my house, because I know he is a good customer for any house. He will, in nearly every instance, tell me that there is no use talking to him, as he has been buying all his goods of that particular house and has no reason for changing. I generally tell him that he is exactly the kind of a customer I want, for, if I can show him it is to his advantage to give me his business, instead of to the customary house, he will then be as loyal to my house as he now is to a competitor.

"I may not get my man for a year or so, but I eventually get him, and when I do, I know he will be with us for years, and we will get all his business, either by mail or when I go to his town, for he is a sticker."

PRICES GOING TOO FAR.

In some sections of the trade the question has been raised as to whether manufacturers and producers are not going too far in advancing prices as they are. There is much dissatisfaction on the score of recent advances in foodstuffs such as is not noticed when the advances are absolutely necessary, and the cause is more or less apparent to the casual observer. The discontent is not general, but it is deep where it prevails. Some have a trade which will pay any price for goods purchased, and these do not care whether prices remain stationary or perform sky rocket feats, but on the other hand there are those whose customers cannot afford to pay above a certain price, or who will not pay high figures, and once the limit is reached business falls off.

It is the latter class who complain. In their opinion manufacturers and producers are going too far. They see no reason for such abnormal advances as have occurred during the past year or eighteen months in various grocery lines.

There can be no doubt but that the first sellers are warranted in putting up their prices in many instances. Take the California fruit situation, for instance. Packers have had to contend with difficulties galore. Crops have not been up to the mark in every instance. The price of tin has advanced materially; labor is scarce and high; box material has been advanced; it has been very difficult to obtain deliveries of packing material, and just as hard to secure cars for the transportation of goods.

It does not require a wonderful mind to see that an advance has been necessary here. But has such an advance as has taken place been warranted? Canned goods are high, tapioca is high, butter and cheese are high.

The greater percentage of foodstuffs cost a great deal more to-day than they did a year ago. Why? In nearly every instance where an advance has taken place there has been cause for a rise in the price, but can everyone who has advanced truthfully say that present quotations are fully justified by existing conditions? This may be an abnormal season. It looks like it. But prices cannot continue ascending indefinitely, while wages do not advance correspondingly, and the time will come when advances will be no longer sustained. Then something will happen.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Fish—Revised.
Flour—Advanced 20 cents.
Rolled Oats—Up.
Teas—Very firm.
Dairy Produce—Firm.

Montreal, Sept. 26.

Fall business is gradually picking up all over Canada, and the district in and around Montreal is not behind other sections of the country in this respect. The very high prices which rule in some lines are affecting orders, but this is nothing more nor less than might be expected.

The high prices asked for flour and rolled oats are worthy of particular note. There is talk in some sections of an attempt to corner the oat crop, and from the way prices are being shot up, it would seem as though something of this sort were being done. Flour is higher than it has been for months.

Teas continue very scarce, and the market rules firm. China Young Hysons are up another cent. Japans are as scarce as ever. Prices on corn and tomatoes are not yet out, but are expected shortly. One packer expects to put up pretty near a full pack of both lines. Syrups are in good demand. Sugars are quiet. Valencia raisins are easier. Sultanas are now quoted. Currants are firmer.

Collections are average. Some firms are quite satisfied with the money coming in, but others feel that the amount arriving is not nearly up to the standard.

As it stands to-day the tea situation is a puzzling one to those in the business. Where to secure tea with which to fill orders booked is a bigger problem than most of the tea men feel able to solve. Aside from orders booked already, the demand for teas which are unobtainable, is something wonderful. The very lowest price at which Japans are obtainable is around 18c and 19c. The quality is very poor, though, merchants not caring to put these teas out for sale as their regular 25-cent line. Receipts of fannings, siftings, and dust here are practically nil, the States having gobbled up everything. China Young Hysons are up another cent and hard to secure, stocks being extremely low. Ceylon and Indian greens are scarce and firm. In blacks, a few lots of the cheaper grades are obtainable at figures a trifle lower, but the better lines cost more.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—Since last report there has been another advance in currants, which are to-day 3s. 6d. above lowest point, with a market which is still excited. Valencia raisins are cheaper, there having been a drop which is equal to ½c a pound. Sultana raisins, which are now on the water, are being quoted on about the following basis, retailers' price: 3cr.; 10½c; 4cr., 11½c; and 5cr., 12½c. Owing to rains, the crop is said to be only 4,000 tons, against 10,000 tons expected. Reports from California are to the effect that the fruit out there is curing quite satisfactorily, and shipments are likely to be somewhat earlier than at first expected. Figs have been advanced ½c lb. all round, owing to rains. Because of the advance, figs for October delivery, will cost more than those which were ordered for September shipment, though, generally, the reverse is the case. No new date prices are out, but they are expected in October. Hallowis are reported 50 per cent. of last year's crop, and as a consequence, it is likely prices will be higher. Khadrawis and Sairs are likely to be about the same crop as last year, and prices will probably open about the same as they did last season. Tarragona almonds are ½c lower. Stock to arrive is quoted around 12c to 13c, while spot brings about the same. Filberts are ¼c to ½c easier, New Yorkers being anxious to clean up the old stuff before new crop arrives. Shelled walnuts are away up, there having been another advance of 1c. Peels are opening very high, as much as 20c now being demanded for citron, which a short time ago was but 18c. Lemon and orange peel are around 9c and 10½c.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Canners have not yet given out their prices on corn and tomatoes, and the late fruits, and it is needlessly to say that the grocery trade awaits action on the part of packers with considerable interest. The Montreal representative of one large house is in receipt of a letter which assures him that with one week more without frost the packer will be able to just about fill demands for tomatoes, while the writer also thought that prospects for corn and other lines were exceedingly bright. This report is a good deal more optimistic than the general run of them, and to hear the like of it is truly encouraging. But meanwhile things are running along in the same old way, no flurry in anything, the only interest displayed being that mentioned in the foregoing—the anticipation of the new lists.

TORONTO—The canned goods situation was summed up the other day as "strong in price and poor in prospect." Prospects for corn and tomatoes appear to grow poorer every day. The latest estimate for tomatoes is 30 per cent., but this is probably unwarrantably pessimistic. All fruits will be short, peaches and pears especially. Plums will probably turn out better than many expect. The crop has been unexpectedly heavy, and if an accurate estimate were obtainable of the proportion it has borne to a full yield, the result would probably be a surprise to many people. Grapes are said to be plentiful. All vegetables are very short.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Canned Goods—The feature.

Sugar—Heavy consumptive demand.

Plums—Disappearing.

Potatoes—New Brunswick arrivals show heavy percentage of rot.

The wholesale grocery markets report a satisfactory volume of business for the past month. Canned goods have probably been the feature, there having been a heavy demand for all lines of which there was any supply. The old pack is now about cleaned up, though. Some small stocks of one or two lines are still held. The sockeye salmon pack is by long odds the worst in the history of the industry. It is safe to say that on the Fraser River, at any rate, the pack this year totalled less than half the pack of the leanest season hitherto experienced, and the northern rivers showed results that were little better. All this, of course, is now an old story, but it is a question whether the average retailer realizes what he is going to be up against in this respect. It would seem almost unnecessary to urge every grocer who has any salmon in stock to be very sure of his ground before he lets go of it.

The sugar situation remains about unchanged, except, perhaps, for an increased demand for refined, consequent upon the heavier arrivals of plums and peaches. The market is very strong and though no advance is actually looked for, is more likely to go up than down.

TEA—Buiness is quiet, even the cheap grades, stocks of which are getting very scarce, finding less favor than formerly. Japans are hard to get, but the demand is only nominal, and little interest is being shown in this direction. On the London market the total offerings of Indian to September 12 were 211,211 packages (including South Indian teas since August 1), as against 216,908 last year. Offerings of Ceylons have also been smaller than last year, 912,269 packages, as against 960,851 for comparative periods since January 1.

Advices from London, dated August 12, say:

"Demand continues to broaden on the lines noted last week and with a wider range of values there has been a noticeable tendency to pay more attention to quality—a feature which was lacking so long, as the quotations for common remained at an unnaturally high level. The strong enquiry latterly prevailing for fine descriptions has gradually been extended to good medium sorts, and although, so far, little movement in price has taken place, the change where apparent has been in favor of sellers, thus paving the way, it is to be hoped, for a more healthy state of trade throughout the country. It is becoming evident that the supply of fine tea from India will be smaller than usual, and from the deterioration in character of latest arrivals, the enquiry for good liquoring parcels should materially increase during the next few months.

"A noteworthy and satisfactory feature of last month's board of trade returns, is the fact that re-exports to markets other than Russia were, on the whole, well maintained, the actual quantity being 2,890,000 pounds, against 3,010,000 pounds in 1906. The falling off of nearly 800,000 pounds in the shipments to Russia must be put down to the increased trade, via., the Siberian Railway, for figures show that this deficiency was more than covered by the exports direct."

COFFEE—Locally the situation is quiet and about unchanged. The world's visible supply was 16,004,313 bags on Sept 1, compared with 16,075,812 on Aug. 1, and 10,756,653 on Sept. 1, a year ago. Stock in the United States, of all kinds, were 3,862,690 bags on Sept. 1, 3.933,190 a month ago, and 3,-190,701 on Sept. 1, 1906. Stock Brazil's in New York, on Sept. 18, were 3,499,399 bags. Total Brazils in the United States were 3,570,363 bags. Deliveries of Brazils for the week ending Sept. 14 were 14,115,263 bags, as against 83,345 bags last year. Receipts of Brazils for the week ending Sept. 18 were 40,056 bags.

Willett & Gray say of the coffee situation: "The supplies of Brazil coffee visible for this country are 600,000 bags larger than same time last year, but just about equal to those of two years ago, so that the many parties who have been enquiring about the heavy surplus from last season's crop, fail to find it in the United States. Turning to Europe, however, the actual stocks in the seaports are now 4,500,000 bags larger than the same time last year, but this surplus is part of the Government holdings kept out of the market.

"So far, receipts of the currant crop are 450,000 bags less than the same time two years ago in the 10¼ million crop, the logical comparison. In the month of July, the receipts were almost entirely old crop, but since the latter part of August the receipts are wholly of new crop coffee, so that it is difficult to form a judgment on the real size of the current crop from the receipts up to now. However, the crop movement up to date is still the smallest in nine years for Rio and Santos together, and during that period there were four crops whose total was around 10 million bags.

"Regarding the growing crop the information given out is that the prospects are unfavorable for the second flowering in Rio as well as Santos."

SUGAR—Unexpectedly heavy arrivals of plums and peaches have brought about an increased consumptive demand for refined, and lent considerable strength to the general tone of the market. Prices remain unchanged, but the situation is stronger than it has been for some time, and it is not unlikely that an advance may occur in the near future. Word comes from New York that "the outlook is for a steady refined market, with contracts safe from decline."

Willett & Gray, in a general review of the situation in raws, say:

"During the week under review the raw sugar market has been steady and firm in the United States. Offerings have been limited and have found ready buyers at full quotations, the business being on the basis of 2½c. c & f. for 94 degrees test centrifugals, 2 9-16c. c. & f. for 95 degrees test and 3.95 per lb. 96 degrees test, duty paid. At the close there are buyers at the same basis.

"Java sugars afloat are held at from 10s. 6d. to 10s. 7½d. c.i.f., equal to 3.97 to 4c. duty paid, and for October shipments at 10s. 6d. c. & f. (4d. duty paid), but no sales are reported, being slightly above buyers' views.

"European markets have fluctuated on the sugar exchanges within narrow limits from 10s. to 9s. 10½d. and closing at 9s. 11¼d., equal to 4.09 per lb. for 96 degrees centrifugals.

"Growing crop reports for the week were favorable for beets and slightly unfavorable for the Cuba cane crop, the latter needing more rain. It has already been decided by some estates having a large shortage of cane in the fields to sell the cane to other centrals and not run their machinery this season. This is an important indication of crop conditions in the Mantanzas district of the Island.

"It is too early yet, however, to give correct crop data. Some persons, however, are beginning to turn their attention to distant beet contracts as a possible speculation a little later on."

Estimated afloats to the United States from the Cuba and West Indies, 10,000 tons; Hawaii, 40,000 tons; Java, 180,-000 tons; Peru, etc., 5,000 tons. Total, 235,000 tons, against 220,000 tons last year.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS—The market is quiet and steady at unchanged prices. Demand for molasses is steadily improving as the colder weather heralds the approach of winter, and corn syrups have not, so far, been markedly affected by the advanced prices.

DRIED FRUITS—The currant market has advanced steadily since the first direct steamer left Patras and Valencia raisins have declined in about the same proportion. The reason for this is probably to be found in the fact that Valencias are a far more speculative article than currants, being obtainable, as they are, from several different countries, whereas, Greece is the one and only source of supply for currants. The Bellona, the first direct steamer for Montreal from Patras, left Denia about the 20th and will hardly arrive in Montreal for another three weeks.

Late advices from the primary markets, say of currants: "Really sound fruit of the finer and choicer growths will be in good demand throughout the season, as the quantity of such fruit available is not sufficient to supply even the British demand."

An advance is reported in French prunes, owing to the shortage in the supply.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Very little of this line has been bought by the wholesale trade, and prices, though more or less nominal, may be considered firmer. The situation seems to be that everyone is waiting for lower prices, and that holders and manufacturers are trying to keep the price up. It is difficult to prophesy what success they are likely to meet with. Present quotations are about as under:

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Sept. 26, 1907.)

General grocery business continues active and it is likely that fall trade will show a satisfactory total on the books of the wholesale houses. Some districts are suffering in an unfavorable year but, taking the country as a whole, the condition of business is quite satisfactory.

A number of advances will be noted this week. Salt is 10c higher. Jams and marmalades are advancing. Practically all cereals are selling at higher prices. Starches have been advanced ½c per pound. Corn syrups have been advanced. Owing to a change in tariff classification a number of lines of imported canned fish, notably kippered herring, herring in tomato sauce, and fresh herring in flat tins, have been advanced 25c to 30c per dozen. Formerly these lines were admitted on payment of 17½ per cent. duty, but they have been placed under a different classification by department regulation, and the duty is now 3½ cents per tin. Hence the advance in price.

CANNED GOODS—Owing to the general advance in prices this fall, sales are not quite so brisk as a year ago. Nevertheless, the wholesale houses are having difficulty in getting sufficient supplies of several lines. Quotations are:

MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.

Meeting in Toronto This Week—Notes From Manufacturing Grocers' Section.

The thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association is in session in Toronto this week at the King Edward Hotel. On Tuesday morning, 24th, at 9.30, the registration of delegates began, and the first sessions opened. The first business meeting was that of the Manufacturing

S. W. Ewing, general chairman, Manufacturing Grocers' Section of the C.M.A.

Grocers' Section, which was called to order in Room E by Chairman S. W. Ewing, of Montreal. Among those present were: Robert Greig of the Robert Greig Co.; C. C. Dalton of Dalton Bros.; Frank C. Simson, of the National Drug & Chemical Co.; W. S. Greening, of the Todhunter-Mitchell Co.; C. E. Barton and R. L. Hilton, of the Standard Chemical Co.; I. D. Bradshaw, of I. D. Bradshaw & Co., all of Toronto; E. A. Dalley, of the F. F. Dalley Co; W. H. McLaren, of McLarens, Limited; Wm. Somerville, of the Imperial Cocoa & Spice Co., W. J. Brigger, of T. Upton Co.; Jas. McLauchlan, of McLauchlan & Sons Co., all of Hamilton; and L. C. Van Beaver, of the Van Beaver Packing Co., Toronto Junction; W. M. Hood, of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co., Winnipeg; and Edmund Littler, of the Walter M. Lowney Co., of Canada; Paul Hamill, of the N. K. Fairbanks Co.; S. W. Ewing, of S. H. Ewing & Sons, of Montreal.

S. W. Ewing, who has held the position of chairman for three years, was re-elected general chairman. As an assistance to Mr. Ewing, a new feature was introduced and the following Vice-Chairmen were elected: For Halifax, W. E. Schwartz; St. John, T. H. Estabrooks; Montreal, John Carsley; Toronto, Robert Greig; Hamilton, F. F. Dalley; London, A. Eckert; Winnipeg, W. N. Hood.

Of the business discussed by the section, one interesting point was in regard to the enforcing of the Pure Food Law. It is well known that though this law is in existence, it is not strictly enforced, and this condition of affairs is obviously unfair to firms which observe its provisions. It was the general opinion of the delegates that the law should be more rigidly adhered to. In connection with this matter it was suggested that a Board of Commissioners of five business men, independent of the firms concerned, and conversant with the requirements of the manufacturing grocery trade, should be appointed to rule on the question.

The matter of the inspection of packing houses was also discussed. If a packer ships his product out of Canada or out of his own Province, he must, under the present law, have an inspector at his factory and stamp all such exported goods, "Canada approves," while the packer who disposes of his product only in the Province in which his factory operates, is not required to undergo this inspection. It was felt that a more uniform method should be adopted.

The other meetings were well attended, and there were many discussions and papers on interesting business.

GET IT IN WRITING.

If tradesmen would make it a practice to have all ordinary business transactions in writing and copied, much wasteful and costly litigation would be avoided. An exchange wisely says :

It is merely reducing to a minimum the possibility of misunderstanding or error on the part of either party to the transaction.

When giving an order, of course you get a copy of it. If there are any special quotations, concessions in terms, special contract for delivery, or any understanding varying the established trade conditions, have it incorporated as a part of the order. Then you won't forget and none the less will the other party.

Lapse of memory is the subpoena server's hope, the law courts' best friend and the lawyer's main reliance.—Grocery World.

FOR SALE.

THE old established grocery and provision of L. J. Dickie is offered for sale owing to the ill-health of the proprietor and increasing business; this business is one of the most successful in Oshawa, the most enterprising town on the G.T.R. L. J. Dickie, South Oshawa P.O., Ont. (39)

SOME THINGS TO DO IN OCTOBER

A few timely suggestions for the retailer who wants to increase his business.

The majority of grocers it is to be hoped, have long 'ere this started to make their plans for what to do next month. Others, it is to be feared, have not given the matter more than a passing thought, if, indeed, they have accorded it that much attention. Yet it is a subject which will wonderfully repay a little careful planning, and it is as much with a view to stirring into action those whom, it is to be hoped, constitute the minority above mentioned, as of helping, with indication and suggestion, those in whose minds ideas have already shaped themselves, that the following hints are presented. It may be said at once that they are the outcome of many talks with different retailers, all of whom have adopted, or intend to adopt them, in their own business.

October is a month of possibilities. In it much can be done to increase trade that cannot be done in other months. October is, or should be, a good profit-taking month, and one in which a considerable amount of new business may be secured. The first week or two of October marks the end of the holiday season, and families whose trade for the last few months has gone to swell the account of some seaside or country store, are now returning to the city and settling down for the winter. Many a grocer is misled into thinking that it is hardly worth his while to pay any special attention to returning customers; that he will enjoy a monopoly of their trade, as usual, during the coming winter and spring, and that any special effort on his part towards making assurance doubly sure would just be so much time wasted which might be spent more profitably in other directions. The grocer who is after a larger trade, and means to get it, pursues a different policy. He recognizes what the other ignores, that customers are human, and as responsive to a little flattery and attention as the most pronounced egotist that ever lived. He takes care, first of all, to let all his patrons know that he is still doing business on the same old stand, and follows this up with the more pertinent information that his facilities for handling orders promptly and efficiently have been perfected and augmented during the slack summer season, and that every fresh year he is in business his increased knowledge enables him to buy his gods at a decreased price, of which, he does not fail to point out, his customers reap the benefit.

All this can be done by means of a neatly printed circular, which should be either mailed, or delivered in person—not simply thrown inside the gate—or it may be imparted by word of mouth, which is the best way of all, if it can be accomplished. The average grocer has few customers whom he does not see occasionally in his store—few that is, who do their ordering, entirely by telephone, and a few polite enquiries as to how vacations have been spent, or a word or two on any conventional subject, of no special interest to anyone, but of considerable weight under these circumstances, goes a long way towards impressing a regular customer, or one who is placing an order for the first time, of the desirability of dealing with a man who takes some interest in her wants outside of the actual cash profit which may be expected to accrue to him from her custom. Sympathy, politeness, attention—these three—but the greatest of these is sympathy.

A great many new lines will be coming in next month, notably currants, raisins and all the Mediterranean fruits, and nuts. The grocer who wants to be posted might do worse than go down and have a chat with his wholesaler as to what prices may be expected, whether there is any likelihood of shortage in the supply, and what the situation is generally. It pays, occasionally, to do more than simply buy from hand to mouth, and though the average retailer cannot be expected to have the inside knowledge which is the prime requisite for successful speculation, he may, by keeping in moderately close touch with the situation, form his own views as to the advisability or the reverse of stocking up on new lines that are coming into the market. The habit of reyling too much on other people's opinions is a bad one to cultivate. The men from whom a retailer is most likely to obtain information are mostly those who have their own axes to grind, and who frequently are not, alas, above grinding them on the nearest whetstone that happens to be handy. A pinch or two of salt, however, is often sufficient to render valuable, information that is intended to be misleading.

Spices are another line which merit special attention at this time of year. The pickling season is in full swing, and the demand for these lines is greater now for a few weeks than it is in all the rest of the year put together. The spice trade of the average retailer does not, and cannot, in the nature of things, amount to a great deal, but it is a line on which there is a good profit, and a department of his business that cannot be neglected. A grocer may make or mar his reputation with his customers on spices alone. Purity here, as elsewhere, and everywhere, is the keynote of success. Keep pure spices, if you would keep your trade.

And another word of advice that is always in season: Don't neglect the window. The Grocer devotes every week a special department to this subject, and it is, therefore, superfluous to do more than touch upon the subject here. I think it is a fact that there are few grocers who do not realize the importance of well-dressed windows, but some of them are too lazy and others too busy (or, so they say), to devote much attention to this department of their business.

Looked at from a straight, commonsense point of view, the thing is self-evident. A woman passing a store is going to keep right on passing unless there is something about the store that arouses her interest and compels her to stop. If she stops, she's interested. If she's interested it is safe to say that she is in the market for some commodity or other—not necessarily the one which happens to be displayed in the window. Once she is open to conviction, she's lost—if the grocer knows his business—and when you have made the sale, reflect that it was the window that caused it, and put in a better one next week.

ALL FOR FUN.

"Do you keep good, honest goods here?" asked the fussy old man in the cafe.

"Well, sir," responded the waiter. "the whiskey's straight, all right, but, to be candid with you, I think the pretzels are crooked."—Cleveland Leader.

Statistical Boarder—Have you the remotest idea, for instance, what the world's supply of honey is?

Sentimental Boarder—Yes, sir. The world's supply of honey weighs exactly 116 pounds, and her name is—well, I'm not going to mention it in this crowd.—Chicago Tribune.

A traveler in the dining-car of a Georgia railroad had ordered fried eggs for breakfast. "Can't give yo' fried aigs, boss," the negro waiter informed him, "lessen yo' want to wait till we stops." "Why, how is that?" "Well, de cook he says de road's so rough dat ebery time he tries to fry aigs dey scrambles."—Life.

Mrs. Knowsitt—This is the second time you sent me this bill, and I paid it once.

The Grocer—That's the bookkeeper's fault, ma'am. He keeps his books by the double-entry system.

THE NIAGARA CANNERS.

The Delhi factory, at Niagara-on-the-Lake, has Italians only in its employ this year, the manager stating that for various reasons he found them more satisfactory. The families—the Italians are always blessed with an abundance of children, who seem to be considerable of a nuisance—are housed in a row of tumbledown frame houses at some distance from the factory. These, of the tenement variety, are fairly roomy, but are not particularly pleasant as regards cleanliness. A busy little matron was in charge, who appeared to be most capable, but for some reason or other her services were desired at the factory that morning and the houses were left to shift for themselves.

In Conclusion.

The facts cited above will allow the reader to judge for himself concerning conditions in these canneries. Considered generally, the class of labor employed does not seem to be nearly so desirable as the Government report would lead one to believe. These Pollock and Italian women appear to be admirably clean, and conditions generally met with in regard to clothing, bedding, etc., would further impress this idea.

Here, in a word, seems to be the situation. The proprietors of these factories know that conditions in connection with the industry in this district are not ideal. They realize the situation and are trying, as rapidly as practicable, and reasonable, to remedy present conditions. The fact that matters have improved so materially during the past year points to this. It seems altogether likely that they will continue to improve and that in three or four years the factories will be entirely free from any questionable conditions,

The fact should also be mentioned that every facility was allowed The Grocer's representative to inspect every feature of each of the factories in the district. In every case he was pleasantly received and made to feel that he was exceedingly welcome. In Hamilton, he called at the offices of the Canadian Canners, and through the kindness of the secretary, Mr. Innes, and the president, Mr. Nairn, was given a letter to the manager of every factory under the control of the company in the district, a fact which assisted materially in his tour of inspection.

NEW CROP VALENCIAS.

The first arrivals of new crop Valencia raisins were received by Davidson & Hay, Toronto, on Wednesday, September 25. The stock is fine, sound fruit, but a little small. This is, no doubt, due to the heavy rains which fell while a large proportion of the fruit was either ungathered or still on the drying grounds.

BEEN THROUGH THE MILL.

Circumstances alter salesmanship.

The manager of a business who has been through the mill as a salesman and still retains a memory of times gone by is the easiest manager to work under, and there is a very good reason.

He is not expecting impossible things. He knows that conditions are different as soon as you are out of the house, and sales are a good deal harder to make. He knows that when a customer comes to the house he has already decided to buy, and the salesman only has to assist in the selection and suggest other things as he goes along to build up the order, but once outside the house with an order book or a line of samples the shoe is placed on the other foot. It is the salesman who is then looking for business, and not the customer looking for goods. The customer then declares he is full up on everything, and it is up to the salesman to pry loose an order for a small bunch of odds and ends if he cannot get nothing better.

The manager who meets a customer in the house and books a big order sometimes feels that a salesman should do equally well when out looking for orders. He fails to realize that his man came to him especially to buy, and that when the salesman found the same man he found him engaged in selling goods and his mind was not already made up to buy, in fact, it was on other subjects entirely.

The manager who inherits his job, and does not grow into it, sometimes fails to grasp these little points of difference.—Grocery World.

SCRUPULOUSLY CLEAN IN EVERY DEPARTMENT

Such Was the Condition Found by the Star-Journal in the Pure Food and Simcoe Canning Factories To-day, While Sleeping and Living Accommodation for Employes Could Not Be Excelled in Such Institutions.

Provincial Medical Health Officer Hodgetts and Dr. Bell, through the Toronto newspapers, yesterday made grave charges against the proprietors and managers of canning factories in the Niagara Peninsula, that, if left uninvestigated and disproved, would work incalculable injury to the canning industry in this district. These reports, it goes without saying, will be copied by nearly every newspaper in Canada, and will also find their way to Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand and other countries, and the result will be that thousands of families that have been using Canadian canned goods for years past will no longer use them. Hundreds of thousands of dollars may be lost to this country as a result of such action.

Believing that the canning factories in this city are not deserving of the strictures passed upon them, but that they are, on the contrary, entitled to the fullest confidence on the part of the people—not of this city only, but of the entire Dominion and of other countries—the Star-Journal detailed a representative to visit the different factories doing business in the city, to make a thorough and impartial investigation in each case and to report as to the result for the public benefit

Even a cursory inspection of the different processes through which fruit, etc., is put in a canning factory is not a matter of a few minutes, for as fruit, vegetables, etc., are handled in the factories visited half a day can easily be spent in following the system from beginning to end. In addition to this the building in which the factory employes are housed call for attention, and as the Star-Journal's representative was instructed to make his investigation as searching as possible, it was found to be an impossibility to visit all the canning establishments in one day. Two only—the Pure Food Factory and the Simcoe Canning Company's factory—were visited. The Wethey and the Schenck factories will be visited to-day and reported upon in to-morrow's issue of the Star-Journal.

The reporter was fortunate in being accompanied by Mr. Samuel Brower, of Chicago, representative of the Sprague Canning Machinery Company, of the city named. Mr. Brower is an expert authority on the fruit and vegetable canning business, and the conclusions arrived at by the reporter have his full and unqualified endorsation.

The Pure Food Company's factory, on Queeston street, was first visited. Mr. John Danheiser, the manager, gave the Star-Journal's representative every opportunity to make a thorough investigation.

"You may go through the place yourself. I will send one of the operatives with you or I will accompany you myself—just as you choose," said he.

"Mr. Brower understands the business thoroughly," answered the reporter, "and if you don't object, he will show me through."

Accompanied by this thoroughly disinterested expert, the reporter inspected the factory.

The fruit—plums and tomatoes are in season just now—is unloaded into a shed which is entirely separate from the canning factory and which is open on all four sides. Girls and women receive the baskets and the crates, empty the fruit and carefully sort it, the bruised, over-ripe and tainted portions being thrown into barrels; the sound fruit being placed in clean, fresh baskets and carried into the factory, where it is passed through the various phases of the canning process by machinery, no employe's hand touching it after it leaves the sorters. The different steamers and the cooking apparatus are kept scrupulously clean. No peelings, stems leaves nor refuse of any sort is to be found in the building. The floors are cleaner than those in many dwelling houses, and the employes are neatly and cleanly dressed. Sinks, provided with soap and towels, are in the working rooms for the use of employes.

"Do not use new tin cans for drinking purposes" is a notice posted above the tap from which the operatives take their drinking water. Another regulation which is given every prominence reads: "The management insists upon extreme cleanliness in every department. Employes, in leaving their stations, must, in every instance, wash their hands before returning to work. Employes must, at all times, keep their clothing and persons perfectly clean and neat."

The appearance of the employes emphatically proves that this rule is closely carried out. The clothing worn is clean and neat and each female operative wears a large and long apron, which is changed every morning.

"I fail to see where any fault can be found with this factory" said Mr. Brower. "Cleanliness is a leading and evident characteristic of the establishment. The output of this factory is good enough for the tables of the best in the land."

A visit was next paid to the living rooms, which are in a building situated some hundreds of yards distant from the main buildings. The interior of this structure is divided into compartments, each of which gives accommodation to one family or seven individuals. Gas stoves are provided for cooking purposes, a long, narrow table runs across the floor, and at this the family sits to partake of the daily meals. Tables, floors, walls, chairs and all other articles of furniture are "clean as a new pin." Each family is provided with its own dishes, knives, forks, etc., which are kept on shelves provided for the purpose. The sleeping apartments, which are entered from the dining-room, contain two, and sometimes three, beds each. The reporter examined the bed clothing closely. The mattresses were perfectly clean, many of them being new and none having been in use for a longer period than since last fall. There were evidences here and there of a slovenliness or carelessness on the part of those who use the apartment, but there was no dirt. The employe who has the supervision of these apartments, a young and intelligent Italian, showed the reporter through and stated that the employes are perfectly contented and happy. The women spend their leisure hours before and after work, in sewing, crochetting, etc.

In every department the Pure Food establishment was found to be thoroughly clean, well ventilated and sanitary. The operatives were neatly dressed, their clothing and persons clean and tidy, and the foremen and forewomen kept close watch over all employed in the factory. The utmost care was taken in the work of canning the fruit. Tomatoes are submitted to the first phase of the process—that of scalding—outside the factory. The "peeling" is done inside the operatives sitting at a table, elliptical in shape, and along the centre of which runs an automatic carrier. On this carrier stands boxes in which the "peelings" are placed, and which are removed to the point at which the waste matter is thrown out of the building. Not a vestige of peeling or "flesh" of tomato was to be seen on table or floor. As to the sleeping and eating rooms, it is difficult to see where improvement could be made. They are clean, roomy and comfortable, and the occupants are thoroughly contented in every way.

The Simcoe Canning Factory, on Lake street, under the personal management of Mr. Eugene Kidder, is a model institution in respect of organization, supervision, cleanliness, and accommodation for employes. Mr. Kidder is, perhaps, the best-known canner in Ontario. He is thoroughly familiar with every detail of the business—in every respect a practical man—and he takes a keen interest in the workings of his factory. "I have found," he said, "that the better you treat your employes the harder they will work and the better work they will do for you. Consequently, I do all in my power to ensure the comfort of every person employed in this factory. I am proud to say that my employes take an interest in their work; that they are jealous of the reputation of the factory, and are keenly desirous of being looked upon as expert workers, who are worth the highest rate of pay going. There isn't a woman or a girl here who would pass a bit of tomato peeling on the floor and would not stop to pick it up and throw it into the refuse barrel, and after having done so, they wash their hands before resuming work."

The staff here was also engaged in canning plums. The stock of fruit on hand was enormous. Baskets in hundreds and thousands were piled in the sorting shed, which is particularly well ventilated and devoid of the slightest trace of foul odor. The sorting process is extremely thorough. The least bruise or sign of decay is sufficient to relegate the affected fruit to the waste barrel. After having been sorted, the fruit destined for canning is well washed and carried into the main building. The tins are dropped from above on to a table on which they are arranged open end up; two women are engaged placing in each tin the proper quantity of granulated sugar. Another operative places the tins on a carrier which conveys them to one filler. The fruit is placed in them and they are passed onward to a small but intricate machine which places a circular sheet of tin over the opening. A short journey farther, and the tins are arranged 12 in a row, under a machine which automatically seals them. They are then passed to the "steamer," in which their contents are heated to a certain temperature. Other minor processes are gone through, and the tins are then plunged into a flood of boiling water, in which the fruit is thoroughly cooked. Next they pass along a miniature canal, which is fed by a one-inch water pipe and which holds a depth of two or three feet of pure, cold water. The tins are carried along by the current in this "cooler" till the temperature is sufficiently reduced, when they are placed aside to be labeled and packed. No hand comes in contact with the fruit after it is sorted. It is humanly impossible that the contents of the tins can be other than clean.

Elaborate steps are taken to secure absolute cleanliness in the surroundings. A flood of surplus water is carried from the "cooler" to a drain under the floor. This drain has a fall of two feet from end to end of the building, and of six feet at its outlet. The floor slopes from each side of the building towards the ever-flowing drain in the middle, and is swept and scrubbed nightly. Once a week the floors are thoroughly scrubbed with lye, and every implement and receptacle used is thoroughly cleansed and disinfected at regular intervals.

"Look at those women," said the manager, pointing to a group of busy workers, "and say whether they are 'dirty' foreigners or not. Foreigners they are, but you can't find cleaner, neater nor more respectable looking working girls in the city."

And the assertion was perfectly true. Natty and spruce, they will stand comparison with any of their sisters who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow.

The sanitary arrangements are practically perfect in this factory. The closets are clean—cleaner than those in many hotels—and the ventilation is excellent. Wash-sinks, soap, towels and all conveniences are provided, while stringent rules are carried out regarding cleanliness.

The employes eat and sleep in a long two-storey sheet-iron building some distance from the factory. Each family has a dining-room and kitchen on the ground floor, with sleeping apartments above. These were inspected and the bedding, etc., found in a state of perfect cleanliness. The tables and chairs were in creditable condition and the floors were scrubbed to a degree of whiteness that reflected credit on the industry and housewifeliness of the occupants. The windows in the lower storey are protected by wire screens, while those above have mosquito frames to permit of the windows being kept open to cool the rooms. Around the whole building just above the lower windows, runs a broad fire escape.

From every standpoint the Simcoe Canning Factory is a credit to the city. The cleanliness of buildings, implements and machinery, the sanitary arrangements and the homelike accommodation provided for the operatives are a tribute to the foresight and business ability of the manager, Mr. Kidder. Any product of the factory can be safely used by the most fastidious, who will find it unsurpassed by that of any other factory on the continent.

Schenck's factory was visited yesterday afternoon by the Star-Journal reporter in his quest for information regarding the sanitary condition of the living and sleeping apartments of the employes and the cleanliness of the canning processes employed. Mr. L. M. Schenck gave the reporter every facility for inspecting the premises, every portion of which was open to view. Over $4,000 have been expended in improving this factory and further improvements are now under way.

"The report copied in the local papers made a dead set at us regarding the alleged 'filthy' condition of the employes' bedding and living rooms, so we'll have a look at these places first," said Mr. Schenck.

The kitchen was first visited, Here eight gas stoves are used, as well as a large gas range. A wash sink is situated at each end of the apartment, and there are the necessary tables and other utensils. The walls are painted a dark drab, the floors, etc., are as white as soap, water and scrubbing brush can make them. Off the kitchen are the big dining-rooms, which are also as clean and comfortable as human labor can make them. Walls here are painted and the rooms as well as all the other apartments are provided with gas for lighting purposes.

A large ball-room is situated between the two dining-rooms, and here the employes hold nightly concerts and dances. In the storey above the dining-rooms and ball-room are the women's sleeping-rooms, furnished with white iron bedsteads. The mattresses and bed-clothes are perfectly clean—not the least sign of dirt nor of insect life being visible. The sleeping rooms are all large and airy and have high ceilings, painted walls and hardwood floors. One of the female employes has charge of these apartments and performs the duties of a matron.

The male employes sleep in a separate building, which is equally as clean and neat in every particular as are the female's wards. There is a bathroom in the building in which the dining-rooms and kitchen are situated, and every facility is given the employes to keep their persons and clothing clean.

The operatives were "knocking-off" work when the canning factory was visited—that is, theu had discontinued the work of canning and were engaged in the regular evening clean-up of the machinery, implements, etc. Two men were directing hot steam against the machinery, which in a few seconds was denuded of every trace of the accumulations that accompany the day's work. Other men were manipulating hose lines, washing the floors off; women were scrubbing out pails, buckets, etc., and altogether the scene was an exceedingly busy one. When the work was completed the interior of the factory, walls, floors, machines, etc., were as clean as they were on the day they were placed in position.

Mr. Schenck informed the reporter that the floors are scrubbed thrice weekly, and that the lactory is flushed twice a day, tables, floors, implements and all.

How the inspector came to the conclusion that the Schenck factory could be called "dirty" is beyond comprehension. It is the most modern establishment of the kind in the district. Nothing is left undone by the management to secure the comfort and well-being of the operatives, while the regulations as to cleanliness are strict and rigidly enforced. Every modern appliance in use in the largest and best factories in the world, are used in the canning department, and what was reported yesterday as to the cleanliness of the workers and of the canning process in other factories, holds good in the Schenck establishment.

CORRESPONDENCE

INGERSOLL.

The marriage of Peter Sherry, grocer, to Mrs. Elizabeth Devine, was solemnized by Rev. Father Hogan, in the Church of the Sacred Heart on Tuesday the 17th inst. Both the bride and groom are deservedly popular, and their wide circle of friends unite in wishing them happiness and long life.

The Ingersoll Fair, which was held on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, afforded an opportunity of comparing the fruits and vegetables with the crops of previous seasons. The reports from all sections of the county are to the effect that the fruit, with the one exception of plums, which are more than an average yield, is not as plentiful as in other seasons. Taken as a whole, the apple crop is not heavy, but the quality is regarded by those competent of judging as being very good. Reports are general, however, that the apples are wormy, and with the fall varieties especially, large quantities are falling from the trees. Some splendid specimens of all varieties were on exhibition at the fair, and although the crop is a comparatively small one, the prices will be in excess of last year.

Harry Cook, for some time with Beattie & Co. grocers, and latterly of London, has returned to town and accepted a situation with E. J. Malone, clothier.

Joe O'Meara has severed his connection with C. A. O'Neill, grocer, with whom he had been for some time. He has been succeeded by Mr. Hunter, late of Scotland.

Despite the backward weather early in the season and the predictions of a short crop, the tomatoes are apparently as plentiful here as in past seasons, although this is not the case everywhere, a fact which has kept up the local price. As a rule, the tomatoes are of first-class quality, and as yet there has been no falling off in the price, which has remained at eighty cents per bushel from the producers.

The manner in which a grocer displays his fruit and vegetables is a matter of much importance to the customer, and one frequently hears some very harsh comment. Spurred on by competition, grocers are desirous of showing their wares to the best possible advantage and in many instances a great deal of sidewalk space at the front of the store is monopolized. While in many places this is a violation of a bylaw, it is not in this respect that the strongest objection is raised. Go where one will, fruit, such as melons, as well as cabbage, cauliflower and other vegetables, are displaved so close to the sidewalk that they are not properly protected. It is not necessary to dwell on the objections to this method of displaying fruit and vegetables, as all customers are familiar with them, and grocers also should be by this time.

The employes of the St. Charles Condensing Co. on Saturday night presented Mr. W. G. Dutton with a handsome morris chair. Mr. Dutton has been in the employ of the company for some time, and only recently resigned to accept a situation with the Canadian Condensed Milk Co.

Reports from the Blenheim district indicate that the tobacco crop has turned out unexpectedly well, thanks to the late rains. The bean crop has, however, suffered for the same reason.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Cheese is firm this week at figures which are around those quoted in the report of a week ago. Ontarios bring 12½c to 12⅝c; Townships from 12⅜c to 12½c, and Quebecs 12c to 12¼c.

Although some of the buyers were less active than usual at the country boards last week, some of those who had been viewing the situation rather pessimistically came forward and bought, and the markets in the various parts of the country were cleared at figures which showed a drop of 1-16c to 1-8c.

Recent advances in cheese have not been proportionate with those which have occurred in butter, and from what can be learned there are many makers, whose factories are equipped for either article, who are now making butter instead of cheese. This, of course, does not help the cheese situation in the least, giving, as it does, a firming up tendency to the market.

Business transacted with the other side has not been very large during the week, as will be seen from the figures. During the week, 59,520 boxes were shipped, as compared with 68 972 boxes the same week last year. Since May 1 the number of boxes shipped amounted to 1,373,370, against 1,561,724 boxes for the corresponding period in 1906. During the week, 67,641 boxes of cheese were received, while 83,026 boxes arrived the same week in 1906. So far this year, 1,564,551 boxes have been received, against 1,711,850 boxes for a like period in 1906.

Butter is decidedly more interesting to-day than cheese. The advances have been, to say the least, surprising. To-day the market ranges from 25½c to 26c for choicest creamery, while good dairy will bring as much as 22c. These prices are certainly high for this season, but chances are that they will be maintained for perhaps three or four weeks. There does not seem to be any butter held in Ontario, and as this field is a very large one, and has to be supplied, the butter must come from somewhere, and at the present time it is being drawn largely from Quebec. Local dealers report particularly good demand from many Ontario points.

Export trade is practically nil. The Old Country would never meet our prices, which would mean somewhere near 125s to-day. At best, it is not likely they would offer more than 110s, and they are not especially anxious to receive Canadian butter, as their supplies of Danish, Irish, Siberian and Argentina butter are quite large enough to fill the demand there.

Already there is some talk in the trade about prospects of importing Australian butter this winter, in case the Canadian article advances too much for the trade here. It is practically certain that some business will be done with Australia, through London, if last winter's quotations rule again this year.

Dairy continues exceedingly scarce and firm.

Last week 2,579 packages of butter were exported, against 9,936 packages for the same week one year ago. Since May 1 this year exports were 65,261 packages, against 303,204 packages for the same period in 1906.

Receipts last week were 10,022 packages, against 14,576 packages for the corresponding week in 1906. For the season, receipts have been 316,088 packages, against 490,797 packages for last year. Recent weather, while it seems to have checked the tremendous shrinkage in the make, has not, apparently, very largely increased the same.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

There is little improvement to report in the live hog market over last week, though the packers' prices remain the same. $5.90 f.o.b., country points, $6.25 fed and watered, and $6.40 loaded on cars, are the prices the farmer has been getting for his hogs for the last fortnight. This offer is apparently bringing enough hogs into town to satisfy the packers, whose requirements at present are somewhat modest. Future prices are a matter of opinion. One or two packers think that the supply of hogs at these low prices is becoming limited and that the farmers are growing more and more inclined to keep their hogs at home, but this is not the view of the majority. Lower prices are generally looked for. It is reasonable to suppose, however, that the farmer's stock of market-ready hogs is running low. The Canadian farmer does not conduct the hog-raising department of his farm with that whole-souled enthusiasm that is so marked a characteristic of his Danish competitor, with the result that this season of the year, when the grain markets are active and farmers are turning their attention in that direction, has come to be accepted by the packers as a period of light receipts and more or less depressed business. Conditions prevailing at present are, of course, exceptional, and the root of the trouble is to be found, as usual, at headquarters. The Old Country market is flooded with Danish and Irish deliveries—American shipments also were above normal again last week—and the Canadian product has got to take its chance with the rest. The present outlook could not well be more unsatisfactory. "This state of affairs cannot continue indefinitely," said a packer the other day. "Relief, if not actually in sight, must appear on the horizon before long," which strikes one as cold comfort in the face of the conditions which have been steadily prevailing and as steadily growing worse for more weeks than it is pleasant to look back upon.

Provisions in the American market have been neglected during the past week. The Journal of Commerce, reviewing the situation, says:

"There has been very little in the market for hog products the past week. Receipts have been moderate, yet ahead of a year ago, and trade has been dull for cash stuff, while outside packers were sellers as well as the Cudahy Company of the futures, and the inside packers either sold, too, or refused to support the market until towards the close, when they or the shorts rallied it slightly from the decline, causing a little more activity, but trade, as a rule, was dragging the whole week, the grain markets still being more attractive to speculators. The spot markets have been still duller and have been easier on lard and pork with the options, though there has not been much decline and only a few lots taken for export. Meats have been easy for Western, with a little more doing there, but not here, and local production of bellies has been just about equal to the local jobbing demand without changing prices. High grades of packed beef have been firmer, and England has taken about 1,000 tierces of extra India mess early week, putting up prices $1 per tierce or more. Low grades barreled beef are easier on a better supply of Colorado cattle in the West. Soap stocks have been barely steady and very dull without exception, prices favoring buyers, though quotations have remained about the same."

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Packers report a better demand for lard, with a consequent firmer feeling noticeable in the market. Smoked meats are selling fairly well in some districts, while in other sections not much is being done in this line. Already some packing houses have begun to book lumber business, though the bulk of this trade is captured in October, pork, and other heavy lines being required.

ADVERTISING CEYLON TEA IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

By W. A. Graham Clark, Special Agent.

The area of cultivation of tea in British possessions has been stationary for the last four years, but last year saw a very great increase in the consumption of British-grown tea. Hundreds of acres of tea in Ceylon have been interplanted with Para rubber, which will gradually oust the tea. However, with the revival of high tea prices this planting of rubber to take the place of tea is being discontinued. Russia, Germany, and Australia are taking more tea than ever, while the advertising efforts of the Indian and Ceylon tea growers in America has increased the demand for tea there.

A question that is being agitated by the tea planters in Ceylon is in regard to the imposition of a tax known as the "tea cess." The planters many years ago were anxious to start an advertising campaign to work up the sale of their product in foreign countries. The Planters' Association, of Ceylon, in order to make all planters bear their fair share, requested the Government to levy a cess on the tea planters for this purpose. Not all planters were in favor of this, but, as the majority were the Government passed an order to this effect, and the tax was collected by the Government and then turned over to the Planters' Association to be expended by them subject to the sanction of the Government. While the amount involved reached large proportions, as the tea industry steadily expanded, little complaint was heard. Lately, however, many planters have come to the conclusion that as the foundations have been laid for an expanding trade, it can now be carried on with less burden to the planters, and they petitioned the Government to lower the amount of their assessment to the association.

The Government investigated the question and decided that after two years they will cease to act as tax collector for the Ceylon Planters' Association, and that thereafter all contributions to the association will have to be voluntary. Many planters are now petitioning for the continuance of this paternal system, as they fear it may throw the burden of advertising on a few instead of all.

The British Government helped tea considerably last year by lowering the high tariff on tea imported into the United Kingdom from 8d. (16 cents) to 5d. (10 cents) a pound. Besides England, Italy, France and Austria levy high duties on tea, while Germany has a low duty and the United States and Australia allow the import of tea free. The advertising efforts of the Ceylon and Indian tea growers have increased their sales in America, but with larger results in Canada than in the United States.

Tea is the great staple crop of Ceylon, and of the tea-growing countries of the world it ranks third, being only exceeded by India and China Forty years ago the United Kingdom used only China tea. Since then Indian tea has come into general use, and about 1883, Ceylon tea was introduced, and the imports of both have shown an upward trend, while the imports of China tea have steadily gone down, until now Indian and Ceylon tea control the English market absolutely, and there is very little China tea used Western Wheat Moving Well—Some Say Reports of Frost Have Been Underestimated—Canadian Millers Independent of Foreign Markets.

Good reports continue to be received from the West. As a sample of how the wheat is moving, it may be said that on Tuesday last 83 cars of new wheat and 11 of old were inspected at Winnipeg, the former averaging No. 2 Northern or better. This, however, as against something like 550 cars at the same date last year. The difference is due, almost wholly, it is to be hoped, to the late harvest and not, as some people have intimated, to any shortage in the crop.

Domestic demand for flour and cereals is so good at this time that Canada is in the enviable position of being altogether independent of the foreign markets. There is nothing doing in the way of concessions to English buyers, and if these latter want to do business they are obliged to meet Canadian prices. This, unfortunately, is far from being the case all through the year, but at present there is so little flour being produced, comparatively speaking, that the domestic consumption is well able to take care of it all.

Some reports are being circulated to the effect that the amount of frost in the West has been underestimated. This may be true, but it is more likely to be the fabrication of some unfortunate who is on the wrong side of the market, and wants to square himself by the shortest route. The big milling companies seem to have bought up the bulk of the old wheat, and very little now remains in the hands of speculators.

Confectionery.

Confectionery is worth more attention than you are probably giving it.

It costs little to handle, brings you increased business and practically sells itself.

Not all trade can be reached directly. Did you ever try striking at the mother's patronage through the sweet tooth of her child?

Is it wise policy to pass up a proposition which is reasonable on the face of it, without taking the trouble to investigate its merits by trial?

Think it over in your spare time, but DO IT NOW.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Once again flour has advanced. Prices are higher to-day than they have been for months, and the market is very firm at below quotations. Millers do not know what they are going to get in the way of 1907 wheat, so they are not running any chances of being caught short of grain and sold out of flour.

FEED—The situation in feed has been made even worse than it was by another advance. Prices are extremely high, as will be seen from the following quotations:

FLOUR—Prices are unchanged from last week, but the market is very strong and a further advance would not surprise anyone. Little wheat is offering, owing to the late harvest, and the output of the millers is at present not much in excess of what domestic consumption is able to take care of.

SECRET OF SUCCESS.

Bishop Ingram, of London, England, gives in the following the five secrets of influence and success:

I would remind you that I am not yet 50, but I seem to have more than 50 years' experience of human nature, for I have associated with all sorts and conditions of men. Before I was 30 I had plunged into the East End of London and came in contact with the coster. It was there I learnt the lesson of give and take. After a few years of this I was made a canon of St. Paul's, when I was able to apply my experience of human nature to the busy men of the city. Shortly after this another turn of fortune's wheel, or as I prefer to put it, the wise ruling of Providence, landed me in the house of lords, and the fashionable West End, where I have spoken the truth on social evils equally as plainly as I did in the slums of the East.

I think I have grasped the secrets of the influence of one man over another. There are five of them. The first is absolutely straightness. I always believe in being straight.

I never allowed a man in the East End to be button-holed about his religion in his club any more than. I would allow a bishop to be button-holed to join the Land League.

I have learned a good deal about Canada during my short stay here, and I am going to speak straight to you, but I do not wish to be misunderstood. I think Canada has a good deal to learn from the Old Country. I believe we in England can hold up an example to the rest of the world for straightness in public life.

There is not a public man in the Old Country to-day who has gone into public life for his own aggrandizement. We pride ourselves on the purity of our public life, and when the political corruption was revealed a short time ago in West Ham the whole of popular England turned against those people.

Do not accept a substitute for any article advertised in these columns. Insist on getting what you ask for.

I do not want to dictate, but you must keep absolute straightforwardness in your public life in Canada. If you are ever to become a great nation with a population of 100,000,000—greater than England—greater than the United States—you must insist on having purity in the political and municipal life of the country.

The second secret is, "have no side" or "frills." The self-conceited man loses his influence with his fellows and never regains it.

As for the third secret, everybody hates the man who does not possess a sympathetic heart. Sympathy is necessary to help each other in our daily lives. Learn to look on life as a stewardship, not as ownership. You only possess it for a few years. Have sympathy, it is a big influence. If there was more of it, we should never hear of socialistic and other fantastic theories.

The fourth secret is to have a sense of humor. Could I have held the vast crowds spellbound in Victoria Park unless I had a broad sense of humor, and made them laugh heartily? Christianity means cheerfulness. If a man is really holy he must take a bright view of things and reflect that brightness in his life and not be afraid of a joke. Long, sad faces are no aid to religion. Laugh, be cheerful, be humorous.

The fifth and last, but most important secret, is "faith." A man without faith has no conviction, no influence. One must have faith in God and faith in another world. Faith is essential to life.

Take these secrets to your friends, make good use of them, and your fellow-men will be the better for your having lived. Apply them as a nation and Canada will become what she is destined to be—the greatest nation in the world.

A NEW TABLE JELLY.

A new table jelly, which promises to develop into a favorable seller, has just been placed on the market by the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., under the name "Imperial Dessert Jelly." The article has been in course of preparation for several months and neither time nor expense has been spared in producing an article that would appeal to the trade. It is claimed to be different from ordinary jelly powders, in that it reproduces all the flavor of fruits which are used in its manufacture, and is absolutely pure. The package is gotten out in the same colors as the other MacLaren products, and a dozen of these are supplied in an outer carton in the form of a pyramid, this being especially prepared for display on a grocer's counter.

George Maybee, manager of the coffee department of the Eby, Blain Company, Toronto, was in Montreal during the week.

TRADE NEWS OF NOVA SCOTIA

Manitoba Flour Advanced 25 Cents—Half a Million Barrels of Apples From the Annapolis Valley—Cheese Higher.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 23.—Crop conditions and the advancing price of breadstuffs now attract the attention of the jobber. The flour markets here are very firm, and show a strong, upward tendency. The latest advance on Manitoba flour is to the extent of 25 cents. High-grade flours, such as Purity, Five Roses and Ogilvie's Royal Household, are quoted at $6.25 by the carload. Within the past four months there has been an advance of about $1.25 per barrel on these flours. So far, the bakers have not increased the price of bread, and for this the consumer is most thankful. Meals are also higher, and will likely remain so. Oats are selling at 60 cents per bushel. It is stated that the Prince Edward Island crop will yield nearly a million bushels this year.

There is an abundance of fruit now on the market. The receipts of plums are quite heavy, and the quality is excellent. The choicest Burbanks are selling at 40 cents for a six-quart basket. Other qualities, such as Lombards, can be bought cheaper, some selling for 30 cents per basket. The early varieties of apples are very fine, particularly Bough Sweets, the choicest selling for $3.50 per barrel. Smaller varieties can be bought as low as $1.50. Shipments to the British market are slow this year. The only big cargo sent forward so far was that by the Rappahannock, which sailed last week with 15,000 barrels. It is expected that these apples will find a good market. It is estimated that the yield of apples in the Annapolis Valley this year will reach half a million barrels. There has been an advance in the price of cheese since last report. Large are quoted at 13 cents per pound, and small at 13½c. Eggs continue scarce and the quality is not to be relied upon. Some of the jobbers have had to candle recent receipts to get out the best eggs. Butter is very firm, and the receipts are limited for the season of the year. Creamery, in tubs, is quoted at 24 cents and small from 22 to 24 cents.

All port products are very high, and, in fact, record prices are charged for the best bacon, 22 cents being asked by the dealers. Very little fresh pork has been marketed so far. The demand is good, and it is expected that the high price will be maintained. Nine to nine and a half cents per pound by the whole hog is asked. Lamb is a little on the scarce side, due, it is said, to the heavy demand from the American market.

Fish is coming in more plentiful, and there is a good demand for all cured lines. The oyster season is now on, but shipments from the island are slow thus far.

H. C. Barnaby & Sons, of Bridgewater, N.S., is one of the oldest and most successful firms in Bridgewater, they having carried on a grocery business there for a long period. Recently they were compelled to commence an addition to their fine brick warehouse, because of the expansion of their trade. The firm carries a full line of first-class groceries.

Another firm which has just started business in the town of Bridgewater, is that of Wile & Griffin. They will deal in flour, meals and feed. The junior member of the firm is John W. Griffin, who for many years represened Pazant & King, whoesale grocers, of Halifax.

The photograph shown above represents an interior view of Messrs. Stevens & Allan's grocery store at Kamloops, B.C. Both the proprietors are men of up-to-date ideas, and employ advanced methods in handling their business. They report an excellent trade in Kamloops for all staple lines, and a growing demand for what may be classed as luxuries, and when last heard of were obtaining a sufficient proportion of it to necessitate the employment of three clerks.

NEW BRUNSWICK POTATOES.

The Loss Through Rot is Expected to Be Heavy.

The potato rot has developed a most unfortunate state of affairs among the farmers in the counties of Carleton, Victoria and Madawaska. As a result of good crops for some years and the opening up of a new market in the upper Provinces, land values in those counties had greatly increased and this year the area devoted to potato culture had been increased to an extent which promised a crop twice as large as that of last year. Only a few weeks ago the problem of providing frostproof warehouses for this crop led to a meeting in Woodstock of shippers, railway men, farmers, and representatives of the Provincial Government. Now word comes that the rot has created such havoc that some fields are not worth digging at all; that all are more or less affected by the rot, and that the total output of the enlarged acreage will not exceed the yield of last year, with the prospect that much of this crop will not keep for any length of time. In Maine the rotting tubers may be rushed to the starch factories, but there is no such market for the farmers on the New Brunswick side of the line. Many have suffered considerable loss and the aggregate loss will be heavy. However, such a season comes but seldom in this province, and next year should show a different result. If the culture of potatoes on a large scale is to be continued, both the warehouse question and that of starch factories should receive consideration before next year's crop is put in the ground.

Albert Dagenais, grocer, of Hull, Quebec, died last week.

Wolff & Scott, general merchants, of Ochre River, Man., have assigned to C. H. Newton.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Markets Filled With Canadian Fruit Which is Now in Full Swing—Good Outlook for Apples—Fish Continues Scarce.

A profusion of Canadian fruit has kept the market busy this week. Plums and pears continue to arrive in quantity, and grapes are beginning to come in freely. Peaches still remain scarce.

The apple market is somewhat firmer in Canada this week, as a result of extensive American purchases. The outlook seems good for the season's business, with prospects that surplus stock will be taken by Great Britain and the United States.

Fish contine scarce in both Quebec and Ontario, and several lines have advanced as a result.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Californian fruits are lower again this week, but they are about done. Canadian plums and pears have been plentiful, causing a drop in prices. The scarcity of peaches, however, has kept that market firm. Florida oranges are expected in the not distant future. Apples are arriving freely and buyers have good choice, as will be seen from quotations. Lemons are very plentiful and the cheaper old stock is obtainable at $1.50. Bananas are easier.

VEGETABLES—A falling-off in the demand for some varieties is noticeable, owing to the approach of fall weather, but on the whole business is satisfactory, considering that dealers do not expect September shipments to yield them as much as August. There have been no price changes during the week, except in the case of corn, which is slightly easier :

FISH—Higher prices rule for haddock and cod this week. Both are scarce, owing to stormy weather and the presence of dogfish in the fishing grounds. Receipts of halibut continue good and sales are satisfactory. The continued cool weather has helped trade in trout, whitefish and other fresh water lines. Supplies of dore are larger and dealers are now able to fill orders for this variety. In smoked fish the only drawback to good business is the slow arrival of kippers, haddies and bloaters, all of which are in good demand. Boneless, skinless, and green cod are arriving more freely.

FRUITS—An abundant supply of Canadian fruit is the feature of this week's market. An excellent demand keeps prices about the same as last week. The market will be full of this fruit for a couple of weeks longer. Plums are getting near the end and next week will see about the last of them. Pears are plentiful and peaches also are in fair supply. Grapes also are beginning to come in freely.

VEGETABLES—The potato situation is a little more encouraging this week. New Brunswick arrivals are of a somewhat better class and the local crop is also better. Cabbage took a sudden rise at the end of the week, but is easier now. Cranberries are now quoted on the local market.

CANADA AND THE WEST INDIES

How Canada can improve her trade with the Islands.

Canadian houses should have representatives on the ground.

The sugar situation as it is at present.

By Sir Daniel Morris, K.C.M.G., British Commissioner of Agriculture to the West Indies.

The following article is the gist of an address given by Sir Daniel Morris before the Toronto Board of Trade on Sept. 19:

In the early days the West Indies were great sugar producers. When slavery was abolished many of the greatest planters took the compensation of the Government and left the islands. That has ever since disorganized the planting business. But to the credit of Great Britain she did what no other country has done in making pecuniary allowances to the planters for the loss of their slaves. Since those days sugar has greatly fallen in price. That product has played an important factor in the growth of commerce of those islands. In the days of the great Napoleon he had endeavored to strike a blow at the trade of Great Britain, and so had founded the beet sugar industry in Europe. Another factor in favor of the beet product is the bounty system. If the Europeans export sugar from the Continent they are given a large rebate. The effect of this system on the colonies of Great Britain is that when they go upon the market with their sugar they have to accept the market price alone. The German and French sugar producers receive in addition a bounty. Since the establishment of the Brussels Conference three years ago the prices of sugar were equalized, giving the British West Indies fair play in this trade and enabling them to make some profit.

The people of the West Indies have been just saved from losing their fair trade in sugar by the present British Government, after threatening to withdraw from the above convention, deciding not to do so. But the other Continental countries would not return to the bounty system. The market for West Indian sugar is provided by Canada and Great Britain. The sugar imported into this country from these islands up to June 30 last totalled 166,000 tons, so about 78 per cent. of the sugar consumed in Canada came from the West Indies. There were 4,300,000 gallons of molasses and syrups produced in these islands. Sugar and molasses now constitute seven-elevenths of the total trade between the Dominion and these islands. Some of the raw sugar also goes from the West Indies to the refineries of Great Britain and thence to this country. Under 2,000 tons is imported from British Africa. About 88 per cent. of the sugar consumed in Canada comes from British sources. Canada and the West Indies might enter into closer reciprocal relations and build up a great trade between them.

Danger Ahead.

There is one danger ahead. The rapid growth of the sugar trade with Canada is due to the preference and the falling off in the importation of German sugars, of which large amounts came into the country three or four years ago. But the German Government having laid an embargo on Canadian goods, a surtax of 33 per cent. is imposed on the sugar of the fatherland. I am informed that if Germany is willing to remove the embargo on Canadian goods, German sugar might come in again under the general treaty. I did not think, therefore, that the people of the West Indies can feel quit safe in the future of their sugar trade with this country.

Much is still to be done to bring Canadians in closer trade relations with the West Indies. The total trade of the West Indies is valued at $60,000,000 in exports and imports. Of this, Canada has about $11,000,000. So far as the West Indies were concerned, the people are desirous of doing all that is possible to increase the trade between their islands and Canada. The preference shows that the people of Canada are quite ready to do what they can in this way.

One group of colonies by resolution have expressed a strong desire to come into closer relations with this country, and I hope to see this accomplished. On certain points conferences can be held, and I think that it would be advisable to appoint a general agent for Canada in the West Indies. With his headquarters at Barbados, he could travel through the islands distributing circulars and reading matter to familiarize the people with the Dominion.

General Agent Needed.

At present local agents represent these islands there, but a good general agent is needed. I seldom or ever meet with commercial travelers from Canada, while I frequently meet with those from the United States. I think that Canadian houses ought to be represented in the islands by commercial men. Certain articles are produced in the West Indies that are not known of in Canada. There are Jamaica cigars, grown by Cubans who have taken refuge in that island some years ago. A cattle food, made from molasses and the fine fibre of the sugar cane is also produced, and it has been recently introduced into Canada. Another food substance is made from the fibre of the rice plant and molasses. There is also Cassava starch, which is superior to the arrowwood starch.

A large quantity of rice is now being produced by the Hindus, who are growing it in British Demerara on a large scale. In Trinidad and Tobago, India rubber is being planted on a fairly large scale. Though the area of the West Indies is small, totalling 100,000 square miles, it is about half cultivated. But the islands are remarkably productive. Of the total area of Barbados, 90 per cent. is cultivated. An acre of bananas in Jamaica yields a clear profit of £15.

Three or four years ago, cotton planting was commenced in those islands, and already there is a considerably large export of the product. But sugar remains the staple industry of the West Indies.

DIPLOMA FOR DISPLAY.

Melegama Tea have been awarded a diploma for the best tea display at the recently concluded Ottawa Exhibition. The Melegama tea people have been forging ahead lately in great shape, and this tangible appreciation of their efforts should be most gratifying to them.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS.

C. H. Cochrane & Co., the Ottawa coffee and spice firm, are enlarging their premises. When completed they will have 60 feet frontage on Sparks St., and 58 feet on Wellington St. A new plant has been installed and the firm is doing business on a larger scale than ever.

Jas. H. Campbell, of the Acme Can Co., Montreal, is in Toronto this week attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He paid The Grocer a call.

Richard Nash, representing E. D. Marceau, Montreal, passed through Montreal this week on his return from a most successful trip. Mr. Nash is one of the best posted tea men in the trade.

THE ENDORSING HABIT IS COMMERCIAL BRIGANDAGE

There are few if any business customs sanctioned by law and usage so utterly hostile to the very foundations of business principle as the endorsing habit. As an American exchange says: "Value received for value given," is one of the unalterable fundamentals of honest business; one that both custom and law make themselves parties in violating whenever a disinterested third party is called into the deal.

However complicated the business transaction, it resolves itself into two parties, each represented by one or more individuals, a buyer and a seller. Both are supposedly benefited in some way by the trade; "value received for value given." Each party is paid for his original possession, his work, his property, his money, in an equivalent of past, present or future. If goods are sold, cash or its equivalent is given for them, the seller receiving as his price for making the trade a certain advance over what they cost him, or, are worth to him to keep his profits. The buyer receives his price or profit in the use the articles will be to him above their cost, either to barter or to keep.

If money is borrowed, the lender sells the work of his money at so much per year, the same as a livery keeper hires a horse out to a customer. The price paid in each case represents the profit. On the other hand, the borrower expects to get enough service, work, out of the money to warrant him in paying for its services. All business transactions conducted on an honest business basis only involve two parties, the buyer and the seller. Any attempt to drag in a third is rank robbery, whether it be done by the merchant in the name of friendship or by the law in the shape of bail bonds, etc.

The system is so well established that it looks like blowing in wind to controvert it; still it is a bit of commercial brigandage that ought to be frowned upon by every honest man that all the others, including the court and lawyers, would have to drop it from their book of legal traditions.

What is the remedy? There are several in the hands of every retailer. First of all, and this is the oldest of all, too, never endorse a note or any form of commercial paper for any one. Let those of your friends whom you think worthy use you as a reference, in other words, occasionally permit the loan of your own good opinion. Give all men to understand that when it comes to borrowing your money or your credit there is but one business way, that is, to pay for the accommodation, same as they would pay a bank.

Another remedy, harder to accept, but quite as important as the first; never permit any business man to tempt you into dragging one of your friends in as an endorser. You have no right to ask him to pay for your goods in his own credit any more than in cash. If you must go to him, ask him to lend you the money and pay him for the accommodation, not some banker. Be honest with him, anyway, and give the interest to the man who really assumes the risk.

Last, but not least, never ask a creditor to get an endorser. Deal with him on the even exchange of value basis, or else don't deal. You have no more right to tempt him into taking something from his friends he has no right to take than you have to ask him to steal for you; no better business right, that is. The legal right is quite another thing.

EFFECTIVE WINDOW DRESSING

A Cash Bargain Store At Brantford—Does it Fulfill Its Object—Some Suggestions for Making Attractive Vegetable Displays.

The window shown below was sent in by Delmere D. Butler, a clerk in Fred. C. Harp's "Cash Bargain Grocery," at 104 Dalhousie St., Brantford, Ont. It is a display of a well-known brand of cured meat, and while, as Mr. Butler remarks, "A meat display is only good for one day, it means increased sales of this article, which most grocers handle."

A point about this window which may be observed with profit and imitated to advantage, is that every article displayed is marked with a price ticket. It strikes me as a window which, while not startlingly attractive or of any great interest-compelling power, would yet catch the eye of the bargain-hunting housewife and make her pause. The price-tickets are attractive, too, and in harmony with the general tastiness of the layout. Little things in themselves, but not to be neglected.

An Attractive Cured Meat Display.

The idea of a cash bargain grocery isn't bad, either, if it can be conducted on a right basis. The chief difficulty about a store of this sort is that customers expect to get everything they buy there at a greatly reduced price, and come there with the intention of buying bargains and bargains only, whereas, the retailer, though he labels his store "bargain grocery," frequently displays a bargain line only in order to have the opportunity of attracting his customers' notice to other and more profitable goods when he has lured them inside his store. I should like to hear from Mr. Harp on how this has worked out in his own experience.

VEGETABLE DISPLAY.

"The Art and Science of Window Dressing," a well-illustrated book, published by the Retailers' Journal, contains the following hints on vegetable display:

"Perhaps there is nothing in the way of display in which the grocer falls so far short of excellence as in the exhibition of vegetables and fruits. Usually the grocer puts his fruits and vegetables out in front of his store where the warm wind, laden with dust, soon destroys its freshness.

"The best displays of fruits and vegetables are made in the show window itself, and it requires no small amount of skill and patience to make the display a success.

"It is a good plan to begin the vegetable and fruit display Friday night so as to have a fresh and tempting display for the Saturday trade.

"In beginning the display the stock that is the most hardy should be put in first. Saturday morning, when the fresh goods come in from the market the window can be finished. The general plan of the display however, is made beforehand so that all the grocer has to do is to put his fresh goods in the places already designed for them.

"Any grocer who starts out with the idea of making a good display of vegetables or fruit must make up his mind that such a display will require a great deal of attention, for a showing of wilted vegetables or shriveled fruit is worse than no display. And yet it does not require a great deal of time to keep the display in order. It is largely a matter of giving the display a little attention at the right time.

"After having made a Friday night window for Saturday display, the window should be made up again Monday morning and from day to day such minor changes as are necessary should be made as soon as a fresh supply of vegetables or fruit is brought to the store. In this way a good, fresh, attractive display may be kept up until the new Saturday display is put in.

"The exclusive fruit dealers, from long experience, have learned to make beautiful displays of fruit in their show windows. And they have the knack of keeping them fresh.

"Vegetables, of course will not make such a pretty showing as fruit. Still, by making proper combinations of forms and colors, a very attractive showing can be made.

"The grocer should bear in mind that the newest goods on the market should have the pride of place in the display.

"Where it is desired to make a very effective display it is well to use a stand that uses a small amount of water to keep goods fresh."

SHORT WEIGHT EVIL.

The campaign which a number of Western grocery trade papers are booming against the practices of putting up short-weight goods is producing interesting results all along the line. Nor is it probable that the evil is confined to the West, and grocers elsewhere will do well to pay attention to the advice: "Measure, weigh, count everything." Since the agitation commenced, shortage has been detected in about every kind of package goods shipped to the West and South. Sugar in barrels, mackerel in kegs and barrels, pickles, package groceries of all kinds, preserves and tobacco have all been found guilty. The latest, and perhaps one of the worst deceptions, appears to be on cheese. A writer, in one of the Western papers, tells his experiences with a carload of cheese, which illustrates the situation. The shortage may have been small in proportion, but at present prices it was vast in the aggregate and was a disgrace to the shipper as an honorable merchant.

"I was in Little Rock last week," he says, "when a car of cheese came in. I told the consignee to weigh it. He laughed, but finally did so. Then he threw up his hands in horror. The whole car ran two and one-half pounds short to the hoop. Think what that means! The car was shipped from Chicago. I know one jobbing house that sends out literature denouncing short-weight cheese. They are shipping out short cheese all the time." —Journal of Commerce.

A little de lux booklet, "A Story of the Tea Plant," printed on fine book paper, covered in linen printed in purple and gold and nicely illustrated, has just been issued by the Salada Tea Company, Toronto. A request on a postal card, mentioning The Canadian Grocer, will bring a copy of this to our subscribers.

Albert Williams, Canadian representative of Crosfield, Lampard, Clark & Co., London, Eng., was a caller upon the Toronto jobbing trade last week.

NEW BRUNSWICK NEWS

Bad Crop Reports Send Flour Prices Soaring—Chocolate and Cocoa Butter Advanced—Loss on Potato Crop May Be Very Heavy.

(By The Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

St. John, N.B. Sept. 23.

Flour continues its onward march and the dealers are looking for still further advances. Manitobas went up 25 cents on Tuesday, while Ontarios advanced 15 cents on the same day and 15 cents more on Wednesday. This makes the price of Ontarios now $5.65 to $5.75, and Manitobas $6.40 to $6.50. The reason given for the high prices is bad reports from the wheat crop all over the world and it is likely the present prices will prevail for some time.

Cornmeal has also advanced. The price now is $1.75 in bags and $3.60 in barrels. The latest advance was 10 cents.

Oatmeal, likewise, has taken a leap skyward. The first of the week it could be purchased for $5.25, but now $5.75 is the price asked.

All mill feeds, including middlings, bran and feeding flour, have advanced from $2 to $3 a ton.

The natural effect of the increased prices on flour will probably mean higher prices for bread, and no doubt the bakers will shortly be asking one cent more per loaf for their product. It is costing the bakers $1.40 a barrel more for Manitobas than it did three or four months ago.

Another line in which there has been a large advance is chocolate and cocoa butter. This is said to be the result, not of speculation, but of a shortage of cocoa beans, and the shortage is likely to be even greater than was expected. The price of cocoa beans is now 80 to 100 per cent. more than it was a year ago. This means an advance in the price of all goods into which the manufacture of chocolate and cocoa enters.

In the country market the coming of game brought some variety during the past week. Hindquarters of moose are selling at nine and eleven cents and venison at seven and eight cents. Potatoes are steady at from $1 to $1.25 a barrel and so far as the local market is concerned, are quite plentiful. A correspondent at Hartland writes:

"Potatoes have dropped to 80 cents all around. The weather for the past few days has been favorable for digging and the fields present a busy scene. Laborers are scarce and $2 a day is freely offered. The drop in price is largely owing to the scarcity of cars. The railway authorities make no apparent effort to supply the shippers, but for American shippers to American points they have a ready supply of cars. Such discrimination, the result of competition, is disastrous to New Brunswick farmers."

Eggs are very scarce and bring 20 cents. Butter in rolls or tubs also 20 cents.

A Woodstock despatch of the 19th says: "Further reports from various sections of the county fully confirm the gloomy outlook concerning the potato crop. The most optimistic estimate places the crop at not more than one-half the average. The farmers say they will not dig them at all.

"One farmer a mile out of town, with seven acres in potatoes, has offered the lot to any one who will pay a phosphate bill of about two hundred dollars, but has found no takers. This is a fair index of the condition of the crop. The only farmers who stand to get at least a fair return are those who planted on very high ground. The loss due to rot and rust is put at half a million bushels in this county alone."

Apples are reported scarce, especially the New Brunswick fruit, and prices are high. Nova Scotia plums are now on the market and dealers are advising the consumers to buy, as the indications point to few, if any, of the Ontario stock being available.

The bluberry season is about over and the shipments from Kings County have been the heaviest in years. At Sussex, the Dominion Express Company alone handled about 40,000 quarts, while shipments from other stations were also very heavy. One great drawback to the well meant enterprise of those engaged in the business was the scarcity of crates and had it not been for this an even larger business would have been done. The profits were good and considerable money has been made by those engaged in catering to American tastes.

Herbert Norrey, Salisbury, reports shipments of 46,600 quarts of blueberries to the Sussex Packing Co. Mr. Norrey has been in the business for 13 years, and claims that this has been the best season from the standpoint of crops and prices in his experience. The blueberries were all handled in barrels and forty pickers were engaged in the work. The dead weight of the shipments was 35 tons. The berries came from Turtle Creek, near Salisbury, where the barrens were simply carpeted with the fruit.

Under the terms of the new Dominion Inspection Act, an inspector will be maintained at the factory of the Sussex Packing Co. Mr. Edgett, of Moncton, has been appointed to the position by the Department of Agriculture, at a salary of $1,200 per annum. It is understood that he will move to Sussex.

A grist mill, built of re-enforced concrete, is being erected on Celebration St., by O. D. Ford & W. E. Darling, of Nauwigewauk. It is expected that the mill will be ready to commence operations before the first of the year.

The St. John Board of Trade has given its endorsement to the business of the Canadian Woodenware Company, which proposes to start operations at South Bay. In an open letter to the newspapers they recommend the industry to the favorable consideration of capitalists, merchants and others who feel like encouraging the promotion of home industries.

The company intend to manufacture pails, tubs, etc., for the putting up of candy, jam, lard, etc., and will be the only concern of its kind east of Ottawa. The raw materials, viz., spruce and pine, are here in abundance.

Word has been received that the proposed improvements in the I.C.R. yard here will be made in time for this winter's traffic and the announcement is warmly received by local merchants in all lines of business.

A POPULAR CLERK.

William McCrae, Manager for A. M. McLaren, of Guelph.

William McCrae has probably served, and served well, in as many stores as most men. At the present time he is looking after Arch. McLaren's up-to-date grocery on the Elora Road, Guelph. Some years ago Mr. McCrae managed a branch store for W. H. Fielding and a splendid business was done. He was head shipper for the Imperial Biscuit

Wm. McCrae, Guelph.

Co., Guelph, and later went to J. A. McCrae & Sons' branch store as head clerk. When the business was sold to Mr. McLaren, he retained Mr. McCrae as his manager.

"Will," as everyone calls him, has all kinds of good ideas on running a store, and when you go past his shop you see, even on the outside, evidences of his ingenuity. He generally has a two-sided blackboard stuck up on the sidewalk, and on this he chalks his bargains or special offerings.

Mr. McLaren has one of the biggest spaces for showing fruit of anyone in town and "Will" makes good use of it. As a window dresser or stock keeper he is hard to beat and a more popular clerk both outside and inside the store, you will find it difficult to come across.

For the past four or five months Mr. McCrea has been Guelph correspondent for The Grocer, and most people are agreed that it adds interest to the paper to see a corner for your own little town's news

Why a Gasolene Stove Smokes

Cut 10. Outdoor Cabinet

Have you ever been told by a customer that the gasolene she bought of you doesn't burn with a clear blue flame, but has a yellow streak and flickers, blackening the pots and pans? It's very annoying to her and if not remedied will cause her to buy elsewhere, taking the rest of her trade to the new store.

This smoky gasolene is caused by dirt and water getting into the gasolene. It cannot be prevented with the old-style tank. It cannot happen with a Bowser tank.

The Bowser Self-Measuring Gasolene Tank keeps the gasolene as pure and clean as when it left the refinery. It means satisfied customers, the backbone of a successful business.

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

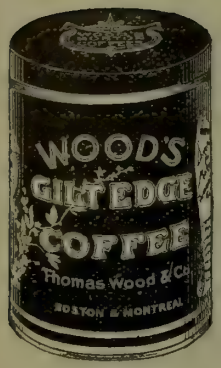
RIGHT DOWN TO BUSINESS



Is the watchword of the merchant who takes advantage of the opening of the Fall trade to increase his sales. To such a few words are better than many. Our Standard requires only the former.

"GILT EDGE" COFFEE

Its uniformity attracts the grocer.
Its fragrant aroma delights the purchaser.
Its true body and exhilarating qualities proclaim its worth.
Its fair price commends it to all.

The best the world affords. Sold in 1 and 2 pound cans. Cases of sixty pounds.

BRADSTREET'S

Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World
Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

There are two reasons why

Old Homestead Brand

of Canned Fruits and Vegetables should be handled by every Grocer in Canada

1st. The margin of profit is liberal

2nd. Old Homestead Brand is in great demand, and that demand is ever on the increase

¶ At the back of this ever-increasing demand are the soundest of reasons to account for it. In the first place, the selection of fruits and vegetables is made by experts. They reject any particle of fruit or vegetable which is not perfectly sound. Then, the factory where the Old Homestead Brand is produced is easily the most up-to-date and sanitary canning factory in Canada. No expense has been spared in making the best brand of canned fruits and vegetables on the market. We have succeeded, with the result that it is the quickest-selling and most-constantly-demanded Brand of Canned Goods in the trade.

Old Homestead Brand

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

They Grease the Wheels of Commerce

Even if they didn't save you a cent, they so simplify relations with your trade, so thoroughly eliminate the causes of petty disputes, that they are a good investment.

The ALLISON Coupon Books

But they DO save you not cents, but DOLLARS, so many dollars that, as a business proposition, you should have them, whether you can afford to do without them or not. Thousands of progressive merchants are using them.

How They Work:

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him $10; no trouble. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on for all his purchases until the book is used up. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors and no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best, BECAUSE THEY ARE. Let us send you cancelled sample, free.

PEMBROKE.

Pembroke! Eh? What's that? Pembroke, where's that? What, don't you know? Well, ask the next commercial traveler that walks into your store. He will tell you that Pembroke is that pretty town in the Upper Ottawa Valley, the happy hunting ground of nearly all the commercial travelers in the Dominion; that busy centre of the lumbering trade; the jumping-off ground of innumerable hunting and fishing parties during the season. Well, if you don't know where it is, buy a ticket the very next vacation you have and see for yourself. Just a whisper: Bring your wife with you, or that best girl, and give them the treat of their lives.

* * *

Well, now to business—the thing we are engaged in from 7 a.m. till 6 p.m., and hard at it, too, all the time. Now that the holiday season is finished and the farmers have got their crops in, we are settling down to it in real earnest, but our greatest difficulty is to get real good help to handle the expected increase. The busy housewife is almost up to her eyes with fruit preserving and pickle making and great is the demand for the nimble dollar's worth of sugar and the vinegar tap runs almost in an unbroken stream, while the lady in front of the counter, with her long list of 5c. worth of spices, has become almost a nightmare to the busy clerk.

* * *

The shortage of the fruit crop has caused almost a scramble among the ladies to secure their particular fancies, and although peaches are now selling at from $1.85 to $2 a basket, the demand is pretty brisk. Plums fetch from $1 to $1.25 and grapes are bought up sharp at 40c. to 50c. a 6-quart basket. Local grown tomatoes are now pretty plentiful and can be bought at from 40c. to 60c. a patent pail, (a local way of measuring), green tomatoes at 30c. to 40c. a pail. The farmers are now bringinb in a plentiful supply of vegetables and prices rule low. Potatoes have got down to 75c. to 80c. a bag, but here the buyer often gets a setback, a lot of bags falling short of the proper weight. Really good butter has become a great luxury, fetching as high as 28c. a pound on the market, and likely to go a great deal higher, owing to the scarcity of grass and the high price of cattle feed. Hopes had been entertained that with a good open fall there would have been a good supply of after grass, which would have saved the feed, but the cold snap that has just set in has shattered these illusions, and, in consequence, everyone is looking forward to high prices, and the thrifty housekeeper is filling her crock with all the butter she can lay her hands on.

* * *

With the advent of the threshing machine, the cheap crockery trade has been given a great stimulus, for now the busy farmer's wife finds that she has not enough crocks to put before the hungry mouths that invade her kitchen for meals.

* * *

An occasion of great rejoicing among some hundreds of our worthy townspeople has been the celebration of the silver jubilee of His Lordship, Bishop Lorrain. Flags have been flying for the past three or four days and feasting and religious ceremonies of joy have been the order of the day. One item was the rendering of an oratorio, in which the cathedral choir greatly distinguished themselves, under the leadership of Isidore Martin, a well known local grocer, who has also the honor of being the mayor of our town.

I see some of your correspondents are discussing the question: "Can a grocer run a strict cash trade?" Well, that, in my opinion, is a question of almost purely local surroundings.

In a town like Pembroke, I should say "No," because here almost every trade depends a good deal on the local farmers for a good slice of their trade, and as perhaps most of your readers who are in a similar position know, the farmer is not always able to put his hand into his pocket and pay for every article he requires, when he wants it; in consequence, it would almost amount to business suicide to refuse him credit.

On the other hand, in the cities and large town where factories, etc., abound, I see no reason why a strictly cash business could not be carried on, for here most of the population receive their wages weekly, and with a little education and patience on the part of the merchant, I firmly believe that such a system could be inaugurated and result in great benefit to all concerned.

Apropos of this, one of the local merchants has advertised the fact that he is about to start a cash system, and I shall await with much interest the result.

Pembroke, whose correspondence appears in these pages for the first time, is in favor of the cash system for cities and large towns. We would like to hear from all our subscribers on this and similar questions.

Guelph wants an association and gives some solid reasons why. This is an example that should be followed by every town and city in the Dominion which does not possess a Grocers' Association.

London complains of a scarcity of female labor in the biscuit factories.

Hamilton is enjoying particularly fine markets, full of the choicest Canadian fruit.

CHATHAM.

W. D. O'Leary, wife and family, who have been residents of Wallaceburg for some years past, have removed to Detroit, where Mr. O'Leary has purchased an extensive grain and feed business. He has disposed of his Wallacebueg business.

Farmers report that the heavy windstorm on Sept. 25th caused great damage to apple orchards throughout the county. The loss is all the more felt on account of the shortage in this year's apple crop. Many trees were broken, and a large amount of apples blown to the ground.

A well-attended meeting of the local Board of Trade was held on the evening of Sept. 27th, when the work for the ensuing season was enthusiastically inaugurated. It was decided to hold regular monthly meetings, at which topics appropriate to the work of the board will be dealt with by capable speakers.

Ald. Wm. Potter last week, on the occasion of Mayor Stone's annual outing to the mouth of the river, took occasion to formally announce himself as a candidate for the mayoralty for 1908. Ald. Potter has served for three consecutive years as a member of the city council, besides which he was a member of the town council under the old ward system, some fifteen years ago. During the past two years he has been chairman of the civic property committee, having charge of the completion of the new city market, which is one of the finest in the west, and of the improvement of the city electric lighting system, which, largely as a result of his insistent efforts, will, by the end of the year, be in first-class shape. In the city council there has certainly been no harder worker; and none, it is pretty generally conceded, better entitled to the post. Ex-Ald. Scullard will probably also be a candidate, in addition to which Mayor Stone may enter and make an interesting three-cornered contest. Ald. Potter is a hard fighter, however, and the prospect of opposition will not worry him.

John Mahler, of the firm of Mahler Bros., last week commenced the purchase of apples for their evaporating factory for the fall season. Mr. Mahler states that winter apples are much better than was expected a month ago. Fall apples are very scarce, however; in fact, there are practically none. The firm contemplates a very busy season.

Prices for farm produce are steadily rising. Last week wheat advanced from 95c to 97c; barley from $1.10 to $1.30. Corn is 60c, and oats have risen from 45c to 50c. This is a big advance all round.

Although this is an off year for peaches, Harry A. Andrew, of the Liverpool grocery, has a tree which produced three bushels, all of phenomenal size. One of the peaches tipped the scale at 6½ ounces.

GUELPH.

The damp, cold, rainy weather on Saturday reduced the attendance of both buyers and sellers on our market, and, of course, prices went up. Butter and eggs were unobtainable at any price. Butter got as high as 28c, and eggs 24c. Potatoes, $1.25 a bag. These are not regular prices by any means. For instance, I saw potatoes quoted and bought to be laid down in Guelph at 80c a bag, by the car, whenever wanted; but there are lots of local potatoes, and the price won't go above one dollar retail for a long time yet. Tomatoes and grapes sold at from 20c to 30c a basket; apples are a drug just at present, as most stores are loaded up with fall apples that don't seem to sell at any price.

Robt. Millar, head clerk for Geo. Williams, won the prize for making the most home runs in the church baseball league this year, and he was presented with his reward at the King's Daughters' banquet, in St. Andrew's schoolhouse, to the winning team. It's not on record whether Bobbie put them on to go home with or not.

Gill Jackson, of Jackson & Son, also got inside the money at the Guelph Rifle Association matches this week, which shows the grocers are always busy, and near the front, at that, even in sports.
